DIPLOMATS FEAR WAR

Chip on Shoulder of Every Nation.

European Situation Is More Threatening Than at Any Time in Week.

Austria, Backed by Germany, Defies England, Russia and France.

Iswolsky Sees Threatening Military Preparations in Berlin.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] European war is not as remote from the realm of future possibility as the diplomats would have the people believe.

State officials in every capital of Europe are more anxious over the situation tonight than they have been at any time during the past week. And it is all because the German Emperor has cast his lot with Austria in a way that is considered threatening.

M. Iswolsky, the Russian foreign minister who has been leading the movement for a peaceful settlement of the Balkan troubles, is in Berlin, after having visited London and Paris, and is meeting with a cold reception. Added to this, German officials have taken pains to bring to his notice casually the fact that Germany is arranging her military affairs so that within a few days her army will be practically on a war footing.

M. Iswolsky has also been given plainly to understand that Germany will not brook any interference with Austria in relation to the seizure of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Austria declares positively and without qualification that the annexation of the two provinces is settled, and she will not be a party to any conference that takes up the question in any particular.

BELLIGERENT ATTITUDE.

France makes known with equal positiveness that she will not consider any conference of the powers that approves even by silence the high-handed action of Austria in setting aside the treaty of Berlin without consultation with the signatory powers. President Fallieres demands that Austria be compelled to give up the two provinces without further parley and that the entire Balkan question be settled at the proposed conference.

Russia and England are solidly behind France, while Italy maintains her position in the Triple Alliance with Germany and Austria.

There is a chip on the shoulder of every nation in Europe and a defiant attitude is maintained by the leading governments regarding the positions they have assumed.

ALL EYES ON BERLIN.

All eyes in Europe are on Berlin. Until something shall be disclosed regarding the fateful meeting there between Russia's representative and the Kaiser and Chancellor Von Buelow, no opinion can be formed regarding the development of the international crisis.

The failure of the negotiations with Constantinople was to have been expected. No Turkish government could have lived which accepted proposals made informally by Austria or Bulgaria. The current version of Austria's offer makes out no more than an insult to the Porte. It was that Turkey accept as an offset for the loss of Bosnia and Herzegovina a guarantee of the integrity of the Ottoman empire, in addition to the retrocession of the Sanjak of Novibazar. In other words, Austria having despoiled Turkey, proposed to become her virtual suzerain.

Had Turkey assented to this preposterous suggestion it would have created an even worse situation than the present between the great powers. It would have marked the end of general European agreements and reduced diplomacy to the primitive methods of the eighteenth century.

MAY YET OCCUR.

Such may yet be the outcome of the present tangle, but it would not follow that war was inevitable. It is necessary to distinguish clearly between the two questions with which Turkey and Europe at large are confronted.

The Turkish-Bulgarian dispute is not beyond settlement. Bulgaria, since Russia's energetic threat of invasion drove her a week ago to seek, through France as an intermediary, some basis of understanding with Turkey, seems sincerely desirous of a peaceful solution. The evidence of this is in the terms of the settlement of the Orient Railway dispute, which was easily reached by Bulgaria's special emissary in Constantinople.

The attitude of the two countries in the matter of the Eastern Roumelia tribute is apparently irreconcilable. But it is suspected that Bulgaria's position is not final on this point. Ferdinand's government is badly in need of money. They have been notified in plain language by European financiers this week that their needs will be supplied when Bulgarian independence has been recognized by Europe and not before.

GERMANY MYSTERIOUS.

Bulgaria's lofty refusal to pay tribute to another State after her independence has been declared does not quite fit the case of the Eastern Roumelian payment of $900,000 annually. These payments do not go to the Turkish revenues. The annual tribute is paid direct through the Ottoman Bank to holders of Turkish bonds, and it represents Eastern Roumelia's share of the Turkish debt when Eastern Roumelia was part of the Ottoman empire.

This was an integral part of the terms on which Eastern Roumelia was added to Bulgaria and Turkey, and Turkey's creditors argue that the change in Bulgaria's position from nominal to titular independence in no way affects these terms, either legally or ethically. There is strong reason to believe that any European conference would take the same view.

Considering these facts and also that money will be forthcoming both for capitalizing this obligation and for her other needs, so soon as Bulgaria consents to the arrangement it does not seem impossible that a settlement can be reached. Paris persists in believing that if Turkey allows herself to be forced into war it will mean that Germany desires a general European conflict. It is only fair to say that there is no sign of any such purpose thus far in any of Germany's actions. Her real desires continue to be completely hidden, but the absence of any reasonable motive for war at the present is the best guarantee of her peaceful intentions.

ASTONISHING.

SIGNATURES ARE GENUINE.

EXPERT TESTIFIES THAT RICE SIGNED FAMOUS WILL.

Dr. Hamilton Springs Sensation in Court When He Offers to Prove Name Believed to Have Been Forged by Patrick Was Written by Texas Millionaire.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. Hamilton of Auburn, N. Y., noted analytical chemist, created a sensation in the United States Circuit Court during the continuation of the Burbank case today, when, during a digression, he declared that the four alleged forgeries of the name of William Marsh Rice in the Houston, Tex., millionaire's will were genuine signatures of the dead man.

"I testified as an expert in the Prentiss will case at Albany," said Dr. Hamilton, "and allusion was there made to the four alleged forgeries of the name of William Marsh Rice in the disputed testament.

"I investigated those alleged forgeries and communicated to Mr. Patrick the result of my investigations, undertaken, as is all my work, in perfect fairness and without bias for or against the party who calls my attention to it. I thought it was my duty to write Mr. Patrick as I did."

"Then you didn't agree with the court that those signatures were forgeries?" commented Lawyer Eugene D. Hawkins, who was cross-examining.

"No, and I'm prepared to demonstrate at any time upon a few hours' notice that those signatures are genuine."

"But did you not say earlier in your testimony, on direct examination, that where signatures or writings are superimposed, 100 per cent. or almost that, that it was presumptive proof of forgery, of tracing?"

"I did, but the Rice signatures do not superimpose with exactness 40 per cent."

"You don't agree with testimony that they superimposed almost exactly?"

"No. They superimpose apparently, and apparently alone."

MISS ELKINS MAKES PLANS FOR WEDDING.

Six Attendants Will Be Well-Known Members of Washington and New York Society—Duke of Abruzzi Reported to Have Sailed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Following the announcement a few days ago that Miss Marjorie Gould and Miss Rosalie O'Brien were to be two of the bridesmaids at the Elkins-d'Abruzzi wedding, it was learned today from a friend of the Elkins family that Miss Elkins will have four bridesmaids and two matrons of honor.

In addition to Miss Gould and Miss O'Brien, Miss Matilde Townsend and Miss Helen Hibbe of this city will be bridesmaids. Both Miss Hibbe and Miss Townsend are close friends of Miss Elkins. Both are very pretty, charming young women, favorites in Washington society. They have carefully guarded the fact that Miss Elkins has asked them to be of the wedding party.

The date of the wedding, according to those who probably would be in a position to know, has not been set. The preparations made, however, and the information imparted through friends is that it will be soon after the Duke's arrival in this country.

The two matrons of honor, Miss Elkins has selected are Mrs. George Law of New York and Mrs. "Freddie" Barbour of this city. Mrs. Law has been a frequent guest at the Elkins place in West Virginia, and rumor had the charming lady engaged to be married to Stephen B. Elkins, Jr.

Mrs. "Freddie" Barbour before her marriage was Miss Helen Cook. She was the chum of Miss Elkins. Her début a few years ago was a notable event in Washington society. She became a great favorite at once and her marriage to Frederick K. Barbour, a Washington society man, soon followed.

DUKE REPORTED TO HAVE SAILED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Your correspondent is informed by the chief officer of the French Trans-Atlantic Company that the Duke of the Abruzzi sailed for America today on the steamship Lorraine. Though unwilling to give the assumed name under which the Italian nobleman is traveling, the representative of the company affirmed that the Duke had engaged a cabin on the vessel several days ago.

UNCERTAIN AT HAVRE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HAVRE (France) Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Your correspondent cannot make certain that the Duke of the Abruzzi is a passenger on the French line steamer Lorraine, which sailed today for New York.

The Duke intended to take passage on the Lorraine, it was reported, but the steamship company's agent here denies that Abruzzi is on board. Of course, it is possible that the Duke sailed today by some other route. A Rome dispatch to the Temps reports that three battleships, including the Regina Elena, the Duke's own ship, are being formed into a squadron to visit France, Great Britain and the United States, ostensibly for maneuvering, but it is believed in Rome that the real object is to have the warships to escort the Duke of the Abruzzi and his bride from the United States to Italy.

DUKE'S PALACE BESIEGED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TURIN, Oct. 24.—Representatives of the press are keeping close watch on the movements of the Duke of the Abruzzi. They are practically besieging the Cisterna Palace, where he resides, in the fear that he may get away without their knowing it.

This morning, the Duke left the palace in a motor car. Immediately the rumor spread that he was going to board a train at a small Italian town near Turin and that he actually had begun his secret journey to the United States. As a matter of fact, the Duke went to visit a personal friend, a member of the Senate with whom he remained for several hours. An excellent authority today characterized as premature and positively incorrect the report that the marriage of the Duke with Miss Katherine Elkins was imminent.

MORSE MADE BIG OVERDRAFT.

SHORT AT BANK, ONE DAY, SUM OF $210,681.

Dealings of Defendant With Brokers Where There Was Connection With National Bank of North America Investigated—Charles M. Schwab Called.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The dealings which Charles W. Morse had with various brokerage houses in this city where there was any connection with the affairs of the National Bank of North America, were the subject of consideration of today's session of the trial of Morse and A. H. Curtis in the United States Court. The defense entered objection to the opening of this subject by the prosecution, but Judge Hough decided the witnesses might answer several of the material questions.

Joseph J. McCann, bookkeeper for Arthur Lippen & Co., stock brokers and bankers, identified a check for $60,000, given out October 18, 1907, by Morse and applied to the account of J. L. Adolph with which to purchase 1000 shares of ice stock. The check was placed in evidence.

Alfred Shurdle, a bookkeeper from the office of Albert Loeb & Co., brokers and bankers, followed and said that Morse had an account with his firm but he had passed over a check for $205,000 to Loeb & Co., to be credited to the account of J. F. Carroll and received in return for it 1000 shares of smelting, 600 Consolidated Gas and 500 Delaware and Hudson.

After several other employés in various brokerage offices had told of transactions with Morse, Accountant Moxey was recalled to the stand. He said the books of the National Bank of North America showed on the morning of October 26 there was a balance of $3722 in Morse's favor. During that day three deposits were made, bringing his total credit balance to $239,419 to meet the various checks drawn against it that day.

On the same day the loan sheets showed a demand loan of $211,000 made by Morse and credited to him.

Mr. Moxey said the books of the bank indicated that demand notes were made daily by Morse to cover the checks which had been returned against his account before the close of the day's business.

Charles M. Schwab was one of the witnesses called to the stand today by the prosecution, but the defense objected to Mr. Schwab being questioned as to whether, as a director of the bank, he had known of Mr. Morse's account being overdrawn. The objection was upheld

Nicaraguan Town Said to Have Been Entirely Destroyed by Storm.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MANAGUA (Nicaragua) Oct. 24.—Advices received here say that the town of Rio Grande, on the Atlantic Coast, has been destroyed by a storm which has prevailed throughout Nicaragua since yesterday morning.

Heavy losses are reported, but as all telegraph and telephone communication has been interrupted and the railroad badly damaged, it is impossible to state how far-reaching the storm has been.

Taft Will Have More Than Necessary.

Most Complete Poll Ever Undertaken Gives Victory to Republicans.

Papers of Both Parties With Business Agents Canvass the Country.

Bryan, With All Doubtful States, Will Fall Far Behind.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The election of William H. Taft seems a certainty, based on the most complete poll ever undertaken, and covering all creeds and conditions in every State.

This poll was taken by Republican and Democratic papers, working together, by great business houses through their agents at all points, through railroads whose agents obtained the sentiment of the towns where they were located, and by every other method known of getting at the actual sentiment of the voters.

William H. Taft is reasonably sure of 290 votes in the electoral college, thirty-eight more than he needs for election.

William J. Bryan is quite certain to receive 156 electoral votes. Twenty-one are doubtful, with Democratic leanings, while twenty-six are doubtful, with Repulican leanings.

If Mr. Bryan should succeed in carrying all the doubtful States, he would have 203 electoral votes, or seventy-seven less than his Republican competitor.

The canvass shows that the Republicans probably will carry the national House of Representatives.

New York is one of the States that is classed for Taft. His majority ought to be quite large. It is also possible that Gov. Hughes will be reelected.

NEW JERSEY FOR TAFT.

A summary of the other Eastern States shows that Taft's indicated plurality in New Jersey is 26,250.

Republican apathy and dissatisfaction will cut in half the 500,000 Republican plurality in Pennsylvania.

Delaware presents a close fight, with the chances rather strongly in favor of Taft carrying it.

Maryland is extremely doubtful.

New England stands like a rock for Republicanism.

Ohio, even until election, will present a shade of doubt, but the indications are that Taft will carry it by 44,000 plurality.

Indiana has been the scene of a desperate political battle, which is still in progress. Indications are that Taft will carry the State by 10,000, and that Thomas R. Marshall, Democrat, will be elected, with the Legislature in doubt.

Illinois indicates a plurality for Taft ranging anywhere from 175,000 to 275,000.

In Iowa the Republicans will be satisfied with 50,000 plurality.

Kansas, after a vigorous campaign, almost certain for Bryan in September, is conceded to Taft by 25,000.

Michigan is regarded as sure for Taft, with the Governorship in doubt. In Missouri a clean sweep for the Democrats is on the political cards.

MAY CARRY NEBRASKA.

Nebraska has been in doubt ever since Gov. Hughes dissected Mr. Bryan's bank-deposit-guaranty argument and trust regulation. The chances seem to favor Mr. Bryan in his own State.

Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota are for Taft, but by diminishing pluralities.

The Republicans are sure of a large majority in Wisconsin.

Colorado is probably Republican, although Bryan may carry it, because of Republican factional dissension.

Labor support for Bryan in Montana makes it doubtful, but the chances favor Taft.

Wyoming will probably go for Taft.

Idaho and Utah will probably go for Taft, with the State ticket in doubt.

The Pacific Coast States are all for Taft.

The "Solid South" is as solid as ever.

Of the border States, President Roosevelt is quite convinced that Kentucky is doubtful, but the chances appear to be strongly in favor of Bryan.

West Virginia is almost surely Republican.

MINERS TO MEET.

Official Call Issued for Annual Convention of American Mining Congress in Pittsburgh.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

DENVER, Oct. 24.—The Executive Committee of the American Mining Congress yesterday issued the official call for the eleventh annual convention, to be held in Pittsburgh, December 2, 3, 4 and 5, 1908.

A special effort is contemplated looking to the final enactment of the bill for the creation of a Bureau of Mines, now on the calendar of the United States Senate for third reading.

Particular attention is called to the work of the congress in making recommendations as to the protection of the lives of miners. Proposals for the elimination of fraudulent mining stock operations; Federal aid for mining schools and experimental stations, and the unification of the mining laws of the several States, are some of the subjects which will be under discussion.

The call requests the President of the United States, the Governors of States and heads of commercial bodies to appoint delegates

Danger of War in Balkans More Serious Than Ever.

CENTURIES OF BLOODSHED.

LIGHT ON CENTURIES OF WOE IN BALKANS.

Long Record of War and Oppression in Strange Tangle of Races That Has Kept Europe Alarmed. Epoch-making Struggle May Result.

THE Balkan region may be called above all things the land of confusion. It is the land of war, the land of rapine, of cruelty, of treachery, of tyranny, of almost all that's evil, but above all it is the land of confusion. It has been so for 1500 years.

The confusion began with that invasion of barbarians which overthrew the Roman Empire. The wild tribes which swept down over the Carpathians or in from the steppes of Russia found it in the enjoyment of the Greek and Roman civilizations. Some of them swept on, some settled down in the region between the Adriatic and the Black Sea. They tangled up the civilization they found with their own barbaric customs. They created a racial confusion which is still at the bottom of all the other confusions that make up the Balkan problem.

The original Bulgars were a Finno-Tatar people, akin to the Magyars. But the race has been so nearly assimilated by the Slavic people whom they found in the regions where they settled, that the present Bulgarians, despite the name, are far more Slav than Turanian in their characteristics.

Next after the Illyrians, or Albanians, the Serbs are the purest blooded Balkan people. But they are a comparatively recent arrival. They are probably 90 per cent. Slavic. The race has been only slightly modified by the peoples whom they overthrew and intermarried with when they took possession of Servia, Bosnia, Herzegovina, Novibazar and Montenegro, where they now make up a majority of the population, says the New York Sun.

TANGLE OF POPULATION.

But the racial confusion is not in the blood alone. It is still more remarkable in the matter of location.

For instance, of the 4,000,000 Bulgars who live in the Balkans only about 2,784,000 live in Bulgaria itself, while the rest inhabit Russia, Roumania, Austria-Hungary and the Turkish provinces, especially Macedonia. On the other hand the balance of the 4,000,000 population of Bulgaria is made up of Turks, Roumanians, Greeks, Gypsies (52,000 of them,) Spanish Jews (37,500,) Tatars and samples of all the other nationalities of Europe.

There are today 5,000,000 Serbs, but only 2,500,000 of them live in Servia. The rest are scattered over Montenegro, Bosnia, Herzegovina, Novibazar, Croatia, Slavonia, South Hungary, Istria and Dalmatia. In Roumania 92 per cent. of the people are Wallachs—that is, Roumanians—but only half of the Roumanian race inhabits that kingdom, the other half being found in Transylvania, which is Austrian; in Bessarabia, now under Russian rule; in Servia, and in Bulgaria.

The Albanians, or Arnauts—they call themselves Shkipetara, by the way—have kept their territory pretty free of strangers. They are perhaps the wildest people in the world, and it is said that only Pyrrhus the Great ever conquered them; but besides the 2,000,000 of them inhabiting Albania, the western shore of the Adriatic south of Montenegro, there are 200,000 of them in Greece and 100,000 in Southern Italy.

CONFUSION OF TONGUES.

Along with the confusion of races comes the confusion of tongues. Babel was nothing to it. The Bulgarians have a language of their own, or rather they have innumerable languages, for there is no pan-Bulgarian tongue.

Every district, almost every village, has a dialect of its own, all fundamentally Slavic but influenced in different degrees by Turkish, Albanian, Servian, Roumanian and old Bulgar influences. Out of these the Danubian dialect now shows a tendency to emerge as the literary standard for a national language.

The Servian language is a more settled thing. It is spoken all over the regions inhabited by the Servian people, and thanks to St. Cyril it has a settled form, in fact it has a copious literature, divided into three periods.

In the earliest age religious works predominate; a Dalmatian period extending from the fourteenth to the eighteenth century possesses much poetry, both epic and lyric, and historic and legendary chronicles. The modern period has adopted the forms of Western Europe and abounds in good writers.

The Roumanian language is a romance tongue preserving the Latin forms, though the vocabulary is largely Thracian and Slavic. It also is broken up into dialects, especially in the outlying colonies such as the Zinzars, who live in the mountains in Macedonia. But it has had for centuries a fixed standard and there is an extensive Roumanian literature both ancient and modern.

Add to these tongues the Albanian, which has no literature and hardly an alphabet, the Greek and the Turkish, and the linguistic confusion is complete.

BULGARIAN GREATNESS.

All the multiform hatreds which keep the Balkan peoples seething in disorder and bloodshed are centuries old in their origin.

There were the Bulgarians, for instance, who already in the sixth century were at war with the emperors at Constantinople, who, converted to Christianity in the ninth century, reached such power in the tenth that their ruler, Symeon, assumed the title of Czar of all the Bulgarias—the title just revived by Prince Ferdinand—and ruled over a territory extending from the Black Sea to the Adriatic and almost from the Carpathians south to Adrianople.

This great monarchy was overthrown about the year 1000 A. D., and we find the Byzantine Emperor, Basil II, completing its subjection in 1020, when he stormed the palace of Lychnidus, and found in it a treasure of 10,000 pounds weight of gold equal in value, perhaps, to $2,000,000. His method of signalizing his conquest was characteristic of the age. He caused 15,000 of his captives to be blinded. But to one out of every 100 men he spared a single eye, in order that they might lead the whole lamentable phalanx to their king, a fugitive in some mountain fastness.

SERVIA'S HEROIC PERIOD.

Servia also has its heroic period. In 1050 Michael, its Grand Shupan, was recognized as an independent sovereign by Pope Gregory VII. Its power reached a climax between 1331 and 1355, when Stephen Dushan called himself the emperor of the Rumelians and ruled over a territory which embraced Bosnia, Albania, Macedonia, Thessaly, part of Bulgaria and Greece as far as the Isthmus of Corinth.

Stephen Dushan is the great hero of Servian legend. He lies buried in the Studenitza Monastery in Servia and when King Peter was called to the throne he made a pilgrimage thither and kissed the dead emperor's brow.

The remains, wrapped in their ancient winding sheet, are encased in a coffin of black wood and on the breast lies a golden crucifix containing in the center a particle of the True Cross. There is an outer coffin also which was presented by the ancestors of King Peter, the Karageorgovitches. It is a massive affair of silver with a crimson velvet top and a great silver cross upon it.

When the Obrenovitches were in power in Servia this gorgeous casement was hidden away in the cellar of the monastery, and King Alexander and Queen Draga presented a wonderful set of golden vestments to be used in the great ceremonies of the monastery church. Nowadays the vestments are in hiding in the cellar, and the silver coffin is in evidence again. The Servians expect the Emperor Stephen to reappear as a sort of a Messiah.

TURKISH CONQUEST.

The overthrow of Servia was finally completed by the Sultan Mohammed II, who, having taken Constantinople in 1453, devoted his attention to the Balkan region. From this time until the beginning of the nineteenth century Servia had practically no history, but an offshoot from its people kept up the fight against the Turks unceasingly, and without ever being overcome.

After the battle of Kossovo, in 1389, a band of refugees under one Ivo, the black, took possession of the rugged mountain tract just above Cattaro, on the Adriatic shores. The region was named Tzrnagora, or the Black Mountain, the Montenegro of today.

Ivo is another of the heroes whom the Serbs expect to come back some day and help drive the Turks out of Europe. The Montenegrins still wear a badge of mourning in their caps for him. His spirit has certainly been continually alive in the little realm that he founded. Under its Prince Bishops, who succeeded each other for more than three centuries from uncle to nephew, Montenegro has not only resisted Turkish conquest, but has frequently sent armies out into Novibazar and Macedonia and inflicted tremendous losses upon the soldiers of the Porte.

THE GREAT AWAKENING.

It is a singular circumstance that the awakening against the Turkish domination which lasted for nearly 350 years after the conquest showed itself in several regions about the same time. Just at the period when Alexander Ypsilante was putting an end to Turkish misrule in the country which is now Roumania, the Greeks were starting that heroic struggle for independence in which Lord Byron played a picturesque part. The Servians simultaneously began a bitter and determined fight to throw off Turkish rule.

In 1804 Kara George, who was certainly a peasant and perhaps a brigand, finding that he was down on a list of persons to be massacred, took to the mountains and raised the standard of revolt. He defeated the Turkish force, and in 1806 he took possession of Belgrade.

The Russians helped him for a while, then deserted him, and he was obliged to take refuge in Hungary. The Turks swept over the country in 1814 with murder and pillage. They crucified 300 Christians at Belgrade. But now one of the lieutenants of Kara George began to loom up with new strength. This was Milosch Obrenovitch, also a peasant, a swineherd who had acted as spy for Kara George in the early part of the struggle. His bands in 1815 made such headway against the Turks that the Sultan was forced to make terms with him.

Kara George came back into the country, but Milosch betrayed him to the Turks, who killed him. Rivalry thus removed, Milosch had himself proclaimed in 1817 hereditary prince of Servia.

In 1830 the autonomy of the principality was recognized by the Porte, and then began its turbulent career as a European State. The descendants of Kara George and of Milosch intrigued and conspired for the throne.

The Obrenovitches were deposed in 1842 and the Karageorgeovitches seized the title of prince. A few years later a prince of their line was assassinated and the Obrenovitches came back, and thus it was that Prince Milan, an Obrenovitch, found himself on the throne at the era of the Russo-Turkish War.

Another region in which the standard of revolt was raised in the beginning of the nineteenth century was the southern section of Albania, where the famous of infamous Ali Pasha, the lion of Janina, established for a few brief years a sort of independent power. Those who are interested in his career can gain a good view of it on easy terms from Maurus Jokai's novel, "The Lion of Janina."

BULGARIAN ATROCITIES.

All these struggles in the early part of the nineteenth century brought freedom in one degree or another to the participating States. Another fierce struggle against the Turk began in 1875.

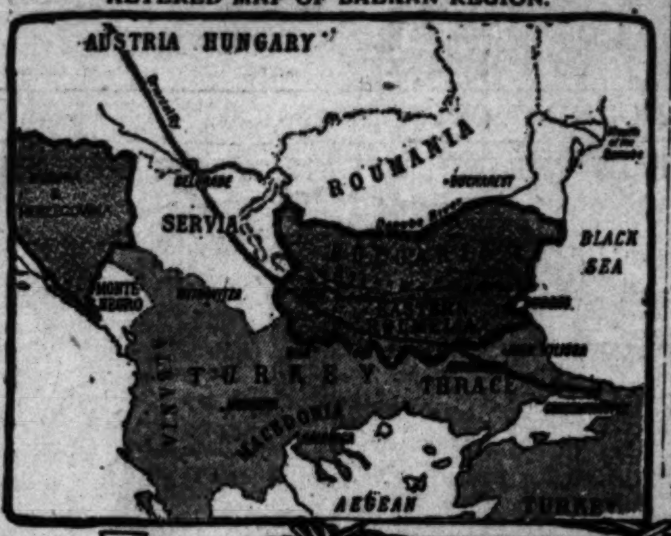
In these matters there seems to be a sort of contagion. It is certain that an epidemic of unrest ran through the Balkan peninsula in that year. Bulgaria, which had been so enslaved as to be called the peasant State, after centuries of submission, showed signs of awakening. The brutalities of Turkish rule seemed to be brought to a head by the establishment of a Circassian colony in the heart of the country.

The peasantry revolted and the Bashi Bazouks, the Turkish irregular soldiery, maintained especially for purposes of atrocity, were sent in to put down the uprising.

The populations of towns and villages were wiped out. The houses were burned, the women outraged or carried off to Turkish harems, children were slaughtered in their mother's arms, and men were burned alive in the churches, hundreds at a time. When the news of these doings was spread through Europe by Januarius Aloysius MacGahan, the famous correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, there was an uncontrollable outburst of horror, and the rule of the Turk in the devastated regions was doomed.

But simultaneously with the Bulgarian insurrection the Servians under Prince Milan had declared war on Turkey. The troops sent against them also wasted their country with murder and pillage. In Bosnia and Herzegovina was also a revolt and also more atrocities.

ALTERED MAP OF BALKAN REGION.



Montenegro declared war on the Sultan and an army of brave mountaineers marched into Macedonia. Wherever the Sultan's troops went to oppose them, there also were unspeakable cruelties committed on the Christian population.

It was expected that England would take the lead in ending this domination of murder, lust and robbery; but England, under Gladstone, temporized and negotiated; Russia went to war, and with the Roumanians, Servians and Montenegrans as her allies, drove the Turks back past Plevna and Shipka Pass, over the Balkans into Rumelia, and as far south almost as Adrianople, when the Sultan gave way and signed the treaty of San Stefano, by which he surrendered the greater part of his European dominions.

CONGRESS OF BERLIN.

This instrument might well have ended the trouble of the Balkan Peninsula, but it was too much for Europe's jealousies. The congress of Berlin was called in 1878 to revise it, and by the treaty which it framed the greater part of Macedonia was restored to Turkey, and thus it has become the theater of the fearful series of atrocities of the last ten years.

Roumania, which had for years been a flourishing independent principality, yielded a province to Russia, and Bulgaria was forced to give her in return the Dobrudscha, a low-lying region on the eastern coast of the Black Sea. Bulgaria herself was limited to a narrow strip on each side of the Balkan range and Servia was confined to the cramped boundaries which to this day confine her ambitions.

Bosnia and Herzegovina, inhabited by peoples closely akin to the Servians, were turned over to Austria for administrative control, although the nominal sovereignty was still vested in the Sultan. Montenegro had her complete independence acknowledged and guaranteed with a considerable extension of territory. A semi-independent province was established in Eastern Rumelia south of Bulgaria, with a Christian Governor and its own laws, but paying tribute to the Porte.

THE FORMATIVE PERIOD.

Not a few changes have taken place since this arrangement was made. In 1881 Roumania raised herself to the rank of a kingdom. Prince Milan of Servia also assumed the regal dignity in 1882.

Bulgaria has chosen as her ruler Prince Alexander of Battenberg, but he enjoyed under the Treaty of Berlin only the rank of Prince and the Sultan remained his suzerin under the Treaty of Berlin. Then came revolt in eastern Rumelia and its annexation to Bulgaria in 1885.

Russia protested, but in vain; Servia declared war on account of this aggrandizement of its next door neighbor, and there ensued that opera bouffe struggle which was ended by a single battle and which has afforded Bernard Shaw the opportunity for his amusing comedy "Arms and the Man."

Alexander showed powers both as a statesman and a soldier in this crisis. Indeed he was a highly capable ruler; but Russia could not get over the Rumelian annexation and the high ambitions of Bulgaria generally, and Alexander became the scapegoat of its rage. His capital became a hotbed of intrigues against him; wires were pulled at all the European courts to his injury; the struggle became too strenuous for him and he abdicated in 1886.

Prince Ferdinand of Colburg was elected in his place. Ferdinand was ambitious and wily and with his great Prime Minister Stambuloff he kept on building up the strength of his State and his own hold upon it in spite of hostile conspiracies.

From that time to this the Prince has been laying pipes and pulling wires to make himself King and rid his realm of its nominal subjection to the Sultan. He has just succeeded.

ROUMANIA'S PROGRESS.

While all this was going on in Bulgaria Roumania was in the main prospering greatly and civilizing herself. The national exhibition held two years ago at Bucharest in honor of the fortieth anniversary of King Carlos's accession of the rulership was a great demonstration of material and intellectual progress.

Under the genial guidance of Queen Elizabeth, the famous "Carmen Sylva," literature and art have gained new headway; but even Roumania has had her troubles and the revolt of the peasant farmers last year against the great landed nobility and the money lenders showed that a readjustment of conditions is still necessary in this most favored of the Balkan lands.

SERVIA'S DARK STORY.

The history of Servia since the Treaty of Berlin has been one of material progress. The capital, Belgrade, has been practically rebuilt and modernized in the last thirty years; the trade of the country has been greatly increased; its industries and agriculture are flourishing. Its government, however, has been a troublous affair.

King Milan found the debaucheries of Paris and Vienna more to his taste than ruling over the Servians. He abdicated the throne in 1889, turning it over to Alexander, still so young that a Council of Regency had to be established.

One fine day when he was about eighteen Alexander asserted himself. He seized the reins of power and clapped all the regents into prison, and then followed fourteen years of capricious rule, such as might be expected of a boy who was half a genius, half an idiot.

The end came in June, 1903. Some say it was an Austrian plot to create chaos which would have justified the Austro-Hungarian Kaiser in seizing and annexing Servia in his dominions. Others hold that the endurance of Alexander had reached its limit and that it was to prevent savage despotism and massacre that regicide was decided on.

Anyway the fact is that on the night of June 10 the regiments quartered in the capital surrounded the royal palace and after a long and fevered search, in the course of which some faithful attendants were struck down, a band of officers found Alexander and Draga hiding in their night robes and killed them both.

With Alexander died the last of the Karegeorgevitch dynasty, and King Peter, the head of the exiled Obrenovitch house, who had been living almost in poverty in Switzerland, was called to the throne, where he still sits, not over firmly, according to Austrian versions of the situation, but firmly enough according to the accounts of many independent English observers.

PRESENT-DAY HOPES.

What all these new countries need is peace and capital to develop their resources. It is believed that they have enormous mineral wealth, which England would be glad to develop were it not for the war risk.

Roumania is the most settled down of all, but she still looks upon Bessarabia with an eager longing—hopeless, for Russia never lets go.

Servia had hoped by some turn of fortune to win Bosnia and Herzegovina from Austria, which has just killed these hopes by the act of annexation. The people of these provinces are full-blooded Serbs. They have fought the Servians proper and they were incorporated in the old Servian empire.

Perhaps they would rather be part of free Servia than subject to Francis Joseph. Perhaps they would prefer their own independence. Vienna says that they are happy and contented today, but it is certain that they made a bitter resistance when Austria took them over in 1878 and again in 1902, when compulsory military service was imposed on them. The discontented ones among them cried out that they preferred Turkish misrule to Austrian oppression.

Montenegro is a prosperous little region of amazing simplicity. There is a State Council, but Prince Nicholas—the Prince Bishops were dropped in the middle of the last century, but the Danilo Petrovitch line persists—rules with the arbitrary and unquestioned authority of a tribal chieftain. What he and his people most like would be to tack on Novibazar to the little realm.

Albania is wild and disorderly beyond imagination. Life is secure in the Yaqui country in comparison with the northern section of Albania. There it is tribe against tribe, all against the Turk, all against the Serb, all against the stranger. The country is wildly mountainous and densely forested. The whole population, outside of a few towns, lives the life of brigands, and in the towns it isn't much better.

Finally there is Macedonia. Greece wants it, and Bulgarian wants it.

The tangle of race, religion and language in it has been described. The Macedonian bands raid the Bulgarian villages; the Bulgarian bands raid the Macedonian villages. The Turkish soldiers raid both to inflict punishment. The bands escape and the villages are burned, the men shot and the women violated.

Both the Macedonians and the Bulgarians freely admit that their purpose is to provoke a repetition of the atrocities of 1876, so that Europe may take the land from the Sultan. The Greeks hope they will get it. The Bulgars are confident that they will win it.

Latterly an international police, working for the Porte, has been laboring to tranquillize this wretched country. It has had only a qualified success. The Macedonian question will be more than ever the "Balkan war cloud" when the recent changes are ratified and the Bulgarians are in full enjoyment of their independence.

of the Guard, crack regiment of Ferdinand's well-trained and seasoned army that has been put on a war footing, prepared to meet Turkey in mighty struggle for life.

FIGHTING FORCES COMPARED.

BULGARIA'S ARMY IS READY; TURKEY'S NOT.

IN MAKING an estimate of the war strength of the Balkan States it is easily seen that the present is a much more favorable time for Bulgaria than for Turkey. Bulgaria has for years been preparing for the very crisis which she now faces, and her army perhaps never was in better condition. Turkey, on the other hand, is in the midst of changes in military administration and system and her army appears to worse advantage than even in the days of corruption and inefficiency preceding the Young Turk régime.

Bulgaria reviews the past twenty years' history of her army with pride. The officers display with swelling chests troops that have been whipped into what many European military experts declare to be one of the model armies of the world.

They have no hesitancy in permitting a stranger to witness drills, examine accoutrements and arms and inspect barracks. Pictures of troops in action, of favorite companies and prominent officers are the most conspicuously displayed photographs in the shops. The principal club of Sofia is the Military Club, and in the afternoons and evenings it is crowded with smart-looking, well-dressed officers, who discuss with pride the superiority of their army to that of their neighbors, and assert their readiness for war with Turkey, which they consider Bulgaria's hereditary enemy. It was a group of such enthusiasts who declared that in the advent of the declaration of war the march to Constantinople would be merely a promenade, says the New York Sun.

"The Turks seemed to wish to forget the recent history of their army," said an American who as the guest of a Turkish officer had been allowed to witness the drilling of troops on the plains near Adrianople. "One of the first acts of the present government was to dismiss to their homes all soldiers who had served their three years under the colors, a course in marked contrast to the arbitrary rule of the former palace favorites, who retained men in the service as long as they could force them to remain. As a result the active army is now composed of recruits.

"Most of the troops that I saw were undergoing elementary instruction and they fairly swarmed over the parade grounds in small squads, mounted and unmounted, learning to ride and to march. The men seemed slow to learn, dull and ignorant. The officers were alert and energetic, but it appeared to me that their own knowledge of their profession was not extensive.

"At least 80 per cent. of the conscripts were illiterate, and while the officers to some extent were educated men, they were lacking in military training. Education is one of the greatest wants of the Turkish army, first of all among the rank and file.

"There is plenty of good material, but the training is not up to date, and

DEVELOPMENTS.

CHECK-RAISING CHARGE IN BIG SHORTAGE CASE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—The only development of the day in the city treasury shortage, $60,000 having mysteriously disappeared, was the placing of a specific charge of having raised the value of a check from $605 to $5605, against James C. Tomalty, formerly book-keeper in the City Treasurer's office. Tomalty is still in jail, as he has not yet secured the $30,000 bail bond necessary to secure his release.

Former Treasurer Charles A. Bantel, during whose régime the shortage is said to have occurred, stated today that he had no knowledge of any irregularity in his department.

"In September, 1907," said Mr. Bantel, "the books were experted under the direction of the Finance Committee of the Board of Supervisors, assisted by an expert from the mint. All the money was counted and the books examined. An excess of 20 cents was found when I turned the office over to my successor in January, 1908."

Ex-Treasurer Bantel stated that Book-keeper Tomalty had no access to the money vault and could have taken no money unless he had a confederate.

Edward O'Conner, who as chief deputy and cashier in the treasurer's office from March, 1906, to March, 1907, when he resigned and was succeeded by David Davis, died some months ago.

The alleged shortage is said to be in what is known as the "City and County Clerk's special account." This is composed of the funds from the City and County Clerks' office which are in litigation and are being held by the treasurer pending a decision from the Supreme Court and paid out only upon an order from one of the Superior judges.

The items include the $37,572.79 of disputed tax money paid by the United Railroads, which has been missing for two years.

The action of State Controller A. B. Nye in instituting proceedings through Atty.-Gen. Webb to recover $14,000 of the State's portion of the taxes, resulted in the employing of experts to again go over the books in the effort to trace the missing funds and was followed by the alleged discovery of an additional deficit in the city treasury of $22,427.21. The matter will probably be laid before the grand jury early next week.

FOR GAMBLING.

RENO VOTES TO STAY WIDE-OPEN TOWN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reno will remain a wide-open town for some time, according to the result of the city election today, when the gambling element won out by a majority of 566 votes, out of a total of about 2100 cast. The election was on a city ordinance to forbid the running of gambling games under licenses.

The ordinance was put to the city vote upon petition of the Anti-Gambling League, which made a red-hot fight. The league opened headquarters about two months ago, and has worked diligently ever since, holding mass meetings and spreading literature broadcast and through the mails. The gambling fraternity worked quietly, but the result shows they worked effectively.

The defeat of the ordinance is partly due to the feeling among many that the gambling should be stopped throughout the State, and not alone in Reno.

The Anti-Gambling League enthusiasts tonight declared that the election would be contested on the ground that the opposition colonized the town. They also state that the fight will be aggressively pursued and carried into the Legislature at the coming session.

COMMERCE.

BOOMS TRADE WITH SOUTHERN REPUBLICS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John Barrett, director of the Bureau of American Republics, in an address before the Seattle Chamber of Commerce yesterday urged and explained the advisability of calling a meeting of all the commercial organizations of the Pacific Latin American nations from Mexico to Chile in Seattle or San Francisco in the near future. Mr. Barrett told of the fast developing commerce of the South American States, and stated that Europe was making extraordinary efforts to gain a hold on this commerce to the exclusion of the United States.

"The trade of these twenty South American republics is now over $2,000,000,000 per annum," said Mr. Barrett, "and it would be of the greatest importance to the Pacific Coast States of this country to hold a commercial congress in which the commercial organizations of North and South America could get acquainted.

"We could show them what we had to sell, and they could see what we needed from them, and could acquaint us with their resources and the possibilities of their countries. I am sure that from the twelve countries bordering on the Pacific Coast at least one hundred delegates would attend the congress."

Mr. Barrett also discussed the scope of the Bureau of American Republics and pointed out the valuable work it had done for the promotion of peace and commerce among the American republics.

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The long-predicted storm which has mocked the government experts for days vented its fury on Chicago today. The "probable showers" forecast finally made good. Stormy and unsettled weather prevails throughout the Middle States, from the Missouri Valley to the Alleghenies, the center of the disturbed area being in Iowa, the extent of wet weather reaching in every direction. As long as the rain continues, there probably will be little change in temperature, but when it is past, it is expected to be considerably cooler. Today's maximum temperature was 62 and the minimum 46 deg. Middle West temperatures:

BALL PLAYER NOT GUILTY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The plea of self defense entered by Joseph B. Tinker, shortstop of the Chicago National Baseball Club, charged by John Ginnocchio with unprovoked assault, was made in the municipal court today, and Tinker was found not guilty.

RICHEST CITY BANKRUPT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—National City, Ill., the richest city in the world, because of the location within its limits of the big packing-houses and the National stock yards, with its industries and interests, is bankrupt. Robert Monroe, Mayor, yesterday floated a loan of $1000 with which to pay current expenses. Anticipation warrants will be issued against this loan and the money will be repaid when the taxes for next year are collected. The village is only two years old, but the expenditures this year for improvement and for levee protection used up the funds which had been collected to run it.

"COUGH DROP MAN" DEAD.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—"The cough-drop man" as he was known to thousands of persons in Chicago, was found dead yesterday in the doorway of a Clark-street lodging-house. Heart failure was the cause of death. Richard Connors was the name given him when they christened him fifty years ago in Buffalo, N. Y. He had been a familiar character in Clark street for a quarter of a century, during which time he eked out an existence by peddling cough drops. In the winter season he visited the large office buildings, selling his "incomparable" cough drops, and he got to be known to the tenants as "The Cough Drop Man." Among his customers were bankers, physicians and the most successful lawyers at the bar.

So methodical was "The Cough Drop Man" in his calls at the different buildings that his customers could almost set their clocks by his coming. Although he died penniless, Connors will have a "swell funeral," to quote Alderman Mike Kenna. He was a member of the First Ward Democratic Club, and the auxiliary, which was incorporated at Springfield only a week ago, will take charge of the funeral arrangements.

ALLEGED DYNAMITER CAUGHT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Frank Ware was arrested last night on suspicion of knowing who dynamited George F. Getz's automobile Wednesday night in Hawthorne. Night Superintendent Jobin at the Chicago Automobile Club garage and the chauffeur who towed the machine to the suburbs will be asked today if they can identify Ware as the man who took the car from the garage. The police say Ware was indicted several years ago for throwing decayed eggs at street evangelists, and left the city.

ANOTHER BOMB OUTRAGE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Bomb No. 23 was exploded today after the policemen placed on watch in all parts of Chicago since the recent bomb outrages had gone home. It did no more damage than its predecessors, practically destroying a one-story brick building in Fourteenth street, just east of Michigan avenue, occupied by Bernard Marcus as a saloon.

LIFE'S SEAMY SIDE.

KILLS FAMILY OVER DIVORCE.

Passers-by Witness Tragedy in Seattle.

Husband Shoots Baby, Child, Wife and Self.

Two Picked up Dead, Three Are Dying.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Oct. 24.—The sight of a man holding a small baby in one hand while he fired a bullet into its head caused H. L. Lee, J. H. Cole and W. C. Hanson, who were passing, to run to the rescue but they arrived too late. The man, who proved to be A. J. Hurst, a wholesale huckster, dropped the wounded child and turned the revolver upon himself. He was dying when the trio of witnesses arrived. They found that the wife of the man was dead and also a 3-year-old child and the baby died on the way to the hospital.

Investigation showed that Hurst had had trouble with his wife and after repeated quarrels, she had notice served upon him of a suit for divorce. These papers he received this morning.

This afternoon, he took the whole family for an outing and while the children gamboled on a grassy slope overlooking Elliott Bay he quarreled with Mrs. Hurst after her refusal to withdraw the suit. He shot her dead, then killed his 3-year-old child, held the baby and shot it, as seen by the witnesses who were about three hundred feet away. When they were half way to the spot Hurst turned the revolver upon himself with fatal effect, dying at night.

Hurst was well-to-do and about 32 years old. His wife was three years younger. So far as is known Hurst has no relatives here but Mrs. Hurst has a married sister living in Seattle. Drink was the cause of the troubles of the couple and his refusal to swear off caused the woman to leave him.

WANTED IN LOS ANGELES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Albert Ackerman, formerly Los Angeles manager of the Western Bank Note and Engraving Company, was arrested today on telegraphic information from Los Angeles that he was wanted there for embezzling $500.

Ackerman, although well dressed, had no money. At first he denied his identity. He finally owned up and said he had lost the money playing the races. He admitted he was short between $400 and $500 in his accounts with the bank note company.

OIL AND WATER.

Artesian Well Struck Near Redding and People Go Wild at the News.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

REDDING, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An artesian flow of water and oil was struck at sundown last evening on the Shade farm, two miles east of Anderson and the people are wild today over the prospects. A well twenty feet square and twenty-eight feet deep failed to give the amount of water needed for irrigation, so the owner of the farm, Dr. Ed Frisbie of San Francisco, decided to bore for water. An expert driller from the southern part of the State was set to work.

At a depth of only 190 feet an artesian flow was struck last evening. The water over-flowed the top of the pipe and fell into the big well on the bottom where the drilling had been commenced. The water was alive with bubbles. It was soon discovered those bubbles were really globules of oil. The water in the well is now covered with a stratum of oil an inch deep. The oil sand has been penetrated only a foot. The boring will be continued to a greater depth.

OCEAN RATES IMMUNE.

Railroads Argue That Interstate Laws Cannot Control Joint Tariffs to Foreign Ports.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—That a joint rate between an ocean carrier and a railroad could not be a "legal" rate, therefore could be no violation of law, was the point raised today by Peter F. Dunne in the Federal District Court in the case of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the Southern Pacific Railroad, indicted upon 116 counts of having violated the interstate commerce laws.

The Southern Pacific and the Pacific Mail, both belonging to the Harriman system, were charged with carrying matting from Kobe, Japan, to Chicago, and Columbus, O., at less than the published tariff rates.

In arguing a demurrer to the indictments, Attorney Dunne, on behalf of the defense, contended that an ocean carrier engaged in foreign trade was not amenable to the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and that the commission had no jurisdiction over a joint rate made by a steamship company and a railroad on foreign traffic.

United States Attorney Devlin will reply for the government next Wednesday.

TAFT SPEEDING TO NEW YORK.

Indiana Campaign Rivets the State for Ohioan.

Glamor Is Stripped from Bryan Theories.

Former Antagonist Is Now an Ardent Supporter.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

GARY (Ind.) Oct. 24.—The three days of William H. Taft's Indiana campaign ended here tonight, and the big Ohioan is now speeding to New York, which is to be the scene of his activities during the next week.

In the throngs which greeted Judge Taft from early morning until late tonight, and the close attention paid to his utterances, and the cordiality and heartiness of the ovations, his third day in the Hoosier State fully equalled the two which preceded it.

To farmers, laborers and business men Judge Taft held up the picture of Democratic rule and Democratic promises and compared it with the record of Republican administrations and intentions.

BRYAN UNSOUND THEORIST.

Mr. Bryan as a political leader has been dissected to many audiences. The Nebraskan's plan for government guarantee of bank deposits has been held up as an idea that the Democratic candidate is still a "theorist and economically an unsound one."

The effect of the last Democratic tariff has been pictured, and the prices of products compared under that and the present tariff.

Judge Taft has told the people of Indiana that he is willing to admit with Bryan that the recent financial disturbance was a Republican panic.

"What I am anxious to do, however," he added, "is to continue it as a Republican panic, for it will then develop into prosperity, but if you put in the Democrats you will have a Democratic panic sure enough."

Mr. Taft then explained the panic was the result of too rapid growth and expansion, "and you never heard of a Democratic panic that was the result of prosperity."

OLD FOE NOW FRIEND.

James Lennon, who introduced Judge Taft at Elkhart, is the engineer who, during the Ann Arbor strike, became a victim of Judge Ricks's injunction. He worked on the Lake Shore, and refused to accept freight from the Ann Arbor station, preferring to stand by secret rule No. 12. He was sentenced to jail, although his confinement was but a formality. The brotherhood supported him for six years after that, then the Lake Shore reinstated him, and he is now running a passenger engine between Elkhart and Toledo. He said, in presenting Judge Taft:

"I shall not only vote for Judge Taft, but I am doing all I can to aid in his canvass. I have been working for him ever since the beginning of the campaign."

Referring to Mr. Lennon and the railway workmen in general, Judge Taft said to his Elkhart audience:

"I am very much obliged to Mr. Lennon for introducing me to this audience, because there was a time, a number of years ago, when Mr. Lennon and I had some differences; that is, I did not have them but a judge on the bench with me had them, and now as we look back to that time, I think Mr. Lennon and I agree on the principles that ought to apply between railroad employer and railroad employés. It shows a broad liberal intelligent spirit on the part of Mr. Lennon to introduce me here and to take the stand that he is in favor of the Republican ticket next November."

HEARST EXPLODES AGAIN.

Is Hissed By Brooklyn Audience for Virulent Attack on Dead Statesman.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—William R. Hearst read more Standard Oil letters tonight at two mass meetings, one in Brooklyn and the other at Carnegie Hall. At the Brooklyn meeting Mr. Hearst began his speech by saying that the Standard Oil Company has been largely instrumental in deciding every national election for the past twenty years, and then said:

"Mr. Cleveland was supported by the Standard Oil Company.

"After the Cleveland régime the Standard Oil Company affiliated with Mr. Hanna and contributed liberally to his political needs."

There was a stir in the audience at this mention of Mr. Cleveland's name and a voice shouted, "don't drag in the names of the dead; let the dead rest in their graves."

This was the only interruption of the kind. Mr. Hearst at the Carnegie Hall meeting avoided using the name of Mr. Cleveland.

DEMOCRATS TOO DRY.

TEXAS MAY GO REPUBLICAN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FORT WORTH (Tex.) Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Reports received here this afternoon from Houston and San Antonio, capitals of Harris and Bexar counties, the two largest in Texas, say that Democrats there are giving funds and moral support to the Republican County Committee and to help them elect J. N. Simpson, Republican candidate for Governor, against Campbell, Democrat.

Democrats admit giving Bexar county Republicans $2000 and the Harris County Committee $5000. They are doing this, they say, in order to defeat State-wide prohibition.

The Democratic platform pledges Campbell and the Legislature to enforce a "dry" State; the Republican platform and candidate favor local option. South Texas Democrats are mostly German, strongly opposed to prohibition, and are sacrificing party ties.

This is the first movement of its kind in the history of Texas and may result in the election of a Republican Governor. If the latter wins it will be the first time Texas went Republican.

VANISHED MILLMAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—Frank Pinkham, an employee of the Tacoma Mill Company, has disappeared, and officials of the concern have asked the assistance of the police in locating him, in the belief that he is responsible for a shortage that may amount to $30,000.

Pinkham was well connected here socially. Upon his return from a recent trip to Tacoma, he learned that his accounts had been questioned and disappeared.

According to the mill officials, a number of checks, sent in payment of goods delivered, never reached the treasury, and Pinkham is formally accused of withholding them.

HANGING FIRE.

BUSINESS MEN WAIT FOR TAFT'S ELECTION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One hears more talk of the approaching election in the offices of the iron and steel manufacturers these days than anywhere else outside campaign headquarters. Contracts for more than 65,000 tons of structural steel are pending, the concerns receiving the bids saying that nothing definite in the way of awards may be expected until fifteen days have passed.

Ultimately the greater part of the building projected in Chicago will be carried out, for with few exceptions the corporations engaged in making improvements have gone too far to stop at this time, but Bryan's election would certainly mean a long delay in awarding the contracts.

The Northwestern Railroad is on the market for 24,000 tons of structurals to be used in track elevation work at the new terminal and elsewhere on its branches. Ground has been broken for the Blackstone Hotel, and the City Hall contracts will be awarded early next month.

The Gas Company, occupying its old building, is in shape to remain as it is for some months, but the low price of steel, it is believed, will force activity in that direction before very long. The railroads, while not doing much in the way of ordering rails, are busy in other directions.

The St. Paul has placed another order for 2500 cars, which means 22,000 tons of structural steel. The Rock Island is getting figures on sixty locomotives, the St. Paul needs fifty, the Northwestern has ordered fifty-five, and the Alton soon will be in the market for thirty.

LONG SHOT, TOO.

LOTS OF TAFT MONEY; NO BRYAN TAKERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Never within the memory of sporting men of the present generation was there so little betting on a Presidential election as this year. Taft has been the favorite from the start, the early odds in favor of his election being 3 to 1. These odds have lengthened to 4 to 1 and 5 to 1 with no takers. In fact, there has been little or no Bryan money in sight at any time. Briggs Buchanan announced on Thursday that he had $7000 to wager against $2000 that Taft would carry New York, but there has been no report of this offer having been accepted. There have been offers on the curb of 4 to 1 that Bryan would be defeated in this State but no reports of any takers.

LONG SHOT IN BOSTON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Sentiment in this State on the Presidential election is so overwhelmingly for Taft that few bets have yet been made and those at odds so long there is no incentive to the taker of either end. In the two places in Boston where election betting is done there was said today to have been not more than five thousand dollars wagered and this sum includes the money put up on the New York State contest. Taft to win at 10 to 1 is the offer made by Taft men, but Bryan men want 20 to 1 and 100 to 1. Odds of 2 to 1 on Taft to carry New York and Indiana have attracted a few bets.

TAFT MONEY BEGGING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CINCINNATI, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] At leading haunts of sporting men tonight the report as to betting on the Presidential candidates was the same—there was none worth mentioning. Veterans in this line declared the dullness at this stage of a Presidential campaign, as represented in the betting, was unprecedented hereabouts. Manager John O'Dowd of the Hotel Havelin said he knew where there were many persons willing and anxious to accept any and all offers to wager at the quoted odds on Taft —1 to 3 and 1 to 4. "But no money is being placed at these odds of any other odds," declared O'Dowd.

BRYAN FAVORITE IN MISSOURI.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Apathy is general here in the matter of betting on the Presidential election results. But few bets reported have been verified. The odds reported are generally two to one that Bryan will carry Missouri, one to four that he will be elected. Last night's tremendous demonstration for Debs here scared Bryanites. Over 6000 paid to hear Debs inside the armory and at that a thousand, unable to get in, remained outside and heard other Socialists speak, though the weather was cold and damp. Republican State Chairman Dickey continues to refuse to give any Missouri forecast. Democratic Chairman Rubey today claimed Missouri for Bryan by 50,000.

QUAKERS WON'T EVEN INSURE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Except for rumors of a few large bets, privately negotiated at odds of 5 to 2 against Bryan, there is no evidence of election betting here. Members of the Union League declare that they know of no money offered by either Republicans or Democrats and on Broad street, the political Rialto, no one can be found who knows of any betting over two figures. In these trifling bets the odds average 5 to 2. Kendall B. Crossey, an insurance man, has endeavored to sell Lloyd's insurance against business loss by Bryan's election, but said today that he had been unable to make a single sale.

NO RESPECTER OF PERSONS.

COLORADO OFFICIAL JAILED FOR CONTEMPT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

DENVER, Oct. 24.—Secretary of State Timothy O'Connor was found guilty of contempt of the District Court by Judge George W. Allen today and ordered to be confined in the County Jail until such time as he shall obey the order of the court in regard to the official ballots for the November election.

The sentence followed O'Connor's refusal to place the anti-Guggenheim and business men's tickets on the official ballots. These tickets carry the names of the regular Republican candidates for Presidential electors and State officers, but different nominations for county officers and Legislature. An appeal will be taken from Judge Allen's ruling, as to the controversy in regard to the ballots because the four judges sitting in the case divided evenly.

noon granted a writ of habeas corpus applied for by O'Conners's attorneys and the Secreatry of State, was released from the custody of the Sheriff upon $500 bonds. He will appear before the Supreme Court Monday morning, at which time the court will take up all the matters connected with the controversy which led to the issuance of the judge's order.

COAL MINE ABLAZE.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—The Hazel mine of the Pittsburg Coal Company near Cannonsburg, Pa., is burning as a result of an explosion this afternoon while 800 miners were at work. It is said all escaped.

The loss, it is said, will reach about $1,000,000. The miners, 800 in number left the mine without confusion and all are safe. Twenty-five miners have now entered the mine to fight the fire.

HITCHCOCK CONFIDENT.

COUNTRY IS TAFT'S BEYOND ALL DOUBT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chairman Hitchcock returned to headquarters today with reports indicating beyond a doubt the election of William H. Taft and proving the wisdom of the plan of campaign which he, with the approval of Mr. Taft and the President, has insisted on working out in spite of much hostile criticism.

"Mr. Taft will be elected," said Mr. Hitchcock, "and will receive practically the same electoral vote as did President Roosevelt four years ago. We will carry New York State by a substantial majority. We would be able to win without New York, but we are going to win with it.

"Mr. Taft will carry Ohio and Indiana. We have been concentrating our forces in Ohio in the last few days, and in a conference held just before I started West, State Auditor Gilbert, C. P. Taft and Senator Dick said that a comfortable majority was assured to the ticket.

"Our plan of campaign has been, as it was originally outlined, with the aim of not exhausting our resources too far before election day. We have endeavored to work out our campaign of arousing the voters so as to bring the climax as close to election day as possible.

the fact that the crowds have been unprecedented in size. One meeting where there is an overflow is worth more than a dozen ordinary meetings. The enthusiasm of our meetings is talked about everywhere Mr. Taft and our best speakers go. At Newark they said, 'The whole town is for Taft,' and so it was in many other places.

"The West will go for Taft by about the same electoral vote as it gave Roosevelt, although none claim the majorities will be so large as they were four years ago. There is grave doubt of carrying Missouri, although we feel we have a chance. Kentucky also is doubtful, but there seem to be more prospects of carrying Kentucky than Missouri. In Maryland the contest will be closer than in Indiana or Ohio, but the chances are that the electoral vote of that State will go to Mr. Taft. West Virginia is now safe."

Mr. Hitchcock came West for what probably will be the final visit of the campaign in order to be in as close touch as possible with conditions in the Middle West, and especially with progress in Ohio and Indiana, where the last and hardest blows of the battle are being struck.

WAVE BEATEN.

SWEPT BY COMBERS; STEAMER ASKS AID.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MARSHFIELD (Or.) Oct. 24.—While going to sea today, the steamer M. F. Plant was struck by a heavy sea that swept her decks fore and aft. The breaker caused her to veer from her course, and before she could be straightened out, five breakers piled over her, washing a portion of her deckload of shingles overboard.

The Plant finally made her way to sea considerably listed. Half an hour later the steamer Eureka crossed out. She stood by the Plant for a while, and then steamed south. The Plant has been flying a signal to the life-saving station, "met with accident, send boat with hawser."

At 5 o'clock a three-masted steam schooner, bound north, ran close into the Plant. She laid to near the Plant for fifteen minutes, and then proceeded. No fear is expressed for the safety of those on board. At nightfall she was riding free at anchor, offshore. Weather conditions are favorable, and it is probable she will be towed back here tomorrow. The Plant carried a full complement of passengers, among whom are Capt. Emory of the United States Life Saving Service.

ENGLISH SUFFRAGETTES SHOCK WHOLE COUNTRY.

Recent Proceedings in London Are Characterized as a "Shocking Exhibition of Unsexed Fanaticism" by James Kier Hardie, Formerly Advocate of the Enfranchisement.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There can be little doubt that the extraordinary proceedings in the police courts, following the more extraordinary proceedings the other day in the purlieus of Westminster, have done irreparable injury to the cause of the enfranchisement of women in the United Kingdom.

James Keir Hardie, Socialist and Independent labor leader, whose former private secretary, Mrs. Symons, was guilty of falsehood and a breach of the peace when forcing her way into the House of Commons, denounces the whole conduct of this particular crusade as a "shocking exhibition of unsexed fanaticism," and the:

"Who will believe for an instant that the vote should be given to women of this kind, whatever may be done on behalf of women who have not blazoned to all the world an incapability of understanding the first duty of the citizen?"

Mr. Asquith will not be any more strongly disposed to consider a woman suffrage amendment to his promised bill for a reform of the franchise system. His promise was based upon the condition that the sentiment of the women be proved to be overwhelmingly in favor of the amendment. To judge from expressions as to the Parkhurst-Symons guerilla warfare, the dominant feeling is strongly the other way.

While Taft Can Carry the Country Without Its Aid, Bryan Must Win There or Retire Ignominiously. Real Fight Is Between Hughes and Chanler.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is not necessarily true, but the statement has been made time and again within the last three weeks that as New York goes so goes the Union. Without New York, Taft can carry the country, or so it would seem when account is taken of the Republican results four years ago. Without New York, Bryan cannot carry the country. This is a certainty of certainties.

Today, one week before the real campaigning ends, the Republican leaders believe that New York is absolutely safe for the national ticket. The Democratic leaders, of course, claim New York for Bryan, but it is known that, as a rule, they have at heart very little confidence in such an outcome.

The deep interest of both sides is centered in the contest between Hughes and Chanler. It is a contest lively enough in every surrounding circumstance to make interest and excitement excusable.

The great body of Republicans in this State is conservative. Some of the party members have thought Mr. Roosevelt too radical, but those of this mind infinitely prefer the Roosevelt idea to the Bryan idea.

The Republicans are absolutely united for Taft, while the Democrats are divided on Bryan, though the leaders are attempting to make a brave show of unanimity. New York has rejected Bryan twice and it will reject him a third time.

The State is safe for Taft and Sher-

Charles E. Hughes. The doubt of his election springs from the doubt that exists as to how many Republicans can be led from the party lines by their desire to have race-track gambling restored.

CONSUL SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Silas McFarland Commits Suicide on Train While Going to Berlin.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Silas C. McFarland of Iowa, Consul-General at large, for the European district, shot himself on a railroad train today coming from Hamburg to Berlin. He died almost instantly.

McFarland left the continent for Washington six weeks ago and was then going to Berlin to rejoin his wife.

Mr. McFarland was appointed consul-general at large June 10, 1908. He was born at Mount Pleasant, Iowa, in 1859.

Before entering the consular service he was editor and publisher of the Marshalltown, Iowa, Times.

American Mining Men in Mexico Discover Eruption of Hitherto Quiet Mountain.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 2.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] American mining men who have just arrived at Balsas from the town of Teteala, State of Guerrero, report that a new volcano was formed near that place during the recent earthquake shocks. The top of a low mountain was blown off by a subterranean explosion and lava and sulphurous flames have been pouring from the crater for several days. The government Meteorological Bureau will appoint a commission to investigate the phenomenon.

SLASHED ARTERIES.

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 24.—Allan C. Murray, until a few days ago employed by the Pacific States Telephone Company, was found dead in the yards of the Terminal Company this morning. He had committed suicide by cutting the arteries of both wrists with a razor. Before killing himself he had removed all his clothes. Murray has been despondent for some time, and the loss of his position with the telephone company added to his troubles.

Identification was effected by a card found on his body, giving the name of Allan C. Murray, and requesting that in case of accident or death, David S. Murray, a brother, general superintendent of the plant of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company at San Francisco be notified.

David S. Murray, general superintendent of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph Company, who resides in Berkeley, says that E. C. Murray, who committeed suicide at Portland, is not his brother. His only brother, he asserts, is now in Boise Idaho.

Society in French Capital Frowns Coldly on His Bride, Who Was Anna Gould, but Germany Extends Welcoming Hands to Them Both. Emperor William Approves.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Prince Helie de Sagan and his Princess will leave Paris in a fortnight. They have decided to live in Berlin and in this idea they have been encouraged by Emperor William. At any rate, in Berlin she who was Anna Gould and then only the Countess of Castellane, will be in time Her Serene Highness, Princess of Sagan. Prince Helie's father is the fourth Duke of Talleyrand and in Germany, the Herr "Herzog Zu Sagan" and "Prinz Von Sagan," Serene Highness.

The Talleyrand-Perigords acquired the German title in 1845, when the second Duke of Talleyrand married Dorothy, Princess of Courland, Semigalle and Sagan.

It is certain, too, that Prince Helie and his American wife will shine more brilliantly in Berlin society than they can here. Necessarily, fashionable and aristocratic society here frown on the Prince because of his wild career, while the De Castellanes and their powerful friends quietly but constantly throw thorns in the social path of the Princess.

The De Sagans who have been living unobtrusively, are putting in order the splendid residence of the Princess on the Avenue De Malakoff. JAPAN SAYS GOOD-BY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TOKIO, Oct. 25.—The press of Tokio and Yokohama this morning devote significant editorial space on the farewell to the Atlantic fleet.

The general tone taken by the various papers is an expression of profound appreciation of the thoughtfulness displayed by the American government in accepting Japan's invitation and sending the fleet to Japanese waters as it made its way around the world on its cruise, the like of which has never before been attempted by any navy in the world.

The papers are also united in rejoicing over the opportunity thus afforded Japan to demonstrate the traditional friendship of the nation toward the United States, which, it is further commented, will doubtless serve to completely disperse the cloud of misunderstanding that has been hovering over the relations between the two countries for some time past.

Concluding the editorial writers say they trust that henceforth the white fleet of America and the black fleet of Japan will coöperate in the heavenly mission of guarding the peace of the world and also in protecting the commerce of both nations which will eventually result in the promotion of the welfare of humanity at large.

Plot Discovered at Amoy.

AMOY (China) Oct. 24.—The preparations for the reception here on October 30, of the second squadron of the American battleship fleet are nearing completion. A plot was unearthed here today, the object of which was the assassination of certain Chinese officials during the reception of the fleet.

FILES INJURE COMPANY'S CASE.

GOVERNMENT NOT THROUGH IN LAND FRAUD SUIT.

Night Sessions May Be Held in Order to Finish the Trial and Get the Case Before a Jury Some Time During This Coming Week—Only Four Witnesses for Defense.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 24.—After United States Attorney McCourt had read a large amount of correspondence and introduced the letter file copy-books of the Pacific Furniture and Lumber Company today in the so-called Los Angeles land fraud trial before Judge Wolverton, court was adjourned until Monday.

Contrary to expectations, the government did not finish with its evidence today, and it may be that night sessions will be held in order to conclude the case next week and get it before the jury.

The letters that Attorney McCourt erad were those which passed between several residents of Currey county and the defendants, Dr. J. H. Hedderly, Richard Jones and William H. Smith. The letters appeared to be damaging in that they tended to connect the officials of the company with the alleged conspiracy. The defense expects to put only four witnesses on the stand.

Some of the defendants, it is stated, will take the stand in their own behalf.

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Halsey Has Appendicitis.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—When the case of Theodore V. Halsey, former general agent of the Pacific States Telephone and Telegraph Company, indicted on a charge of bribery, was called in Judge Dunne's court today, his attorney stated that Halsey must undergo an operation for appendicitis before he could face the jury. A continuance of two weeks was then granted.

Drummer Boy Forbidden Mails.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—Acting on instructions from Washington, Postmaster Fisk today issued an order forbidding the delivery of mail matter and the payment of money orders to the Drummer Boy Gold Mining Co., its officers or agents, or to Capt. E. W. Emerson, who is now in the County Jail pending an appeal from a sentence of ten years' confinement in San Quentin for obtaining money under false pretenses.

Inspecting Oyster Beds.

OLYMPIA (Wash.) Oct. 24.—Rules for the digging, opening and shipping of oysters are to be made by Federal authorities under authority of the national pure food law, according to A. E. McDonald, special agent of the Department of Agriculture. Mr. McDonald is making a personal inspection of all the oyster beds in the State and will report in detail on the methods of handling and shipping the bivalves.

Benson Follows Young.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—According to information received at army headquarters in this city, Maj. Harry C. Benson, who has been stationed at the Presidio here for three years, has been appointed superintendent of the Yellowstone National Park, to succeed Gen. Samuel M. Young.

Complain of Packers.

SAN JOSE, Oct. 24.—At the meeting of the San Jose grange this morning, complaint was made by the members that packers who had contracted for local fruit early in the season when prices were higher are now refusing to accept deliveries, their excuses being, it was alleged, trivial and based on the present lower prices.

Fire Damages Building.

SPOKANE (Wash.) Oct. 24.—Fire which started beside the elevator shaft in Tall & Gibbs' furniture warehouse here this morning did damage approximating $50,000. The blaze is believed to have started from defective wiring.

Delay in Arson Case.

STOCKTON, Oct. 24.—Both sides have rested in the case of Dilse Hopkins charged jointly with Henry Heigenmeister, with arson in burning the Lodi Herald plant. The defendant was on the stand all the morning under severe cross-examination. Court adjourned to Monday, when the argument will be made.

NEEDHAM DENIES HOSTILITY.

Says He Is not Responsible for Low Price of Grapes or Closing Sweet Wine Plants.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Congressman Needham, who has been accused by the Democratic press of being responsible for the low price of grapes and the closing of some of the sweet-wine plants, today issued a strong statement denying he had any interest in the same, other than to protect the California growers. The commissioner of internal revenue issued an order stopping the manufacture of sweet wines, claiming that the law was being violated by using water, and by maintaining distilleries for the manufacture of brandy on the same premises.

Congressman Needham in his statement says:

"On account of the opposition of eastern makers to any change in the laws which would curtail and restrict their supposed right to make wine out of 'any old thing,' it was at once seen that in order to pass a law upon the question at all, it would be necessary for those representing the government and those representing the sweet wine interests to mutually agree upon the form of the proposed amendment. The preparation of the amendments, being a highly technical task, was left entirely to the legal representatives of the government in the internal revenue office and Mr. Morgan, representing the sweet wine interest. In the task on agreeing upon the wording of the amendment, neither myself nor any member of the California delegation had any part."

QUIET AT HEADQUARTERS.

Plans for Programme of Final Week Only Activity at New York Offices.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The quiet which prevailed at Republican national and State headquarters in this city today is the calm preceding the political whirlwind which is to strike this region next week.

For the first time in two weeks there were today no prominent callers at either headquarters. Chairman Hitchcock will return Monday morning from Chicago in time to meet Mr. Taft before the latter's departure for New Haven, where he will speak at noon. Returning, Mr. Taft will talk at Port Chester at 3:05 p.m., coming immediately afterwards to this city for his tour of Brooklyn. On Monday evening he will address four meetings in that city.

Besides the big meetings in Brooklyn on Monday, and in Manhattan on Wednesday, New York will witness a meeting that is expected to be interesting. This will be the College mass meeting in Carnegie Hall on Friday night. One of the speakers will be ex-Gov. Frank S. Black of New York, Senator Dolliver of Iowa, Edmund Wetmore, John L. Griffiths and Secretary Straus of the Department of Commerce and Labor, will be the others.

Representatives of the different colleges and universities are coöperating with the committee of the Republican club and the National Republican College League, under whose auspices the meeting will be held.

BRYAN IN NEW YORK.

"Peerless One" Talks Much and Often to Crowds in the Empire State.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ELMIRA (N. Y.) Oct. 24.—Closing the night with a big demonstration in this city, W. J. Bryan's advent into the Empire State was auspicious.

He was greeted all the way through the southern tier by large crowds, his audience at Port Jervis, Binghamton and in this city being made up largely of workingmen. Oswego and Waverly also turned out great throngs.

Today's journey was begun at Jersey City where just before leaving early this morning, Mr. Bryan delivered a short address in the railway station. By special courtesy of the New York State Democratic Committee, the train was stopped at Paterson, N. Y., for ten minutes, where another brief talk was given.

The importance of the electoral vote of New York was dwelt upon by the candidate at several points, because, he said, in New York the responsibility of the voter was greater than anywhere else in the nation. "The vote of one voter here may elect thirty-nine electoral votes."

Tomorrow will be spent in resting. The campaign will be resumed early Monday morning, at Paterson where Mr. Bryan promised tonight he would return before resuming his New York engagement.

SERIOUS SLUMP.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispacth.] The business of the Rock Island lines suffered a serious slump during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to the report of the directors, issued today. The decrease in operating revenue which amounts to nearly $2,000,000 is attributed to business depression, shortage of freight receipts, etc. The decrease was met as far as practicable by a reduction in operating expenses.

The freight receipts for the previous year were $40,215,901, but for the fiscal year they dropped to $37,899,356, decrease of $2,316,545.

Passenger receipts for preceding year were $16,153,539 and those of last year $16,693,115, an increase of $539,571. An increase of $1,515,925, or 3.71 per cent. is also shown in the operation expenses.

BEANS A-PLENTY.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 24.—A local commission merchant announced today that the output of beans from the Sacramento district, mainly from the river islands, would amount to over half a million sacks. Prices are good and the demand heavy from the East and Middle West. One dealer has sold ten carloads of beans in Boston this fall.

How To Brown Hair
Without Detection

Mrs. Potter's Walnut Juice Hair Stain can Be Applied in a few Minutes Every Month

There is a way of staining gray, faded or bleached hair any shade desired, from a beautiful rich brown to almost black so that it is difficult if not impossible for even experts to detect that the hair has been treated in any way.

This preparation has the tremendous advantage over hair-dyes of containing no silver, sulphur, lead or other poisons which invariably cause hair falling. It has no odor, no oil, no sediment and no grease, and does not rub off on the clothing. It makes the hair grow out fluffy and luxuriant.

A liberal amount as a laboratory trial package of this walnut-juice hair-stain, together with a booklet on hair, is sent by Mrs. Potter's Hygienic Supply Co., 341 Groton Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio, in plain, sealed wrapper, if you will send twenty-five cents in stamps or coin, and if it is desired to continue the treatment, full sized packages may be obtained at drug stores for one dollar a package.

It is applied in a few moments with the comb, and it stains nothing but the hair, and stains it evenly from tip to root. It produces any shade desired from a beautiful rich brown to almost black.

One bottle of this walnut juice hair stain can last a year.

Mrs. Potter's Walnut Juice Hair Stain is recommended and for sale in Los Angeles by Owl Drug Co., 320 So. Spring and 5th and Broadway.

LIFE'S SEAMY SIDE.

GIRLS ACCUSE RICH BANKER.

Two Wards of Blind Asylum Tell of Crime.

Say Offense Took Place at Irrigation Congress.

Accused Man Was Trustee and Old Citizen.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA FE (N. M.) Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With the police of every southwestern city and town on the lookout for him, R. H. Pierce, wealthy banker of Alamogordo, this Territory, aged 60 years and one of the richest citizens, is a fugitive from justice. Pierce is wanted charged with the heinous crime of criminal assault upon two blind girls, aged 14 and 16 years respectively, of the institute for the blind at Alamogordo of which institution the accused man was a member of the board of trustees. It is understood that indictments charging Pierce with the crime have been returned by the grand jury at Albuquerque and it is known that warrants for his arrest have been issued.

Although Pierce is alleged to have committed the offense almost two weeks ago at Albuquerque, where he took the girls to the National Irrigation Congress for the purpose of showing what is being accomplished at the institution in the way of making the helpless children self-supporting; it was only two days ago that the matter came to light, owing to one of his victims having made a full confession to the superintendent of the institution. The matter was at once reported to Gov. Curry, who ordered Atty.-Gen. James M. Hervey to make a rigid investigation. The findings of the Attorney-General resulted in Pierce's summary removal from the board of regents.

Pierce, it seems, became aware that he was suspected and left for parts unknown. His family is prostrated as a result of the husband and father's disgrace. The affair has created a tremendous sensation here, owing to Pierce's prominence throughout the Territory of which he has been a foremost citizen for many years. Feeling at Alamogordo is very bitter against him and should he be captured and brought back there violence might be resorted to.

Pierce's closest friends are astounded at his action and some advance the theory that he was probably insane at the time the alleged offense was committed.

These friends also believe that he has gone to some secluded spot in the mountains near his home and taken his life.

He left his home here supposedly to go to the bank and that was the last seen of him. That he did not leave on a train is evident, as he is well known and would have been easily recognized. A searching party headed by one of his sons is now scouring the near-by mountains for him.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGED.

Frank Miller, formerly a deputy sheriff, was arrested last night on a warrant charging him with embezzlement. He is accused by Miss Catherine Hans, who lives at Fourth and Flower streets, with taking $4, which she had entrusted him. According to the woman's story she gave Miller $19 to deposit for her in the German-American Bank. When he returned he gave her a certificate of deposit for $17, saying that the bank had charged her $2. Then she wanted her money withdrawn and Miller returned $15. He informed her that the bank had also charged her $2 to withdraw it. Miller had a deputy sheriff's star when arrested and carried a gun. It is understood that Miller's commission was revoked about a year ago by Sheriff Hammel.

ENDS RATE WAR.

SEATTLE, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Following the visit to Victoria of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific, today, announcement was made at the local offices that beginning next Tuesday, the fare on the Canadian Pacific boats from Seattle to Victoria would be $2 one way and $2.50 for the round trip, thus ending practically the disastrous rate war in which the Canadian Pacific has been involved with the American company. No reason is assigned for the sudden advance. The fare in the rate war has been as low as 25 cents for the round trip.

Cancer Cured
In 10 Days

A Discovery That Has Startled The Medical World

I have discovered what the medical world has been looking for, for years, a sure cure for cancer, so sure that it can be absolutely guaranteed. This I do, and I can prove it. Louis Gordon, a Well-Known Philadelphia Insurance Man, Testifies to the Merits of

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

How Are Your Kidneys?

You Owe It to Yourself to Find Out at Once.

Diseased Kidneys Cause More Sickness and Serious Complications Than Any Other Disease.

LOUIS GORDON

Read this convincing letter:

"I desire to testify to the merits of Warner's Safe Cure. I have suffered for several years with kidney trouble and spent quite a sum of money with doctors without relief, until I was prevailed upon to try your medicine. One bottle of your Warner's Safe Cure did me more good than all the medicine I took for years.

"I used your medicine in a judicious way for a trial lasting three months and today I am cured.

"I gladly recommend Warner's Safe Cure to all who need such a remedy. You are at liberty to use and publish my testimony as you may see fit in any newspaper."—LOUIS GORDON, 1239 South 8th Street, Philadelphia, Sept. 18, 1908.

IF IN DOUBT MAKE THIS TEST: Put some morning urine in a glass or bottle, let it stand 24 hours. If there is a reddish sediment in the bottom of the glass, or if the urine is cloudy or milky or if you see particles or germs floating about in it, your kidneys are diseased and you should get a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure at once. Analysis Free. If after making this test you have any doubt as to the development of the disease in your system, send a sample of your urine, putting your name and address on the package, to our Medical Department, and our doctors will analyse it and send you a report, with advice, and medical booklet free.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is purely vegetable and contains no harmful drugs; it does not constipate; it is a most valuable and effective tonic; it is a stimulant to digestion and awakens the torpid liver. It repairs the tissues, soothes inflammation and irritation, stimulates the enfeebled organs and heals at the same time.

In kidney disease the bowls are often constipated and the liver torpid. Warner's Safe Pills quickly relieve this condition, and no ill after effect is experienced.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is put up in two regular sizes and sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50c, and $1.00 A BOTTLE.

It is prescribed by doctors and used in the leading hospitals for rheumatism. Refuse substitutes.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE. To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will cure them, a trial bottle will be sent ABSOLUTELY FREE to any one who will write the WARNER SAFE CURE CO., Rochester N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in The Times. Our doctors will also send medical booklet containing symptoms, treatment of the disease and many convincing testimonials, free.

Dunham followed her to the kitchen, and shot her just as she had passed the door. Then he killed the hired girl, Minnie Schlessler, who had made a vain attempt to help her mistress escape from the house.

Dunham fled from the farm on his wheel, and took the road to Mt. Hamilton. He was followed by a posse, which was close upon him, when it became so dark they couldn't trail him any longer. They returned for help, but that night it rained, and his trail was lost.

The only satisfactory motive that has ever been assigned for the crime is that Col. McGlincy had collected some money, and Dunham evidently wanted to get possession of it. The slaying of McGlincy could not be accomplished without the knowledge of the other members of the family. And Dunham evidently made up his mind to do away with all of them. The crime for brutality is probably unprecedented in California.

CHINAMAN HAS QUEER WAY OF SEEKING EDUCATION.

Celestial Student, Resident of Upland, Conducts a Game in Cucamonga as an Aid to Acquiring English—He Is Fined and Admonished to Obey Law.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

UPLAND, Oct. 24.—Jim Lee, a young Chinaman of this city, was arrested in a house in Chinatown, at Cucamonga, for conducting a gambling game, Constable Rupp and Deputy Hirst making the arrest. Two Japs were held as witnesses, and at the trial Lee pleaded guilty and was fined $30, which he paid. He was admonished to obey the law in future. It is said that in this instance the "stakes" were small, but that in a former game a winner to the extent of $100 or more was flimflammed by Mongolians out of the money, and his squealing was probably responsible for the recent raid. The Chinese assert that young Lee is in this country as a student, and had hit upon this method of raising funds to pay for his books, etc.

RAISIN GROWERS LOSE.

From Etiwanda come reports of considerable loss to the raisin men, because of the recent heavy rains. Owing to the immense crop, some of the growers had resorted to makeshift trays for the fruit, using paper and cloth, instead of wood. When the rains came, the loss inevitably resulted. Sultanas are now cured, but there is a considerable amount of the Muscat variety yet to be dried.

SANTA ANA WATER PLANS.

Valley Irrigation and Anaheim Union Companies Purpose Extensive Development Work.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SANTA ANA, Oct. 24.—The directors of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company have called a meeting of the stockholders for January 21, at which time the raising of capitalization from $100,000 to $500,000 will be voted on. This will be the first step toward extensive development of water in the Santa Ana Cañon, in connection with the Anaheim Union Water Company. These two concerns furnish water for over 3000 acres of the finest land in Orange county. The proposed improvements will cost about $250,000.

A 200-pound running board, used in transferring freight from cars to the depot platform, slipped today while Dunlap Willson was walking over it. He fell to the ground and the edge landed on his foot, crushing it. He is in the hospital.

BABE KILLED BY BEAR.

The remains of Iva Louise Lard, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Lard, were buried here today. The child was killed by a circus bear at Tucson, two weeks ago, before the eyes of her mother. Mr. and Mrs. Lard formerly lived here.

FULLERTON.

FULLERTON, Oct. 24.—The High School football team defeated the Southern Pacific Telegraph School team of Los Angeles here this afternoon by a score of 4 to 0. The locals kept the ball on their opponents' ground practically during the whole game. A number of "rooters" came out from Los Angeles with the telegraph team.

Trade Unions Accept Plan for Year.

Socialist Organs Condemn Sir Christopher.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The workmen employed by Sir Christopher Furness have accepted his offer to turn over his shipbuilding plant to their co-management and to share with them the profits and losses of the business. This plan will bring the dawn of a new era in the relations of capital and labor.

A hundred delegates of the trade unions affected by Sir Christopher's offer met yesterday afternoon, and finally decided to accept, with the additional proviso that the plan be tried a year, and then adopted permanently if it proved a success.

This action was taken in spite of the criticisms of the Socialist organs, who loudly condemn Sir Christopher and his innovation and "the comic impudence of capital," which "finds you in work as if the captains of industry had created the earth and put trees, coal and copper there out of the goodness of their hearts for your especial benefit."

Much enthusiasm, however, exists among the workmen at West Hartlepool, where it is generally felt that the profit-sharing scheme will be a success.

El Centro Citizens Rejoice Over Finest Building of Its Kind in Southeastern California — Founder Speaks of His Dream City Now Being Realized.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

EL CENTRO, Oct. 24.—The most brilliant social event in the history of Imperial Valley was the formal opening of Hotel Oregon here, night before last.

This hotel is the finest in Southeastern California, being a three-story brick structure, elegantly furnished and equipped in a style said not to be equaled outside of the Southern California tourist hotels. It has eighty guest rooms on the second and third floors, and a large dining-room and lobby on the main floor. The building and equipment represent an outlay of about $100,000 by Helms & Pellet, the owners.

The opening banquet was given by the El Centro Ten Thousand Club. Guests were present from every town in Imperial Valley, and from several Southern California cities. Plates were laid for 160 guests.

Allen Kelly, editor of the Morning Star and president of the Ten Thousand Club, acted as toastmaster, and gave the guests a pleasing surprise by reading a telegram from Los Angeles, announcing that the suit of Imperial, contesting the county seat election which gave El Centro the county capital, had been dismissed.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted by the club, asking the United States Reclamation Service to make a survey for a project to bring waters from Laguna dam, on the Colorado River, to the lands of Imperial Valley lying above the high-line canals of the California Development Company. This project would bring under cultivation fully 200,000 acres of choice land which cannot now be watered.

CONQUEST OF DESERT.

J. Stanly Brown spoke of "The Conquest of the Desert," and W. F. Holt, founder of El Centro, spoke of "My Dream City," which he declared was coming true in El Centro. Mrs. A. W. Swanson gave an address on "Woman's Civic Influence," and City Attorney Conkling spoke of "Municipal Problems." Dr. R. P. Shepherd's theme was "Factors of Progress." Short talks were made by General Superintendent H. V. Platt of the Southern Pacific Railroad, Clarence M. Knox, Southern Pacific commercial agent, and Niles Pease, president of the Los Angeles City Council.

EL CENTRO BRIEFS.

J. P. Heil has bought a nine-acre tract in the southern section of El Centro, paying $1000 an acre. He will improve the property with cottages. He has also purchased a lot on Main street, west of the Courthouse, and will complete a concrete block business house which has been started thereon.

Niles Pease and E. A. Wilson, officers of the Provident Mutual Loan Association of Los Angeles, are inspecting Imperial Valley cities, and are so well pleased with the outlook that they will recommend the placing of more loans by the association in this locality.

HOME DESTROYED.

While the family was away from home last night, the residence of G. W. Corless, No. 2032 Le Grand street, was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $500 and the property was not insured. It is believed that the fire was caused by crossed electric wires.

HELD FOR IDENTIFICATION.

Peter Drakos and Peter Psartin, laborers, were arrested last night on the receipt of a telegram from Chief Biggy of San Francisco, who says he holds a warrant charging them with grand larceny. They deny that they are the men wanted, but the police will hold them as fugitives until officers arrive to identify them.

BAY CITY.

BAY CITY, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Joseph Hatfield of Hotel Bayview is seriously ill. Boiling lard fell on her right arm a few days ago and blood-poisoning has now developed.

William Strain and his sister, Miss Gertrude Strain, have just arrived from Belfast, Ireland, and will spend the winter in Southern California visiting relatives. They now are with their aunt, Mrs. Margaret Strain, at Placentia. Mr. Strain is junior member of a Belfast printing firm.

THE POLITICAL WATCH TOWER

The last week of the campaign finds the Democrats here still unable to shake the Socialists and the Independence League out of second place. The national campaign, as far as Southern California is concerned, is over. It closed when the Democrats came warring back from Denver; but there are some State and county offices still on the semi-doubtful list.

Secretary Petermichel of the Republican League is busy receiving and classifying the precinct books turned in by the field workers of the city and county. "Pete" wears a broad Taft smile which he strives vainly to conceal.

"I am not giving any estimates of majority," he said to me yesterday. "There never was a campaign before when the books looked so good, but we are holding back to see if the workers cannot make it unanimous."

The precinct workers have exposed pretty fully the masked campaign of the opposition. The Democrats as a party have no organization whatever in two-thirds of the precincts of the county. In a number of precincts they have no committeemen. The Democratic County Central Committee had little money in the beginning, and it appears to have spent most of that knocking Nate Cole and getting out personal attacks on certain of the opposing candidates in place of trying to do something for the whole ticket.

The confidence which the Democracy of the county places in its own strength is shown pretty clearly by the act of the Democratic convention in naming but one candidate for Superior Judge in place of four.

Taking advantage of the disorganized condition of the Democratic forces, the Socialists are making an unusually active campaign. Their stock argument is: "There is no chance in this State for Bryan; his free-trade policy kills him; come with us once and help us to make a show so that we can frighten the Republicans a bit."

This argument is winning some votes among the classes where Bryan is regarded as a Socialist himself. I was amused yesterday afternoon to hear one Socialist assuring another that "Bryan is a Socialist at heart and four years from now he will be at the head of our ticket. If that A.R.U. strike had turned out as we expected he never would have been a Democrat at all."

Unless the silent vote has some dynamite up its sleeve, the candidates of the last Democratic county convention are going to be worse beaten than any other Democratic ticket ever named here. There is something pathetic about the condition of the Democratic League. A number of Democrats went into this organization sincerely determined to rid the Democracy of the railroad and liquor influences and place it on a respectable basis. And, lo, after the railroad and the liquor influences are obliterated, there is hardly a corporal's guard left!

The Democratic League has about the same chance of winning in the county that Dana Bartlett had for capturing the Councilmanic nomination in the Eighth Ward. The irony of it all is that with three or four exceptions, the ticket nominated by the league is the best the Democrats ever named here—and these exceptions are the only ones who have any chance for winning.

I have heard a great deal of discussion over how to vote a split ticket. Among many election officers the opinion prevails that a cross in the circle at the head of a column means a vote for every candidate in that column, and that any other crosses on the ticket invalidates the ballot. The opinion is so universally held by those not well posted that it will probably be responsible for the rejection of a great many valid ballots on the night of the election.

To vote a split ticket one may place a cross in the circle at the head of his party ticket and a cross opposite the name of each candidate in another column for whom he desires to vote. The second cross takes precedence of the one at the top of the party column. This is legal; but the equally legal and the safest way, when one is dealing with semi-ignorant election officials, is to place a cross after the name of each candidate for whom one desires to vote, if it is to be a split ticket.

"It would save a good deal of time and inconvenience," said an old-timer to me yesterday, "if they would place a circle at the top of that amendment column, so that one could vote for or against them all with a single punch of the rubber. I don't like to spend all forenoon in the election booth when I've only two things to do. I want to vote the straight Republican ticket, and against every darned one of them amendments. Now why don't they fix it so that I can get out of the booth with those two punches?"

The charter amendments seem to be more unpopular this year than ever before. A majority of the people whom I have heard expressing themselves say they are going to vote against them all on general principles. The opinion is growing that all amendments are bad and that the only satisfactory change is for a new constitution. The single amendment exempting corporations from city and county taxes is almost as long as the whole Constitution of the United States.

Tony Schwamm has certainly fallen into hard lines. At the beginning of the campaign he wailed because the people would not take him seriously; now he is moaning because they do.

It would take a candidate with a great deal more ballast than Tony carries to make a successful campaign for office while he is being investigated by a grand jury. Even Eugene Schmitz couldn't do that. As one of the directors and promoters of the Los Angeles-Utah Oil Company Tony is occupying the attention of the grand jury. He expected to take a seat in the Courthouse shortly, but not in the grand jury room to explain his connection with the administration and with the sale of certain oil stock.

Judging from the reports circulating in the Tenderloin, Tony will be fortunate if the investigation stops with his connection with the "Mayor's" oil company. There are certain complainants whom neither threats nor promises have quieted. Their testimony concerning permits issued by the administration is likely to create some interest inside the grand jury room. Six months ago Tony's phone rang even before that of the Mayor, when there was something to be squared north of First street. Now Tony wishes his 'phone had not been quite so popular.

While Tony and his bodyguard of walking delegates are hanging onto the lid north of First street, R. W. Pridham is making a winning campaign for Supervisor in the Fifth District. The grand jury is not interfering with either Pridham or his campaigners. With the exception of Joe Mesmer, practically all of Schwamm's campaign managers and workers have been summoned before the grand jury; they cannot go out into the district because they are warned to keep in reach of telephone call from the jury room, under penalty of being forcibly detained as witnesses. Cleopatra seems to have pulled her Antony out of the race.

REAL HOMESICKNESS.

Suffering from melancholia because she is unable to return to her native land, Mrs. B. A. Cook, who lives on Upper Boulevard, became insane last night and was taken to the Police Station. A Wreck from Neuralgia.

MRS. EDITH COPELAND.

Mrs. Edith Copeland, of Los Angeles, Cal. who was sick with Indigestion and Neuralgia, is loud in her praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, which has benefited her after many other remedies failed. It has cured her of the indigestion and toned up her System, thus driving out the Neuralgia,

Mrs. Copeland writes: "I was nearly a wreck when I came to California five years ago. When I had been here perhaps a month I came across one of your testimonial letters that just hit my case and I decided to get a bottle.

"I have had neuralgia of the heart and feet. Have had no satisfaction from my doctors (save receipted bills) and have been trying everything. Was also a sufferer from indigestion. Not only has Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey increased my weight and acted as a general tonic, but it has also nearly cured me of my neuralgia. I feel confident that in time Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey will drive it out of my system entirely."

Mrs. Copeland's case is similar to that of thousands of others, both men and women, who have been made hale, hearty and vigorous by the constant use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a medicine. It is a predigested food which has a stimulating and tonic effect on the system. It builds nerve tissues, prevents decay, and keeps the entire system in a normal, healthy condition.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain. It is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture, its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It cures nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run down and weakened conditions of the body, brain and nerves. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. I.

Dr. Hartman is now offering Peruna to the public as a regular pharmaceutical product. It is just as ethical as any compound put up for the medical profession. No straining of medical ethics can find any fault with it. THE PRINCIPAL ACTIVE INGREDIENTS are prominently incorporated in the label on the bottle, that the people may know that the claims made for Peruna have a true justification.

The only departure we shall make from medical ethics in the conduct of Peruna affairs in the future, is the fact that we shall continue to advertise and sell our product TO THE PEOPLE.

If we would agree to sell to doctors only, to advertise for doctors only, then the medical fraternity would be obliged to recognize Peruna as being entirely within their approval.

BUT WE SHALL NOT DO THIS.

We shall continue to offer Peruna to the people. We shall continue to convey to the people our claims for Peruna as a household remedy. We shall continue to supply the people with free literature, teaching them how to use our medicine, teaching them how to avoid disease, teaching them many things of benefit to the home. We shall continue to do this, whether the medical profession like it or not.

We are proposing from this time on to take the public into our confidence. Notwithstanding that some imitators and substitutors will be attempting to put up something which they consider just as good as Peruna, we are going to draw aside the veil of secrecy and allow any one who chooses to know exactly OF WHAT PERUNA IS COMPOSED.

This ought to disarm all honest criticism. We expect, however, that criticism will continue. On some pretext or other those who are envious of the success of Peruna will continue to find fault. But we are determined to give such people no just complaint. PERUNA IS A GREAT MEDICINE. It has become a household word in millions of homes. Our faith in the remedy is stronger than ever. Every year we expect to cover new fields in foreign lands until the people of all the world are supplied with this valuable household remedy.

People Who Object to Liquid Medicines Can Now Secure Peruna Tablets.

WE CLAIM PERUNA TO BE A CATARRH REMEDY. Buy a bottle and try it. If it helps you, be honest and acknowledge that it has helped you.

If you want us to we will publish your statement exactly as you furnish it to us. We will add no words, take away no words. If you wish us to we will publish your portrait in connection with it. We will not do this without your written request, without your entire consent.

Peruna has benefited thousands of people afflicted with chronic catarrh, in many phases and locations. At least, that is what the people say to us, through unsolicited testimonials. Many thousand more will reap benefit from Peruna in spite of fabricated slanders to the contrary.

WE GUARANTEE EVERY BOTTLE OF PERUNA TO CONTAIN THE INGREDIENTS PRINTED ON THE LABEL.

We have taken great pains that every testimonial we use should be absolutely true, in the exact language of the testifier.

We have taken great pains that every photograph published should be the photograph of the person whose name it bears, that every word of every testimonial should be authorized by the hand that signed it.

We are determined to beat our opponents by being fairer than they are, by dealing squarer than they dare to. We are determined to meet falsehood with truth, duplicity with candor, insincerity with sincerity.

We know that the users of Peruna will appreciate our stand. We believe that the dealers in Peruna will applaud our course. We expect even our opponents will be obliged to acknowledge finally that Peruna is not only an honest and useful remedy, but one of the GREATEST HOUSEHOLD MEDICINES ON THE CONTINENT.

BULGARIA'S ARMY.

without that scientific training which has become necessary on a modern battlefield, the courage and patience with which every one who knows the Turkish soldier will admit he is endowed, are useless.

"I was struck with the way things were done under the old order by seeing in a gun park a hundred or more Krupp quick-firing guns for both horse and field artillery. The pieces had been issued to the artillery branch of the service almost three years before, yet they had never been used except for a few trial shots when they first arrived.

"The Sultan had always denied permission to the officers to engage in either musketry or artillery field practice, and thus the stores of ammunition that were bought at the same time spoiled or were wasted in the arsenals. Now, these fine guns, and they are really such, are being put into condition, foreign instructors in their use have been engaged, and a plot of ground for artillery field practice has been secured.

TRAINING IS NEEDED.

"One of the officers put the matter thus: 'We have no lack of guns, ammunition or men. What we want is the practical training that was denied us under the former government. And we shall have it, for we know and feel the need of it. Everything is in disorder and confusion now, but wait for a few months, and you shall see a wonderful improvement.'"

The Bulgarians have a passion for education. A remark that you may often hear quoted in army circles is that of Marshal Oyama, who said after the battle of Mukden that the victory was "a triumph of Japanese education."

The Bulgar is a slow-minded fellow, but he is not illiterate, and under the influence of military training he is more easily made into a modern soldier than the Turk. The Military School at Sofia is admirably equipped and has been turning out efficient young officers. One of the sights on which the Bulgarian capital prides itself is a review of the cadet corps, a body of about 1000 as smart looking young officers as you might see anywhere.

The curriculum of the school is much the same as that of West Point or of the best of the European military schools, and the institution is under the close supervision of the War Minister, as well as of Czar Ferdinand himself. In these respects the school at Sofia has been in marked contrast to the military college of Constantinople.

The principal branch of the service of both the Turkish and Bulgarian armies is the infantry. The endurance and patience of the Turkish infantryman have been remarked by all who have seen him in the field or have witnessed the long and tedious marches that he has made poorly equipped and poorly provisioned. But the Bulgarian infantrymen is certainly not behind in these respects. Those who have seen him in the military maneuvers have remarked his sturdiness and his capacity for hard work. In fact, the Bulgarian foot soldier works harder than almost any other European soldier, for his term of service is nominally but two years, and out of that must come a time allowance for planting and harvesting his crops.

WONDERFUL ABILITY.

His marching power is really considered above the average of similar European bodies. To repel King Milan's invasion in 1885 the army had to be transferred at short notice from the Turkish to the Servian frontier. To do this infantry regiments made a forced march of nearly sixty miles in twenty-six hours before attacking the enemy.

The cavalry branch of the Turkish army has always been considered exceedingly picturesque, but the value of the greater part of it in modern warfare is problematic, made up as it is of Kurds and other half-civilized tribes of Asiatics. These troops are all natural horsemen, and they come to their drills mounted on small, hardy, country-bred horses. But in spite of their perfect horsemanship the Turkish officers have never been able to make them amenable to military discipline. They still remain more showy than useful.

The principal cavalry of the Bulgarian army is Czar Ferdinand's Guard Regiment. It has three squadrons during peace, two being mounted with Hungarian horses and the third with horses bred at the government stud stations. As Ferdinand takes a personal interest in this corps the barracks, the riding hall and the stables, as well as the uniforms and equipments of the men are all upon models of the best that he has found throughout Europe.

The armies of both countries are recruited by conscription. Practically the whole of the male population of Bulgaria is drawn upon. The Turks, on the contrary, place the burden of military duty entirely upon the Moslems.

QUOTA FOR ARMY.

In Bulgaria 80,000 young men annually reach the age of 21, and of these about 24,000 are taken for the full peace color service. This period is nominally three years for the cavalry and artillery and two years for the infantry.

After they have finished their service under the colors the men are kept in the reserve for eighteen years. After leaving the reserves they are passed into the landwehr for six years and are considered available material for prolonged campaigns. A recent estimate by an Austrian authority, which seems to be verified by actual conditions, gives the number of men serving with the colors and on the reserve as 380,000. There are about 60,000 of the landwehr, but in time of peace they are without any military organization.

Liability to military service in Turkey extends over twenty-five years. The conscript is taken at the age of 21 to serve for three years in the active army, then for six years in the reserve of the active army. At the expiration of that time he passes for nine years into the reserve army and finally for five years into the landsturm.

About 70,000 young men are taken annually for color service of the 100,000 or more young Moslems who come up for conscription. The German officers who have been drilling the Turkish troops make the number of available fighting men under this system of service as follows: Active army, 260,000; reserve of active army, 120,000; reserve army, 630,000; landsturm, 90,000; total, 1,100,000.

The mobilization of the Bulgarian army can be accomplished much more easily and speedily than the Turkish. The Bulgarian territory is divided into nine districts, with headquarters at strategical points.

Each division has two brigades of infantry and one artillery regiment of nine batteries. A cavalry regiment is included in the quota of the first six divisions. All the divisions have a full complement of administrative, clerical and medical staffs. The war strength of each division is placed at 20,000, making a total of 180,000, with 4000 cavalry and 450 guns.

FORCE TO DRAW FROM.

Then besides there are a separate cavalry division and certain corps troops, which would bring the mobilized strength of the Bulgarian army in the field to 210,000, with 7000 cavalry and 500 guns. There would still remain 17,000 fully trained reservists and the 60,000 landwehr men available to fill casualties and to form supplementary forces. The Bulgarian officers declare that this force can be concentrated upon any point of the frontier within ten days of the mobilization order.

It is calculated that six weeks would be required before the Turkish army in Europe could be even partially mobilized by bringing the peace unit up to war strength. At the beginning of a campaign Turkey would consequently have to depend entirely on its peace army. This accounts for the fact that so large a force, about 150,000, is kept under arms in Europe.

"As for the rank and file of the Bulgarian army," said a military authority, "the men on the whole are a useful looking lot, who seem to be as tough as leather, and on parade appear fit to do anything and go anywhere. There is no doubt that they think they are more than a match for the Turks.

"They have this on the word of foreign military attachés, who declared to them that if they had gone to war with the Sultan four years ago the fight would have been a pretty even one, whereas now there is a big balance of probability in favor of the Bulgar.

"The Turkish army will be feeling the effects of reorganization for a long time to come. In spite of the German officers' efforts the army is a quarter of a century behind the times, while its fighting value is lower than it has ever previously been in the history of the Ottoman Empire.

"Thirty years of palace rule has worked incalculable havoc. Dismantled fortifications, empty arsenals, starved departments, untrained troops—this is what meets the eye on all sides."

GERMANS OPPOSE CONFERENCE IDEA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] M. Iswolsky, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, is having a busy time in Berlin, though hospitalities such as were lavished on him in London are conspicuously lacking.

The belief that he will be able to make headway with the conference idea in Berlin is steadily diminishing.

His programme calls for interviews with the Kaiser and Chancellor von Buelow, but that the result of these meetings will alter Germany's known position and lead to a clearing up of the situation, is deemed more than doubtful. He has been allowed to see that military preparations are being made which will soon put Germany's army on a war footing.

Just what specific suggestion or proposals Germany has to offer with reference to the Balkan situation is studiously concealed, but it is no secret that the Russian diplomat will be told that no plan which is unacceptable to Austria or which involves territorial compensation to any of the interested nations can be approved. In fact, Germany's apathy toward the whole conference project, judging from the utterances of the officials, is much more marked than it was a week ago.

JAPAN A FACTOR IN BALKAN ROW.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] M. Pichon, the Foreign Minister, has been met already with an astonishing question from a wholly unexpected quarter. The Japanese Ambassador has officially expressed a desire to be notified if Russia should ask that the Black Sea should remain a mare clausum for her against her enemies when she is at war, whereas she should have free egress from it to the oceans of the world in times of peace.

Philippe Crozier, the French Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, received from President Fallieres today an autograph letter in reply to the letter from the Austrian Emperor which Count Von Kevenhueller-Metsch, the Austrian Ambassador, handed to the President on October 3, announcing the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. M. Crozier was instructed to ask the earliest possible audience with the Austrian Emperor.

There is the highest authority for stating that President Fallieres in his reply will say that while he sincerely hopes for the continued friendship of the two countries, he formally refuses to recognize the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The Berlin correspondent of the Temps states that Jules Cambon, the French Ambassador to Germany, had a long interview this afternoon with the Austrian Ambassador. The fact is French diplomacy is now busy assisting Russia's difficult negotiations.

AUSTRIA BITTER TOWARD ENGLAND.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] British statesmanship now seems to have circumvented Austrian diplomacy in Constantinople and induced Turkey to break off direct negotiations with Austria over the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Public opinion consequently is bitter here on account of the British interference. It is not thought, however, that the changed conditions will lead to any immediate disturbance of the peace. Austria, supported by Germany, insists that it will not attend a Balkan conference unless the annexation of the two provinces named previously is recognized as an immutable fact.

YOUNG TAFT IS FIRE HERO.

Candidate's Son and Room-mate Put Out Blaze in Vanderbilt Hall.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fighting flames in Vanderbilt Hall today, Robert Alphonso Taft, son of the Republican Presidential candidate, and his room mate, Henry Payne Bingham, the Yale quarterback, prevented what would have become an ugly blaze for the firemen to quench but for their prompt work.

The fire started in the room next to theirs. Young Taft and Bingham broke into the room, closed a window which they found open, fanning the flames into a fierce blaze, and poured water on the fire. When the firemen arrived Taft and Bingham had the flames well under control, and a swish from the city chemical engine completed their efforts.

Classmates of Taft say that he led in the brave act, and that they shall recommend him for a Carnegie medal. He leads the class of Yale 1910 in scholarship.

Automobilist Gets $400 Damages from Farmer for Injury to Machine.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SALEM, Oct. 24.—A verdict for damages that upsets all the traditional experiences of the automobilists in the rural districts, has been decided by the courts of this county.

In this instance it was the motor enthusiast who was damaged, and the farmer who was mulcted, the case, it is said, establishing a precedent.

Last summer M. Benjamin was driving his automobile near Gervais. His headlights were lighted as a warning to drivers and pedestrians. C. W. Cuttsford, a farmer, was driving along the road when Benjamin saw him, and pulled his automobile to one side of the road to let the farmer and his spirited horses pass. Cuttsford became confused and turned his horses into the machine with disastrous results to the machine.

Benjamin sued for $940, and was awarded $400 damages.

Acid and Alkali In the Stomach

Digests the Food Naturally if in Right Proportion; if Not Then Dyspepsia.

Acid and alkali make up the liquid known as gastric juice, which digests your food.

If through abuse of the stomach, or weakness of blood or through scores of other causes this gastric juice is not made up correctly of acid and alkali, your stomach cannot digest food.

Such a stomach then acts as a pit where the food lies, ferments, decays, is thrown off at last, either into the intestines or is vomited from the system.

If thrown into the intestines a large proportion of it is taken up and passed into the blood, for the intestines are covered on the inside surfaces with millions of little mouths, which are placed there to suck up nourishment for the blood.

You may readily see that if instead of good rich nourishment there is vile poisonous fermented bile and acid, these same little mouths suck some of it by necessity and pass it into the blood. The blood in turn throws it off and the system is immediately placed in an imperfect state.

The blood is weakened, the tissues lose strength, the skin becomes diseased and man in general suffers in a score of places.

Then again the blood furnishes gastric juice to the stomach, for when the gastric juice is not needed for digestive purposes it goes back to the blood. When food comes into the stomach the nerves along the Alimentary Canal and in the mouth signal the brain for help and the blood immediately furnishes sufficient gastric juice to do the work well and quickly.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets go into the stomach, balance the gastric juice, digest the food, are taken up by the blood, purifies it, and when the food comes again to the stomach a natural gastric juice of right proportion greets it and does its work perfectly. After a time these little tablets restore Nature, build up the gastric juice and there is no longer dyspepsia.

Every druggist carries them in stock, price 50c; every druggist and 40,000 physicians will attest their word to the merit of these tablets. Buy a box now and relieve your stomach at once, or send us your name and address today and we will send you immediately by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. MISSING HEIRESS.

IS HEIRESS TO ROSEBUD.

MISSING DAUGHTER OF OUTLAW HAS BEEN FOUND.

Trixie Sully, Whose Father Occupied Reservation for Twenty Years Discovered to Be the Wife of Louis Sing, a Millionaire Chinese Merchant of Chicago.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The missing daughter of "Jack" Sully, the South Dakota outlaw, who occupied the Rosebud reservation for more than half a century before he was killed by Federal officials six years ago, has been located in Chicago. She is declared to be Trixie Sing, wife of Louis Sing, millionaire Chinaman.

Capt. Martin Peterson of the First Regiment, I.N.G., who was sent to the Rosebud during the land registration in an effort to locate Sully's missing daughter for a Chicago real estate firm, has returned with information that leads him believe positively that Mrs Sing is the one who, as a child, was stolen from the reservation twenty-two years ago.

The result may be a contest of all the claims on the Rosebud. It is expected the heirs of Sully will claim title to the reservation on the ground that it was occupied by the notorious cattle rustler for longer than twenty years.

Four of Sully's five children are now living in South Dakota. The third daughter was stolen by a white woman when she was 2 years old. She is Trixie Sing, Capt. Peterson is satisfied.

The missing daughter of the outlaw had to be found, it is said, to secure a quit claim from the heirs.

It is said the other children have already signed a quit-claim deed to the reservation.

MAY REVERSE RULING.

California Sweet Wines May Yet Be Used in Manufacture of Patent Medicines.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

STOCKTON, Oct. 24.—Local wine makers received word today that Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor, William R. Wheeler, had wired Percy T. Morgan, president of the California Wine Association, that he had seen the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and that officer is reviewing his ruling which held that California sweet wines cannot be used in manufacture of patent medicines.

Mr. Wheeler says exact justice will be done, and wine makers feel that the unwarranted ruling will be changed as they hold that the sweet-wine law does not warrant any such decision as the commissioner gave.

It is said his ruling has greatly decreased the market for sweet wines.

CONSTABLES RAP SHERIFFS.

Convention Adjourns After Condemning Plan of Placing Work Under Sheriffs' Supervision.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN JOSE, Oct. 24.—The semi-annual convention of the Constables of California closed this afternoon after adopting the report of a committee condemning the plan of the Sheriffs to abolish the office of constable, and place that work under the Sheriff's supervision.

Santa Rosa was selected as the meeting place of the association in May next, when officers will be elected.

Hays Beats Kenney.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Grover Hayes of Chicago tonight defeated Young Kenney of Boston by a considerable margin in the wind-up at the National Athletic Club. Hayes forced matters from the start to the finish, and he had the better of every round. Kenney tried repeatedly to get over a right swing to his opponent's jaw, but was unsuccessful.

Flexible Rubber Plates

Have many advantages over the old thick, cumbersome, ordinary rubber plates and even over gold plates, being much thinner. These plates are flexible, only a trifle thicker than heavy writing paper, fit closer and adhere better to the roof Particles of food and small seeds cannot get under them. They will last longer, are stronger than any others and will not will give first, being flexible. Dr. Schiffman's own process and made only by us.

I have always heretofore shared with most people the dread of a dentist's chair. But now am sure I shall not dread the ordeal again, for at your office I can truthfully say, "I was not hurt at all." Even the bridgework which I had dreaded was painless and most satisfactory.
MRS. EARL ROGERS.

It gives me great pleasure to state that Dr. Schiffman extracted an impacted wisdom tooth for me, which had been giving me great annoyance for years. It was extracted absolutely without a particle of pain to me. It was easily worth 100 times the amount paid.
ROBERT MARSH,
Of Robert Marsh & Co., H. W. Hellman Bldg.

Dr. Schiffman placed bridgework in my mouth which has proven, after five years' use, to be a perfect piece of work and durable. Is now quite as serviceable as original teeth. A very difficult tooth was pulled before this bridgework was put in, and "it didn't hurt a bit."
C. S. SPRECHER,
Printer and Publisher, 115 Winston st.

Dr. Schiffman extracted twenty teeth for me, and did it absolutely without pain. I have had a great deal of experience with other dentists, and can truthfully say that Dr. Schiffman's method is best of all. I highly recommend him to everyone.
T. B. ROSECRANS,
Soldiers' Home.

For all the past fourteen years Dr. Schiffman has been doing my dental work. In all they extracted and replaced by means of crown and bridgework some twenty odd teeth. The work is very satisfactory and I highly recommend him.
H. A. WITTICK,
21 Mary st., Pasadena, Cal.

Have had molar tooth extracted by Dr. Schiffman. It was a complicated task, but work was done very successfully and I heartily recommend Dr. Schiffman to any needing dental work.
REV. W. H. BLAIR,
District Supt. Children's Home Society of California, 224 Daisy ave., Long Beach, Cal.

Have had several teeth extracted by Dr. Schiffman without any pain.
M. E. MASON,
With Fairbanks-Morse & Co., 126 S. Los Angeles st.

Dr. Schiffman did some crown work for me, four years ago, which proved satisfactory. I came in today and had my teeth examined and found that everything was just like new.
MRS. A. SCHILLING,
544 W. 52nd st.

I have had two plates made by Dr. Schiffman and after a three months' trial can truthfully say that they are entirely satisfactory.
T. H. BREWSTER,
President Santa Monica Oil, Gas and Mining Co., 126 West 41st st.

I have had teeth extracted, plate and bridgework done by Dr. Schiffman. I am delighted with the work and advise nervous women to go to Dr. Schiffman.
MATHILDE M. PHELPS,

Dr. Schiffman, I consider expert. By experience I find his work painless and perfectly satisfactory.
H. C. ROYER, M.D.,
120 S. Spring, Los Angeles.

Dr. Schiffman has just filled a tooth for me and he also put in a crown and a bridge about five months ago, all of which has given me complete satisfaction. My work was all done painlessly.
S. E. MILLS,
No. 120 Ave. 20.

Dr. Schiffman extracted two worthless teeth for me and replaced them by bridgework, which was done to my entire satisfaction and without any pain whatever.
MRS. JUSTICE J. ROESE,
102 E. 40th st.

I have been treated by Dr. Schiffman for years. I have tried all the different methods, and I can say unhesitatingly no dentist or physician has ever operated with such success or skill. In extracting my teeth he did it without any pain to me. It is a great pleasure to me to recommend him and his methods of treatment.

SCRAMBLING.

RENO IS EASY FOR STANFORD.

CLASSY TEAM WORK PROVES TOO MUCH FOR NEVADA.

Cardinals Excel in Passing the Ball, While the Losers Are Very Defficient in This Branch of the Game—Eleven Points Made in the First Half.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Stanford fifteen defeated the University of Nevada football team on the Mackay Athletic Field this afternoon in a hard-fought game, by a score of 14 to 0. The clever passing and good team work in following the runner won the game for the Cardinals, while Nevada used no passing to speak of, and many of their kicks failed to make substantial gains.

The visitors played their best game in the first half, scoring 11 of their 14 points before the first whistle. In the second half they lacked the ginger they displayed in the first part, due partly to the altitude and the change from turf to a sandy field.

Nevada did some whirlwind playing the first few minutes, and almost took the Cardinals off their feet, but they soon regained the lost ground, and after a few minutes Terrill secured the ball, and made a good run to the Nevada goal line. A few minutes later Terrill scored the second try. Drew made the third try. Crawford converted, making the score 11 to 0.

The game was more even in the second half, the only score being made by Holman, after a spectacular field run. Stanford had considerably the better of it in weight. Coach Presley of the Cardinal team said Nevada is the most aggressive team he had met this season.

SOLDIERS DO WELL.

BEAT SANTA MONICA HIGH.

The California Military Academy team defeated the Santa Monica High School team at football yesterday afternoon by the score of 16 to 6, on the High School grounds.

Borde played a fast game for the academy boys, scoring the first touchdown on a 35-yard run. Lindsay also played a good game, making a 25-yard run for a touchdown in the first half. Thurston scored the only touchdown for the High School, making a 30-yard run, after a fumble.

The line-up was as follows:

Military.		Santa Monica.
Durium	C.	Fullman
Anton	L.G.R.	Jackson
Jones	L.T.R.	Weed
Lockhart	L.E.R.	Eage
Feangler	R.G.L.	Riley

Length of halves, 15 and 20 minutes; refree, Lowell; umpire, Townsent.

BERKELEY TOO STRONG.

TRIM BARBARIANS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERKELEY, Oct. 24.—In the most stubbornly contested game played on the local field this year, the locals defeated the Barbarians of San Francisco, 17 to 6.

SOLDIERS VICTORS.

RUN AWAY FROM WE BOYS.

The Los Angeles Military Academy defeated the We Boys of Santa Monica at football yesterday afternoon, on the Academy campus by a score of 17 to 0.

Bird played a good game for the Academy boys, making a 40-yard run on a forward pass. Wilhelm was the best player for the Santa Monica boys, and made several long runs. The teams were evenly matched in weight, averaging about 130 pounds per man.

The line-up was as follows:

Academy.		Santa Monica.
Bird	R.E.L.	Meinell
Murway	R.T.L.	Still
Stoner	R.G.L.	Smith
McDonald	C.	Grubb
Cunningham	L.G.R.	Toker
Lewis	L.T.R.	Cata
McGahey	L.E.R.	Wilhelm
Peters	L.H.R.	Wilcox
Clayton	R.H.L.	Richmond
Safig	Q.	Bixby
K. Bailey	F.	Bacon

Length of halves, twenty-five to twenty minutes; referee and umpire, Lockwood and Turp.

Cadets in Front.

WEST POINT (N. Y.) Oct. 24.—The West Point cadets defeated Colgate University here today, 6 to 0. In the first half Underwood received a punt on Colgate's 35-yard line. Early in the half Colgate failed at a goal from placement and the cadets failed three times during the game at drop kicks.

Eastern Scores.

Georgia Technical, 11; Alabama, 6.
Arkansas, 51; Henderson, 0.
Washington and Lee, 49; Easton, 6.
Tennessee, 11; Georgia, 0.
Colorado College, 16; Texas, 0.

Large Score Made.

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Oct. 24.—Yale easily disposed of Washington and Jefferson in their football game on Yale field today, 38 to 0. The noticeable feature of the game was the use of the forward pass by Yale and a field goal by Wheaton, Yale's halfback, from the 30-yard line.

Indoor Track Meet.

Some very good work was done yesterday at a little indoor track meet held in the Y.M.C.A. gym in this city. In the twenty-yard dash Donahue was first; Elkeles, second; Golding, third; time 24 4-5s. In the running high jump, E. Robinson and E. H. Barrett tied at 5ft. 6in., and Golding made 5ft. 1in. In the twelve-pound shot put Golding's distance was 38ft. 6¼in.; Donahue's, 35ft. 7¾in.; C. Smith's, 25ft. 1¾in. Golding was the winner in the broad jump, with 9ft. 4½in., Smith was second with 8ft. 10½in. and Elkeles was third with 8ft. 10½in.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

Joseph Muntyan, a miner, was arrested last night on the charge of forgery. In a complaint, sworn to by George Blagoic, he is accused of forging his name to a check for $307 which he cashed at the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank on January 2, this year. After securing the money, it is stated that Muntyan went to Alaska, where he has mining interests. Muntyan returned to this city yesterday and was seen by Blagoic. The latter followed him for several blocks until he found a patrolman, who made the arrest. Muntyan admitted his identity but denied that he had forged Blagoic's name.

MISSION FESTIVAL DOINGS.

As a festival day yesterday was the greatest in point of crowds and from a financial point as well which has yet happened at San Gabriel Mission. In the afternoon there was an interesting special programme under the auspices of Ramona Parlor, and in the evening there were two special programmes, one under the direction of Miss Lotita Corella, and the other under that of Charles Edson. The entire Indian village from the Indian Crafts Exhibition was present during the day. In the evening Miss Astiros, a protegé of Charles F. Lummis, charmed her audience with the violin. Today will be the last one of the festival, and there will be a special celebration over the swinging of the new mission bell presented by the Camino Real Association.

MULES ELECTROCUTED.

Two mules were electrocuted about 7 o'clock last night at Thirty-first street and Central avenue, when they came in contact with a telephone wire which had broken, falling across an electric light wire. The team was driven by Harry Merryweather, employed by the Mallman Grocery Company at Central avenue and Adams street. Merryweather received a slight shock.

LAMP EXPLODES, TWO HURT.

Mrs. M. E. Hough of No. 413 East Twenty-ninth street was slightly burned by the explosion of a kerosene lamp about 8 o'clock last night. Fire which followed damaged the contents of the house to the extent of $25. Oscar J. Rice of No. 2818 Maple avenue assisted Mrs. Hough in putting out the flames, and was slightly burned.

TENNIS MATCHES ARE SPIRITED.

BRILLIANT SCENE AT VALLEY HUNT CLUB COURTS.

Miss May Sutton and Simpson Sinsabaugh Victorious Over Mrs. Robert Farquhar and Lewis Freman. Presbyterian Synod Will Close Today—Crown City Notes.

Office of The Times, No. 26 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, Oct. 25.—The tennis courts at the Valley Hunt Club presented a brilliant scene yesterday afternoon. Women in dainty summer attire, with gay parasols, and men in tennis flannels gathered on the terrace and occupied chairs about the courts to witness the postponed match of mixed doubles between the Coast champions, Miss May Sutton, Simpson Sinsabaugh, Mrs. Robert Farquhar and Lewis Freeman. The match was for the best three out of five sets. Playing was spirited from the first, and Mrs. Farquhar especially distinguished herself. Miss Sutton's masterly service and smashing volleys elicited constant applause. Miss Sutton and Mr. Sinsabaugh won the first set with a score of 6-4, and the second, 7-5; the third set went to Mrs. Farquhar and Mr. Freeman, score 6-4, but the fourth set, which concluded the match, was won by Miss Sutton and Mr. Sinsabaugh, score 7-5. Mrs. Farquhar and Miss Sutton were each presented with a beautiful sheaf of giant chrysanthemums tied with white ribbon. Tea was served in the clubhouse after the games, which were witnessed by 200 club members and their friends. Mrs. Henry T. Fuller presided at the tea table in the reception hall, and Mrs. James S. Macdonnell poured coffee in the dining-room. The table were charmingly ornamented with pink chrysanthemums and asparagus plumosus.

AID COLLEGE SETTLEMENT.

At the quarterly meeting of the Southern California Wellesley College Alumni Association $20 was voted to the aid of the College Settlement work in Los Angeles. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. M. F. Thayer, No. 651 South Pasadena apenue, this city. Mrs. Thayer was elected president; Miss Alice Heber, secretary.

SYNOD CLOSES TODAY.

The final meeting of the Presbyterian Synod will be held at the Presbyterian Church today. Dr. Theodore Burnham will preach the closing sermon this morning. At 3 o'clock this afternoon a rally will be held in the interest of the Sunday-school and Young People's Society work. The evening service will be given over to furthering the work of the brotherhood among the churches.

WILL REPORT ON SITE.

Special Agent Windom of the Treasury Department, who has been in this city for the past week investigating the various sites offered for the public buildings, left last night. It is probable the sites to be considered in his reports are those at Colorado street and Worcester avenue, Colorado street and Delacey street, North Raymond and Pacific Place, Union and Broadway and Green street and Marengo avenue. Each site is offered at $60,000, though several are much more valuable.

PARK IMPROVEMENT.

Work on the improvement of Tournament Park will begin tomorrow. C. M. Hansen has the contract and it is expected he will at once remove the fence at the south and east ends of the park. Immediately after the new one is erected work will be commenced on a grand stand to seat at least 5000 people.

FLOWER SHOW WELL ATTENDED.

Between six and seven thousand people have visited the flower show during the last three days. The judges yesterday awarded special prizes to the following exhibitors: Thadeus Lowe, Mrs. M. D. Walsh, Mrs. Horace M. Dobbins, Rev. W. F. Cornett, J. Broonall, Louis Fried, Clayton H. Garvey, A. Kingsley Macomber, Mrs. Charles Otis and F. G. Gunther. Certificates were awarded the following: Mrs. W. S. Lourie, Ballou's nursery, Robert Pegg, Park nursery, A. K. Macomber, Edward R. Russ, Howard & Smith, D. W. Coolidge, F. S. Allen and Ross seed store.

SANTA MONICA.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 24.—Although search has been continued in the hills throughout the day, no trace has been discovered there of Lewis B. Clarke, the Mexican War veteran and Forty-niner, who has been missing from his Sixth-street home since Thursday afternoon. The man is described as being 85 years of age, six feet tall, quite thin and wearing a long white beard. When last seen he wore a black coat and vest, gray trousers and black felt hat. The finding of a weary dust-stained traveler answering the general description of Lewis was reported from Alhambra this evening.

JUD RUSH AT ALHAMBRA, MONDAY NIGHT.

Do not fail to go and hear Jud Rush, Democratic and Anti-McLachian candidate for Congress, at Alhambra, Monday evening, the 26th inst.

Rush is making the greatest campaign ever known in Los Angeles county, except that made by the lamented Ben E. Ward. He is a live wire, and wants all the people to come and hear what he has to say. Everybody that knows Rush knows that he means what he says, and that if elected he will not only represent all the people in Washington, but be there all the time to attend to their business and strive to the utmost to make a record that will meet with the approval of every one, irrespective of party.

His position on our great harbor and citrus-fruit interests is directly in line with every progressive thought. And, besides stating his position and giving some ideas on these questions, he will tell you about the vacant chair of this district in Congress.—[Advertising.

RESISTS.

FIGHTS HIGHWAYMAN, IS FATALLY WOUNDED.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 24.—E. L. Bowman, 60 years old, was shot and fatally wounded here tonight by a highwayman. Bowman was returning to his home, No. 802 Loma Vista Drive, at about 10 o'clock when, at Fourth and Cedar streets, a man stepped out from behind a tree and commanded him to throw up his hands. Bowman, although an old man, is not lacking in courage, and promptly struck at the robber. He was shot in the side, just above the hip.

Persons in the neighborhood, aroused by the shot, saw the robber disappear into an alley one block north.

Calls were sent to the police headquarters and in five minutes the entire force was searching for the robber. It is thought he boarded a Los Angeles car, and the police of that city have been notified.

The only description Bowman can give of the man is, that he was about five feet tall, and wore a dark suit of clothes.

EL MONTE FEELS GOOD.

Still Elated Over First Visit Ever Paid by a Governor of State. Politics Warm.

EL MONTE, Oct. 24.—This has been a great political week here. First came the visit of Gov. Gillette, Tuesday, the first ever paid here by the Chief Executive of the State. Citizens, regardless of politics, turned out to welcome the Governor.

Much interest was shown in the lecture given Thursday night by Rev. O. T. Nichols, former field secretary of the Prohibition party and for the past year pastor of the First Methodist Church. The fact that he resigned his charge for the sake of giving the lecture added to the interest. His topic was, "Why I Became a Socialist." There was a good attendance, many being attracted by curiosity.

The Republicans again held attention last night with a rally in Cave's Hall. Candidates Thompson of Alhambra and Cogswell of this place both spoke. Messrs. Ballard, Hanna and Ling also delivered addresses. Good music was furnished by the local band.

By a score of 32 to 16 El Monte defeated Monrovia in the first High School League game of basketball this afternoon.

Misses Ruth and Lelia Butler of Los Angeles are over-Sunday guests of Miss Mabel Farrington.

Chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ashton, a hay-wagon load of young people attended the fiesta at San Gabriel Mission tonight.

CONSOLIDATION IN VIEW.

NORTHERN PART WOULD SECEDE.

PORTION OF SAN PEDRO FAVORS SEPARATION.

Desires to Break Away so That It Can Join Los Angeles or Form Separate Municipality—Territory Is Dissatisfied With Present Civic Government.

SAN PEDRO, Oct. 24.—Another tack has been taken, looking to the ultimate consolidation of San Pedro with Los Angeles. Petitions to be presented to the Trustees are being circulated in the northern part of the city, asking that all that portion of the city north of Fifth street be excluded from the present corporate limits, the object being that if that portion is separated it will be at liberty to either form a new municipality or annex to Los Angeles through the medium of the "shoestring" strip. According to a recent census the territory affected has a population of about 1600, and has a large frontage on the west basin of the inner harbor, now unimproved, but included in the government projects of dredging and enlargement.

Under the law, if a majority of the electors petition the Trustees it becomes mandatory for them to call the election, and about 400 names are necessary to make the election a certainty. Proponents of the segregation state that the petitions are being rapidly signed, especially in the Barton Hill district, where considerable dissatisfaction is manifested with the present city administration and the conduct of municipal affairs. It is certain that the new idea will be severely opposed by the remainder of the city south of Fifth street, where the voting strength is heaviest, and local opinions are many and divergent as to whether or not the proposition to divide the city would carry at the polls.

In the event that enough signatures can be secured, the petitions will be presented to the Trustees at the earliest possible date, and the election speedily called.

The Elks' Building Association this afternoon let the contract for removing the dirt from its property at the corner of Seventh and Palos Verdes streets to Don Knight, for $3510. The property has a frontage of 135 feet on Palos Verdes street, and 100 feet on Seventh street. When the lot is graded an Elks' Home, to cost $30,000, will be erected.

COVINA.

COVINA, Oct. 24.—Over 250 members of the Covina Valley Farmers' Club gathered at the home of Mrs. George J. Reynolds at "Orange Crest" Ranch yesterday to hear an address by J. B. Neff of Anaheim. Mr. Neff spoke at length on the necessity for better education in agricultural pursuits throughout the country in general. A pleasing musical programme was rendered under the direction of Mrs. B. F. Thorpe. Miss Anna Reynolds presided at pianoforte and Mrs. C. E. Bemis sang two selections.

The Woman's Club will entertain the gentlemen on Monday evening with an elaborate programme and collation.

OPENING OF HARBOR ENTRANCE TO BE CELEBRATED.

Long Beach Preparing Elaborate Programme for February First. Warships Expected — Charges Against Teacher Dismissed—Alamitos Bay Car Hit by Bullet.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 24.—The Los Angeles Dock and Terminal Company and the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce expect to make the opening of the ocean entrance to the inner harbor a gala occasion in this city. They have received assurances that the Salt Lake drawbridge will be completed before the Christmas holidays and that the entrance will be ready for the passage of ships the latter part of January. The present intention is to have the formal opening on February 1. Arrangements have been made for the arrival of a schooner from the north, laden with lumber for the local yards, which will enter the harbor from the ocean to the accompaniment of whistles and bells and a salvo of artillery.

Senator Flint and congressmen have promised to use their influence to secure the presence of a couple of warships, and if the government engineers approve, one of the ships will enter the harbor and return by means of the facilities afforded by the turning basin, which is 1800 feet in diameter. As the entrance has a depth of twenty-three feet at low tide, it is thought no objection will be made.

The festivities of the day will include a naval parade of all the available craft in this vicinity, and also a big barbecue. There will be music and speaking by men who are interested in harbor development and plenty of pyrotechnics.

POLITICS SECOND FIDDLE.

A red-hot political debate of visitors and residents of all parties was begun shortly after noon, today, at the corner of Ocean and Pine, and furnished entertainment for several hours. But it was finally forgotten in the excitement of a three-cornered dog fight, the efforts of all the debaters being required to tear the angry canines apart. A woman, owner of one of the dogs, lost her purse, containing nearly $50, and her dog was licked. Fortunately, a business man found the purse and restored it to her.

TEACHER EXONERATED.

After hearing a dozen witnesses, today, the Board of Education decided that the charges preferred against Prof. Arthur Abbott of unnecessary and unwarranted abuse of J. C. Kinzley's sons were unfounded and dismissed the case. Sifted down, the charges amounted to a query as to what might have happened to one of the youths had his clothes given way while the teacher was shaking him. As they did not, and as other boys gave testimony favorable to Abbott, the board thought the offense not serious enough to deserve even censure.

Kinzley is not satisfied and will seek redress in the courts. He recently applied to both justices for a warrant, but was told that the school board was the proper body to settle the matter first.

MISCREANT SHOOTS AT CAR.

As Alamitos Bay car No. 148 was making a south-bound trip, last night, an unknown party fired at it with a rifle. The bullet struck the window casing and cast shattered glass into the lap of a passenger, Mrs. M. S. Hansen. The police investigated but have no clew.

GRAND JURYMEN IN JAIL.

Messrs. R. E. Worshing, E. C. Bichowsky, W. H. Richards, J. J. Andrews and C. W. Damerel, members of the grand jury, visited this city, today, and inspected the City Jail. It has been remodeled since last visited by grand jurymen and is now a modern calaboose, with quarters for women, padded cell and hospital. The visitors made no secret of their pleasure over the cleanliness and conveniences of the jail. The party left at noon to inspect the jail at San Pedro.

LOOPHOLE FOR LICENSES.

Assistant City Attorney Hight, this morning, ruled that only a majority vote is required to pass amendments to the charter. He holds that the provision of the charter requiring a three-fifths vote to adopt amendments conflicts with the State law and is therefore unconstitutional. This ruling is considered important as it also applies to the clause relative to prohibition, which will come up for revision so as to allow table licenses for hotels.

FEEL LOVELY.

Citizens of the territory rejected by the incorporators of Belmont Heights are now anxious to be taken into Long Beach, and a petition to that effect will probably be presented to the Council, Monday. Then Long Beach residents will be asked to sign a petition asking the Council to call an election.

After being dark for several weeks, the Bentley Grand Theater has been leased for twenty-four weeks by Walter Scott, who will open the playhouse with a stock company next Saturday night.

OCEAN PARK, Oct. 24.—Being convinced that the free delivery system is about to the installed at Santa Monica, the Santa Monica Bay Chamber of Commerce has taken up that matter and will make an endeavor to secure the same convenience for the Ocean Park office, which is in Santa Monica. William Anderson, Percy Dudley and J. D. Blanchard have been named as a committee to take the preliminary steps.

IMPROVEMENTS.

MANY GET UPON POMONA WIRE.

TELEPHONE BUSINESS SHOWS BIG INCREASE.

Enlarged Switchboard Ordered for Claremont and Separate Exchange Is to Be Installed at San Dimas. Easterner Purchases Splendid Country Home.

POMONA, Oct. 24.—The local Home Telephone Company now has over 2500 subscribers. Owing to increase in business at Claremont a new and enlarged switch-board has been ordered for the exchange there. The company is planning to install a new separate exchange at San Dimas, which will greatly relieve crowded conditions in that locality, resulting from the growth of telephone service. It will also enable many new applicants to be furnished with the advantages of telephone service.

Henry Mock has returned from a two months' trip to his old home, Paris, Ky. He also visited Missouri, Illinois, Oklahoma.

E. C. Bichowsky, president of the local Board of Trade, who was appointed by President Butler of the Good Roads Committee, as a member of the advisory board to represent this locality, says that nothing will probably be done on road work out this way before January.

Mrs. Franklin G. Jordan, of No. 413 Kingsley avenue, who has been spending a few days at Hotel Westlake, Los Angeles, has returned here.

BUYS FINE PROPERTY.

Charles R. Ruscoe, who spent some weeks here last winter and invested in acreage, has purchased from Mrs. M. Fisk the latter's ten-acre orange grove, formerly the C. B. Sumner place, located on Mesa avenue north of the Richards ranch. There is a fine country house on the property, possessing all modern conveniences. Mrs. Fisk expects to move to the East.

Mrs. Noah Morris has sold her house and lot located at No. 490 East Alvarado street, east of the Greenlawn tract, to M. Schissler. Mrs. Morris and her daughter will leave soon for Tuscon, Ariz., to spend the winter with relatives.

FAIRYLAND TO CATCH DOLLARS.

MAYOR SPEAKS AT OPENING OF ST. JOSEPH'S FAIR.

Brilliant Decorations, Handsome Booths, Good Music and Tempting Viands—Priest Urges People to Support City Officials and not to Believe All They Hear.

A veritable fairyland was beheld by visitors at the fair given by St. Joseph's Church in the basement of the school building at the corner of Twelfth and Los Angeles streets, yesterday evening. There was a riot of color everywhere, and festoons of ivy, asparagus ferns, cut palms and other greenery were gracefully arranged about the room.

At 8:30 o'clock Father Raphael Fuhr, O.F.M., mounted a small platform and formally opened the fair. In a brief speech, he congratulated those who had devoted so much time and care to the decorations, and the gathering of the many articles on sale. He urged true and loyal support of Mayor Harper and all the officials of the city, "since they are, according to divine teaching, our rulers." Then addressing the Mayor, who was present, the priest deprecated the attacks which are being made upon him.

Mayor Harper, who was the next speaker, said, in part:

"Were California unknown for its fruits and flowers, its wines and grain, its magnificent natural scenery, it would live in the minds of the people on account of its Camino Real, the highway that joined the missions, those centers where the Indians were taught to know their God and to live a civilized life, forming then the small communities which have grown and become the greatest cities of the State. Their work was directed by the Franciscan fathers, and even I can recollect the good they accomplished here in early days. Father Victor laid the foundation stone for the magnificent St. Joseph's Church, the parishioners here had fairs, but none equaled that inaugurated this evening."

The choir of St. Joseph's rendered several selections, and then the fun started in earnest. There were showers of confetti and flowers in the main hall, which contained a candy booth in bright yellow coloring, a confetti stand decorated in orange and white, a postoffice in red, white and blue, and the stand on which a large orchestra played throughout the evening.

The flower booth was one of the most beautiful ones, large crysanthemums of many shades being especially attractive. A booth for Indian work had a background of Navajo blankets, and was covered with boughs of pepper trees, laden with their red berries.

A Japanese tea booth was presided over by girls in kimono costumes. Germany was represented by a coffee kitchen, and Turkey was not forgotten. A vaudeville programme was given during the evening.

Christmas gifts were offered at a booth, where the handiwork of the young women of the parish was shown. A burnt-wood booth was neatly decorated in a soft mauve, harmonizing with the dark of the wood. An apron booth stood opposite.

In another room was located an up-to-date soda fountain, a knife rack, a shooting gallery and a "nigger-baby alley."

One of the places especially well patronized was the German kitchen, where all of the good "fatherland" dishes were obtainable, and a Spanish orchestra, seated behind a screen of palms and Japanese firs, gave a feast of melody.

The fair will last through the week, and there will be a special programme of music each evening.

SWEDISH-AMERICAN.

Enthusiastic Taft Club Meeting at Blanchard Hall—Programme of Addresses and Music.

The Swedish-American Taft Club held a very successful meeting in Blanchard Hall, last evening. The auditorium was crowded, even standing room being at a premium, and enthusiasm for the Republican nominee for the Presidency was unbounded. The programme included an address of welcome by the chairman, a speech by Col. George Black, an address in Swedish by Rev. G. A. Werner, songs by Miss Alice Wernlund, selections by an orchestra, a piano solo by Prof. Riiderhoff and a reading by Prof. C. A. Kunou.

The Swedish-American Taft Club is conducting a campaign on novel lines and reaches women, as well as men. It is doing a valuable work among the thousands of Swedish citizens and includes in its membership many of the most prominent Swedes of Los Angeles and vicinity.

BRUIN BORES OIL BORERS.

Workers at Rincon Well Flee When Big Bear Comes Out of Bushes.

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 24.—Drillers at the well of the Channel City Oil Company, at Rincon, were terrified this afternoon when a big bear shambled out of the bushes to inspect operations. The men distributed themselves all over the map as rapidly as possible. Some climbed the derrick and others took to their heels.

Bruin sniffed around the boring and turned up his nose at the smell of oil. After meandering around for awhile with an eye upon the men in the derrick's third story, he returned to the bushes again.

Dr. Hill brought the news to this city, and tomorrow a hunting party will go in search of his bearship.

SWINGS INTO SWAYING RIG.

Juan Funtez Performs Spectacular Feat at Corona and Saves Woman and Child from Injury.

CORONA, Oct. 24.—While Mrs. J. W. Woodworth and little child were driving down Washburn street this morning part of the harness broke, frightening the horse, which was soon beyond Mrs. Woodworth's control. Although holding onto the lines like grim death, Mrs. Woodworth was unable to stop the animal. As the horse swung round onto Main street, near the depot, the woman's screams attracted the attention of Juan Funtez, who rushed into the street swinging his coat. This failing to stop the frightened animals, he somehow swung himself into the swaying carriage, caught the lines and soon had the horse under control.

Miss Agnes Cumming entertained a number of friends informally last evening.

NEW HOMES.

Mrs. Lizzie Wilson is erecting a six-room modern bungalow on Howard street.

Another new home under construction is that for Mrs. H. L. Rollins on Tenth street.

Mrs. A. Mackey is entertaining her nieces, Misses Esther Black and Minnie McQueen, of Quinter, Kan.

PIONEER STOCKMAN DIES.

VENTURA, Oct. 24.—John A. Gibson, a well-known pioneer of this county, died this morning at the Angelus Hospital in Los Angeles. Deceased was a native of Scotland, aged 42 years. About a year ago he was afflicted with tuberculosis of the throat and since then failed rapidly in health. His wife died twelve months ago in Santa Paula, the family home, leaving two little girls, aged about 10 and 6 years, respectively. The body of Mr. Gibson will be taken to Santa Paula for burial, where the funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, under the auspices of the Masonic order.

ONTARIO.

ONTARIO, Oct. 24.—Meetings in connection with the Farmers' Institute will be held here the 28th and 29th inst. J. B. Neff, Col. Paul, S. A. Pease of San Bernardino, Prof. Woigun of the United States Department of Agriculture, Dr. Louis H. Clan of Riverside, Dr. S. S. Twombly of Fullerton, Prof. H. J. Ramsey of Whittier, Ernest Braunton of Los Angeles, J. B. Reed of Riverside and others will speak. The local committee of arrangements is W. L. Mitchell, W. L. Malone, Charles Seccombe, James Morris, C. B. Ford, A. P. Harwood, F. E. Unholz, J. B. Harvey and J. Bodenheimer.

The Wonderful Blood Of Man

Dies and Is Born Again With Every Breath of the Lungs.

Human blood contains red and white corpuscles. The little red soldiers carry food, strength and vitality to all parts of the body and the little white warriors fight the battles of the body.

When through poor eating, wrong digestion, disease or whatever the cause may be, the blood becomes filled with poisons and impurities the little red and white soldiers cannot do their work properly, and hence they become a menace rather than an aid to the rest of the body.

20,000,000 corpuscles die with every breath of the lungs. To rid their ranks of enemies they throw them into the cells of the skin or down deep in the tissues and man has to suffer pimples, boils, blackheads and eruptions.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are scientifically prepared under the highest of expert supervision and give to the blood through its regular nourishing channels—the stomach and digestive canal—a purifying food and invigorator.

Calcium Sulphide is one ingredient—the greatest blood purifier known to chemistry: Quassia, Golden Seal and Eucalyptus are other component parts, each having a particular office for the elimination of impurity and the upbuilding of the blood.

The remarkable feature about Stuart's Calcium Wafers is that they act so speedily and so efficiently that they tone up the whole system from the standpoint of perfect blood almost beyond conception.

Their peculiar charm lies in the method of manufacture which insures the fullest strength of the ingredients beyond all other manner of preparation. One does not purchase an untried blood cleanser in Stuart's Calcium Wafers but a blood builder and purifier backed by thousands of men and women whose use of it is its greatest testimonial tribute. Ask your druggist. He sells them for 50c, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Adress F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

GOVERNOR GETS REAL OVATION.

HEARTILY WELCOMED AT SAN DIEGO RECEPTION.

Wealthy Property Owner, Convicted of Habitual Drunkenness, Is Let Off on Promising to Refrain from Intoxicating Liquor for Rest of Life.

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 24.—Gov. Gillett's entry into San Diego today was one grand ovation. Notwithstanding attacks on the State's executive by Stanley Wilson and "Red" Fennessy at the labor meeting last night, the people turned out in large numbers, and irrespective of party, to greet the Governor at a public reception this afternoon.

In his speech tonight he said that with the continuance of President Roosevelt's policies through the election of Mr. Taft and a Republican Congress, San Diego's magnificent harbor will receive attention and be made second to none in this country.

Judge Mossholder presided at the meeting and preliminary remarks were made by John B. Osborn. Mayor Forward was chairman of the Reception Committee which entertained the Governor during his stay here. The following acted as vice-presidents of the meeting: Mayor Forward, Charles W. Fox, John B. Osborn, Fred Nason, U. S. Grant, Jr., Dr. P. C. Remondino, J. S. Akerman, C. E. Groesbeck, Henry Timken, Julius Wangenheim, Philip Morse, George D. Easton, Rev. W. B. Hinson, Charles C. Jewett, F. J. Belcher, Rev. H. S. Jordan, Sherwood Wheaton, Arthur Marston, Rev. F. B. Cassatt, W. C. Harland, C. Fred Henking, Dr. Edward Grove, L. J. Rice, Dr. H. C. Oatman, F. T. Scripps, Jerauld Ingle, D. C. Reed, W. R. Rogers, W. A. Sloane, W. M. Herbert, G. A. Davidson, Bert Hakes, James MacMullen, Gen. Vodges, Gen. Robe, Henry G. Meyer, S. Benson, John Burnham, M. F. Heller, George H. Ballou, L. S. Riley, P. J. Piepenbrink and Simon Levi.

Probably inspired by the result of the recent Murphy meetings, Justice Thorp yesterday imposed an unusual sentence on Harvey S. Johnson, who was before him on a charge of habitual drunkenness. He sentenced him to refrain from indulgence in intoxicating liquors during the remainder of his life. Johnson is a wealthy property owner. Records of the police department show he has been arrested ten times during the last few months and that in most instances he has forfeited bail. Justice Thorp required him to sign the total abstinence pledge, which he did with enthusiasm, promising the court that he would never again take another drop of liquor so long as he lived.

BISHOP TO DEDICATE.

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 24.—Bishop Conaty of Los Angeles will dedicate St. Francis Hospital, Monday morning. This institution was formerly Quisisano Sanatorium but was recently acquired by a sisterhood whose home convent is at Joliet, Ill. The dedication will be a very quiet affair as there are many patients in the hospital.

Charcoal Kills Bad Breath

Whether From Decay in the Stomach or Teeth, an Will Stop Stomach Gases.

Willow Charcoal Best For Use.

Charcoal has been used for absorbing foul odors and neutralizing noxious gases for centuries.

Dupont, the powder manufacturer, learned that willow shoots two to three years of age made the best charcoal. It is most porous.

Fetid breath, whether from stomach or teeth, pyrosis (or gastric pain), diarrhoea and constipation simply cannot exist under the action of charcoal.

Charcoal oxidizes all gases, or in other words changes foul smelling odors into oxygen, thereby doing away with all foulness and rendering even such gases beneficial to the system by giving it more oxygen. The lungs purify the blood with oxygen from the air. Dying patients have oxygen administered to their system artificially and live for days under this treatment.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made from willow shoots and sweet honey. Thus they are palatable, strong and natural. No medicine is used whatever, but the peculiar Stuart process gives them a decided charm and efficiency which endears them to all consumers.

One may use them as one likes. Eating one every once in awhile insures pure breath, while the common method is to eat two or three after meals and at bed time. They work very fast and their use is a most excellent habit to form. In a short time you will learn that their influence has improved bowel action wonderfully; simply by giving to the bowel a waste product to carry off that has no gaseous formation to kill and destroy its nerves and membranes.

Every druggist carries Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, price 25 cents, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Adress F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

OCEANSIDE.

OCEANSIDE, Oct. 24.—The ladies of the Women's Christian Temperance Union entertained in honor of the public school teachers at the home of Postmaster J. R. Jolly last night.

All the teachers are new this year. Prof. Sheldon is principal of the High School, and Prof. Gates of Boston is head of the grammar department.

The teachers are Miss Alice O'Connell, Miss Helen McGuire of the High School, Miss Clarobel Bryant and Miss Wilma Lord of the grammar and primary grades.

COUNTY BAPTISTS ELECT.

LOMPOC, Oct. 24.—The annual convention of the Santa Barbara County Baptist Association ended this afternoon with election of these officers: President, Rev. George C. Wright, pastor of First Baptist Church, Lompoc; secretary-treasurer, Rev. E. W. Mecum of Camarillo; president of Young People's Society, Rev. B. W. Rigg of Goleta; secretary, Miss Kate Simpson of Santa Barbara.

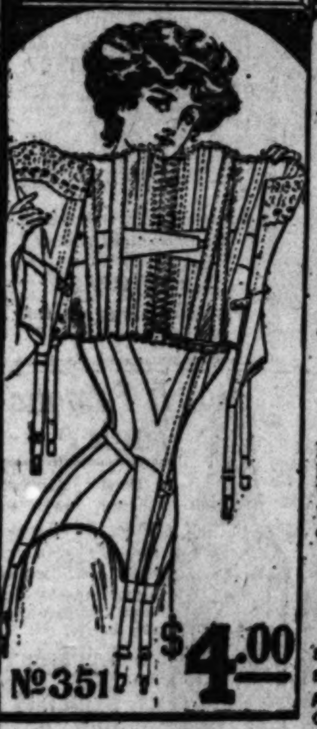
MESSAGE No 6. THE DIFFERENCE

"BACK-RESTING" FOR MEDIUM AND SLENDER FIGURES

Nemo

"SELF-REDUCING" FOR EVERY TYPE OF STOUT WOMEN



No 351 $4.00

Some women can wear almost any corset; for all corsets except the Nemo are virtually copies of each other, while—

NEMO CORSETS ARE DIFFERENT

All other so-called "reducing" corsets, and imitations of the Nemo, simply squeeze the form and crowd the delicate internal organs. The Nemo alone gives support and comfort. That's where—

NEMO CORSETS ARE DIFFERENT

All other corsets that try to produce the very slender effect of present fashion, if they do reduce the figure, make it impossible for the wearer to breathe freely or even to sit down. But—because they give the utmost slenderness to every figure—stout, medium or slight—with perfect comfort whether standing or seated.

No 318 $3.50

Hygienic Nemo Corsets BRING YOU HEALTH COMFORT AND STYLE

More than a million STOUT WOMEN will wear no corset but the Nemo "SELF-REDUCING." Thousands of SLENDER WOMEN already know that the Nemo "BACK-RESTING" Corset relieves backache like magic. No substitute for the Nemo—not even a good imitation.

NEMO BACK-RESTING CORSET "IT RESTS YOUR BACK." No. 351. A beautiful model, for slender and medium figures. Long, sloping, clinging back, flat hip effect. The back steels cannot turn and dig into your flesh. In sizes 18 to 26 $4.00

NEMO SELF-REDUCING CORSET "MAKE STOUT WOMEN SLENDER" The only corset that positively reduces the abdomen with increased comfort and absolute hygienic safety. The new Flatning-Back models reduce both abdomen and hips, and make Princess effects possible to stout figures:

Model No. 312, for tall stout women; No. 320, same model, with Flatning-Back
Model No. 314, for short stout women; No. 318, same model, with Flatning-Back } $3.50

No. 516, mercerized brocade; tall, stout; No. 518, same material; short, stout
No. 517, French coutil; tall, Flatning-Back; No. 515, French coutil, bust supporters } $5.00

No. 1000—of finest imported French coutil, new triple reducing straps over hip—$10.00

Nemo Corsets are sold in good stores throughout the world. Ask your dealer. Write us for booklet, "Hygienic Figure-Building," free on request. KOPS BROS., Mfrs. San Francisco Office, 134 Sutter Street.

LOMPOC.

LOMPOC, Oct. 24.—H. E. Denton, watch inspector for this section of the Southern Pacific Railroad, has been appointed inspector under Webb Ball, head of the department, and will have the division from San Luis Obispo to Santa Barbara.

City and district schools have been closed this week to allow the teachers to attend the county institute at Santa Barbara.

A Republican rally was held here tonight. Much enthusiasm was shown.

Read the testimonials of Evangelist H. D. Kennedy and wife. They are well and favorably known from one end of the Pacific Coast to the other. They have tried Drs. Shores & Shores' treatment for catarrh and recommend it to others. Their present address is 444 South Grand avenue, this city.

Mrs. J. Marcovich, 214 Franklin st., Los Angeles, says: "I have been a sufferer from Asthma and Catarrh for several years. About eight years ago I had an attack of typhoid fever and that left me weak and run down. Since then I noticed that I suffered from Catarrh—I would take cold easy and I would have asthmatic attacks and suffered greatly with shortness of breath. I became weak and run down in every way. This was my condition when I came to Drs. Shores & Shores six weeks ago. Their treatment helped me from the first day. I HAVE GAINED TEN POUNDS IN WEIGHT, and my catarrhal troubles are much better in every way. I take pleasure in recommending Drs. Shores' treatment to all sufferers for their treatment has done wonders for me. Thanks to Drs. Shores' skill.

(Signed) "MRS J. MARCOVICH."

Lost Hearing Restored in One Week.

Joseph Moriarty, 1214 Girard st., Los Angeles, says: "I have been a terrible sufferer from catarrh of the head and throat for five or six years. The last year it got so bad it affected my hearing. ABSCESSES formed in my ears, causing a bad discharge from them, and my hearing became greatly impaired. I could not hear an ordinary conversation, I WAS SO DEAF. My nose also gave me lots of trouble, especially at night. It would stop up so I could not breathe through it, and I would hawk and spit a great deal, especially in the morning. This was my condition when I came to Drs. Shores & Shores JUST TWO weeks ago. Their treatment helped me right from the start. IN A WEEK MY HEARING WAS RESTORED and the discharge from my ears has practically ceased and I now breathe good through my nose and my catarrh is better in every way. I feel very grateful to Drs. Shores for their treatment has certainly acted like magic in my case, and I gladly recommend them to others, as they have certainly done wonders for me. Any one doubting this testimonial is at liberty to call on me, and I will gladly tell them what Drs. Shores' treatment has done for me.

(Signed) "JOSEPH MORIARTY."

H. D. KENNEDY.

Mr. Kennedy says: "Being a public speaker, my catarrhal trouble naturally affected my throat, having huskiness of the voice and other troublesome symptoms in the way of mucus dropping in the throat, with irritation and dryness. I applied to Drs. Shores & Shores for relief, and after one month's treatment I can truthfully say I am greatly benefited in every way, and I can recommend the treatment to any one in need of the same.

(Signed "H. D. KENNEDY."

Mrs. H. D. Kennedy

Mrs. Kennedy says: "I have been greatly distressed with catarrhal troubles for a good many years, it having badly affected one of my tonsils, and I had all the usual symptoms that go with catarrhal trouble. I can truthfully say that after using Drs. Shores & Shores' treatment a little over a month, I am greatly benefited. My voice is greatly improved and I feel better in every way."

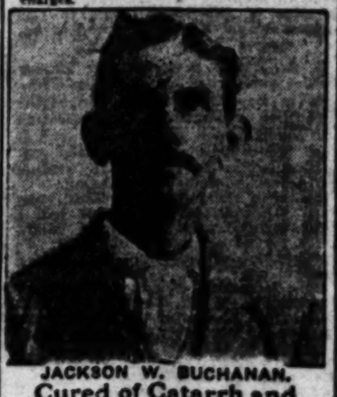
Apply Before November 1st

Read the testimonials of your friends and neighbors, then come and see the doctors who cure.

Start right—you may not have a second chance.

Sick people should remember that a mistake in selecting their physician cannot be reckoned by the MONEY LOSS ALONE—for in serious ailments if a mistake is made there may be no time to RECTIFY THE ERROR.

Disease does not wait—and people who try first one doctor and then another—always concluding that if one doctor fails they can still secure another—must remember THEY MAY NEVER HAVE THE SECOND CHANCE—and should be sure the FIRST TIME that the physician selected is the most competent and is the most successful doctor, regardless of his charges.



JACKSON W. BUCHANAN.

Cured of Catarrh and Bronchial Trouble

Read what Mr. Jackson W. Buchanan, who lives at 118 So. Avenue 18, this city, says: "I have had catarrh for ten or fifteen years, but last spring following an attack of pneumonia, it extended from the nose and throat into the bronchial tubes. The stuff that I spit up was something fierce, and I was about all in when I applied to Drs. Shores & Shores for treatment. I coughed day and night and lost in weight and flesh until I was almost a skeleton. I am happy to state that the treatment has entirely cured me and I feel like a new man.

(Signed) "JACKSON W. BUCHANAN."

Mrs. T. Bryan, who lives at 1413 Central avenue, Los Angeles, says: "I have had catarrh for fifteen (15) years. At times I was greatly distressed with my nose stopping up, and I had to hawk and spit, and there was a continual dropping into the throat. I had roaring in my ears, and at times I was almost deaf. Seven (7) years ago my stomach became affected, and I was greatly distressed in that way. My food would not digest, and I became a nervous wreck, so much so that I could not sleep at nights. I read Drs. Shores & Shores' advertisements about curing catarrh and chronic ailments, so I concluded to consult them. They seemed to understand my trouble, and I commenced taking their treatment, and now I am happy to state that my catarrh and stomach trouble is cured, my hearing is restored, and I sleep as sound as a baby. If any one seeking a cure will call on me I will gladly verify this statement and tell them how Drs. Shores & Shores' treatment cures."

DEAFNESS, OTITIS, RINGING NOISES AND CHRONIC CATARRH.

Harvey W. Bell, 324 E. 34th st., Los Angeles, says: "I have had catarrh for six or seven years, affecting my ears, nose and throat. My left ear got so bad I could not hear an ordinary conversation out of it and it discharged all the time and I had ringing noises in my ears. My nose would also stop up until I could not breathe through it. Would also hawk and spit, especially in the morning. This was my condition when I came to Drs. Shores & Shores just two months ago. In two weeks the discharge from my ear stopped and the ringing in my ears has ceased, my LOST HEARING HAS BEEN RESTORED. I now breathe good through my nose and my catarrh is better in every way. I had tried other treatments without benefit. Drs. Shores' treatment helped me from the first, and I feel that the afflicted with catarrh, deafness and ringing in the ears ought to know about Drs. Shores' great skill, for they have done wonders for me. Any one doubting this testimonial is at perfect liberty to call on me and I will gladly verify the truthfulness of this testimonial.

(Signed) "HARVEY W. BELL."

Do You Have Catarrh?

READ THESE SYMPTOMS AND SEE.

MANY FOLKS DO HAVE CATARRH AND DON'T KNOW IT.

CATARRH OF THE HEAD AND THROAT.

This form of catarrh is most common—resulting from neglected colds—quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Is your nose stopped up?"
"Does your nose discharge?"
"Is your nose sore and tender?"
"Is there pain in front of the head?"
"Do you hawk to clear the throat?"
"Do you sleep with your mouth open?"

You can be easily cured now—don't let it run into complications.

THE BRONCHIAL TUBES.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends down the windpipe into the bronchial tubes and after a while attacks the lungs. Quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Have you a cough?"
"Have you pain in the side?"
"Do you raise frothy material?"
"Do you spit up little cheesy lumps?"
"Do you feel you are growing weaker?"

Don't risk neglecting these warnings—stop the disease before it reaches the lungs.

CATARRH OF THE EARS.

Catarrh extends from the throat along the eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness. Quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Is your hearing failing?"
"Do your ears discharge?"
"Is the wax drying in your ears?"
"Do you hear better some days than others?"
"Is your hearing worse when you have a cold?"

Don't neglect this until your hearing is irreparably destroyed.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

Catarrh of the stomach is usually caused by swallowing poisonous mucus, which drops from the head and throat at night. Quickly cured at little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Is there nausea?"
"Do you belch up gas?"
"Are you constipated?"
"Do you bloat up after eating?"
"Is there constant bad taste in the mouth?"

Now is the time to be permanently cured. Drs. Shores are curing hundreds every year.

GREATER LOS ANGELES.

ANNEXATION IS THE KEYNOTE.

MEETING AT OCEAN PARK DISCUSSES SUBJECT.

Gathering Under Auspices of Santa Monica Bay Chamber of Commerce Hears Arguments in Favor of Consolidation—Only Question of Time, It Is Declared.

The annexation of the beach municipalities to the city of Los Angeles, under the borough or any other system, was the keynote sounded at a mass meeting held in the Casino at Ocean Park last night, under the auspices of the Santa Monica Bay Chamber of Commerce. A. F. Webster, president, introduced the speakers and expressed his belief that the consolidation of the beach cities was an end greatly to be desired.

Joseph H. Call, president of the Municipal Waterways Association, said it was immaterial whether or no the near-by cities effected political annexation to Los Angeles. It was only a question of time until the entire district from Pasadena to the sea will be one solid settlement with mutual interests. He said the people were paying each year to the railroads for transportation the sum of $25,000,000, whereas the same service could be performed by water for $5,000,000. He advocated the control of Los Angeles of the harbors and water frontage.

ANNEXATION THE SOLUTION.

The extension of Los Angeles to the harbor and the annexation of the harbor cities was advocated by the speaker as being the solution of the vexed problem. Los Angeles was already considering a charter amendment giving the municipality authority to construct wharves and control water frontage, and under the provision of this amendment there could be no monopoly.

"San Pedro is not upon the marine charts of the world," he said. "No deep water ships can land there; nor are there any public wharves. There is no place on the Coast today where an independent ship can land, although the government has spent millions on the San Pedro project. The railroads are determined that the people shall ever be consumers and that their goods and wares must be forever shipped in by rail. Lumber that can be bought in the North for $9 can be delivered here by water for $2, although the railways charge $12."

CANAL PRACTICABLE.

Mr. Call said it was practicable to construct a canal at sea level to within seven miles of the business center of Los Angeles. In conclusion he said the consolidation with Los Angeles meant the building of a great city and a properous community.

Milton Young of Los Angeles spoke as a member of the Consolidated Commission, which he said was still very much in existence. It went into seclusion two years ago because the Southern California delegation in the Legislature was not friendly and no legislation along the desired lines could be secured. He believed the annexation of the beach cities to Los Angeles would be for the good of all.

NEW LAW NEEDED.

T. A. Butler reviewed the history of the annexation of the shoe-string strip to Los Angeles, and told of the difficulties encountered in effecting the consolidation of two municipalities. He said a law was needed permitting cities to consolidate without the necessity of disincorporating.

Speaking along the same lines, Marshall Stimson said the people had a right to ask their legislative candidates for an expression of opinion on the question of municipal harbors and annexation.

The secretary of the Waterways Association, P. P. Hand, briefly explained the history of the organization of that association, and invited beach residents to affiliate.

C. J. Noyes of Santa Monica said the people of the bay knew what God had done for their harbor—and they also knew what the Southern Pacific had done. He advocated the development of the waterways, and believed the people should appeal to State and nation for assistance.

SELLS APARTMENT LEASE.

The H. Jerome Toy Hotel Brokerage Company reports the sale of the Cambria-Union apartments, in the Westlake district.

The sale includes the furnishings and a ten-year lease at a total rental of $108,000. James X. Ferguson of Salt Lake City, the purchaser, made this investment with the intention of making Los Angeles his home.

The building occupies a choice location at Union and Cambria streets. The building was compleetd less than one year ago, and contains 125 rooms, well furnished. The property is owned by E. M. McGillin, a former capitalist of Cleveland, and now a resident of this city.

COMING SOON.

OUR CITY'S GREATEST FOURTH OF JULY DAY.

Will Be Celebrated in Nineteen Hundred and Twelve in Honor of the Arrival of the Water from Owens River—Date Fixed by Builders.

JULY 4, 1912, promises to be a double holiday, commemorating the nation's release from imperial bondage and the aqueous independence of Los Angeles.

This date has already been fixed unofficially as Owens River Day.

Water is now flowing through the northern section of the Los Angeles aqueduct; in the Antelope Valley a section is half completed, and construction work on the big Elizabeth Lake tunnel is progressing faster than the most sanguine optimists anticipated. Three more years of bondage, then the Promised Land.

"The water department has stopped all its development work in and about Los Angeles," said Chief Engineer Mulholland yesterday. "We have progressed far enough with the big aqueduct to be able to reckon, with a fair degree of accuracy, on the time when the Owens River water will be turned into the pipes of the domestic system.

WATER IN PLENTY.

"We are going to have that water here for the summer of 1912. Our expense for developing an additional supply about the city has been $60,000 a year for several years. We shall cut off this expense next summer, as we have now a sufficient flow to carry us through the next three seasons.

"We are working 1600 men on the aqueduct now. By the first of the new year we shall increase that number to 3000. We have money a-plenty. My hardest task now is to keep the work moving so that the money shall go out as fast as it comes in, and not accumulate in the city vaults."

Reports from division engineers show that the driving power of the human motors at the head of the aqueduct department is felt all along the line. The progress on the rugged, slashed Jawbone section is especially gratifying. When the engineers rejected bids on this section and started to construct it as a municipal enterprise, Col. E. R. Fox, one of the bidders, brought a suit to restrain the aqueduct department from going on with the work.

TUNNEL HALF FINISHED.

The engineering force is working faster, however, than the courts. If the progress of the last three weeks continues the whole section will be completed before the case comes to trial. Ground was broken on this section less than six weeks ago, and more than half a mile of the big tunnel is already finished.

This should be a warning to the citizens of Los Angeles who have been talking of a municipal fountain and statue to commemorate the completion of the great water project. There years is not an unusually long time in which to erect a statue. Unless there is some local hustling, the flood water of the Owens River will be coursing down our streets before even the pedestal is finished.

In the song of progress on the aqueduct to date there is not a single discordant note. Sixteen camps are now established along the line of the aqueduct. The rivalry between the different crews is running high, with the result that new records for both tunnel and ditch construction are established almost every week. In the Antelope Valley there are two crews with steam shovels at work. One crew is north of Mohave heading into the Pinto hills and the second is coming south around the rim of the valley.

HUGE STEAM SHOVEL.

The photographs accompanying this article are the first printed showing the completed aqueduct outside the tunnels. The one shows the big steam shovel at work in the ditch. The size of the conduit can be estimated easily from the picture. The steam shovel came across the continent on its own trucks, and is as large as a locomotive.

In another picture the cement layers are putting the finishing touches to the completed conduit. At the top, the aqueduct is eleven feet six inches across in the clear and it is nine feet nine inches deep.

The conduit will carry 22,500 miner's inches of water or about nine times the present municipal supply. The average supply for the last year has been about 2300 inches; the greatest amount consumed in one day was 3500 miner's inches.

When the Board of Advisory Engineers made its report on the aqueduct project two years ago, the time of completion was summed up as follows:

"The length of time required to build the aqueduct can be measured by the time it will take to drive the Elizabeth Lake tunnel. By the time the mountain above the lake is pierced, the other section should be ready for service."

It is over the Elizabeth Lake tunnel that Chief Engineer Mulholland keeps closest supervision. Three shifts are working at each portal and a shaft has just been sunk, from which two others will operate. During the last twenty days, 304 feet of tunnel have been finished. If the work should continue to progress at this rate, with a reasonable addition from the central shaft, the tunnel would be finished by the fall of 1911.

ALL PLANNED AHEAD.

In the tunnel construction, as in all the other work on the aqueduct, the engineers have found no unexpected obstacles. "We have met nothing on the aqueduct more difficult than we anticipated," said Chief Engineer Mulholland yesterday afternoon.

There is some dissatisfaction among the men at work in the established camps along the aqueduct that they are not able to have their families with them. There are two big camps at the Elizabeth Lake tunnel. At the south portal there are about twenty-five children. The aqueduct department has been trying to arrange for opening a public school there, as this, it is believed, would make the men at the camps more satisfied, because it would enable more of them to have their families with them.

Unfortunately the educational authorities have shown little interest in the proposal. Mr. Mulholland said yesterday afternoon that he has taken up the question of public schools with the Board of Supervisors and that he hopes to see something definite accomplished along that line by January 1.

CITY LAYING MAINS.

The water department is preparing for the advent of the Owens River by laying hundreds of new water mains. The old mains on many streets are to be taken up and replaced by larger ones, and at least 200 miles of new mains will be laid for use in 1912.

Bids will be opened on the first Monday in November for enough pipe to lay fifty miles of mains. A great deal of this is to be used in the First and the Ninth wards.

As the construction work on the aqueduct progresses interest is awakening in the development of power from the aqueduct. The advisory engineers estimated that, at the expense of $5,000,000, the city can develop 75,000 horse power. This sum is considered as sufficient to transmit the power to Los Angeles for use here.

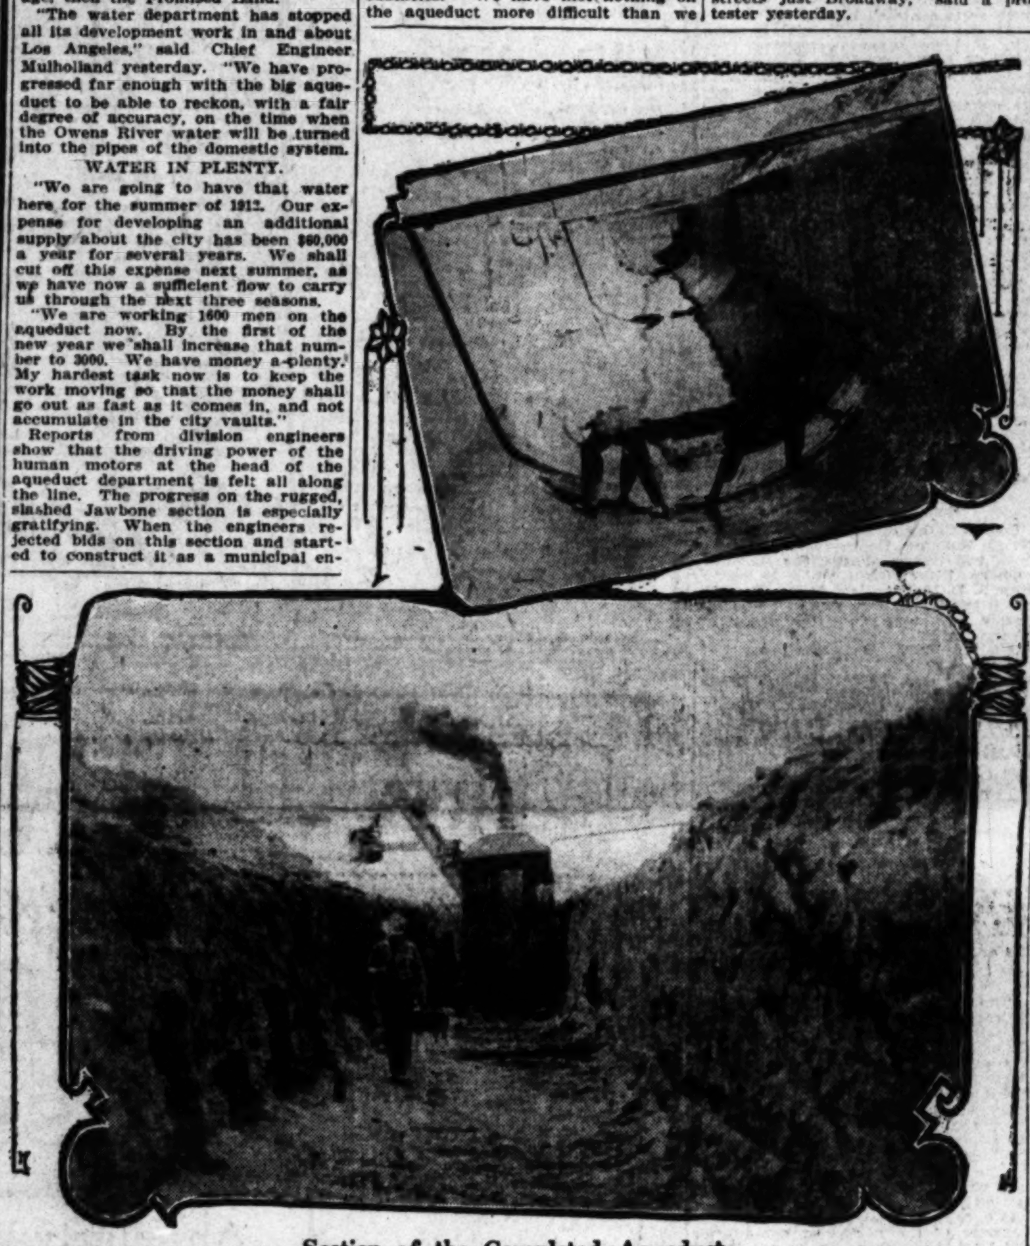
At the rate for power now charged by the electric companies, the revenue from this source alone will be sufficient to meet the sinking fund payments on the acqueduct bonds, including the extra $5,000,000 for development.

ENGINEER SNOWBOUND.

Chief Engineer Mulholland was snowbound for half a day in the Owens Valley last week while inspecting the line of the aqueduct. While visiting Johnson's camp on Division Creek he encountered a heavy snowstorm and came near being forced to cache his auto there for the winter. The aqueduct laborers turned to and succeeded in getting the machine below the snow line.

Mr. Mulholland says that the snows will not interfere with the work except at the headwaters of one or two of the streams where power locations are sought.

With money a-plenty, and no unforseen obstacles to encounter, the wheels of progress on the aqueduct are humming merrily.



Section of the Completed Aqueduct.

Part of the great Owens River ditch lined with cement and ready for water, and adjoining portion showing ponderous steam shovel eating its way through the desert.

OPPOSE CHANGE.

Citizens Want Historic Names of the Streets Retained Instead of Making Them "Broadway."

The City Council will be called upon to act in some manner tomorrow on the petition filed with it for the change of the names of Buena Vista street and Downey avenue to Broadway. But those who have petitioned for this change are opposed by a great many other citizens who are indignant that names bearing a historical meaning should be eliminated in behalf of the plebian Broadway.

A delegation of those opposed to the change is to go before the Council to protest against the change. They claim that Downey avenue is named from former Gov. Downey, who laid out the East Side and made of that thoroughfare the principal street of the town, then distinct from Los Angeles. It was in honor of the Governor that the main street was named.

As for Buena Vista (Good View) street, it is a relic of the old Spanish days when this section of the Pueblo of Los Angeles was the principal residence district, lay high above the river bottom and safe from its floods, and afforded a magnificent view of the distant mountains and the lower valley with its flocks and herds.

"And now they want to name these streets just Broadway," said a protester yesterday.

PILING UP.

MORE VICTIMS OF LAND DEAL.

WANT TO GIVE UP MORTGAGES RECEIVED IN TRADES.

Three Persons Accused of Working Smooth Game Are Released Under Heavy Bond, While Two Others Stay in Jail—Other Complaints Are Looked for.

Three more persons who say they are victims of the mortgaging of rocky and alleged worthless lands near Hemet reported their cases yesterday to the attorneys for J. B. Alexander, who filed suit in the Superior Court on Friday, claiming that he had been victimized. S. M. Shepard, who says he also was defrauded, filed a suit to recover yesterday.

All the defendants, except one, in the suits filed by Alexander and Shepard have been arrested on felony charges. They were arraigned before Justice Summerfield yesterday and their bail was fixed at $3000 each, pending examination November 12 on a charge of obtaining property under false pretences. Of these, J. Newton Bunch and Charles C. Cole were unable to furnish bail; the others, including Mrs. Annie L. Cole, D. H. Golden and Mrs. Vesta Golden, were released under bond.

Davis, Kemp and Post, attorneys for Alexander, now believe that Mary A. Rogers, the other defendant, in whose name all the mortgages were issued, is a real person, and they are waiting for the authorities to locate her. At first they thought she might be a "dummy."

In all the transactions that have come to light, Bunch acted as agent for Mrs. Rogers, who held mortgages on Cole's land. The mortgages appear to be perfectly legal, but the land mentioned as security is reported to be not worth 50 cents per acre.

MORE TRADES.

The new cases reported yesterday concern transactions between Bunch and three parties, including Franklin and Martin, real estate dealers.

THIS CITY IN TENTH PLACE.

Only Nine Other Postoffices in Country Have More Registration.

Out of all the great cities of the United States Los Angeles stands tenth in the list among those having the greatest amount of paid registration through the postoffice; only nine cities in the country do a larger registry business than this capital of Southern California. The increase in registry business for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, is 11.07 per cent., which is greater than the increase shown by San Francisco.

New York naturally stands at the head of the list of thirty cities approximating $100,000 of registry business, with a total of $4,193,448; while New Haven, Ct., is at the foot with business of $90,840. The registration receipts by the Los Angeles postoffice amounted to $276,880 for the year, which shows well for panic times.

The ten banner cities are New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, St. Louis, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Washington and Los Angeles. Four cities experienced a loss over the year before. They are Philadelphia, Jersey City, Milwaukee and Oakland.

ON THE FLY.

MAYOR WALKS IN—AND OUT.

WASTES NO TIME OVER LIBEL DEPOSITION MATTER.

Earl's Attorneys Gasp at Cool and Swift Action of City's Chief Executive—Rush to Courthouse and Get an Order for Taking of Another Statement.

The little fat Mayor—why, he walked right in, and he turned around, and he walked right out again.

Which concluded the brief but impressive ceremony of taking his deposition as plaintiff in a dozen libel suits against E. Tobias Earl and the Evening Express.

It is the law that when sued for libel (or anything else) you have the right to drag the culprit who sues you into a notary's office and bullyrag him awhile; demand his excuse for living, and so on.

In order to make it more picturesque, E. Tobias Earl had the Mayor dragged into the office of Edward F. Wehrle, the associate of his attorney, W. H. Anderson.

At the hour appointed yesterday morning, E. Tobias, of rebate fame, was on hand, with the editor of his paper and his literary artists, who write fascinating descriptions of "Seeing the Dives."

They were flanked by stenographers. William Randolph Hearst also was represented by literary artists and stenographers—and all the office correspondence relating to Standard Oil was locked in the safe.

Mr. Werhle—the notary—was waiting to sit in judgment; Tobias Earl's confidential legal manager, Earl Rogers, and Attorney W. H. Anderson, sat by in an attitude of dignified severity.

After they had waited half an hour in funereal state, the Mayor came bustling in with four attorneys—ex-Gov. Gage, W. I. Foley, Horace Appel and Isidor Dockweiler (the man who made Bryan famous.)

"If you're ready," said Mr. Wehrle, suggestively.

Mr. Gage smiled coldly, and handed the notary a paper. He said the Mayor had come, but he couldn't stay. The paper was an affidavit objecting to the deposition being taken before Mr. Wehrle, an alleged prejudiced person, by reason of his legal partnership with Earl's attorneys.

Wehrle muttered something about reading the affidavit into the record.

"As to that," replied Mr. Gage, "we have nothing to do—nothing except, painful though it may be, to bid you good-by."

Whereupon the Mayor, with his attorneys in his train, swept haughtily out of the room, leaving E. Tobias gasping. Mr. Anderson roused himself and called, "Oh, good day," after them.

The attorneys for the Express, as soon as recovered, then made a hot dash for the Courthouse, where they secured from Judge James an order appointing Arthur E. Bagley to take the deposition, and setting the time as Wednesday morning; the place—No. 908 International Bank building.

Tobias and his attorneys state that they consider themselves very magnanimous in not having pressed contempt charges against the Mayor.

The Mayor and his counsel consider themselves very magnanimous in not having raised the point that the Mayor, being now a witness before the grand jury, cannot be forced to testify.

All kinds of magnanimity!

STOPS DICE SHAKING.

By a decision yesterday from the office of City Attorney Hewitt, a ban is placed upon the shaking of dice at the local cigar stands and all patrolmen have been ordered to notify cigar dealers, druggists and saloon men to cease the mild form of gambling.

In his decision, Hewitt sustains the stand taken by Attorney Guy Eddie in placing the ban on all forms of dice shaking.

CARPENTER'S BAD FALL.

Innes McKenzie, 23 years of age, a carpenter, fell from a coal bunker near the tracks of the Southern Pacific Railroad yesterday afternoon and sustained serious injuries. The fall of more than twenty-five feet to the ground and the fact that he alighted on his head caused McKenzie a severe concussion of the brain, a scalp wound of three inches and a sprained wrist. He was treated at the Receiving Hospital and later was removed to his home at Twenty-seventh

SORROWS OF SOAPLESS.

HOBOS' HOME AWAITS THEM.

Los Angeles Is no Longer Tramps' Heaven.

Lieut. Dixon Takes Command of Stockade.

Hard Work Planned for All Unclean Visitors.

"Now let the hobos come; we're ready for them."

Lieut. Charles Dixon, the new chief of the East Side, shoved his thumbs in the armholes of his vest and looked out over the grounds of the stockade. The white walls were shimmering in the heat of the river bed, the smell of fresh paint and new mortar was in the air and the mountain winds lifted the little dust devils and sent them whirling and chasing across the roadways.

The stockade is ready for occupancy and Lieut. Dixon is to be the boss there. It is a position any police officer might be proud of and one that many of them have solicited.

The stockade is to house the hobos. The yeggmen who have enjoyed the hospitality of the city for many seasons past will at last receive the treatment they deserve. Hitherto they have lived on good food in the City Jail, or received light sentences, because the jail was crowded. They have grown fat and sleek on the treatment. Los Angeles has been the heaven spot for the hobo. It is liable to prove anything but a place of paradise from now on.

All unclean visitors are to receive apartments in the stockade. There will be long sentences, hard labor, two real meals and a light luncheon each day and the Southwest will take on the same appearance to the yegg that the eastern prisons have.

Never before in its history has Los Angeles been so thoroughly equipped for handling tramps. The hundreds who yearly swarm in from all over the country will have unpleasant stories to tell when they go back over the "big divide."

The stockade is a low, rambling building, built strongly enough to house a troop of locoed elephants. It is as spotless as the County Jail, its facilities are complete and, best of all, it has a manager that has won a reputation in the police department through efficient and honest work.

The chain gang will be moved to the stockade on November 1 and the familiar sight of shackled prisoners jumping from wagons in front of the City Jail will be seen no more.

The tanks of the jail will be renovated and cleaned, when they will be healthier and safer. Only men who have been sentenced for a few days, or who are awaiting trial, will be kept there. All others will be transferred to the stockade and will do hard labor for their crimes.

This structure is to have a 12-foot iron fence about it. It is in course of construction at the present time. Later, prisoners will build a concrete wall of the same height, wide at the bottom tapering towards the top. The stockade is so situated that a spur track can be run to it and a rock pile may be a feature of the future.

The building contains the jailor's office, the hospital, the captain's and desk sergeant's offices, two dungeons for those who refuse to work, two "bull pens," where some of the prisoners will sleep, seven cells, eight cages built to hold desperate criminals, a dining-room, store-room, bath-rooms, boiler-room, kitchen, pantry, three clothes closets and two lavatories.

Sunday will be visiting day and an officer will be on duty to watch the prisoners while receiving guests.

Lieut. Dixon, senior lieutenant of the department, will have charge of thirty officers. These men will patrol the rapidly growing Boyle Heights and Euclid Heights districts, a portion of the territory west of the river and a portion of the East Side.

He will be in complete charge of that district, with the authority of a captain. It covers more territory than the University Station and will probably handle more cases.

John Shand, a patrolman and former jailor at headquarters, will be the jailor of the stockade. John Basterlaras, a chain-gang guard, will be an assistant to Shand.

A sergeant, two nurses, a surgeon and several other berths are yet to be filled. Dr. C. W. Cook, a surgeon in the Receiving Hospital, will probably be selected as chief surgeon of the stockade hospital.

Lieut. C. E. Dixon, police official who has just taken charge of the stockade, and who is ready to give warm greeting to hobo army.

HUSBAND GETS DIVORCE.

R. E. Hagenbaugh was granted a divorce from Mrs. Gertrude M. Hagenbaugh by Judge James yesterday on grounds of adultery. The plaintiff said his wife deserted him last July, after a period of unwifely conduct, and that later he tracked her to her lodgings in a Buena Vista-street lodging-house, where he broke into her room and found her with a man whom he kicked into the street. Mrs. Hagenbaugh said she did not propose to change her course of conduct, and he left her.

DESERTED WIFE.

On grounds of desertion, occurring in April, 1907, after thirteen years of married life, Judge Conrey yesterday granted Mrs. Mary T. Hill a divorce from John F. Hill, an engraver. She testified that Hill drank and gambled, and that troubles arose between them because she wished him to mend his ways. He persuaded her to move to Colorado in the spring of 1907, and soon afterward left her, she returning to Los Angeles. She said she does not

SLEEPY CONSCIENCES.

HONOR NEEDS OFFICIAL PROP.

Short Consignments Call for Weighmaster.

City Should Employ One, Is Wholesalers' Idea.

Shocking Tales Recited of Inaccurate Scales.

A new city official, to be known as the "weighmaster," is advocated by wholesale merchants and importers, who have been suffering financially by shortages in weights and consignments from other cities. The plan is that the official shall be a deputy under Samuel W. Green, city sealer of weights and measures.

Business men desire to establish public scales in parts of the city where they are most needed. It is proposed that coal, hay, grain and other articles be weighed on these scales, when the load amounts to a quarter of a ton or more. The weighmaster would give a certificate of the gross tare and net weight of each load and this would be handed to the purchaser upon delivery.

Importers, upon receiving a shipment, would have it placed on the official scales and if there was a shortage they would base their demands for rebate on the certificate issued by the weighmaster.

The need of such an official was felt particularly in the case of a consignment of cotton from Java that was received by the Stockwell-Haley Company of No. 965 South Los Angeles street.

This concern ordered two carloads and when they arrived, found the weight nearly 8000 pounds short. It notified the firm that made the shipment and prepared to bring suit as the value of the missing cotton was $1000. The firm in Java replied that if the weighmaster of this city would send his certificate it would allow the claim.

The Stockwell-Haley Company appealed to City Sealer Green, who tested a set of scales and after weighing the consignment, certified that it was 7364 pounds less than the amount specified in the bill of lading.

Later, it was found that in handling the cotton at San Francisco, some of it had been given another firm by mistake.

COMPLAINS OF TAG WEIGHT.

The Los Angeles Hay and Grain Company warmly supports the movement for a weighmaster, claiming that several of its competitors sell according to tag weight and that this, in most instances, is 10 per cent. short.

"The weighmaster need not be a city employé," said the city sealer yesterday. "There are many scales throughout the city that I certify to be correct each month. But there should be an ordinance passed making it necessary to sell by scale weight. However, these private weighmasters charge 10 cents a load for the use of their scales, and the city could maintain a public weighmaster by charging 5 cents a load."

"There are official weighers in all the large cities of the East, and the lack of one here puts our merchants at a disadvantage in case of a disagreement over shipments.

ECONOMY FOR CITY.

"Another argument in favor of an ordinance covering sales of fuel and feed is the fact that the city buys hundreds of tons of both each year. No attempt is made to keep a check on the weights except by one department. The amount saved each year by forcing the companies, who now supply the city by tag weight, to sell by scale weight, would pay the salaries of several weighmasters.

When the city sealer took office, he found that many oil companies used five-gallon measures that were from one pint to one quart short. Now all of them have measures that comply with the United States standard.

He found, too, that about 12,000 pint and quart milk bottles were too small. The "pint" bottles would only hold seven ounces, and the "quarts" fourteen ounces.

HONESTY AT DISCOUNT.

"One of the principal trials of my life," said Green, "are the modern computing scales. Many of them are inaccurate, and are made that way on purpose. Those that are accurate are so arranged that the customer may be deceived into paying 10 per cent more than he ought. Sometimes the face of the scale seen by the customer varies from that seen by the storekeeper, but the difference is in the latter's favor.

"There are scales in use here so delicate that if a sheet of wrapping paper is laid on first and the material to be weighed afterward, the purchaser will have to pay 2 cents for the paper.

"There is a certain large butcher shop in this city where a man at the wrapping table keeps tab on the meat cutters who supply the customers. The rule of the shop is that the cutters have to make their wages out of short weights. If they fail to do this, they are discharged. This forces the cutter to cheat his customer by the aid of his computing scale. He accomplishes this by any one of several ways—dropping the meat on the scale and picking it up before it quits rotating, pressing down a little with his hand, or weighing the wrapping paper."

"The only thing I can do is to keep the scale to standard. Unless buyers keep their eyes open, nothing can be done to frustrate the merchant who is willing to resort to questionable methods."

THROUGH BOATS AGAIN.

A. M Culver, local agent of the Oceanic Steamship Company, received notice yesterday that, commencing December 28, the company will resume passenger service between San Francisco and New Zealand and Australia. The service will be via Tahiti, at which point boats will make a regular connection with the Union Steamship Company. For the past year there has been no through service between the two countries.

"PASS" FIRE ALARMS.

Ranchers near Toluca and Glendale were much alarmed over a large brush fire in the Cahuenga Pass yesterday. Great clouds of smoke rolled skyward and they were apprehensive of another battle with the flames, similar to that they made six weeks ago. It was found, though, that the fire had been started by a farmer, who had a permit to clear his land, and that forest rangers were on hand to keep the fire within bounds. No damage was done.

"MADE HERE" FEATURE.

La Monaca, Youngest Band Master, and His Musical Organization to Play at the Show.

With the stroke of good fortune which has characterized all his efforts thus far to insure the success of the second Made In Southern California Exposition, Manager T. Newman has secured the services of the Royal Italian Band, famous for having as its director the youngest man who has ever successfully wielded a baton before a company of trained musicians—La Monaca, who is but 20 years old.

La Monaca, at the age of 7 years, was a member of a band, was a master at 18. In those eleven years he became not only a master of the higher art of music, but also an artist in relation to the manipulation of various musical instruments, beginning with the French horn, later becoming a cornet soloist at the age of 12, then learning the trombone, the tuba, and in turn every other brass instrument. Afterward he devoted himself to the woods and reeds, until he has acquired proficiency with every piece that goes to make up the musical mechanism of a great band, and he played them variously when under the leadership of Creatore, Sousa and Innes.

On his first visit to Los Angeles, seven years ago, he played with Creatore as first cornetist at the old Hazard Pavilion. Two years ago he took charge of the Royal Italian Band as director, and it is possible that the permanent home of this musical institution will be in Los Angeles.

TRIUMPH.

BATTLE WON BY INVENTOR.

CARROLL MUST BE PAID FOR HIS APPARATUS.

Court Has Enjoined the Los Alamitos Sugar Beet Factory from the Use of Plaintiff's Patent Dumping Device, Ending Long Litigation in His Favor.

Sugar beet growers and factories throughout California have followed the recent litigation against the Los Alamitos factory for infringement of the Carroll load-dumping apparatus and the court decision in favor of Timothy Carroll, the inventor, will not surprise them. The Los Alamitos factory has been permanently enjoined, and damages will be assessed in favor of the inventor.

The litigation was long and expensive. Frederick S. Lyon, of Townsend, Lyon & Hackley, and James Scott of Los Angeles represented Carroll, while Miller & White of San Francisco defended the Los Alamitos factory.

Sugar beet growers within recent years have found Carroll's unloading apparatus of importance. It handles the unwieldy loads of beets just about as fast as they can be weighed. The old way was to place a net in the bottom of the wagon, before loading, load the beets, and at the unloading place, at cars or factory, lift the net out with hooks and windlass. Even then, the beets had to be dumped out of the net. It was, as a matter of course, a dirty, disagreeable job. Farmers who didn't use nets often had to take half the night to unload by hand, or go home and come back next day.

Carroll, in 1894, built his first dumper near Anaheim. Farmers now drive four and six-horse loads of beets, weighing from four to eight tons, up an inclined approach and onto a side-tilting platform, and without unhitching dump each load directly into the cars.

The wagon-bed had a side hinged to the bottom with latches, and the hinged side was provided with chains to maintain the level substantially the same as the bottom of the wagon-bed. The drop-side thus formed a sort of chute, which carried the beets safely to their proper place.

In an additional device, invented later, Carroll overcame vexatious slipping of the wagon; and at last, in two United States patents, in 1896 and 1897, his invention was confirmed.

Carroll's load-dumper has been used, under license, by the American Beet Sugar Company, Hawaiian-American Sugar Company, and, in fact, by all the leading sugar companies. When the Los Alamitos factory put in a dump, in 1897, the Carroll patents were infringed, as now established by decree. During the clearing of débris after the earthquake and fire, San Francisco, the Carroll dumper was installed at Mission wharf No. 2, where it did its full share, helping bring order out of chaos, with the least loss of valuable time.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

IS NICODEMUS IN PAYING OIL?

If so, Theory of "Break" Is Hard Rapped.

Amount of Strike Unsettled, News Is Awaited.

Kern Refinery to Reopen; a New Company.

The Nicodemus Oil Company of this city reports that it has a good show of oil at 1340 feet in its first well on the southeast quarter of 4-12-20, south of the town of McKittrick, about three miles, and between the old McKittrick belt and Midway. The telegram from Superintendent George Quarre says: "Struck good showing of oil at 1340 feet. Heaving 60 feet. Had to jar tools out twice. Keeping hole full of water. Still cleaning out. Letter to president follows." A later wire says: "We are forty to fifty feet in good oil sand." It is impossible to determine the probable capacity or even to give an estimate while the hole is full of water.

The company has 160 acres on the above section owned in fee. It has a twenty-year lease for one-eighth royalty on forty acres, comprising the east half of the northeast quarter of 34-30-22, the old Belgian Petroleum property, on which are two wells, one 1050 and the other 1100 feet, which have been cleaned out, and are declared to be yielding. They were drilled years ago and left unworked because of low prices. There is a four-inch pipe line from here to Asphalto station on the Southern Pacific.

The officers and directors are J. M. Kellerman, president; Willis George Emerson, vice-president; W. L. Tubbs, vice-president; J. E. Wickham, treasurer; J. R. Lane and J. W. Bishop.

While the land, where the new well has just come in, is recommended by some competent oil men, there are not lacking others who condemn it and say it is on a "break" between McKittrick and Midway. The judgment of the first set seems to be confirmed by the latest reports. If they prove to be accurate it is another step to prove that the west side of Kern county is one continuous field from Sunset to McKittrick. Hence the importance of the strike, if it proves up to the company's hopes.

Refinery to Reopen.

George Calhoun, manager of the National Refining Company at Bakersfield, will reopen shortly the Buckeye refinery at Kern River, which he leased from J. E. McVean last April. He will use it to manufacture refined products, chiefly lubricants, from the residuum of the National refinery, which makes asphaltum only. The Buckeye was conducted by Mr. McVean a number of years, and was the only establishment at Kern River handling anything except asphalt and the residuum. It will be conducted by Mr. Calhoun as a personal venture. Its capacity is given as 300 barrels daily.

Standard Makes Road Oil.

While it makes no specialty of it the Standard is producing a very satisfactory road oil at Point Richmond. It is claimed that it is far superior to some of the natural product that is used for that purpose, but it is not claimed, so far as known, that it is any better than the best Sunset oil. It has one advantage over much that goes out in being entirely clean and free from sand, water and all impurities.

Kern Associated?

The Kern Associated Oil Company is the name of a stock company that is selling its shares in San Francisco. It states that its properties are in Kern River, adjoining the San Joaquin lease of the Associated. There is a great deal of vacant territory in that part, some of it quite good, all practically proven. In its stock advertisements the company says it has two producing wells. The section is not given in the advertisement seen by the writer, but the California Derrick, an oil journal published in San Francisco, says it is on the northwest one-quarter of the northwest one-quarter of 11-29-28. Either this is a mistake or the land does not adjoin the San Joaquin, which is on 5-29-28. Section 11 in this township is several miles from 5, and on the south side of the river. The forty acres described by the Derrick, have, according to late maps, three wells that have never been pumped or operated. With the exception of four on the southeast corner of section 3, adjoining, they were the only ones south of the river. The forty acres mentioned by the Derrick are credited on maps to the Spring Oil Company.

The company is capitalized at $1,000,000, treasury stock $400,000. The officers are: C. A. Orr, Berkeley, president; Charles T. Burke, Oakland, vice-president; Herbert M. Orr, San Francisco, secretary and treasurer. The company has absolutely no connection with the Associated Oil Company.

Perseus Pays Dividend.

The Perseus Oil Company has just paid its eleventh monthly dividend, amounting to 1 cent a share, which is at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum. The amount is a little over $1780, the issued stock being 178,236 shares of $1 par value. The company has ten acres, comprising the northwest one-quarter of the southwest one-quarter of the northwest one-quarter of 29-28-28, now leased to the Merrill Crude Oil Company, in the heart of the most highly-developed part of Kern River; also eighty acres in 11-28-27, which lie away north of the Poso Creek road, about three miles and a half north and about a mile west of the Minnehaha, the nearest producer. Nothing is being done with this tract, which is a wildcat proposition.

The Prolific Oyster.

According to the scientific authorities, the average female oyster deposits at least 16,000,000 eggs during a single spawning season, and it is said to be no uncommon occurrence for an individual oyster to have 50,000,000 and even 60,000,000 to her credit.

Comparatively few of these eggs, however, reach the fertilization stage, and of those that do few survive it, for many and fatal are the dangers that threaten. Sudden changes of temperature, cold rains, greedy fish—all contribute to further the ends of nature. An oyster egg has less than one chance in two millions of reaching maturity.—[National Magazine.

At Bargain Prices.

"So women hold office down here?" interrogated the stranger at the rural country seat.

"There's one in the clerk's office," responded the proud citizen.

"Has she proved any advantage to the community?"

"Well, I should say so. As soon as she got in office she reduced the marriage license fee from $1 to 99 cents, and there has been a rush ever since.—[Exchange.

CHAPTER XXV.

MISS FORDE MAKES A PURCHASE.

Marietta was privately enjoined to amuse the courier and engage his attention, while her mistress proceeded to inspect the sight of Cordova at her own time and in her own fashion. She liked the life in the Casa Molina; there was no formality and much simple enjoyment. She rambled alone in the morning to the cathedral, or the gardens of the Alcazar—a thicket of flowers, orange trees, ruins, and baths; in the afternoon there was always a drive into the country; in the evening cards and music. Hester played well at sight. Capt. Tudor had a nice little baritone voice, and over the songs they had become great friends; and the sight of the two figures at the piano gratified the chaperons. Occasionally some of Doña Luisa's circle came in after dinner, and there were coffee, cigarettes, iced drinks, and Spanish conversation. Miss Forde was learning eagerly and quickly, with the help of Doña Luisa and her nephew, and could string together quite a number of phrases, and make her known wants for hot water or coffee or ink. She was so enthusiastically interested in her surroundings that her hostess declared it did her good to see her. The girl seemed so happy exploring the picturesque old town, and absorbing its splendid history!

"I feel proud that you are pleased with Cordova," said Doña Luisa. "La flor de saber y de caballeria. Would you like to inspect a very, very ancient house, that has a story?"

"Yes, I certainly should of all things," she answered.

"Very well, then; this afternoon, when Mrs. Tudor and I go for a drive, you, Marietta, and Freddy shall visit the Casa del Marques de Quebrada. It's all tumbling down; but it was once the mansion of a noble and celebrated family, now all but extinct. Two old Condesas live there with one servant, so poor they are almost starving—so proud, that none may help them. The maid accepts fees on the sly for showing the house to strangers; and, upon my word, I believe that is all they have to live upon! One, however, can live on so little in Cordova—some bread and beans and coffee. I would thankfully assist them, and go and visit them; but they no longer receive."

"Oh, what a tragic story!" exclaimed Hester. I am so sorry for them.

Yes, there are other cases—Spain is now so poor. These proud old women have the best blood in the land in their veins. That ruined castle we passed yesterday was the home of their race. Well, as we drive out presently we will drop you near the Casa del Marques de Quebrada."

Yet in spite of Doña Luisa's offer, most of the expedition was made on foot. The street was too narrow for carriages—so narrow, that one could place a hand on either wall—it was a street where the paved footway and white walls had echoed for centuries with the tramp of Moorish feet—the holes and the cobblestones made unpleasant walking. The Callé Romana wound and twisted, and then suddenly turned into an open square, one side of which was filled by a dignified gray building—not by any means a ruin—with a carved stone front, with mullioned windows and a massive entrance; above the door was an elaborate coat of arms, which displayed the motto, "Fortune Infortune." This was the house of the Marques de Quebrada.

Marietta rang the bell; it was unexpectedly large and powerful, and clanged far. Presently a thin, elderly woman appeared, and her melancholy face brightened when she beheld the visitors.

"To see the house?" she asked eagerly.

"If you please," said Marietta.

"Certainly," and she led the way through an arch, past a stone mounting block, into a great entrance hall, vaulted and empty, through another where there were broken chairs and several ancient sofas without seats, various marble and carved tables, a number of gloomy pictures; others, which had fallen out of their frames, stood piled against the wall. From this dilapidated salon they were piloted into an open court, with the usual stone stairs and galleries, but instead of orange trees here were only a few dead plants; instead of the fountain, an ancient draw-well, on which was carved a coat of arms—a man's head with closed visor, a battleax, and the date 1430.

Beyond the court was a lofty pillared room with columns of white marble and lined with Moorish glazed tiles, the celebrated "Azulejos" of equisite coloring in tints of sapphire and other shades of blue, all in fair preservation. After this came the ruins. The little party, led by the Spanish woman, picked their way over broken stone floors, by choked-up staircases, darkly mysterious nooks, and cavernous chambers without windows; then to chambers with roofs all but open to the sky. Finally she ushered them into what was once a garden, but was now a mass of blocks of masonry, fallen statues, old orange trees, sword-blue aloes, scarlet cactus, jasmine and rubbish. Probably it had been one of those Cordovan gardens, the glory of sun-steeped Andalusia, dating from the days when the Saracens carried the art of irrigation to perfection, and the first Omeyyard Sultan of Cordova had dispatched messengers all over Europe to collect rare plants, trees and flowers. This melancholy inclosure still retained one beauty—its prospect. Time and neglect were powerless to impair that; and from this miserable remains of a pleasaunce one obtained a magnificent view of the river and the Sierras.

Whilst Hester feasted her eyes, the lugubrious servant was volubly talking to Marietta; and when Hester questioned her as to the subject, Marietta replied——

"She says the eldest Condesa had lately lost her wits, and thinks everything is as grand as it was, when she was young, eighty years ago, and keeps ordering the carriages and the servants, when it's all they can do to get bread and onions. The younger one is distracted; now they will not even see the priest."

"May we not offer her money?" suggested Hester— "give it for them secretly?"

"Aye, a few pesetas will be a charity—but how to help them? The heirlooms went years ago, the jewels and silver—"

"There are still some pictures; I saw them in the salon."

"Only those which they will not sell."

"Try, Marietta, and I will buy one; do ask the woman."

Capt. Tudor, who was secretly bored by this aimless rambling among dusty ruins, went out and sat on a broken step in the garden, selected a cigar, and patiently awaited Miss Forde's pleasure. Meanwhile, he meditated.

Miss Forde was a charming girl, unaffected and simple, and she understood the compass of his voice to a T—the best accompanist he had ever had; she was handsome, too. Well, yes, he meant to have a good try—fortune favors the bold!

A $10,000 Stock of Dolls

Makes It's First Appearance Monday With a Display of the Undressed Dolls

Monday we will be ready to introduce you to the first showing of undressed dolls. Its the initial step in the Christmas Holiday season. An exhibition that is a forerunner to the greatest gathering of toys and dolls ever exhibited on the Pacific Coast.

To begin with, we import our dolls from the very best makers of Europe and have the exclusive sale in the city of Los Angeles for the noted Kestner dolls. Celebrated for their fine heads and American faces.

Then we have the famous Handwerck dolls, made in Nunnenberg, Germany. These are the hand work of the little German boys and girls who make these dolls for their little American cousins.

Then we have the Florodora dolls at $1 up to $9. Bisque jointed dolls from 5c to $1.48. And the unbreakable doll of the future, full jointed, for the smaller child. And the new full-jointed doll, My Dearie, at from $1.25 up to $3.50. Really, it's a gathering of every conceivable kind of doll, whether small, medium or large. It's the unloading of the first special train to the Kingdom of Toys, just like the first whisper of Christmas to the little tots. For the opening day we quote these marvelous specials.

This $2 Jointed Doll "Baby Belle" $1

Without question the most marvelous price ever quoted for a fine bisque body doll. It's a price we make on just 150 of them for the opening day only.

They have hand-made wig, moving eyes, full jointed, 24-inch size; fitted with shoes and stockings. Called the "Baby Belle." Comes in blonde, brunette and auburn. While 150 lasts,

Prizes For the Best Dressed Doll

Following our usual custom we will give $50 in prizes for the best dressed doll.

These conditions govern.

The doll submitted must be bought here.

Contest begins Monday and will close Saturday, December 5th. We will make a window display and outside judges will decide the merits. The doll must not be in our possession before December 1st and not later than the third.

The price you pay will make no difference in the awarding of the prizes. Neatness, originality and best work will count most, whether it be a 5c doll or a $25.00 doll.

$25 for the Best Dressed Doll, $15 for the Second Best, $10 for the Third Best

THE SPANISH NECKLAC

and her mistress returned through the patio to the desolate salon, and looked around them in search of a suitable purchase.

"Here is one," said Hester. "There, up in the corner. No, I don't want a Holy Family or a martyr, but this"—and she indicated a small half-length portrait of a dark cavalier in a feathered hat. As she spoke, she climbed up on one of the rickety chairs and gazed into the bold, proud face; it seemed to her that it had a look of Paul!

Paul! He was in everything—the procession, this picture—he was like Mr. Dick, and the head of King Charles!

"Romantic idiot!" cried the Puritan over-self; "as if the Marquis de Sarazin ever gave you a second thought! You have lost your senses, and you know it." All the same, Hester, despite her mental mentor, resolved that she would buy this picture, if only the old Condesa could be induced to sell it.

When the Spanish woman entered, she pointed to her selection, and made energetic signs.

But the servant slowly shook her head, and continued to shake it from side to side, while Marietta interpreted—

"It is an ancestor—that says all!"

"Ask her—ask her," urged Hester eagerly; and she brought out a few broken sentences, and actually prevailed on the Spaniard to go and interview her mistress.

After a wearisome delay the woman returned and said: "Come, the Condesa will see you for a moment."

"See me!" repeated Hester, much astonished. "Then, Marietta, you must come too, for I cannot speak to her;" and she followed the servant back into the patio and up a wonderfully carved stone staircase into a corridor, and ultimately to a lofty bare room overlooking the square.

Here, in a high leather chair, surmounted by a crown, sat the ghost of an old Spanish lady, dressed in rusty black, with a shabby mantilla pinned over her head. Oh, such a wrinkled face! Oh, such cavernous black eyes! The long pointed yellow hands, resting on the chair, were merely skin and bone. Except for a few seats, a table, and some faded pictures, the room was empty; but from one adjoining came sounds of peals of cracked laughter, and then a thin imperious voice evidently issuing commands.

As Hester entered, the old Condesa rose stiffly, bowed to her, and signed to her servant to close the adjoining door. Then she began to speak in Spanish, addressing herself exclusively to Hester, who gathered a word here and there. At its conclusion, Marietta glibly interpreted the entire speech.

The Condesa says she has not seen a woman of her own class for five years; but her poverty is now greater than her pride. Her sister is insane; she must have attendance, food and a doctor. The Condesa is deeply ashamed to receive you, or any one, in this ruin of the palace of the Quebradas; but she is helpless and aged, and your money means life and reason. If her sister were well she would never admit a soul, her spirit was so high; but she, the Condesa, is weak—and different, and it is for her sister's sake."

As Marietta interpreted, the old lady sat with her eyes steadily fixed upon the Englishwoman, and never did misery speak more plainly from a human face.

"Yes, I understand, and am obliged to her for receiving me," said Hester with suppressed emotion.

"You wish the portrait of Don Miguel de las Basayas?" she asked.

"Yes, if she pleases. I should like to have it."

"He was an ancestor, brave, renowned, and killed in battle; but he was also a bad man. Therefore she will sell him. La Condesa knows nought of the value; but the pictures is at least 300 years old. To you, Signora, with your gracious permission, she leaves the price!"

Hester pondered. She cast a furtive glance round the empty room—no comfort, no ease for the poor unhappy lady of a once famous line. She heard the gibbering and laughing maniac through the panel; she gazed into the anxious face of the Spanish servant, and moved by a tremor of feeling, replied:

"I will give two hundred pounds for it."

"'Tis too much," muttered Marietta, in a sharp aside—"far too much."

"And if it proves to be valuable, I will add whatever is just; besides, if it is of no value, I like it—and that's sufficient."

"Five thousand pesetas!" cried the servant, clasping her bony hands. "Here, indeed, is fortune at last!—truly, the saints have heard us."

The amount, however, made no impression on the impassive old Condesa, who said:

"If Ysabella were to know, she would sooner burn the picture; but I accept the money." Then she rose and curtsied formally to Hester, thus conveying to her that the audience was ended.

As they went downstairs the ways and means of payment and delivery were eagerly discussed by Marietta and the Spaniard, whose volubility was now surprising.

Capt. Tudor, hearing voices, lounged back into the patio, saying:

"Well, I suppose you've seen everything? You might have bought the whole house in the time."

"I have bought a picture," announced Hester. "Come and look at it," and she led him into a corner and exhibited her purchase with some pride.

"Rather a fine face," he said, "but a ruffian, no doubt! I don't expect it's much of a painting, eh?—dark and dauby!"

"What do you think it's worth?" she asked.

"Oh, these old things are half of them faked—a couple of sovereigns, eh?"

"And I have offered to give two hundred pounds for it!"

"Good Lord!" he cried, startled out of his equanimity. "I'd get you the best old master in Gibraltar for twenty pounds. You are not really going to throw away two hundred sovereigns on that thing?"

"Yes, I am," she said smilingly; "and I think I shall never regret it."

"Oh, well," as a light burst upon him. "I dare say you know all about it."

Miss Forde was an extraordinarily well-informed girl; she had antiquities and Spanish history at her fingers' ends. No doubt she was a connoisseur in old pictures, and had hit upon a good thing.

His respect for the heiress was sensibly increased, and he made no further remonstrance.

The two old ladies were vastly interested when, over the dinner table, the story of the interview and the purchase was related.

"I know Hester has bought it for charity," said her chaperon. "She cannot bear to see starvation, and threw all her lunch out of the window to a wretched dog the day we traveled here."

Dear Mrs. Tudor, you never, never will forget that," protested Hester, with a laugh. Five hundred pesetas had been transmitted to the Casa Quebrada as a deposit until arrangements for a cheque could be settled. "The poor people must have money at once," said Hester to Marietta, who despatched the courier. His face was eloquent of horror when he heard of the transaction, and the outlay, with-

Editorial Pen Points

All that redeems some men is the affection their dogs have for them.

A woman who keeps a maid should also keep a close watch on her own actions.

The licorice trust has been fined $10,000. Let the cynics chew on that for awhile.

The buzz wagon will soon have had its little day; the wind wagon has even now butted in.

If John L. Sullivan has been able to remain sober for five years, no man has any reason to dread prohibition.

Opera singers are said to be very superstitious. It is perhaps the natural result of handling so much stage money.

Mr. Taft's idea is to make it possible for every American to look as fat and as comfortable as he looks himself.

Mgr. Falconi declares that it is men's abuse of liquor that causes the trouble. How about liquor's abuse of men?

When the election is over it will be seen that Mr. Chafin was not the only candidate who asked nobody to take a drink.

Hearst called Gov. Hughes "an animated feather duster." He is certainly proving to be a very animated campaigner.

New York City is no longer growing, according to the World. Her people, huddled like sheep in a pen, should rejoice.

Another reason why men should vote early this year is that the ballot is so big it will require a good part of the day to read it.

Steve Elkins doesn't know whether his daughter will marry the Duke or not. But he is a kind father and stands ready with the goods.

A Connecticut man has a squirrel trained to eat limburger cheese. Any man can bully and browbeat a poor, helpless, little squirrel.

The latest revised list of contributions to the Democratic campaign fund still fails to reveal the name of Col. Jim Guffey of Pittsburgh.

Probably Br'er Bryan hardly knows whether to be glad or sorry that the registration of voters in New York City is away below the record.

The rivers of the East are drying up; but that part of the country is filled with politicians who stand out in bold relief as a strong contrast.

Easterners who have been fond of making fun of California rivers can now take a smile at their own rivers. A boy can wade across some of them.

A scientist declares that beans should not be eaten at a temperature exceeding 132 degrees. A frijol no hotter than that would be positively icy.

Mr. Kern announces that "Indiana will go for Bryan." You bet it will go for him, and it will be a worse rough house than it was the other time.

Another affliction that would follow Democratic victory would be the awful increase in the number of men who are so poor that they keep three dogs.

T. P. O'Connor, in his London "Weekly," says "literature is no Tom Tiddler's ground." As a matter of fact it is mostly a Dick Swiveler proposition.

J. Ham Lewis mourns because the onsweeping years are turning his lovely pink whiskers gray. Trouble comes to the lightest heart, some time or other.

Both Chicago and New York show Republican gains and Democratic losses in the registration of voters. Another straw that shows how the wind blows.

What ought to make us love the Japs, though every other olive branch rots, is the way their little brown-cheeked children sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

It looks now as though fully 1,000,000 men in this country will vote for Eugene Debs at the coming election in the illusive dream of getting something for nothing.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., will be able to travel to Oyster Bay on money he earned himself when he goes there to cast his first vote on the third day of November next.

One prominent minister of the gospel has gone so far as to forbid the members of his congregation to engage in bridge on Sunday. It will be a severe test for some of them.

The trouble is that after a Democrat has made up his mind that Bryan's election will not endanger prosperity, his own common sense tells him that he hasn't made up his mind safely.

Sir William Willcocks, the eminent British engineer, is about to undertake an irrigation project which will restore the Garden of Eden, which tradition locates in the Valley of the Euphrates and the Tigris. But irrigation will not restore the good old times that used to be there.

We are inclined to doubt the rumor that President Roosevelt will become a magazine editor at the close of his term of office. The life would not be strenuous enough. He would be more likely to take hold of a paper that comes out three times a day and a couple of times during the night.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

When the new constitution of this State was adopted twenty-nine years ago, California was politically in control of a mob, known as the Kearneyites, named after a vicious, ignorant agitator in the pay of a political clique. The so-called organic law, framed under these malign influences, was faulty to the last degree.

A general defect in the constitution perverted its sections from the proper scope of constitutional provision into laws worked out with about as much detail as statutes adopted by deliberate assemblies. The purpose was to rivet the crude ideas of the sand-lotters on future generations so far as possible and put legislation in the direct control of the voters, taking from legislatures their functions.

We have before us to be acted on at the next election, coming November 3 when all minds are occupied with the issues involved in a Presidential campaign, fourteen propositions in the way of direct legislation, or something near akin to that—fourteen proposed constitutional amendments. Many of these are not of the highest importance, so that it will not affect the interest of the average citizen very much whichever way the vote goes. But there are half a dozen or more which do touch the interests of the people in vital points.

Senate amendment No. 26 is an attempt to unburden the debtor class of this State from a load laid on their shoulders by the crude and futile attempts of the Kearneyite constitutional convention to defy economic laws, as fixed in their influence as the pole star in its place. Yet, crude as this measure is, it exercised perhaps more force than any other one feature in gaining votes. The amendment proposes to supplement a law passed two years ago which provided a legal way to "get around" the taxes levied on mortgages, a practice which had become general although questionable from a strictly legal standpoint under the constitution. If Senate amendment No. 26 is adopted, the section of the constitution put in by the Kearneyites will be eliminated. The amendment is worthy of general support.

Senate constitutional amendment No. 1 establishes railroads, public utility companies and certain other corporations as a privileged class, exempt from both city and county taxation, paying for the support of the State only. This amendment is objectionable on its face because it takes all this corporation property from the assessment rolls of the cities, towns and school districts and gives the latter nothing in return. It would take $500,000 a year from the city treasury of Los Angeles alone.

The proponents of the amendment assert that it would cause a reduction in the county tax equal to the loss in city revenue; but this assertion is denied stoutly by the city and county assessors. All the good features of this amendment could be embodied in another and the objectionable parts could be easily stricken out. But in order that this may be done the amendment in its present form must be voted down. The claim of the "new thought" tax commission that prepared this amendment is that the per cent. of gross revenue named will bring from the utility companies and other corporations as much revenue as the counties now pay for State tax. This claim is not borne out by the records of Los Angeles city and county. These show that the corporations here will not pay, if the scheme is adopted, nearly as much as the county sends yearly to the State—that they will pay on the whole much less than they are paying now. This would mean a pretty saving for the big corporations and a corresponding loss on the part of the other taxpayers

Assembly amendment No. 3 is an attempt to guard the stable by taking off the lock. This amendment provides for so-called direct primaries; its plan is to provide for the direct nomination of candidates for public office, without conventions, at primary elections.

Like most of the other "new thought" proposals this provides for something which was tried during the first fifty years of the nation under the constitution and found unsatisfactory. The present system of nomination by convention is the product of the experience of 300 years; it is pronounced by the students of political economy as more nearly perfect than any other system yet devised.

The fault with the proposed direct primary is that it limits running for office to rich men and their servants and henchmen. This system has been tried in Pennsylvania, Missouri and Illinois, three States notorious for their corrupt political machines. The experience of these States shows that it increases the opportunities of the machine.

In California the machine politicians are working as a unit for this direct primary amendment which is projected ostensibly for the purpose of curbing the power of the machine. They know from the experience of other States that the direct primary law as proposed will make nomination to office almost impossible to any one of the plain people, unless he happens to have a sack.

The holding of primary elections in every precinct in city and county for the election of delegates to a nominating convention has proven a safeguard. It is in direct line with the spirit of the constitution. Not every voter knows the qualifications of the half-hundred candidates who go before the average county convention. But each voter has the opportunity to know the three or four persons in his own precinct who are proposed for delegates. He has the opportunity of seeing for himself that only honest delegates capable of selecting fit candidates shall be sent from his precinct to the convention. If he does not take enough interest under the present system to ascertain who these delegates are, it is pretty certain that he is not going to interest himself sufficiently under the new system to ascertain the qualifications of all the fifty-odd candidates submitted to the direct primary.

The present system which has reared the Republican party and has given to us a Roosevelt, a Taft and a Gillett, approaches nearer to a square deal to the whole people than any other yet devised. Vote against Assembly constitutional amendment No. 3.

Senate constitutional amendment No. 34 relates to lotteries and to the fictitious sales of corporate stocks. The real nature of this amendment is concealed behind a mask. It commences with a section prohibiting lotteries; this is an excellent section, but it should carry no weight, as it is practically a verbatim copy of the present constitutional enactment concerning lotteries. Behind this mask of "reform" there is a second section which repeals a provision of the constitution that permits a person who loses money invested in stocks "on a margin" to sue for recovery. Superior Judge Conrey has opposed this amendment as dangerous. Its ulterior object seems to be to legalize bucket shops and it should be defeated

Assembly amendment No. 24 aims at a radical change in the organization of the State Board of Education. The school teachers of the State, qualified to judge of the merits of this amendment, appear to be almost unanimous in their opposition to it. The scheme is ill-considered and has a political insect in it.

These amendments seem to be the most important in the list. There are a number of others which do not appear to be especially harmful or of any great public benefit. Their acceptance or rejection is a matter of minor import to the average voter.

Senate amendment No. 14 provides for an increase in the salaries of certain State officers. The salary of the Governor is advanced from $6000 to $10,000 a year and other State officers receive a proportionate increase. In the aggregate not more than $20,000 per annum is involved. Some of these advances are deserved, others not.

Senate amendment No. 16 relates to the length of legislative sessions, compensations of members of the Legislature and to the expense of employés of the Senate and Assembly. It increases the pay of the legislators from "$8 a day for not more than sixty days," to $1000 for the session. Well enough.

Senate amendment No. 29 provides a plan under which, for specific improvement, the discharge of the liabilities may extend over a period of seventy-five years, and makes provision for a sinking fund. This amendment is proposed to assist in the prosecution of public work in San Francisco harbor.

Senate amendment No. 31 relates to the extension of the terms of existence of corporations. The law now fixes the life of a corporation at fifty years from its incorporation. Under the present law many old corporations would be required to dissolve and liquidate by reason of the expiration of their charters. This amendment should be adopted.

Senate amendment No. 32 relates to the limitation of the expense of employés of the Senate and Assembly. It provides that the total expense for attachés or employés shall not exceed $500 a day for either house. Good idea, obviously.

Senate amendment No. 33 provides that in the case of exposition companies stockholders' liability shall be limited to an amount not exceeding the par value of the stock. This amendment is offered to protect stockholders in a big exposition that San Francisco proposes to hold. It might be of assistance if Los Angeles should contract the exposition habit. A small matter.

Assembly amendment No. 7 makes a technical alteration in the method of appointing certain county, township and municipal officers as public convenience may require, also in compensating grand and trial jurors. Harmless.

Assembly amendment No. 8 provides that the entire revenue derived from State school fund and from the general State school tax shall be applied exclusively to the support of day and evening elementary schools. Questionable.

Assembly amendment No. 28 extends the time in which the Governor may sign or veto bills from ten to thirty days after the adjournment of the Legislature. All right.

These fourteen amendments provide in themselves a formidable addition to the "code." They comprise more than thirty actual amendments to the present State constitution.

In addition to these there are three "acts" for the voters to consider. Each of these provides for an expenditure of $1,000,000 or more for the sole benefit of communities about San Francisco Bay. And these communities are not a unit in favor of the acts, as the resolutions passed by some of their commercial bodies show.

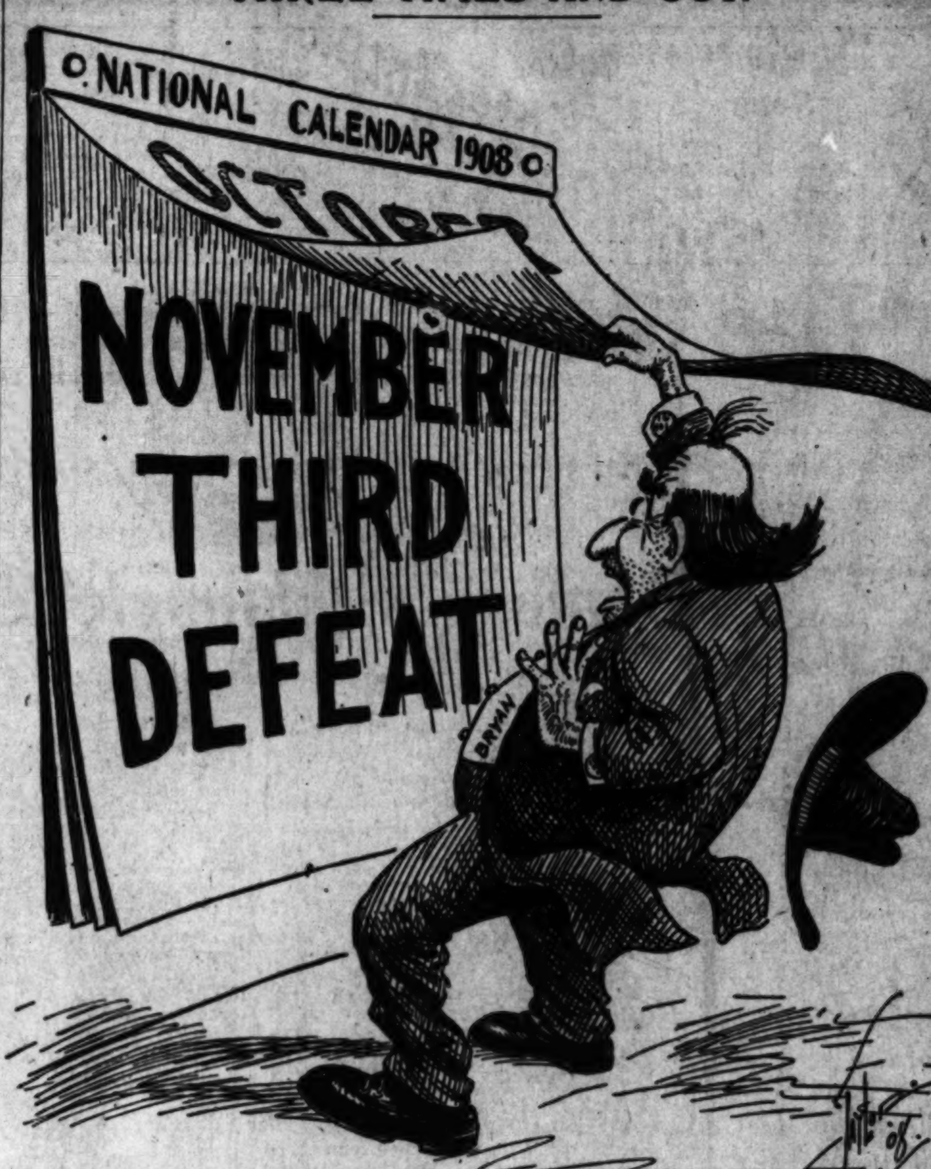
First, there is an act, "to change the seat of government of the State of California from the city of Sacramento to the town of Berkeley." This contemplates an expenditure of several million dollars, chiefly for the benefit of property owners in "the town of Berkeley." The State's investment at Sacramento is measured by millions and should not be sacrificed. It is not a matter of first importance to the people of the State at large where the capital is located; the cost of removal would fall on every taxpayer and the benefit would accrue to a few people.

The electors of the State are asked to ratify an act providing for the issuance of $2,000,000 in twenty-year State bonds to construct a seawall, wharves and piers in San Francisco harbor. This is the San Francisco Seawall Act. Its fellow is an act providing for the issuance of twenty-year bonds for the improvement of the India Basin in the amount of $1,000,000. The Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco has passed resolutions opposing the ratification of either of these acts and the Merchants' Association of San Francisco has passed a resolution opposing the India Basin Act. Herein are warnings to the Southern California voter that both these acts should be defeated; in their present form they are not acceptable even to the commercial interests that they are supposed to benefit.

In pondering on these amendments and acts it will be well for the intelligent voter to consider that at best they are only superficial; the trouble lies in the organic law, in the constitution itself, of which, if adopted, they will become a part. It is like trying to strengthen a defective timber by covering it with a coat of paint.

The State of California must soon cast aside its patchwork, makeshift constitution (which is really a code) and replace it with a new, broader, more stable document which shall form of itself an organic law. The voters can hasten this end by steadfastly refusing to approve proposed amendments and calling for a constitutional convention to frame a new instrument. Until this is brought about it behooves voters to approve only such acts and amendments as are shown clearly to be absolutely essential to the welfare of the commonwealth.

THREE TIMES AND OUT.



WHEN A GIRL GETS MARRIED.

The romantic as well as the commercial interest which attaches, internationally, to this Elkins-Abruzzi affair, brings up the whole question of the marriage of girls again. But, for that matter, it is a subject which is always more or less to the fore. Speaking to the point, Ralph Waldo Emerson said: "Is not marriage an open question, when it is alleged, from the beginning of the world, that such as are in the institution wish to get out, and such as are out wish to get in?"

Emerson was reputed a wise man, having even been called a philosopher, but he frequently frothed at mere words and strained at cynicism for no better reason, perhaps, than to say something "flossy." Happily, it is the great minority of those who are in the marriage state who have the slightest wish in the world to get out of it.

However, since it is true that marriage does not always turn out well, especially marriages of the character in which Miss Elkins is probably to engage, it should never be lightly considered by the people who are party to it, particularly by the girl in the case. It is to the girl that it means most. If the marriage prove a failure it is the girl who must suffer. The man will not cry himself to sleep, and he has many ways of forgetting and of being forgotten that are not available to the woman.

Moreover, when a marriage fails of happiness or success, the world will blame the girl, after the manner of the world since time immemorial. What old Jonathan Swift said in this regard is what is generally said. "The reason why so few marriages are happy," he wrote, "is because young ladies spend their time in making nets, not in making cages."

That greater calumny than this was never written or spoken, every woman will protest, and it is only the blind man, brutal and mean in his instincts, who will uphold it. Jonathan Swift knew better, but he lived in an age when it was popular to sneer at women and woman's virtue.

Yet it all leads to the fact that when a girl gets married she is taking the one great chance of her life. After that she is never again the same. For better or for worse, let it be as it may, when she joins herself to a husband she joins the very ends of the threads of fate together. Whether she has spent her time in making a net or in making a cage, when once she marries she plays with destiny and must lift her shield to face the lightnings.

A girl who fails to exercise the utmost care in choosing a husband fails to realize the seriousness of life. And yet there is one simple rule which, if followed, will set her right at the beginning and leave her right at the end. And this rule is to be sure that the man she marries is the man she loves and that he is the man who loves her. Then, come rain or shine, good times or bad, joy or sorrow, life will be a good thing and death will be but the snapping of a tie that God will renew in another world.

DOMESTIC ANIMALS AND DISEASE.

In the Long Beach schools cats are under indictment for communicating ringworm to the children who make pets of pussy. A sympathetic spasm will run through many hearts at the thought of taking the kitten out of the arms of the baby. There is much in common between "kitty" and her little mistress. One is about is playful as the other, and the tricks of the pet are as funny as those of the child.

But there is little room for doubt that making pets of cats and dogs is fraught with much danger to the children of the household. Cats feed on mice and rats. These vermin live in close contact with all that is unclean. Rats contract diphtheria in the sewers and the cat which feeds on the rat gets the malady. The little one plays with the sick cat and ends the cycle of contamination.

The puppy is a joy in the house, and Towser is a faithful watch dog. But the canine taste is not fastidious, and after nosing about in all sorts of filth, he returns to be fondled by the baby. The dog is affectionate and dearly loves to lick the face or hands of those who are kind to him. He leaves a live germ on the spot he caresses, and the microbe finds its way into the alimentary canal or into the respiratory organs. Typhoid fever or consumption follows and the child is lost.

Every domestic pet kept for the entertainment of children and at the same time permitted to run at large and gratify the desires of its nature is a source of danger to the family.

Dr. Keen of Philadelphia says: "Tell the American workingmen to vote for Taft and they will have plenty of work and plenty to eat." He's a keen doctor, all right.

"To send us back to Africa is as impossible as to send the Irish back to Ireland and the Scotch back to Scotland. My people were among the earliest settlers of this country—although against their will."

Wiseman seemed so sure that a storm is lowering that I asked him if he hadn't any hope for the future.

"Yes, this," said. "We look with hope upon the church. I read in The Times the other day that the Catholic church is sending missionaries down into the black belt of the South. That seems to me the greatest blessing of promise I have seen.

"You know the churches of this country could settle this race question in a year if they would.

"If all the ministers of this country would handle this race strife and color prejudice without gloves, and awaken the consciences of the people, there would be no more race question. If they would teach our people that God never made a man of any color to be despised and hated, this terrible contagion would cease. They could make people ashamed of the color line.

"Too many of them are afraid of offending their congregations. I am not a Catholic, but I honor that church for its courage. If the Catholic church is going into the black belt, I feel at last that a strong protecting arm has been raised."

Wiseman put the question of social equality impatiently aside.

"Oh, never mind that," he said; "that's too far off. What my people want now is the right to earn their living and be safe on the streets.

"It will be many years before my people will be educated to the place where they will be capable of doing, as a class, other than manual labor.

"I think, after all, this discrimination may be the salvation of my people.

"Here in Los Angeles, for instance, we have been forced to enter into business life on a scale that we might have hesitated to undertake.

"As we couldn't stay at white hotels, we have been forced to build a hotel of our own. We have been forced to become building contractors, lawyers and doctors. Some of our people who might always have been waiters have been fairly crowded into becoming proprietors of restaurants.

"Perhaps God has taken this hard way of teaching slaves to become freemen.

"I was forced from my position at the Huntington shops. I wouldn't have been had Mr. Huntington been a negro. We must educate our people until the day comes when we can produce a negro Huntington.

"We negroes who keep track of these things have seen one striking example of this near home. A young colored man started a steam laundry in San Diego. At first he employed only negroes. He got along so well he had to have more help. He sent out a call for white help, and it came flocking to him. Since then he has been running his establishment with white and black help without a word of trouble.

"That young man has found the answer, I think. We must make ourselves industrially worthy to hold our place. We must earn a share of the industrial power."

This young soldier had been talking earnestly, almost fervently. I knew he had given up a good position in an officers' club at a big army post in the East in order to help his people in this city. He feels that he is needed here. Some of the boys in his military company are in his care from the Juvenile Court; he is holding them by main force of will from dropping into crime. I couldn't help thinking what he might have accomplished with a white skin.

I asked him if he never longed to be white. He looked up in sudden surprise.

"I never thought of such a thing," he said. Then he added: "No, honestly, I wouldn't be white if I could. I feel that we have some wonderful lesson, some great problem to work out. I feel that these people need me. I wouldn't dodge my share of the duty if I could."

And Wiseman is right.

Why was it that a certain local celebrity was heatedly "accused" some time ago of being a negro instead of an Apache Indian as he was alleged to have "pretended."

Why should an Apache be accepted and a negro be rejected?

Think it over!

$5 Gossard Corsets $3.50

$3.50 for the five-dollar Gossard Corsets that have what the makers call "bleach spots"—slight discolorations in the fabric; mere beauty hurts which do not affect the wearing qualities in the least. But large sizes only, in this lot. No telephone orders. None sent C.O.D., or on approval.

(Main Floor, rear of Annex)

Rich Suitings and Dress Fabrics

In all this tremendous stock of down-to-date dress fabrics there are no other weaves standing in such general favor as the chevrons, diagonals and French twills. Their lightness and firmness, their non-crushable and dust shedding qualities make them the ideal stuffs for suit and dress wear in this climate.

42 to 54 inch widths at $1, $1.25, $1.50 and so on up to $2.25 a yard.

Broadcloths and Venetians for the real dressy tailored gowns. This assortment outclasses any other shown elsewhere in the West. Fancies, as well as the plain weaves, 52 to 56 inches wide, at $1.50 to $5 a yard.

Black broadcloths up to $7 a yard.

Single-pattern lengths of rich French fabrics in stripes, embroidered and bordered effects, from $20 to $50 each. No two alike.

The Plisse skirtings (advance styles) shown here only. Plaids, stripes and indistinct combinations in a variety of beautiful color-tones. Some in individual skirt patterns at $25. Others by the yard at $2.50, $3.50 and $4 a yard.

Our importation of English suitings for the season 1908-1909 comprises the most varied assortment we have ever shown. 54 to 60 inches wide. $1.75 to $4.50 a yard.

Flannelette Garments

We've had enough chilly weather to make everybody realize the need for flannelette night clothing.

We are ready to supply that need.

Children's flannelette night gowns, 50c to $1.

Women's and misses' flannelette night gowns, 50c to $2.

Women's flannelette petticoats at 50c to $1.

Women's knitted petticoats at $1.25 to $2.50.

Women's embroidered French flannel petticoats, in white and colors, $2.50 to $5.

CLINGING SATIN PETTICOATS—In plain colors—the ideal garments for women who want a richness without the rustle—ten to twenty dollars.

JERSEY TOPPED PETTICOATS—With white or black taffeta bottoms, ten to twenty-five dollars.

(Main Floor, Rear of Annex.)

Inexpensive Draperies

Rich picking tomorrow for people who are planning on increasing the coziness of their homes.

30-inch sash nets worth 75c to $2.50 at FIFTY cents a yard. Included are fine imported Irish Points, Brussels, Tamboured and Appliqued effects—about twenty pieces in the lot.

30-inch Florentine silks in floral and Oriental designs, cut from 65c to 50c yd.

$1.25 raw silks 32 inches wide and extra heavy grade, in all shades, $1.00 yard.

50-inch plain reps in shades of green, red, tan, brown, rose, at 65c, 85c, $1.00 and $1.25.

42 to 50-inch cream madras in floral and conventional patterns, specially priced at 50c a yard. (Third floor.)

Guaranteed Silk Waists $5 to $10

Last Monday's sale of "S. H. & M." waists at $5 seems to have given many women the impression that ALL of the "S. H. & M." are of the one grade.

We've a dozen or more different styles ranging from $6.50 to $10, those at $8.50 and $10 being quite dressy creations of soft, rich messalines.

All bear the same liberal guarantee.

Should this waist, bearing the trade-mark "S. H. & M.," crack or split within three months from date of purchase, return it with this coupon to your dealer. He will replace it with a new one, provided the damage has not been caused by tearing, perpiration or rubbing of corset bones. The S. H. & M. Co.

Sizes 34 to 44. The five-dollar waists in black only, the others in navy blue, browns, white and black. (Second floor.)

$3 Cloakings $1

Here's a streak of luck for women who intend to make evening wraps, house robes or children's cloaks:

A splendid assortment of novelty wool cloakings, 54 inches wide, in pink, blue, cream and gray, at a dollar a yard; regularly $3. No stretching of the valuation—you'll realize that the moment you see the fabrics.

60c and 75c Eiderdown 25c

Plain and rippled wool eiderdown in 36-inch width at 25c a yard.

But only one coloring at this price—pearl gray.

Robes at Half

All Princess and Marquise lace robe patterns—an assortment of over seventy beautiful styles—on sale tomorrow at exactly half our own regular prices.

$30 for $60 Robes.
$40 for $80 Robes.
$50 for $100 Robes.
And so on up to the $225 ones at $112.50.

Black and white.

(Main Floor, Left Aisle.)

Sample Undermuslins At About Half

Sample undermuslins at just about half their average worth.

95c for $1.50 to $2.50 gowns.
$1.95 for $3.00 to $4.00 gowns.
$2.95 for $4.50 to $7.00 gowns.
$3.95 for $8.00 to $12.00 gowns.
95c for $1.50 to $2.50 corset covers.
$1.95 for $3.00 to $4.00 corset covers.
(Corset covers in sizes 36 to 38 only.)
95c for $1.25 to $2.00 drawers.
$1.95 for $2.50 to $3.50 drawers.
$2.95 for $4.00 to $6.00 drawers.

Skirt-chemises, combination drawers and combination skirts worth $1.50 to $2.50 for 95c; and the $3.00 to $4.00 grades at $1.95. (Size 36 only.)

This is a much smaller lot than we usually have for these sales, and price-concessions are unusually heavy, so you will need to be spry if you expect to share in these savings.

A HIGH-GRADE MADE TO MEASURE SUIT FOR

$20 NO MORE NO LESS

We want to reach the man who is in the habit of paying $35 to $40 for a tailor-made suit.

We want to get the attention of the man who thinks a "ready-made" suit is good enough.

For men of this class we have a surprise in store in our $20 made-to-measure suits. They're equal in every way to the $30, $35 and $40 suits turned out by other tailors. And they're "head and shoulders" above the best of ready-mades in style, quality and fit.

Come in tomorrow and look over our beautiful line of woolens. You'll find all the latest weaves and colors—the very sort of suit you want, made to your order, for $20—no more, no less.

Our cutters and tailors are men of wide experience and exceptional ability—the best on the Pacific Coast.

FREAKISH.

MUCH IS LOST; LITTLE FOUND.

Many Queer Things Hide in Printed Column.

Study of "Ad" List Shows Yearly Loss Heavy.

Romance and Pathos May Lurk Behind Lines.

To the mind with a bit of imagination there comes, with the reading of the little blocks of type in the Lost and Found Columns of The Times, a hint of the story behind. There is a touch of tragedy, a suggestion of drama in the lines, always there is the possibility of romance.

The Little Gods of Things as They Are, haunt the column, loving its possibilities. Hope scans it and memory, with sad eyes, reads every word of it eagerly.

If there be truth in printer's ink, the Lost and Found Column of The Times contains it. Here are spread abroad for all the world to see, the follies and foibles of the genus homo. His greddiness and his sympathy are here; his love of money and his love of pets; but above all his invincible belief that misfortune will not come to him personally, no matter what happens to the rest of the universe.

It is a liberal education in the queer twists and turns of human nature, to reads carefully, the lost and found column of this paper. The significance lies, not so much in the number of the ads, as in character they display. Their range is so wide. It takes in everything. Some mother who has lost her baby's ring, grieves and begs The Times to find it for her. Another wants the instant return of her yellow-headed parrot. Yet another wants his false teeth returned.

LOSES ARE HEAVY.

A study of the column in The Times for ten days past shows an astonishing result; approximately $7300 worth of property was lost during that time.

Articles.	Est. Values.
13 watches	$1000
6 pieces of diamond-set jewelry	1200
40 pieces miscellaneous jewelry	2000
20 pocketbooks	1000
23 articles of clothing	500
20 valuable dogs	500
11 horses	1000
17 miscellaneous	100
150 articles	$7300

This large sum is conservatively stated. The real value of the 150 articles is unquestionably much higher. Of course the sentimental value, in some instances, cannot be represented by money. Thus, somebody advertized repeatedly for "three baby rings."

WHERE DO DOGS GO?

Is there a dog stealer in town? The Lost and Found column would indicate that somebody is making a livelihood by returning lost dogs. Else it seems incredible that, in ten days, twenty valuable pups should go astray.

The dog owners show more interest than any other class sustaining losses. Some dog advertisements run for a week or more. An example is seen in the "ad" for the return of a "small white fox terrier," with certain markings. The owner of a "female black and tan" also greatly concerned about his pet's whereabouts, has advertised liberally. A gentleman advertised eight times in ten days for the return of a "Scotch collie," raising his reward from $5 to $20.

Among other dogs advertised are: Female pointer; cocker spaniel, white spitz; bloodhound and Irish spaniel.

The dogs that oftenest disappear are bulldogs. In the ten days, there were exactly eleven, some of them undoubtedly worth hundreds of dollars. All are on the list of the "missing." Rewards run from $5 to $50.

During the ten days, eleven horses were reported "lost." Their value must easily have been $1000 if not much more.

Assuming that losses are equally great during the year the total would be 4124 objects worth about $266,450.

If the tale told by the Lost and Found column be true, women lose the majority of the things advertised. They are especially thoughtless with their watches and rings. Such carelessness as going into the lavatory of a department store, taking off one's rings, and leaving them beside the basin is a common occurrence. Placing hand bags on the counter, while shopping, has brought grief to hundreds of Los Angeles shoppers, each year.

Bulldogs have a strange way of "going astray." Of the twenty dogs advertised in the ten days, eleven were valuable bulldogs. Towser is a home-loving dog and his frequent disappearance raises the question as to whether or not there be men in Los Angeles who make a business of stealing dogs, for the reward. A peculiar feature of the missing-dog problem is the fact that if a horse is lost or stolen, the police will help look for the animal. But a bulldog valued at $500 is of no more interest, as a piece of property, to the police, than would be a homeless, gutter-fed cur.

In view of the immense amount of stuff missing, each week, it would also seem that a "professional searcher" might make a fine livelihood if he had good luck.

Of course, somebody must find the majority of these lost articles.

MANY LOST, ONE "FOUND."

Thirteen ladies reported having lost their watches during this ten-day period. Some advertised three and four times, shewing anxiety to recover their property. These watches were probably worth $1000 to their owners. Many of them were attached to pins of value. In the ten days, only one watch was advertised as "found."

Six valuable pieces of diamond jewelry disappeared on the streets, in the ten days. The cash value of these is of course conjectural, but a conservative estimate would be $1200: for one of the pieces is said to be worth $250. Here are some of the more attractive losses: A flat round gold pin, with small diamond center; a diamond and pearl crescent pin; a diamond-shaped college pin; a gold horseshoe, set with choice diamonds; a three-stone diamond ring, value, $250; a gold monogram locket, with four diamonds.

Forty other pieces of jewelry, ranging from pearl necklaces to watch fobs, are listed "lost." The real value may only be surmised but $2000 would doubtless be low.

Some of the more important losses are, a solid gold-link necklace set with turquoise; heirloom pins; three rings in a case; amethyst and pearl breastpin; gold cuff links; gold bangle bracelet; gold coat button; gold bracelet; amethyst rosary; pearl and opal brooch; turquoise necklace; three-stringed pearl necklace, with cross; turquoise set locket; gold band bracelet.

PURSES VANISH.

Twenty pocketbooks were lost, in the fateful ten days. The value of this property may run into the thousands; a conservative estimate would be $1000. One purse contained a railroad ticket to New York City, and $20 in cash. The ticket alone is worth $108; but another held only a Santa Monica commutation ticket. These are extreme instances of values. Several of the "ads" report "small change" or "valuable keys."

One advertiser lost a pocketbook containing a "certified deed," possibly representing thousands of dollars. The lady that lost her handbag is present, in three instances—showing that handbags, especially of the crocodile order, have a way of crawling away from the owners. A pathetic "ad" refers to a pocketbook containing "three baby rings."

There are two "threatening" ads, such as, "The gentleman who picked up the purse on Spring street is known," but these are very uncommon.

The lady that kept her diamonds in a chamois bag, around her neck, met the inevitable loss. Another lady advertises $100 reward for the return of a "small bag containing a diamond cross and four diamond rings. No questions asked." One loser reports a purse "containing $60," which he is anxious somebody should return. Another purse held $10.40.

CLOTHES GO ALSO.

Twenty-three articles of wearing apparel disappeared in the ten days. One lady advertised, for ten days in succession, for the return of a "valuable piece of Spanish lace," doubtless worth a large sum or she would not have been so insistent. Most of the articles, as usual, are lost by women. Here are some: Fur boa with two mink heads; brown fur collar; large cut steel and gold button coat; a red leather celt, of oriental design; child's pink-lined cape; hat wrapped in a newspaper; black silk umbrella, with gold handle, an "ad" that appeared three times in the ten days; a case of clothes; black furs, and lady's long black monkey-skin collarette.

MISSES FALSE TEETH.

Seventeen "miscellaneous" losses are set forth, some rather amusing, others exceptional, to say the least.

One man advertises the loss of a "span of white mules." His neighbor is looking for a "slide rule." Another person is seeking a pair of false teeth. Several bicycles are reported missing. Kodak films, and unmounted pictures, are on the list. Four losers of eyeglasses are now squinting around town, trying to see.

HOROSCOPE.

BY COZETTE.

Press not into a throng unwarily.
Visits and traveling will profit thee.

Mercury and the moon are in sextile with Jupiter. Saturn is in Pisces. The new moon is in ecliptic conjunction with Mercury.

On this 299th day the planet Uranus assumes a position in the heavens that points to strikes and disputes in many places, both in the United States and in Europe.

There is, however, an indication that business generally will improve markedly before the end of this moon.

A sign of fortune is in the ascendance over metals.

Today should prove excellent for letters and other writings.

The aspect is excellent for dealing with ministers and professors.

These twenty-four hours are favorable for traveling and making visits.

Jupiter exerts an influence that will remain powerful till well into noon tomorrow for business affairs, particularly for the starting of new enterprises.

Be careful in crowds. There is a portent of "moving throngs and swift moving machines." Take heed of thy steps in crossing streets and roads.

A happy and proud year is indicated for women with this birthdate. Extraordinary news will affect their future.

Men with this birthdate will have a successful year, but those in employment must be careful. The unmarried will probably woo.

Children are born today under a sign betokening "high emprise." Girls are promised clever and attractive characters and personalities. Boys should prove to have excellent judgment.

MORE VICTIMS.

No. 331 Douglas building; Dr. L. E. Wyckoff, No. 902 South Burlington avenue, and W. A. Dutton of No. 806 East Twenty-second street.

Franklin and Martin traded a house and lot in Kansas City, valued at $2100, for a $2000 mortgage on the Riverside county land. They did business with Bunch, who represented to them, it is alleged, that Cole had bought the land from his client, Mary A. Rogers, and had paid part, giving her a mortgage for the balance due.

Dr. Wyckoff traded a piano valued at $600 for a mortgage on more of the same kind of land for $600. He asserts he has found the land is hardly worth $6, and now he is trying to locate the present owner of the piano, which has been resold.

W. A. Dutton traded his equity of $1300 in a house and lot at No. 1725 East Twenty-second street for three $400 mortgages on similar land, two lots in Fresno valued at $100 each, and $50 cash. He has the money and the two lots, but the mortgages are on the rocky land near Hemet.

Attorney Post said yesterday that he had also heard by telephone from four other persons who held some of the mortgages. They are preparing to act.

CLEVER PLAN.

"That the plan to obtain valuable property in exchange for these worthless mortgages was well executed, is shown by the careful way in which the authors of this scheme carried on their work," said Post. "All the mortgages and deeds have been recorded in Riverside county. These records show that Mary Rogers deeded a number of small tracts of land to the Coles and Goldens, receiving part payment and the rest in mortgages for sums ranging from $500 to $2000. Also the notes bore 8 per cent. interest.

"Mortgages are better to trade in than real estate. People who traded for the mortgages would be very likely to let the judgment of the original holder of the mortgage stand and carry out an exchange without looking at the land mentioned as security. This is just what happened, as all the alleged victims state they have not seen the land."

BUNCH IN IGNORANCE.

Bunch professes ignorance of any wrongdoing in the many transactions in which he acted as agent for Mary A. Rogers. He states that, so far as he knew, the notes were worth their face value and secured by bona fide property.

On grounds of fraud, S. M. Shepard filed yesterday a suit against Cole, Mrs. Cole, Bunch, Mary A. Rogers and others, to set aside a deed given by slathers of Johnnie, April Fool Extension and other high-priced securities on the result.

F. M. Dorsey, who was slated for first base by the Nevada crowd, as the biggest object they had in sight, was looked over by a veterinary surgeon before the game started and was pronounced not in training. The disappointment was keenly felt as was also the absence of Col. Neville, who was slated to play long-stop for the other side. Heber captained one side and showed he could not play ball on commission and make office rent. Potsford performed some queer stunts which included a somersault on his left ear, and Burbridge, fresh from his conquests at the duck farm, took a position under the right fence and accomplished some fine retrieving stunts. Yes, it was weird, and all of that.

Kerwin, who did the pitching for the Los Angeles Stock, was called a ringer when his side took premier position early in the game. Later, when the Nevadans forged ahead, he was called a lobster and other names not as complimentary as that.

The score? Nobody paid any attention to that, but the consensus of opinion was that the aristocrats had downed the plebs by a tally that was somewhere in the neighborhood of 39 to 25. It is said, however, that the game will be protested upon the grounds that most of the victorious players were professionals run in for the game. The spectators protested right along and they had good cause. Any attempt to repeat the crime will be stopped by the police and Woolwine has already been notified that there is a fine chance to really detect something rotten.

PLANS DEVELOP.

FOOD AND RIDES WILL BE FREE.

"PROSPERITY" WEEK" GROWS IN INTEREST DAILY.

In "Factory Visiting Day" Public Is to Be Taken in Autos Through Manufacturing District — Circuit May Cover Twenty Miles—Airship Model Secured for Parade.

There will be free rides as well as free food during the Chamber of Commerce "Prosperity Week"—November 16 to 21—when the entire population of Southern California will be asked to use home products only.

The committee in charge of "Factory Visiting Day," when all the big workshops of this section will keep "open house" to the general public, yesterday decided to take the people calling in the manufacturing district in style and comfort with automobiles.

A regular "circuit" will be established, which will take in all the factories, from the East Side to Slauson Junction, and by a chain of big and fast touring cars it is planned to send a continuous and unbroken stream of humanity from dawn to dark.

The Chamber of Commerce will be the starting point and the central headquarters for the "seeing-the-factories" auto trip, and the members of the Factory Visiting Committee, consisting of H. J. Brainerd, Fred C. Hartman, D. A. Vail, R. H. Pulfer, Percy H. Clark, G. F. Conant, S. P. Anderson, Charles H. Mooers and F. H. True, will act as official guides and hosts. The trip may extend over from fifteen to twenty miles.

At each factory the proprietor will be asked to greet the visitors in person, and trained guides will be supplied.

All manufacturers who wish to be placed on the "circuit" should communicate with the committee at once.

The big "Industrial Parade" will be held on the day before "Factory Visiting Day," and each manufacturer who is to keep "open house" will exhibit his formal invitation to the public, together with the location and hours of reception, on his float c. wagon.

The "Home Products Parade" will be a tremendous attraction, according to the plans formed by Chairman F. J. Zeehandelaar and the Parade Committee. Already over sixty firms have sent in notices of particip.tion, and the ideas that will be carried out on the floats and wagons are novel.

Secretary Frank Wiggins captured a big attraction yesterday, when he induced Charlemagne W. Sirch to exhibit in the parade the "home-invented" airship that has caused such a stir in the scientific and aërial world. The inventor will prepare a large model of the 200-foot ship that he is now building at his laboratories at Sixth and Hope streets. The "Sirch Transport," as the airship is called in the patents, will be between twelve and fifteen feet long, and will be mounted upon an auto-truck. In the "pilot house" will be seated the prettiest —irl that can be found to handle the wheel.

Because of the carelessness of some of the manufacturers in responding to the inquiries sent out, Secretary Wiggins, Monday, will send out a corps of authorized representatives of the Chamber of Commerce to personally visit eligible firms and secure definite answers.

The Committee on Music, consisting of Messrs. Walter Raymond, William Lacy, L. Behymer, F. W. Blanchard and W. N. Neiswender, met yesterday and enlarged its powers to include also entertainments that will mark "Prosperity Week." Every band in Southern California will be kept tooting for home products and prosperity. It was also decidde ot hold three free evening concedts in Central Park, in which bands and glee clubs will participate. An effort will be made to give entertainments in some of the local auditoriums, including exhibitions by resident artists of all classes.

The housewives have begun to take an active interest in the home products cause, which bodes well for its practical success. Secretary Wiggins yesterday was kept busy at the telephone answering calls from women.

"The way for the consumers to help," says the secretary, "is to ask for home products of his, or her, own grocer or merchant. We do not wish to specify goods and brands. Every retail dealer will be only too glad to surply, or procure home products if they are only asked for. The loyal consumer should ask for home products, and if they are not sent, should send the foreign substitutes back."

FREE BOOK ABOUT CANCER

CANCEROL has proved its merits in the treatment of cancer. It is not in an experimental stage. Records of undisputed cures of cancer in nearly every part of the body are contained in Dr. Leach's new 100-page book. This book also tells the cause of cancer and instructs in the care of the patient; tells what to do in case of bleeding, pain, odor, etc. A valuable guide in the treatment of any case. A copy of this valuable book free to those interested. Address Dr. L. T. LEACH, Box 117, Indianapolis, Indiana.

FEEL FINE IN FIVE MINUTES

IF YOU WOULD TAKE SOME DIAPEPSIN NOW ALL INDIGESTION WOULD VANISH.

Begin Today to Rid Yourself of This Dread Misery of Stomach Trouble Forever. Eat Your Favorite Foods Without Realizing You Have a Stomach. Diapepsin Will Regulate the Stomach Before You Realize It.

The question as to how long you are going to continue a sufferer from Indigestion and Stomach trouble is merely a matter of how soon you begin taking Diapepsin.

If your stomach is lacking in digestive power, why not help the stomach to do its work, not with drastic drugs, but a re-enforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach.

People with weak Stomachs should eat Diapepsin after meals, and there will be no more Indigestion, no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, no heartburn, sour risings, gas on stomach or belching of undigested food, headaches, dizziness or vomiting, and, besides, what you eat will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. All these symptoms resulting from a sour stomach and dyspepsia are generally relieved five minutes' after eating one Triangule of Diapepsin.

Go to your druggist and get a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin now, and you will always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and what you eat will taste good, because your stomach and intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will know there are not going to be any more bad nights and miserable days for you. They freshen you and make you feel like life is worth living.

TALKS ON TEETH

By

The Rex Dental Company

INCORPORATED

Mr. Cherry Is Satisfied

When, a few years ago, we began our crusade against the "partial plate" and the "bridge" as substitutes for nature's teeth, and told people we could give them a full set of teeth without using plate or bridge, with our Alveolar Method, we had hard work to overcome the natural skepticism of those who came to us. "Show us some proofs," they said.

We had to ask most of them to accept the work on faith, in the beginning. Today we are in a very different position. We are able to furnish a mass of proof in the form of successful cases which have stood the test of years of hard service. We are no longer obliged to ask callers to take our word for our work, but can refer to case after case right here in our home city and elsewhere, each case being eloquent testimony in behalf of the correctness of the Rex Alveolar Method of supplying teeth without plates or bridge.

The Rex Dental Co.'s method has been fully demonstrated. The proofs are ready. The perfection of our method took many years of study and research and many experiments, but after we were sure of its correctness we were able to go before the largest dental college in America and give a clinical demonstration of the Alveolar Method upon one of the most difficult subjects that was to be found in the United States. In the following letter we give the experience of Mr. J. T. Cherry of Terminal Island, Cal., who can be written to or interviewed if you wish. He was skeptical, but as you can see by his letter, he considers he has found more than his money's worth:

Alveolar Method a Success

Los Angeles, Cal., October 3d, 1908.

The Rex Dental Company, Los Angeles, Cal.:

Gentlemen—I have been using your Alveolar teeth for some months.

Two partial uppers and a partial lower you made for me.

I can eat all kinds of hard food as good as I could when I had my own. They feel natural and I am perfectly satisfied with them and will take great pleasure any time to verify the above.

Yours very truly,

J. T. CHERRY, Terminal, Cal.

There are hundreds of similar cases ready for proofs just as convincing.

We offer you a beautiful set of teeth if you have two or more teeth left in either jaw, no matter if they are loose ones (we cure the cause of the looseness). These teeth that we will supply without using a plate will look, act and feel like nature's teeth.

Don't let any dentist talk plate or bridge to you until you have had us look your mouth over, for we will dispense with a plate.

Come to our offices in the Severance Building for a free examination before you allow a dentist to pull any teeth or make a bridge for you. No charge for the examination. No obligation to have any work done but LET US HAVE A CHANCE TO PROVE THAT THE ALVEOLAR METHOD IS BETTER THAN ANYTHING ELSE OFFERED. THAT IS A FAIR PROPOSITION.

If it is not possible for you to come at once to our office, send for our book, "Alveolar Dentistry"—it is sent free—which tells all about the work. The reading of that book brings patients to our offices from all over the country.

DR. C. H. WHITE,
Rectal Specialist.

I Cure Piles

WITHOUT PAIN

BY MY NEW DISSOLVENT METHOD

Without cutting, cauterizing or using any surgical instrument or without detention from business or pleasure. I also cure without pain, fissure, fistula, hemorrhage, ulcers and prolapsus of the rectum. My dissolvent method is absolutely my own and no other physician is using it except under my supervision.

I Guarantee to Cure

every case I undertake or accept no fee for my services. My cure is safe with absolutely no danger of sloughing, blood poison or injury to neighboring parts.

I HAVE CURED HUNDREDS of people in Los Angeles and surrounding towns, and can cure you.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 21, 1908.

My Dear Doctor White:

You ask me how I am. I will say that I am perfectly well; not a relic of the piles remain. The few treatments that you gave me, that were painless, have cured that awful hemorrhage that has been of daily occurence for the last ten years. The tumors that protruded almost constantly while awake are gone. I would not take a thousand dollars for what you have done for me with your dissolvent treatment.

Yours very truly,
B. F. LIVINGSTONE, 1157 Hobson St.

October 20, 1908.

I take great pleasure in making this statement of my case. I am prompted to do so that the world may know there is at last a perfect cure for piles. I learned of Doctor White and his cure for piles through a neighbor, who had been cured of that disease by him. I left my home in Colorado and came to Los Angeles, where I began treatment on June 11th. I arrived at my home on August 15th entirely cured, having had eight treatments. The treatments were not painful and I improved from the first. Before I went to Dr. White I was practically an invalid, and although I never ceased doing something, or being treated, I did not get cured.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The dog-license system and reconstruction is again becoming acute and the Council may act Monday.

Mayor Harper yesterday filed in the Superior Court a suit for $200,000 damages for alleged libel against Edwin T. Earl and the Evening Express Company, for publications in the Evening Express of August 14, August 12, October 2 and October 1, which, the plaintiff declares, hold him up to public ridicule and contempt, without justification.

Judge Wilbur heard argument on the constitutionality of the city ordinance governing street speaking, Maj. Anna M. Smith of the Salvation Army having applied for a writ of habeas corpus after her arrest for violating the ordinance.

Judge Jamison has dismissed a charge against A. M. Beardsley of passing a worthless check on the Hollywood National Bank, on request of Deputy District Attorney Keyes, after investigation.

Judge Conrey heard evidence in Mrs. Emma Domercq's suit against Peter Domercq for divorce on grounds of cruelty.

AT THE CITY HALL.

INNINGS FOR KI-YI REFORM.

MIXED SITUATION WHILE DOGS ENJOY IMMUNITY.

Catcher's Money Held up by Auditor and Attached by Creditor While Council Is Trying to Reconstruct System—Humane League Is Willing to Assume Duty.

With the City Auditor refusing payment to George B. Vacher, city dog catcher, of $500 alleged to be due the city for licenses, the remainder of $700 allowed by the Council to the dog catcher attached by a creditor, and the Council waiting for a proposal from the Humane League to take over the dog-catching duties, the dog question seems ready to become an absorbing topic at the City Hall.

Dr. W. A. Lamb, president of the Humane League, says the organization will probably make its proposal to the Council Monday by which it will ask control of the dog question on a purely humane basis. Dr. Lamb wants the control based on the experience of New York, Chicago, Rochester and other cities where such control is working admirably. This system means the collection of all moneys by the city and the retention of a portion, the remainder going to support the humane dog pound. Dr. Lamb was not ready to announce the exact details yesterday, but he is sure they will meet with favor by the Mayor and the Council.

In the meantime the ki-yis are enjoying the same immunity they have enjoyed ever since the Council begun to try Vacher and the Auditor begun holding up the amounts alleged to be due him three months ago. Now the dog catcher is trying to arrange a deal with the Humane League to take over his "plant" and catching equipment if it gets an arrangement with the city.

There are Councilmen who will oppose any "farming out" of the dog control on the ground that it is the city's business and that the city should keep it under direct control. This would mean the creation of another salaried city officer or officers—catcher, license inspector, enumerator, humane executioner, etc.—and there will be no trouble in filling these places. The humane organization makes much of the representation that its system will remove the catching from the domain of politics.

Favors Convention.

Mayor Harper has joined in urging the city to accept the offer of the National Playground Association to hold its 1909 meeting here in place of the 1910 meeting, which was asked for by the Playground Commission and the Chamber of Commerce. The convention would bring from two to three thousand philanthropists from all over the country, and the Mayor believes it would stimulate the city in its work among the children and enlarge its sphere. Dr. W. A. Lamb of the Playground Commission is now seeking the assistance of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association in arranging to advance the invitation one year.

Can Get Elks.

Superintendent Morley of the park department has returned from two weeks at San Francisco, where he attended the Masonic Grand Lodge sessions. During his visit he made a complete inspection of the Gate City parks and pronounces them superb. He believes Los Angeles, though it has no ocean park, will soon equal San Francisco in the extent and beauty of its park and boulevard system. Morley found that the city could get any number of elks it may want for the Elks Grand Lodge meeting next year at a cost of $75 each, and may recommend the purchase of a number later in the year.

Vetoes Fountain Ordinance.

Mayor Harper yesterday vetoed the ordinance granting a franchise to McCracken and others to install slot machine drinking fountains on the streets. He says the privilege is worth large compensation to the city, which is not provided for. Also he believes the system unsanitary and that the franchise puts no restriction on advertising on the fountains. "Besides," said the Mayor, "it will look bad for Los Angeles to sell water on its streets and might induce jealous cities to say it was so scarce we had to sell it. I believe the city should install free public fountains at convenient places and not undertake to make a bargain with somebody at public expense."

Commends Chief Lips.

Chief Edward F. Croker of the New York fire department, in a letter to Secretary McKeag of the Fire Commission, says Chief Lips made a splendid impression on his visit to the New York force, and Chief Croker adds that "Los Angeles is to be congratulated on having so able a chief officer" at the head of its department. Chief Croker bids welcome to Chief Lips and the commission any time they want to visit Gotham.

PARENT-TEACHERS MEETING.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Main-street school will hold its next meeting on Wednesday at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Robert J. Burdette will address the meeting.

SPANKED.

COURT TELLS TOMMY, "YOU MUST TESTIFY."

And the Little City Prosecutor Says He Will Be Good—Has Had Enough of Holding Office—Flickers Out of Public Life.

MASTER THOMAS LEE WOOLWINE, the celebrated graft prosecutor (resigned,) pulled out of the side track yesterday to find the smoke of the grand jury train a mere spot on the horizon.

Judge James ruled that Tommy must be a good boy and answer the questions put to him by the grand jury, telling all he knows about vice; Tommy's only too anxious to do so now.

Master Woolwine took his orders with an eager smile and said he would not defy the grand jury any more.

The news that Tommy must now answer questions was received in the District Attorney's office with a blank look of astonishment. While Tommy has been off fighting windmills and investigating learned tomes to find out how the decision of Justice Higgins in the Ninety-eighth California Reports affects star-light nights, the graft prosecution has been moving along.

They have forgotten all about Tommy and they don't remember what it is they wanted to ask him.

Master Woolwine expected the grand jurors to tear their hair and cry in anguish over his firm silence; but they just bumped Tommy off onto a siding and went on.

His "resignation," announced yesterday morning, was received with a similar degree of calm. Dist.-Atty. Fredericks "resigned" him a week ago, if we remember the facts.

T. Woolwine is only a sweet, half-forgotten memory.

The status of the case is: If there were a grand jury that wanted to ask Tommy a question about who told him what he doesn't know about the graft prosecution, and Tommy didn't want to answer, why he'd have to. See how simple!

The case of "IN RE REFUSAL TO ANSWER QUESTIONS BEFORE GRAND JURY OF THOMAS LEE WOOLWINE," Judge James presented his decision yesterday. It was in writing and thorough.

After considering the history of the case and citing various famous decisions covering the fact, the court said:

"As to the last objection suggested at the argument, to wit, that the witness as a public official had the right to refuse to answer the questions on the ground that public interests would suffer by the disclosure, it is a sufficient answer to say that the grand jury was then engaged in conserving to a high degree the public interest by investigating the charge made before them that public officials had been guilty of misconduct in office. The public interest which would demand the disclosure to the grand jury of the information sought from the witness would be superior to any which the witness might be able to assign as a reason for refusing to answer the questions propounded to him.

"An order will therefore be made directing the respondent, when he shall again appear before the grand jury and be required to do so, to furnish to the jury information regarding the names of persons who have informed him that vice was being protected in the city of Los Angeles by the officials thereof."

Mr. Woolwine, who was present with his attorneys, left the courtroom on hearing the decision, but came rushing back and interrupted another case then going on.

He said that he wanted to remark that he would answer the questions as directed by the court; and said that he was a good citizen and anxious to do his duty.

Judge James made no ruling on this last point.

Woolwine is quoted as saying he will resign his office as city prosecutor as soon as City Attorney Hewitt returns from Washington.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

MAYOR FILES ANOTHER SUIT.

EARL AND "EVENING EXPRESS" AGAIN DEFENDANTS.

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars Damages Asked by His Honor for Alleged Malicious, Defamatory and Libelous Reflections on His Private Character and Official Conduct.

Specifying new grounds for charges of malicious libel against Edwin T. Earl and the Evening Express Company, Mayor A. C. Harper filed another suit for $200,000 damages in the Superior Court yesterday.

The Mayor asks $50,000 damages on each of four counts, consisting of alleged malicious, defamatory and libelous reflections on his personal and official character, on his administration of the city government and on his attitude toward vice and crime.

He says, in part, that he "is a man of family, and of large personal acquaintance and prior to the false and defamatory publications hereinafter stated, bore a good name and reputation as an upright man and as Mayor of Los Angeles, and generally among the people of California. Plaintiff alleges upon information and belief that for more than a year Edwin T. Earl has continually harbored and expressed private and personal malice and hostility toward said plaintiff."

The Mayor stigmatizes as false and malicious an article in the Evening Express of October 3, beginning: 'Says Woolwine: 'I am satisfied that vice has been and is being protected in Los Angeles by the Mayor and the Police Commission.' "

An article in the Evening Express of August 12, entitled, "Woolwine to Close Redlight District" is also declared to have injured the Mayor's good name and reputation, and to have brought him into public contempt.

The third count is based on an alleged scandalous cartoon published in the Evening Express of August 14, in which a man is shown tied in a chair by ropes bearing the words "controlled by law-breaking element" and labeled 'Police Commission," of which the Mayor is a member.

The fourth is based on an article in the Evening Express of October 1, entitled "He Holds the Proof," in which charges are made that the Mayor has unlawfully protected vice.

All these words and publications are declared to be false and defamatory.

BEARDSLEY FREED.

BAD CHECK CHARGE OFF.

On motion of Deputy District Attorney Asa Keyes, and after a thorough investigation, Judge Jamison has dismissed a charge against A. M. Beardsley of passing a fictitious $5 check drawn on the Hollywood National Bank.

Beardsley, who is secretary and manager of the Hollywood Granite Company, gave $2500 bail in the Long Beach justice court. He was examined on the 19th inst. and held to the Superior Court on a charge of passing the check on L. H. Hayte, a Long Beach grocer, September 20. Another charge against Beardsley by the Burns-Farnsworth Shoe Company, Los Angeles, who complained that he had passed a worthless $28 check on them, was dismissed by Justice Summerfield October 21.

Mr. Keyes, it is said, visited the Hollywood National Bank and made a thorough investigation of Beardsley's dealings there, as all the checks complained of were drawn on that bank. As Beardsley's difficulties appeared due to other than criminal causes, the charge against him was dismissed.

"The whole trouble was due to the failure of two parties to honor promptly checks they had sent me," said Beardsley yesterday. "The checks were deposited by me with the Hollywood National Bank, where I have had an account for eighteen months. The bank has handled $24,000 on my account, and, as soon as I had deposited the $353 check and the $171 check that I had received, I issued small checks against the amount.

"But there was a misunderstanding about the payment of the checks, which was later cleared up. In the meantime criminal charges had been made against me by persons who had received my checks. I have no intention of leaving Hollywood. I was accused through an unfortunate series of events, though innocent of wrong intention."

BLEW HIS HORN.

WIFE WANTS DIVORCE.

The spitefulness of Peter Domercq, a Redondo workman, in blowing a brass horn from midnight until early morning, that Mrs. Emma Domercq and his five children might not get any sleep when they had displeased him, was set forth as evidence in Judge Conrey's court yesterday.

Mrs. Domercq applied for a divorce on grounds of cruelty. She said that after years of married life with a man who drank, quarreled and fought, and finally hit her over the head with a shovel, she at last made up her mind that she could stand him no longer, and left him in February last. Mrs. Long, her sister, who said she was a boarder in the Domercq home for nine months, gave a vivid description of Domercq's methods of ruling his household.

"He was drunk and ugly most of the time," Mrs. Long said. "If his wife paid a visit to the neighbors, he had a habit of getting up about midnight and blowing sudden blasts on a big brass horn that he had. That would wake us all up, and he would tramp around the house, blowing the horn for hours, so we could get no sleep.

"One night he came home drunk, woke up his wife, and wanted her to drink some whisky from his bottle. When she refused, he threw the bottle at her, but she dodged it, or it would have hurt or killed her. She had hysterics, and was sick because of his constant ill treatment. I have seen Domercq take his children by the back of the neck and kick them for no particular reason, and he would also chase them with a pitchfork. Finally, he hit my sister over the head with a shovel and was put in jail."

Judge Conrey ordered that Domercq be subpoenaed to appear next week and explain why a divorce shall not be granted his wife.

STREET SPEAKING.

SALVATIONISTS IN COURT.

The constitutionality of the present Los Angeles city ordinance prohibiting the holding of street meetings and public assemblages in the district bounded approximately by Main, Spring, Broadway and Hill streets, from the Plaza to Seventh street, was argued at length yesterday before Judge Wilbur by Attorneys Grove Walter and Stephen Sullivan, counsel for Maj. Anna M. Smith of the Salvation Army, and Assistant City Prosecuting Attorney Guy Eddie, who defended the validity of the ordinance. Judge Wilbur will hear further argument on the matter Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Maj. Smith was arrested and jailed by the police on the 5th inst. for taking part in a Salvation Army meeting on West Fifth street, near Broadway. She applied for a writ of habeas corpus, which came to hearing yesterday before a courtroom filled with members of the Salvation Army and their friends.

Counsel for Maj. Smith argued that the present ordinance is in contravention of the Federal and State constitutional right of the people to free speech and free assemblage for free speech, and that this right cannot be practically taken away under any pretense of officially regulating it. They argued that public street assemblages may be regulated, but not prohibited, and that absolute suppression of them in any given territory is equivalent to a denial of the constitutional right of free speech.

Mr. Eddie, on the other hand, argued that, by decisions of the Federal Supreme Court, the constitutional right of the people to free speech and assemblage has been declared to be limited by considerations of the general welfare. He asserted that, under the Federal and State constitutions, and under the city charter, the city authorities have the right to regulate traffic on the streets, the title to which rests in the city, as they are primarily for the use of pedestrians and citizens about their business. As the paramount purpose of the streets is for traffic, he argued, privileges for all other uses of the streets can be granted or withheld by the municipal authorities.

Mr. Eddie also called the court's attention to the vested police power of the city, by which the authorities are empowered to regulate street traffic so as to preserve the public safety, morals or health. He pointed out the practical hindrances to pedestrians from having the streets in the business section blocked by crowds of people, and urged that on this ground the present city ordinance is a sensible measure for the general comfort and welfare of citizens.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

BATTERY. Vest Thompson, Hollywood, accused by E. W. Van Horn, an electrician, with striking him over the head with a lantern during a dispute on the 16th inst. at Hollywood, paid $20 fine in Justice Summerfield's court yesterday for battery. Van Horn appeared in court with his head swathed in bandages, and said the quarrel arose over his refusal to install a light for Thompson without authority from Van Horn's employers. Thompson said that Van Horn declared he was the better man, that both swung their lighted lanterns, and that Thompson's lantern landed first.

HUSBAND INSANE. Mrs. Martha E. Shrader testified in Judge Conrey's court yesterday that she married W. W. Shrader in San Antonio, Tex., last November, and soon after her marriage was led by his erratic actions to make inquiries of his family as to his sanity. She then learned that he had been in a California asylum, and that his people considered him mentally affected. A guardian has been appointed for Shrader, and Mrs. Shrader sued for a divorce, on the ground that he was insane when he married her. Judge Conrey continued the matter, that authorities may be presented establishing Mrs. Shrader's statutory right to a legal separation, as she testified that she has resided in California only since last December.

INCORPORATIONS. Articles of incorporation were filed in the Superior Court yesterday by the North American Finance and Promotion Company, capital stock $3,000,000, and the Gold Mountain Hydraulic and Dredging Company, capital stock $1,000,000.

EXPLANATION.

ELECTION OF SUPERIOR JUDGES.

By recent decision of the Supreme Court, this is the official form of the ballot.

As will appear below, the phrase "Vote for four" means "You may, if you wish, vote for four."

For Judge of the Superior Court, (Full Term) (Vote for Four) CURTIS D. WILBUR.	☐	For Judge of the Superior Court, (Full Term) (Vote for Four) ALBERT LEE STEPHENS.	☐
For Judge of the Superior Court, (Full Term) (Vote for Four) FRANK R. WILLIS.	☐
For Judge of the Superior Court, (Full Term) (Vote for Four) CHARLES MONROE.	☐
For Judge of the Superior Court, (Full Term) (Vote for Four) NATHANIEL P. CONREY.	☐
For Judge of the Superior Court, (For the Unexpired Term) W. H. JAMISON.	☐

Jamison's candidacy for unexpired term is uncontested, and has nothing to do with the others who are running for full term.

Notwithstanding their position on the ballot, Stephens is not running against Wilbur any more than the others. That is, you may vote for either or for both.

You may vote for any one, any two, any three, or any four of the five candidates running for full terms.

The Republican candidate receiving the lowest number of votes will be defeated by Stephens's election.

The Democrats having conceded three Republicans out of the four by making only one nomination, should vote for Stephens only.

Three of the four Republicans will be elected anyhow. Therefore, Republicans desiring to signify their approval of a non-partisan judiciary should vote for Stephens.

Then, with the holdovers, the full Superior Bench of the county will stand one Democrat to eight Republicans.

Security Savings Bank

IS the oldest and largest Savings Bank in the Southwest.

Its Capital and Reserve is $1,250,000.00 (one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars).

It has over 47,000 depositors and is opening new accounts at the rate of over fifty per day.

All its deposits are invested in interest-bearing securities of the first class.

Its loans are all examined and approved in writing by a board of fourteen directors, which meets each week for this purpose.

It makes no loans to its officers or directors.

It carries at all times a proper and safe cash reserve, and when it has a larger cash reserve than necessary for the accommodation of its depositors it loans the surplus at home at reasonable rates of interest.

It transacts a Savings Bank business in all respects in accordance with the laws of the State of California.

Not one dollar of its depositors' money is invested in a building.

It has unsurpassed Banking accommodations and the largest and best equipped Safe Deposit Department west of Chicago.

It has more than 7000 Safe Deposit Boxes rented and the vaults have capacity for 25,000.

The above facts are worth considering by the depositor who wishes to open an account in a strong, conservative and reliable institution.

sessments had been left to the local assessors. In 1906, after the constitutional amendment now pending had been framed by the Tax Commission, and before it was reported to the Legislature, the State Board of Equalization saw a new light and began to calculate railroad assessments on the basis of gross earnings, which is the commission's method. In 1907, the same plan was followed and improved upon, with the result that the aggregate of railroad assessments, which had been $69,820,186 in 1905, went up to $113,822,216 in 1907. In 1908 it rose still higher and was $116,698,162. So the constitutional amendment, which has not yet been adopted, and possibly will not be, has already had the effect of making the greatest raise in the assessments and taxes of railroads ever known in California. It has brought many hundred thousand dollars into the treasuries of the State and counties which otherwise would not have been there. From that point of view the Tax Commission has been a vast public benefit, and imputations upon its motives are uncalled for.

In this connection there is another thing which may be said. If railroad assessments and taxes continue to be computed upon the basis of gross earnings they will increase from year to year in a way which will be satisfactory to other taxpayers, though they may not be to the railroads, because the volume of transportation earnings is bound to increase rapidly, and an arrangement by which the taxes will automatically increase in the same proportion will swell the public revenues faster than if the State Equalizers are left to guess every year what the steam railroads are worth. Under the old plan there was a period of a full dozen years in which the assessments of the Central Pacific Railroad was not increased a single dollar, being fixed each year at just $13,000,000, although during that time the company's traffic grew by leaps and bounds. It would have been a great boon to the taxpayers if during that time the gross earnings plan of taxation had been in force.

Here I will consider briefly an objection which impresses some persons as serious, and which seemed so to me until fuller knowledge dispelled the fear. It is said that as soon as the railroads find they are being taxed in proportion to their gross earnings they will conceal or misrepresent them and thus defraud the State. As I have said, that apprehension possessed me for a time, but it was when I knew less than I do now of railroad systems of accounting. After the present year's work of the State Board of Equalization, in which it had the assistance of an expert in this branch, I realize that a great railroad corporation could not falsify its accounts without involving its business in a confusion which would eventually cost it more than the difference in its taxes. Moreover, by force both of business traditions and of law, railroad gross earnings and operating expenses have come to have the utmost publicity; important railroad companies issue statements monthly, the accuracy of which is not questioned, and once a year all companies must report to the Interstate Commerce Commission with such fullness of detail as reduces the chances of successful concealment to nil. Every great railroad corporation is so much concerned to sustain its credit in the bond market that it has a direct incentive to make both its gross and net earnings look as large as possible. All of the important railroad companies in California this year opened their books for inspection at the request of the Board of Equalization, and if the constitutional amendment is adopted, obvious policy will require a statute giving the board the power to demand this as a right and to enforce it. No amount of railroad gross earnings which can be concealed will ever make much difference in the taxes paid.

Another objection which has been urged with considerable seriousness is that under the amendment the public service corporations would be taxed at a fixed rate, while other property owners will pay on a rate varying from year to year, as they do now. Strange as it may seem to the objectors, the promoters of the amendment believe this constitutes one of its greatest advantages. As it is now, large corporations are almost invariably in politics to fight for low assessments, and it goes without saying that they often succeed; but whether they do or not, they corrupt the political organizations and interfere sadly with good government. But suppose the ratio of their taxes is an invariable one, and the assessment of the same is reduced to the mere arithmetical operation of multiplying their gross earnings by this ratio; then they have nothing to gain on the score of taxes by attempting to control the government of the State. In other words, the new method of assessing corporations would remove one of the strongest excuses and temptations from them to be meddling in politics.

But, coming back to the question of whether it is just to have a fixed rate of taxation for one class of taxpayers and a shifting rate of another class, it is only the rate which is fixed and not the amount of the tax; the latter will go up and down with the increase or decrease of gross earnings, so that the taxes of the public service corporations will vary from year to year, as will those of other persons. But in the nature of things the changes with these corporations must be generally in the direction of an increase, because with the growth of population and business the gross earnings of the big corporations increase steadily, though sometimes their net earnings fluctuate a good deal. The business of steam railroads, electric railroads, electric power companies and telegraph and telephone companies tends to grow more rapidly than either the population or wealth of the community, and therefore a tax increasing exactly in proportion to their increase of traffic seems to insure the payment by them of a larger and larger proportion of all the taxes.

Again, although a fixed rate of taxes for some classes of taxpayers may be a novelty in California, it has become familiar enough in other States—for example, in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts—and there seems to be no objection to it as a discrimination in those commonwealths. A large portion of all their taxes is raised on this kind of levies, and, as every one knows, the taxes of the Federal government are all collected on rates established by law.

But let us come to the underlying principle of the constitutional amendment, which is the separation of State from local taxes. Although the importance of this as a first step in any reform of taxation abuses may not be appreciated by the average voter, it is not underrated by anybody who has given special consideration to the matter. In the National Conference on Taxation, held in Columbus, O., last year there were many men of many minds; they represented all sections and very varied interests, and they could, perhaps, all agree on but few things; but they did agree that the separation of State and local taxation was the a, b, c of fiscal reform, for the resolution to that effect passed by unanimous vote.

All of the practical men having to do with taxation in California—county assessors, and auditors and treasurers, and tax collectors, as well as members of the State Board of Equalization—agree that separation would be the remedy for the worst abuses. So long as there is a heavy State tax the county assessors will make their assessments with reference thereto, and although the State Board of Equalization is supposed to even things up, so that all counties will pay in proportion, it does not do so. Investigations made by the State board this year went to show that in Los Angeles county a certain proportion of assessed values of real estate to actual values held good, while in an adjoining county the proposition was hardly more than half as much. But the State board did not raise the low county—only one member wanted to do so, and he was not given much attention by the majority.

Indeed, when the State board is restricted by the constitution to raising or lowering a county as a whole, equalization is a rather unjust sort of justice, because in every county some property is sure to be assessed high enough and other property too low, and raising or lowering as a whole only accentuates these inequalities. Recently there was paid $72,000 for a lot on Larkin street in San Francisco to be used as the site for a State building; that lot was assessed for but little more than $15,000, or 20 per cent. No doubt there are other assessments in San Francisco equally low, but there are many which are proportionately a great deal higher and it is easy to realize the injustice which would be done to some by the raising of the entire assessment roll of San Francisco. It will always be so, and the State board as an equalizer of the inequalities of fifty-eight county assessors, each desiring to give his county a little the best of it, will never be much of a success.

As a more startling illustration showing how the existing system works injustice, which can hardly be cured by any method but a revolutionary one, take these examples: The assessor of Los Angeles county imposed a franchise assessment of several million dollars on the Union Oil Company, and next year it moved its principal place of business to Contra Costa county, where it gets off with a merely nominal assessment of its franchise. Also, the Los Angeles assessor put a franchise assessment of more than $1,300,000 on the Home Telephone Company; the larger and wealthier Pacific States Telephone Company claims to have its principal place of business in Contra Costa county, and it is assessed only $5000 on its franchise. A system which permits the annihilation of millions of dollars of assessable values through the easy device of passing a resolution and moving some account books and possibly a few clerks from one county to another can never be a good one. Under the taxation plan of the constitutional amendment such tax dodging would be impossible, and nothing could be gained by moving out of one county and into another.

If this amendment is not adopted we shall be thrown back on the old system with all its deficiencies, and the latter are so firmly embedded in the fundamental law of the State that no real relief can be had except through sweeping constitutional change.

BELL INSISTS ON ONE EXCEPTION.

OPPOSES RAISING SALARY OF LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR.

Other Increases Proposed in Constitutional Amendment Senator Favors Heartily—Legislative Sessions not Long Enough, He Thinks—Favors Dropping Useless Attachés.

Salient points in the proposed constitutional amendments which refer to officials of the State and their duties were discussed by State Senator Charles W. Bell at the City Club's luncheon at Hotel Westminster, yesterday. In speaking of the amendment relating to the compensation of officers, he said that he favored the increase in salaries except in the case of the Lieutenant-Governor.

"This amendment," said Mr. Bell, "proposes to raise the yearly salaries of State officers as follows: Governor, from $6000 to $10,000; Lieutenant-Governor, from a per diem of $10, plus mileage and contingent expenses of $25 for two biennial sessions of sixty days each, to a yearly salary of $4000; Secretary of State, Controller, Treasurer and Surveyor-General, from $3000 to $5000; the Attorney-General, from $3000 to $6000. It also raises the limit to be paid any clerk from $1600 to $1800."

In explaining his attitude as regards the Lieutenant-Governor's salary, the Senator said: "It does seem to me to be a pretty stiff raise from a per diem of $10 to that of $133, providing the Legislature remains in session sixty days at each biennial session, or, in other words, a raise from $1200 to $16,000; or let us assume that the sessions are of seventy-five days each; that would make the pay of the Lieutenant-Governor $106 a day, providing there was no extra session.

"The Speaker of the Assembly presides over that body of eighty members for $10 per day, plus mileage and contingent expenses.

"Certainly his duties are no less irksome or laborious than that of presiding over the Senate of forty members. I mention this with due respect to the present incumbent. I am speaking of the duties of the office, and not of the men. I believe the change is uncalled for, but I trust the amendment will carry in justice to the other officers mentioned, but especially for the clerks. The raising of the maximum clerical salary from $133.33 to $150 per month is too small to meet the increased cost of living."

Regarding amendment No. 16, which relates to the length of legislative sessions, the compensation of members of the Legislature and limiting the expense of the employés of the Senate and Assembly, changes the time for introducing a legislative bill from fifty days from the commencement of a legislative session to forty days, and requires the consent of three-fourths of the members, instead of two-thirds, as at the present time, the speaker said:

"The compensation of the legislators is raised from $8 a day for a session limited to sixty days to $1000 for a session without limit of time. It also provides for $10 a day for an extra session, instead of $8 per day. There is a limit of $500 a day put on the amount that each of the two houses shall spend for compensation of officers, employés and attachés for a regular session, and $200 a day for an extra session.

"This practically is the same amount that was defeated by the voters two years ago.

"Certain it is that sixty days is not sufficient time to properly consider the business that comes before the legislators. The last session continued about seventy days. The $8 a day was cut off at the end of sixty days. An unlimited session would give legislators who were earnest in the effort to perform their duties in an intelligent, painstaking and conscientious manner the needed time to perform the same.

"Senate constitutional amendment No. 32, relating to the limitation of expense of employés of Senate and Assembly, might be very properly considered in conjunction with Senate constitutional amendment No. 16, for this amendment, No. 32, provides for the same limitation of expense of attachés.

"Without changing the pay or the time limit for the members of the Legislature, this amendment gives the people a chance to do away with useless attachés.

"Assembly constitutional amendment No. 28 is in relation to the approval and return of bills by the Governor and the exercise of the veto power. This amendment will give the Governor thirty days' time after the adjournment of the Legislature within which to sign a bill, instead of ten days, as prescribed by the original section. This amendment should receive favorable attention from the voters."

At the conclusion of Senator Bell's speech, Joseph Noel of Oakland, in discussing the India Basin act, predicted a splendid future for the State. Declaring that more harbor facilities are needed, he urged voters to help San Francisco by foavring the act referred to.

Origin of a Popular Hymn.

The Springfield Republican, in speaking of the death of the veteran Philadelphia organist and choirmaster, Lewis H. Redner, says that he will be long remembered as the composer of the tune "St. Louis," to which Phillips Brooks's hymn "O Little Town of Bethlehem" is sung. Dr. Brooks, then rector of the church, found his inspiration for the hymn in Palestine in 1865, and composed it a year later. In 1868 he asked the organist, Mr. Redner, to set it to music for the Christmas service, and the tune came to the composer's mind in his sleep on the night before Christmas. Dr. Huntington, then rector of All Saints' Church in Worcester, soon included it in his Sunday-school hymn-book and it became at once a great favorite.

Address invariably, The Times.

No Tungstic Acid.

CRESCENT (Nev.) Sept. 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Enclosed please find two pieces of ore from the Crescent district.

No. 1 (the quartz specimen) I think contains some tungsten values.

No. 2 (the black rock) we do not know anything about.

If you would kindly put us on to the nature of the samples you will do the camp of Crescent a deal of good. Thanking you in advance, I remain,

Yours truly, J. W.

ANSWER: No. 1 (marked by you as "quartz.") This sample carries iron oxides, and approximately, 20 per cent. manganese dioxide with low per cent. lead vanadate.

No. 2 contains less manganese than No. 1. Lead is present in the sample to a very low per cent., and unless the ore, represented by the specimens, assays gold and silver values it is of no commercial value.

Gladly would we shuffle "a deal of good" to Crescent, were it possible. While on the subject it is well to note, that a great number of ore samples have been submitted to this department of The Times from Crescent, Nev., the correspondents believing the specimens to be ores of tungsten.

Please note the following facts: Wulfenite (molybdate of lead) with vanadic acid, occurs near Crescent, but so far, no Wolframite (tungstate of iron) has been submitted to this department, from Crescent.

Look out for a gray mineral with wax-yellow and aurora-red colors carrying microscopical crystals (around your section of country.) The mineral is heavy; it resembles a furnace product, and is very valuable.

Mexican Manganese Ore.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Please find enclosed samples of black oxide of manganese.

These samples came from extensive deposits of that mineral, on the coast of Western Mexico. There, are found massive veins from twenty to sixty feet wide of 40 to 63 per cent. of the oxide—free of sulphur or phosphorus.

Information is respectfully requested as to the proper way to smelt or reduce (on the ground) this ore to a commercial product, such as ferro-manganese, copper manganese, or metallic manganese. Requesting also, the name of a standard work on the metallurgy of manganese ores. Copper carbonate, iron ore, and limestone are found adjacent to the manganese ore. All being near the sea shore. Respectfully,

DR. C. A. McQ.

ANSWER.—Near the sea shore? Have you a port of entry near the ore deposits? If so, why not ship the manganese oxides to New York or Europe?

The very small samples, by you submitted comprise: One of wad (bog manganese) and the remainder are pyrolusite.

To smelt or reduce on the ground the manganese and other ores you refer to would call for considerable capital.

While many processes are known to metallurgists for the reduction of such ores as by you enumerated, "standard works" thereon are rarities. Such processes have been successfully worked for years, and the best of them are not found in books; they are kept "on the quiet," as it were.

"The Mineral Industry, During 1907, Vol. XVI." Price $10, would probably be the "standard work" you ask for.

The bulk of manganese ore used by the steel companies of our country is imported.

Manganese bronze is the product you refer to when made of copper and ferro-manganese with tin, or zinc, added.

Space will not permit much further reference. See "Ohly's Rare Minerals," on ferro-manganese. "The New Standard Encyclopedia" will give you many facts on the utilization and manufacture of the many products, and by-products, obtainable from the deposits outlined by you.

Most any work on metallurgy will show method of obtaining metallic manganese.

Consult further "Mineral Resources of the United States."

Siliceous Talc.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I inclose sample of ore found in a ledge about two feet wide, and twenty miles from Banning, in Riverside county. The rock looks as though it might carry copper, and the black material looks like graphite. Will you kindly classify this through the columns of your valuable paper and advise if it is of commercial value.

Thanking you in advance, I am

Very truly yours, R. W. S.

ANSWER: Samples are very impure siliceous talc. They resemble wall rock only, and carry iron oxides, with titaniferous iron. Here and there is a microscopical crystal of bladed gypsum. This ore has been frequently sent to The Times as "a telluride." There is no tellurium present, a trace only of copper, and of but little value commercially.

Graphite.

NOGALES (Ariz.) Sept. 26.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Here is a sample of mineral, twenty-eight miles located from this town in Sonora, Mex. I will be very gratefully obliged if you will state in your most valuable paper what of this sample? Some of my friends say it must be "molybdenite." Others say it is "graphite." Please state what is the operation of distinguishing the two minerals—as simple a plan as is adviseable, and please name it.

Yours with respect, A. B. DeG.

ANSWER: The mineral is named at the subheading. Here follows a simple test that may appear ridiculous; but "it works out" all right:

Place a small chunk of the mineral on charcoal, apply the flame of an ordinary blowpipe. If the chunk turns yellowish or brown afetr long continued heat and no fumes of sulphur are evolved and is infusible, it is probably graphite. If acids have no effect upon the sample it is graphite.

A piece of molybdenite is also infusible b.b., but it gives off sulphurous acid fumes, and covers the charcoal [illegible] Molybdenite dissolves in boiling sulphuric acid and gives a blue solution. Molybdenite is heavier (Sp. gr.) than graphite. The streak of molybdenite on a sheet of paper is gray; that of graphite is black.

Iron Peroxide.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] A prospector sends me the sample in tin box. He says it is from near Cajon Pass, and hopes that it is wolframite. Please state what it is in your "In the Earth." Yours truly, G. H.

Carbonate of Lime.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] While on a trip east of Colton, I ran across a lead of ore which I call lime tungsten ore. Please state what it really is if I am mistaken.

Yours truly, B. L. W.

Fluor Spar.

NEEDLES, Sept. 29.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you a blue, glassy substance found near Parker, Ariz., I would be glad to know what it is? Thanking you in advance for an answer.

Yours truly, J. B. N.

Iron and Lead.

COLTON, Sept. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am mailing you under separate cover a small sample of ore, which I found in Riverside county. So far I am unable to treat it successfully myself, though I know it contains gold. I am not sure as to what else it may contain, or the best method of treatment to obtain good results. I may be asking you more than you care to answer, if so, kindly give me what information you can, and greatly oblige,

Yours very truly, N. D.

ANSWER: There is no information in the humble possession of the editor of this department of The Times on the subjects of chemistry, metallurgy and minerals, that he would not freely give to mankind. Just what you desire does not clearly appear from your letter.

The sample is made up of iron oxides, sulphur and traces of lead. You "know it contains gold."

If you desire any test on mineralogy you have but to ask for it, and it will be gladly given.

Tungstic Acid not Present.

WENDENDALE (Ariz.) Sept. 27.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Find inclosed sample of ore from my claims twelve miles north of Bouse. I would like to know if the ore contains tungsten. I believe it does. C. F. B.

ANSWER: The calcitic and iron carbonate contents in your ore of copper masks the reaction (wet methods) for tungstic acid in the absence of aqueous ammonia. There is no tungstic acid in the sample however.

Zeolitic.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Herewith a small sample of rock from San Bernardino county that is very light, without grit, more or less soluble in water, and has a salty taste; may be soda or some other mineral of commercial value. Will you kindly say, and oblige.

READER.

ANSWER: The sample goes (partly) to a jelly in sulphuric acid. It is "gritty" (silicious.) It is not soluble in water, excepting the microscopical crystals of sodium borate (a very low per cent.) Potash traces, and sulphur are present, with silica over 20 per cent. It is colored with dumortierite (aluminum silicate,) and is of no value commercially.

No Tungsten Ores.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I herewith inclose some samples found twelve miles north of Escondido. No. 1, gold; No. 2, topaz; No. 3, iron; No. 4, tungsten; No. 5, aluminum. Kindly state in the "In the Earth" columns if correct, and of what commercial value.

Respectfully, E. T.

ANSWER: No. 1 is conglomerate, stained with iron oxides and manganese dioxide; gold values doubtful; No. 2 is quartz; No. 3 resembles No. 1, but is more quartzitic; No. 4 is feldspar (orthoclase;) No. 5 granular quartz. Commercial values of the five specimens are very low indeed.

Not Ball Clay.

REDLANDS, Sept. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am sending to you what I believe to be a fine quality of potter's clay, and yet, it seems to contain considerable graphite. It was taken over one year ago from a lead on the San Bernardino mountains. When in the lead it is black and soft and handles oily. It is close to the railroad and water.

Will you kindly inform me through your paper if this would be of any commercial value.

Yours very truly, H. R. H.

ANSWER: The sample is a very impure blue "ball clay," and in no wise comparable (for purity) with the Cumberland, England, variety. Your sample carries, approximately, 45 per cent. silica. In the make up of biscuit-ware, its value would be extremely doubtful. With a clay-washing machine and press, the product might be salable, but it would not be a paying proposition.

Interesting Test for Gold.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Some three years ago I wrote you many letters and profited greatly by your "In the Earth" department.

While in Colorado I met a miner at Creede who told me that, during my absence in Mexico, you published a test for gold with acid and a lamp chimney, but that he could give me no further particulars.

If this is correct will you oblige me and many more miners by publishing the same. Yours truly, D. B. A.

ANSWER.—Glad to hear from you. Try the following: Take a wide-mouth bottle that will hold four fluid ounces.

Powder an ounce of ore. If it carries sulphide give the powdered ore a good, sweet roast on a piece of sheet-iron. If the ore is oxidized it needs no roast.

In either event place the ore in the bottle; add water (in volume) as much as ore, in plain English if you have an inch of ore in the bottle, add an inch of water. To the ore and water add 10 per cent. (volume) of hydrochloric acid. Shake the mixture. Pour into your hand one fourth of a teaspoonful of mercury (quicksilver,) c.p., and free of gold.

Shake the mixture four or five times in twenty-four hours; meanwhile keeping the bottle and contents on back of stove—nearly milk warm. At the expiration of the time stated wash out the mercury from the mixture.

Now make a little pan of burnished (clean it bright with a knife or file) sheet iron, turn it up at the edges, forming a little pan two inches square. Into the pan place your mercury obtained from the acid solution. Set the pan on edge of stove, with low fire until the water is driven off. (If you place the pan and contents on hot part of stove at first the mercury will "spit," and much of it be lost.)

After the water is driven off place a Macbeth lamp chimney on two 8d wire nails on top of stove with the little pan and mercury between the nails and inside (at the bottom) of the lamp chimney. On top of the chimney place a roll of dampened muslin, and during the "retorting" of the mercury keep [illegible] containing quicksilver, to keep the muslin damp.

In approximately an hour if the powdered ore contains gold you will have from 75 to 80 per cent. of the gold values in the little pan. The mercury can be saved by brushing it with a feather from the bottom of the muslin and from the sides of the lamp chimney.

This process is not much on style, but for a practical lesson in metallurgy it is of value.

Dolomite and Sienna.

OGILBY (Cal.) Sept. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I inclose you three samples from the desert; situated about fifteen miles northwest from Ogilby, and nine miles from the S. P. R.R. These samples were taken out of a shaft twenty feet deep, in a very large iron dyke. The shaft contains soft, sugar quartz all through it. I sunk through six feet—the full width of the hanging wall side of soft, white stuff like sugar; it did not require picking. There are iron strata running through the ledge as we go down, and appears to improve in value. The other stuff is soft mostly, and of all colors. A brown-colored coarse quartz seems to follow the ledge, but it is of no value. The iron streaks do not seem to be affected by it.

As I am an old subscriber to your valuable paper, I would like to have your advice on the matter. Will it pay to follow it? Keep the stuff.

W. S.

ANSWER.—Much obliged for the "stuff." The harder of the two gray-white samples is impure dolomite (magnesium limestone.)

The granular, gray-white material is 85 per cent. quartz, with aluminum silicate.

The brown sample is a mixture of iron oxides and carbonate, with low per cent. of iron oxide (sienna) useful for paint—if purer.

The editor of this department of The Times would not expect much of a gold mine from the very poor showing of your ores.

AIMING HIGH.

GREAT PLANS FOR RAWHIDE.

MANY MILL EXPERTS LOOKING OVER CAMP'S ADVANTAGES.

Mines Need Customs Plant and Sampler—Grutt Mining Will Forward Another Shipment This Month — High-grade Encountered by Grutt Hill Truitt Lease.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

RAWHIDE, Oct. 19.—Plans are afoot which, if successfully carried out, will make Rawhide one of the most prosperous camps in the West. They include the establishment of a big mill and a sampler. There are at present no less than five mill men in camp examining the mines, testing the ores, and making analysis of the water. The eastern syndicate which proposes to take over the railroad between here and Schurz has a corps of engineers sampling the various properties with the view of determining how much ore, approximately, there will be to haul on the road. J. B. Fleming, who designed the Consolidated mill of Goldfield, is also here at the direction of the Coalition mines, with a view to determine the possibilities of the camp as a milling proposition, the best treatment of the ores, and to get an idea of the size of a mill that could be most profitably employed. Capt. Davis of the Dayton mill is another of the millmen who is examining the possibilities of the camp. Dr. Weiss, a Colorado millman, is here on the same errand, and there arrived today Cliff McClelland, a promoter from San Francisco, who was responsible for the establishment of the first mill in Manhattan.

This gives an idea of the interest that is being manifested in Rawhide on the outside, and shows what the future holds in store for the camp. Mr. Fleming, who is one of the best mill authorities in the county, has been here for several days, and confesses that he has not yet seen it all; but what he has seen has more than surprised him. He says that he never saw so much gold over such a wide area.

"I have been over the camp pretty thoroughly, in company with Mr. J. G. Flynn, engineer of the Coalition," said Mr. Fleming, "and that I have been agreeably surprised is putting it lightly. I have panned and sampled the dumps and workings, and the amount of milling ore that I saw on the dumps and in the various workings far exceeded anything I had imagined. I feel that the time is ripe and the need urgent for a big custom mill in the camp, and there is no doubt that there will be one here before long. If, in addition to the mill, there was a sampler, the prosperity of the camp would be assured immediately. To my mind the mill should have a sampler attached. In that case the ore could be hauled to the sampler today and tomorrow the leaser or the mine owner would receive his money for the product.

"This would have the effect of improving conditions in the camp right away, for it would mean greater employment of labor, and the greater development of the mines. Money would be put into circulation and there would be no dependence upon the outside world for the progress of the leases and the mines. The ore is free milling and will readily yield from 90 to 95 per cent. of the values in a well equipped and up-to-date mill.

"There is no doubt as to the future of Rawhide. There never was a better showing anywhere from a mining standpoint than there is here. I was much surprised both at the wide area and the great bodies of ore that are exposed. In my pannings both from the dumps and the workings I did not get a blank anywhere. The ore is largely a grade of milling quality, while there are a number of mines shipping ore of very high grade. There is no doubt that further development is going to open up very large bodies of ore and produce some of the biggest mines in the country."

COALITION SHIPMENTS.

The Coalition is big with promise and heavy with production. On Grutt Hill, the richest eminence in the camp for the production of high-grade ore, Grutt Mining Company, operating one of the Coalition's leases will send out another shipment of thirty tons at the end of the month. Of this shipment thirty-five sacks of ore taken from the drift at the forty-foot level, were sampled today and the returns were $325 a ton. They are sacking two tons of this high-grade a day. The Marigold lease has the southern extension of the Grutt Mining, and they have opened up eighteen inches of ore which returns the same values as those of the Grutt Mining. In the Grutt Hill Truitt, to the west of the Marigold, thirty feet to the west of the shaft, they have encountered high-grade ore, where they are sinking a winze on a parallel vein to the Grutt Mining.

New blood has been infused into the Truett lease on Hooligan Hill. There has been a reorganization of the company, which is now in fine shape, and there is a project afoot to put up a mill, a year's extension having been granted. The mine is a steady shipper, and was never in better shape than at present.

CONSOLIDATED'S FINE SHOWING.

REPORT GIVES CASH BALANCE AS NEARLY A MILLION.

New Mill, Railroad and Equipment All Paid for and New Year Will Start With Eight Hundred Thousand on Hand—Large Amount of Development.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) Oct. 22.—A circular report has just been issued by General Manager John H. Mackenzie of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company to the stockholders. It contains some interesting figures and particulars with regard to recent development on the various properties of the big merger, and shows that the concern is in a most prosperous condition, and destined to become one of the great producing mines in the world, as outlined a short time ago by the mining editor of The Times, after a visit of inspection to the property.

That the estimates contained in the article by Sidney Norman were by no means exaggerated is apparent from the statement of Mr. Mackenzie, who is notoriously one of the most conservative men in the mining business. The report gives the most concise account of the progress upon and present condition of both the mines and the new mill which has been given to the public, and demonstrates that, while the company has made no effort at production, beyond a sufficient tonnage to keep the Combination mill running, it has carried out an enormous amount of exploratory and development work.

The balance sheet for the period covered by the report, November 1, 1907, to September 30, 1908, shows that a total profit of $552,329.54 has been made in that time. Cash on hand October 1, 1908, was $849,091.31, while bullion in transit amounted to $74,811.71—total $923,903.02. The cost of railroad to the new mill is given at $91,708.44, the water system took $17,426.97, the new mill is estimated at $755,864.59, and the concentrate treatment auxiliary plant at $35,000. With the profits from the Combination mill added to present cash resources the new mill and all equipment will be paid for and the company will begin the new year with a balance of over $800,000.

The definite statement is made that, when the 100-stamp mill is in commission, 600 tons of ore will be treated a day, with an average value of from $35 to $40 per ton and an extraction of from 94 to 95 per cent. The mining, development and transportation costs are given at $3.25 per ton, while milling is estimated at not to exceed $2.75 per ton.

The concentrates produced by the Combination mill have formerly been shipped to Salt Lake smelters, the freight and treatment charges ranging from $35 to $50 per ton. The report points out that a new method of treatment has been discovered, and that the concentrates are now being treated with an extraction equal to that allowed by the smelters, while the cost will not exceed one sixth of the old freight and smelter charges. The greater part of the concentrates produced by the Combination mill during the year have been treated in a temporary plant, and a new and complete plant is being erected in conjunction with the new mill.

During the past eleven months 16,000 feet of development work has been done on company account, mostly in the Mohawk and Combination mines. No stoping has been done except in the Combination, where an average of about eighty tons has been raised. The report emphasizes the pleasant relations now existing between management and men, and says that the arbitration of prospective apex troubles has removed all chance of trouble for many years.

STRIKE ON PARALLEL.

Searchlight Property Finds High-grade in New Shaft—Duplex Also to the Front.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) Oct. 22.—Two sensational strikes are recorded this week on the inner circle of this camp. One is on the Parallel where, in a new shaft at a depth of forty-five feet, there is a pay streak at least a foot wide that goes upward of $100 in gold to the ton. Balance of ledge that varies from three feet to full width of shaft at the bottom, is all of fine milling grade—$25 and upward.

The Duplex leasers who have been making frequent finds of high grade, have just cut into fourteen inches that goes into the hundreds in value. Assays up to $3000. These leasers are making frequent shipments at good profit.

There is a buzz of activity all around. Conspicuous is a new company to operate a bunch of properties about four miles to the east and which will at the start put on thirty men. Officers of this are expected daily from the East and until they arrive more details cannot be secured.

OLD BELMONT SHOWING LIFE.

LOS ANGELES MAN COMPLETES NEW MILLING PLANT.

Belmont Security and Development Company Has Large Ore Bodies Ready for Treatment—Oddie Likes Chafey Camp—Mill for Jefferson. Klondyke Strike.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

TONOPAH (Nev.) Oct. 22.—The old camp of Belmont, fifty miles north of here, after experiencing all the ups and downs of a mining camp for thirty years, and then being deserted after it had produced many millions is once more creeping into the limelight. The Belmont Security and Development Company, which recently acquired the old Combination mill and several mining properties there, have installed a Turner mill and, after a three weeks' run, pronounce it a complete success, for over 90 per cent. of the values of the ore milled were saved and the company has announced that it can make a handsome profit from ore that will assay $5 to the ton. The mines acquired are those which were worked in the early days when transportation was uncertain and rates high and it is estimated that over 600,000 tons of ore aggregating $30 a ton has been mined and left in the stopes, only the high-grade rock being shipped. The company also has several big ledges of milling ore blocked out and it is the intention to install a larger mill, the present one having a capacity of 150 tons daily. It has been installed and is being worked under the supervision of T. B. Bassett, a prominent mill and mining man of Los Angeles.

ODDIE LIKES CHAFEY.

Senator T. L. Oddie and S. S. Johnson, a New York capitalist, have just returned from the eastern part of the State, where they inspected the mining camps of National and Chafey and both are loud in their praises of both places. In speaking of Chafey, Mr. Oddie stated that the principal company there had opened up several veins for over a distance of three thousand feet. This property is operated by E. S. Chafey, the discoverer of the camp, who is also operating a mill in conjunction with the mine and, as the development work progresses, thorough mill tests are made. Only ore extracted in the development of the property is milled and about thirty-five tons daily is the capacity. The mill pays all expenses and before long a new one will be erected with all the latest devices and with much larger capacity.

In the camp of National all the leases are doing development work and considerable ore is being extracted. A small shipment was made recently of ore valued at $1 a pound.

One of the biggest mining deals that has taken place in recent years was consummated here several days ago when W. H. McBeth, Charles Brenneman and J. Flick, all mining men of New York, purchased the old Jefferson mine near Round Mountain, from Charles Konrahat, for $350,000. Messrs. Flick and Brenneman are now in San Francisco purchasing machinery for a large mill they will install at the mine and a full force will be put to work immediately extracting ore.

The Jefferson mine has been worked for a number of years, but the methods were too crude to permit of extraction of any but high-grade ore, and the huge bodies of milling ore were passed by in the absence of milling facilities. It is estimated that there is enough ore blocked out to run the mill for a number of years, and several mining experts have stated that the mine will be one of the largest low-grade producers in the State. There are several ledges of high-grade ore that have not been developed and which will help to increase the average of the low-grade ores.

A rich strike was made on the Main lease in the Klondyke district yesterday, when a nine-inch vein was uncovered that will assay over $1500 a ton. The lease has only been operated about two weeks and during that time nearly fifteen tons of $80 ore has been sacked. It is the intention of the owners to make a shipment to the smelters about the first of November. The new strike has aroused considerable excitement and several parties interested in adjoining leases left immediately for the district to investigate for themselves.

NEVADA.

NEW PROCESS IN GOLDFIELD.

GREENAWALT PATENT MILL HAS BEEN COMPLETED.

Description of First Plant of Kind Erected—Daisy Mystery Has Been Solved—Mine Has Immense Ore Body—Hazel Shaft Deepest in the Whole District.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

A long step in providing additional ore reduction facilities for the Goldfield district has been accomplished in the completion and starting up of what is known as the Goldfield Cl. Mill. The plant has been built by Philadelphia capitalists and its construction from the beginning has been under the supervision of John E. Greenawalt of Denver, the inventor of the Greenawalt process, which is used in the treatment of ores and which is said to be admirably adapted to this district. This is the first plant of this description to be erected, but it is said that the experiments conducted here and elsewhere give the fullest assurance of the success of the project.

The process is described as smelting by the employment of chemicals, although the only chemical used is common salt, such as is obtained from the dry lakes and marshes of this portion of the State. After passing through the crusher the ore is returned to other crushers and finally reduced to the consistency of the finest powder. Then it is carried automatically through a roasting furnace where it is subjected to a series of crude oil and gas flames, at a temperature, however, not sufficiently high to reduce the metal contents to a liquid form. After being roasted in this manner the material is taken by means of a traveling crane direct to the leaching tanks, where it is immersed in a solution of salt water and subjected to a high voltage current of electricity carrying 3000 amperes, which has separated the elements of the salt into sodium and chlorine, forming a solution which is said to be the most powerful solvent of gold known to chemists and causing the metallic contents to be precipitated upon the lead shavings the fine slimes from which are melted down into almost pure gold and silver. The value of the process lies in the fact that an exceedingly high percentage of saving is possible and the presence of sulphur, copper or lead does not interfere in the least with its operation.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

After maintaining for a long time the greatest secrecy regarding the progress of work and the condition of the workings in the Daisy mine, W. E. Mitchell, vice-president and manager of the company, has permitted an examination which has demonstrated that this is one of the great mines of Southern Nevada. Shipments are now being sent out to the samplers at the rate of sixty tons daily, of ore averaging from $60 to $90 per ton and the management gives the assurance that the output will be increased within a week or ten days to about 200 tons per day. The stock of the Daisy has always been a favorite in Goldfield and its performances lately and, although there has doubtless been some manipulation on the part of the insiders, it is again receiving local support which speaks well for the regard in which the property is held.

Pay ore was originally discovered on the Daisy by leasers in a vein which was pronounced to be a cross fissure coming from the direction of the Diamondfield Triangle and intersecting the three main ledges which traverse the Daisy claims from east to west. This theory is said to have been exploded by recent work underground and the supposed cross lead is now declared to be the south vein, turning at a sharp angle and forming a junction with the main or center ledge.

GREAT ORE BODY.

After taking out some shipping ore from a depth of less than 300 feet the leasers were forced to abandon work and the company started to develop fraught with possible disaster, then our bankers are right. If the recovery of this new wealth will redound to the commercial supremacy of the city, then some of our bankers are wrong. Let us look around a little and see what mining money has done towards the upbuilding of Los Angeles, and first let us take off the blinkers of narrow mindedness. I am a comparative newcomer here, and yet I know of many fine buildings and residences that have been erected or purchased by money from the mines. Where did the Bradbury estate obtain the money that has gone into the development of our downtown streets? From the Tajo mines in Mexico. Where did the money come from that has purchased control of the American National Bank? From the golden treasure of the Mohawk at Goldfield. Whence came the $200,000 that has built one of the finest residences in the West at Long Beach? From the Mohawk and other mines at Goldfield. Whence came the capital that has established the Western Tile Works as one of the big commercial institutions of the city; whence the money that is building the Lycurgus Lindsay home on West Adams at a cost of $150,000? From the mines of Cananea. Where did Hayes, Montgomery, Brockman and a thousand others derive the wealth that they have spent so prodigally here? From the mines. What industry supplied $20,000,000 of the amount needed to build the Salt Lake Route, by which Los Angeles has conquered the greater part of the golden desert? The mining industry. I will venture to say that not less than 150 of the finest residences in Los Angeles have been built or purchased by mining money within the last few years. Ten millions have come from Goldfield alone and it is our own fault that more than that much each year is not pouring into this city from the vast copper deposits of Arizona. Does mining mean anything to future Los Angeles? Learn these facts and a thousand others and then answer the question for yourself.

Company Tells the Tale.

A man is known, to a large extent at least, by the company he keeps. Let the neighborhood give a dog a bad name and you might as well send for the dog catcher forthwith and put him in a land where names don't count. Thus with the secret process user who cajoles the nimble dollar from the pocket of the unwary by an owl-like mien and a sphinx-like silence. These remarks are called forth by assurances received by me since last week to the effect that, no matter what its process may be, Comer, the Big Four Metallurgical Pooh-bah, of Santa Monica, is honest in the belief that he has found something in the way of ore reduction that will revolutionize the business. It is said that he has discovered that a great many ores of this vicinity carry platinum with gold and that ordinary methods volatalize both metals. He claims to catch the platinum with his new process and at the same time the gold; the silver is extracted from the customer. Very well, we will grant for a moment that he does, if we can keep from smiling that long. Comer knows, and every one else knows, that, whether his process is a fake or not, there is no known method by which these values can be extracted upon a commercial scale. In other words, Comer says a man has great wealth in a mine and hands him some beautiful assay certificates, to back up his assertion. He says he knows the ore carries these fabulous values, but he also knows that the poor devil who pays for the assaying cannot get it out. If Comer is honest he should plainly mark these facts upon his certificates.

Publicity Will Help.

Men who are engaged in successful mining operations, no matter where the scene of such success is laid, can help the cause, help to awaken Los Angeles to the true importance of the industry, by giving publicity to the facts. When a faker is exposed or a mine meets with financial disaster the story is heralded on all sides and many plausible arguments furnished to those who condemn the industry. To offset the effect it is necessary that the reading public be supplied with the other side of the case and thereby taught that mining, if allowed on a legitimate line and safeguarded by the ordinary rules of hard-headed business sense, pays better than any other industry to which man may turn his hand. Many of those who have succeeded argue that they have no need of publicity and thereby take a narrow, selfish view that injures all who have not been so fortunate but who are struggling with meritorious undertakings that may need a helping hand. There are many such in Los Angeles. I have in mind one property in Arizona that is owned entirely in this city and which is said to have been paying regularly for the past eleven years. In all that time not one word has been given out officially from the local office and my request for information a few weeks ago was almost ungraciously turned down. From other sources I have since learned that the mine is reputed to have produced no less than $32,000,000 in gold and silver since its discovery and that last year the sworn statement given in as a basis for taxation shows an output of $263,227.86. At present it is producing about $1000 a day and has 125 men on its pay roll. The publication of these facts, from an official source, would tend to remove some misconceptions that now poison the minds of many local investors and would militate against unreasoning antipathy. The action of those who succeed and refuse to aid others by telling of their success is about on a par with the man who is presented with a bouncing boy and refuses to set up the cigars to his friends. One might go further than that and charge that they are traitors to the cause.

READY FOR CORK.

Bank Clerks' Minstrels Arranged for and Tickets Are Going at Private Sale.

Preparations have progressed so rapidly with the bank clerks' minstrels that they could give their show at any moment, instead of waiting till November 12 and 13 in the Mason Operahouse. Under the direction of George Towle, the men who make change, keep accounts and take money at the little brass wickets have been putting in their spare hours rehearsing the various pleasantries that they will hand out, and with the exception of a special number, which it being written, they have their show perfectly in hand.

As planned, the show will open with 200 men in the black-face chorus, while a dozen end men, in bizarre garb, rattle the bones and thump the tamborines, in traditional fashion. There will be gags and jokes of antique vintage, songs, solo and concerted numbers. There will be a gentlemanly interlocutor, to be the "goat" for all the jokes, and there will be dances, marches and the like in plenty.

Under the management of L. E. Ceville, with the assistance of W. H. Lutz, J. M. Hutchison, C. W. Rosenthal and W. C. Bryan, the executive forces of the Bank Clerks' Association are rapidly putting the business end into shape. The private sale of reservation tickets is progressing rapidly, and it is probable that enough will be thus sold to make a public sale impossible.

SANITY IN QUESTION.

Dan Shea, arrested several days ago on a charge of intoxication and given a sentence of five days on the chain gang, escaped yesterday morning while the gang was at work near the river bed. An hour later he showed up at police headquarters, and asked that his property be returned to him. The man acted so queerly that he was arrested on an insanity charge and sent to the County Hospital for examination.

Danderine

Grows Hair

and we can

PROVE IT!

The Great DANDERINE Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results.

It enlivens and invigorates the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, resulting in a continuous and increasing growth of the hair.

Letters of praise are continually coming in from nearly all parts of the country stating that Danderine has renewed the growth of hair in cases that were considered absolutely hopeless.

A lady from Brooklyn writes: "After a short trial my hair stopped falling, and I now have a lovely head of hair, very heavy and over one and a quarter yards long."

Danderine stimulates the scalp, makes it healthy and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp invigorator known. It is a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a small bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land; 3 sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00

EGGS SOARING, MEATS DOWN.

Interesting Conditions in the Local Markets.

Advance in Butter Next to Strike Buyers.

Fruits of Most Kinds Have Become Cheaper.

Only well-to-do people are enjoying eggs in Los Angeles just at present, at least eggs that were produced here and are guaranteed by the grocer to be strictly fresh, contain no young chickens or to carry a diploma of ripeness. The very economical housewife is contenting herself with a few eastern eggs now and then, just sufficient to put in a cake at the week's end or to make an egg sandwich one day for her husband, who is too far away from restaurants to buy his luncheon.

Local eggs are always scarce at this season owing to the fact that the hens have a habit of shedding their feathers previous to putting on their winter garments. In this period, they seldom lay, which accounts for the fact that total receipts on one day have dropped as low as thirty-three cases.

It takes at least from 300 to 400 cases of eggs a day to supply the city when the consumption is ordinary and with so big a deficit, prices are forced to go skyward. For that reason dealers are retailing local candled eggs at 55 cents a dozen today and some of them are charging an extra 5 cents on account of the additional guarantee that they are purchasing directly from a farmer whose hen fruit is never known to contain any spoiled stock.

The surprising feature of the market at present is not so much in the high prices but in the number of dealers who are selling an impossible number of "sure enough" local eggs. Their supply of locals, when they tell about it, is scarcely a bit smaller than when receipts are running into the hundreds of cases. "No, we never handle storage eggs," they assure their customers, which more than half of the time is a falsehood.

The thing for the saving housewife to do is to ask for storage eggs at storage-egg prices, usually 10 cents less than locals and she will receive the benefit of the cut, since she is usually using storage eggs anyway without knowing the difference. Eastern eggs are being supplied a large number of dealers and they too come under the head of cheaper eggs.

Last year there was a glut of these and nothing could move them. Prices on all eggs were 10 cents lower on this account. Eastern eggs flooded the market and kept them down. The glut became so bad that several dealers were forced to send a number of cars back to their consignees at a big loss, both to themselves and the producer. This year they have been more careful and there is little danger of a repetition of this condition.

BUTTER GOING UP.

Butter has not advanced for a month, but a rise may be looked for at almost any time. Receipts have been decreasing alarmingly and when this happens, the only solution is an advance to curtail the consumption. At present sixteen ounces of creamery butter are retailing at 40 cents, when guaranteed as strictly fresh. Many dealers are underselling this price by a small margin, some honestly, but more owing to the fact that they sell not pounds, but squares. These squares are frequently as much as three ounces less than a pound, a fact that many housekeepers have never stopped to consider.

Cooking butter is easily obtainable at 10 cents less, sometimes as low as 28 cents. It is at this season that the oleomargarine and substitute butters are in good call because they seem to many palates just as good and sell at about half the price of a No. 1 grade of creamery butter. Dairy butter is scarcely a known factor in the Los Angeles market and fortunate is the household that can await the coming of some sturdy farmer once a week to deposit his two or three-pound roll at a price fixed at an average for the entire year, or month, as the case may be.

MEAT MUCH LOWER.

Last year at this time the meat market was in the throes of a decided upheaval. Prices fluctuated day after day and always ended at a new high level. This year they have been declining and only this week has seen a drop of from ½ to 2 cents in beef, pork, mutton, veal and all of the other meats. Lard is cheaper as well as smoked meats and sausages, which allows the cook an advantage she could not take last year, buying meat when eggs get too high.

Potatoes and vegetables in general are considerably lower than a year ago, due partly to the increased supply of the latter, and the depression in business circles now about righted, on the former. A good potato last year sold for $1.75 to $2 per hundredweight. This year they are just as good in quality, not quite as heavy in quantity and are bringing 25 cents less. Onions are much cheaper. A year ago they were almost controlled by one dealer who had a corner on the market. This year they have been so plentiful that to attempt a corner would be impossible. The difference in prices in the two seasons is almost a dollar, with the balance on the lower side at present.

APPLES CHEAPER, ALSO.

Apples, the fruit that every one delights in and that form the nucleus for the best pies that mother ever makes are selling at just one-half of the cost of a year ago. The well-known Bellefleur, California's apple, because nowhere in the Union is it developed to such perfection as in the central parts of this State, can be purchased from your grocer at $1.25 for extra fancy stock, per box. There are forty-two pounds in the usual apple box and when purchased in this quantity a saving of 40 per cent. can be affected over the ordinary method of buying two or three pounds, a nickel or a dime's worth at a time. Other varieties are proportionately lower.

Fruits have seldom, if ever, been as cheap as this year and even now many varieties are obtainable at one-half the prices paid when they were in season last. This is true especially of all deciduous fruit. Citrus fruits have been in light demand and will remain so until later in the season when the local orchards begin to send forth their golden navel oranges and their lighter grapefruit. Bananas, on account of the present war between the independent and the so-called trust company of New Orleans, are as low as they have ever been in Los Angeles. Other tropical fruits bring about the same as they do the year around.

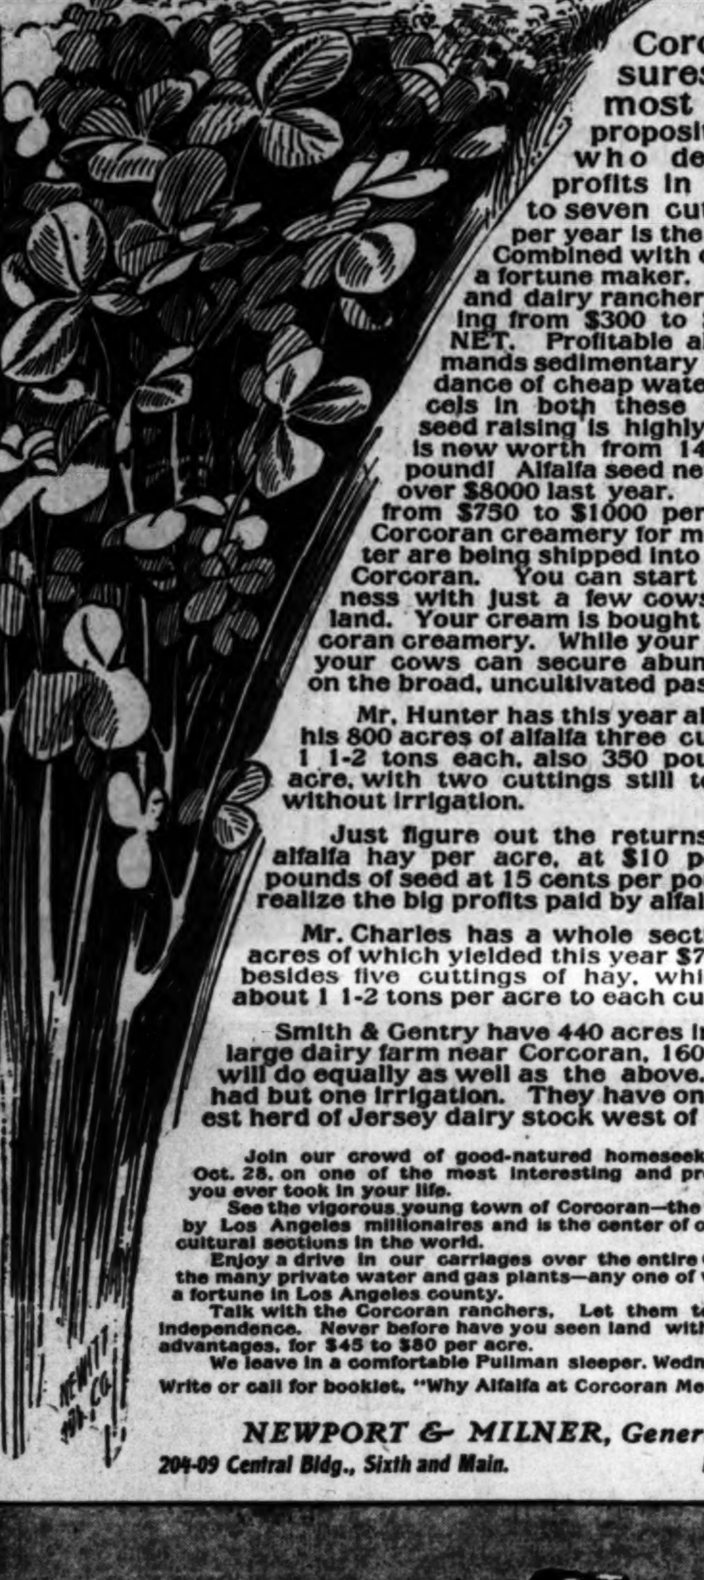
Alfalfa Nets $75 to $90 Per Acre At Corcoran



HEWITT ADV. CO.

Alfalfa raising at Corcoran is the surest, safest and most economical proposition for the man who demands quick profits in ranching. Six to seven cuttings of alfalfa per year is the rule at Corcoran. Combined with dairying, alfalfa is a fortune maker. Corcoran alfalfa and dairy ranchers are today making from $300 to $1000 per month NET. Profitable alfalfa culture demands sedimentary soil and an abundance of cheap water. Corcoran excels in both these features. Alfalfa seed raising is highly profitable. Seed is new worth from 14 to 16 cents per pound! Alfalfa seed netted J. R. Charles over $8000 last year. He also receives from $750 to $1000 per month from the Corcoran creamery for milk. Tons of butter are being shipped into Los Angeles from Corcoran. You can start in the dairy business with just a few cows and 10 acres of land. Your cream is bought daily by the Corcoran creamery. While your alfalfa is growing your cows can secure abundant natural feed on the broad, uncultivated pastures.

Mr. Hunter has this year already taken from his 800 acres of alfalfa three cuttings averaging 1 1-2 tons each, also 350 pounds of seed per acre, with two cuttings still to come—and this without irrigation.

Just figure out the returns on 7 to 8 tons of alfalfa hay per acre, at $10 per ton, and 350 pounds of seed at 15 cents per pound, and you will realize the big profits paid by alfalfa at Corcoran.

Mr. Charles has a whole section in alfalfa, 320 acres of which yielded this year $7600 net for seed, besides five cuttings of hay, which will average about 1 1-2 tons per acre to each cutting.

Smith & Gentry have 440 acres in alfalfa on their large dairy farm near Corcoran, 160 acres of which will do equally as well as the above. This field has had but one irrigation. They have on this farm the finest herd of Jersey dairy stock west of the Rockies.

Join our crowd of good-natured homeseekers Wednesday night, Oct. 28, on one of the most interesting and profitable two-day trips you ever took in your life.

See the vigorous young town of Corcoran—the town that is backed by Los Angeles millionaires and is the center of one of the richest agricultural sections in the world.

Enjoy a drive in our carriages over the entire Corcoran district—see the many private water and gas plants—any one of which would be worth a fortune in Los Angeles county.

Talk with the Corcoran ranchers. Let them tell you their story of independence. Never before have you seen land with such overwhelming advantages, for $45 to $80 per acre.

We leave in a comfortable Pullman sleeper, Wednesday, October 28th.

Write or call for booklet, "Why Alfalfa at Corcoran Means Independence."

ANTLERS RATTLE.

TURN SHRINE INTO A STORE.

ELK HARVEST FESTIVAL NEARLY READY FOR OPENING.

Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Merchandise Have Been Contributed to the Order by City Merchants and Stored in Auditorium. Arrangements Are Going on Apace.

For one week, beginning November 9, the Shrine Auditorium will resemble a big department store. Already thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise contributed to the Elks for their Harvest Festival has been stored in the building, and soon the immense piles of goods and mountains of boxes will be arranged in orderly fashion in readiness for the "opening."

When the booths are constructed and the fixtures are in place, the Elks believe their one-week store will eclipse anything of its kind in this country. "It is the greatest affair ever undertaken by any fraternal order in the world," said M. H. Flint yesterday.

Though Postmaster Flint has initiated practically every detail of the immense undertaking, he gives the glory to his assistants, who have faithfully carried out his ideas. He gives the other secret orders much credit for assisting in making the event one long to be remembered in fraternal circles.

H. E. Stanley, one of the postal employés, is in charge of the storehouse at West Seventh and Olive streets. The place resembles a warehouse of some Los Angeles-street wholesaler. As fast as the articles are checked up they are shipped to the Auditorium, but the generosity of the local to the ceiling with all kinds of produce, dry goods and hardware.

"Our store will not be like the big establishments on South Spring and Broadway," said Stanley. "Nothing will be sold except groceries. In that department, housewives can secure genuine bargains, and we hope that they will take advantage of this 'special sale' and give liberal patronage.

"We have furniture enough to stock a good sized store. So far we have donations of $1800 worth of feathers and plumes. In the art department are pictures ranging in value from $25 to $700. The florists have promised us enough flowers to deck a fiesta parade and the hall will be a bower of beauty."

Among the donations are men's furnishings, Chinese and Japanese goods, leather goods, sporting articles, fancy articles, jewelry and household goods. What many will regard as the crowning feature is the promise of nearly 1500 fair saleswomen and patronesses. Although the women are not disclosing any of their plans, bevies of society matrons and maids are working hard to make the booths objects of beauty and attractiveness.

There will be flowers, candy, dainties of all kinds and "soft" liquid refreshments to jar one's pocketbook loose. Ice cream and cake for those who prefer the orthodox form of refreshments, and Spanish kitchens for the jaded who yearn for something hot, will be features of the department of edibles.

In the gallery, space has been let for mercantile booths, where the local business houses can display their wares to best advantage and take orders for future deliveries.

The Executive Committee expects to sell $50,000 worth of season tickets, which sell for $1 each, and single admission tickets. Each afternoon there will be a complete programme of music and vaudeville features and an entirely new programme will be rendered each night.

In addition to the exclusive features to be presented by the various fraternal orders, the local theaters have offered the pick of their stock companies to amuse the crowds.

Besides being the means of raising a large sum of money for the entertainment of the visiting Elks, next that the Harvest Festival will in itself be a big publicity boost for Los Angeles. Its unique features and the magnitude of the undertaking will be heralded through the press and correspondence as one of the amusement affairs such as have made this city famous the world over.

DROWNS IN PLUNGE.

Boy's Body Found in Pool and Heart Failure Believed Responsible for Death.

Victor Lemar, 14 years of age, of No. 204 Centennial street, was drowned yesterday morning while swimming in the Bimini plunge. The body was recovered at noon and removed to the Pierce morgue, where an inquest will be held Monday.

The Lemar boy carried a newspaper route. After finishing his work yesterday morning, he accompanied twelve companions to the pool, and they all went in the water.

The victim had eaten no breakfast, but, despite that fact, remained in the water several hours. He was last seen at 10:30. A short time later his companions left the pool and prepared to go home. They noted Victor's absence and a search was made.

The body showed no signs of having been bruised such as a high dive or fall might have occasioned. There was no evidence of cramps, and it is thought death resulted from heart failure.

WOMAN OUT OF JAIL.

Mrs. Agnes Matthewson, charged with assault with intent to kill Rosa Robles during a neighborhood fight several weeks ago, was admitted to bail of $1500 yesterday afternoon, and released from the City Jail. The injured woman is improving rapidly at the County Hospital, and is practically out of danger. Mrs. Matthewson will be given a preliminary examination in Justice Austin's court Monday morning.

D. of Mischief I, is the Reed another, Walter Folsom, owner and skipper of Mischief II, another; and still another will be the property of Commodore R. P. Spaulding of the South Coast Club.

Work on all of the boats is progressing well and the first will be launched in about two weeks, and the others will be put overboard as they are finished, and the last of the present lot should be in the water and ready to race inside of a month. The boats are being especially well built. They are true dories, being of lap streak construction, with five streaks to the side The boats will be rigged with a jib and leg-o'-mutton mainsail.

The shellbacks who have examined the plans and seen the boats in frame, predict that for their size they will be wonders at going, and also for seaworthy qualities. While eight are actually under construction it is almost certain that as many more will be laid down in the shops before the present batch is completed. The boats are all alike, and others built to the class later must be like the first, so that in races everything depends upon the handling of the boats. While the enlarging of the boats has increased the cost, the building of a large lot keeps the cost down and ensures a ready market for the craft at a later date, should an owner desire to go into the game with a larger boat.

The plans of the association are being rapidly completed and it has made wonderful strides since the announcement in The Times of its organization. Races will be held twice every month during the winter and into the spring. An official winter season will be established and a cup will be presented to the boat winning the championship of the class. The dories will race during the summer also, but their special season will be winter, and all the yachtsmen of this section are looking forward to royal sport with these weatherly little flyers.

Pedestrian Is Caught Between Car and Wagon and Suffers Painful Injuries.

Charles Key, 36 years of age, a saloon man, was caught between a Griffin-avenue car and a heavy truck wagon yesterday afternoon and was painfully injured.

Key was on his way to his home, No. 601 San Fernando street. While crossing the Plaza he was hemmed in by the heavy wagon. Seeing the car making the turn and coming directly toward him, Key made a desperate leap to avoid the collision, but was too late. He was pinned between the car and the wagon. At the Receiving Hospital he was treated and later was removed to his home.

Ridgways Royal Teas

By Special Appointment to Her Majesty the late Queen Victoria.

Patronized by the Empress of Germany and the House of Lords.

The House of Ridgways was established in King William street, London, in 1836—during the reign of King William the Fourth—where the business has been conducted, uninterruptedly, for more than seventy years. Ridgways were Tea Merchants, by special appointment, to Her Majesty—the late Queen Victoria—and for over 40 years she drank their famous H. M. B. brand. The Empress of Germany and the House of Lords use Ridgways Teas. The present Chairman of Ridgways, is Sir Alfred Cooper, who succeeded his father, and who received his title from King Edward, because of having converted his private theater into a hospital for sick and wounded soldiers returning from the South African war.

While Ridgways cater to the Royal Houses of Europe, their Teas are to be found on the tables of well-to-do tradesmen and thrifty workingmen throughout the United Kingdom—having by far the largest sale of any high-grade Teas in England. Nor are Ridgways Teas unknown in the East—being served exclusively at Sherry's, and furnished through this source to J. Pierpont Morgan and other noted New Yorkers—but are now, for the first time, being introduced in Western America.

Facsimile of Package in Use by Ridgways for Over Fifty Years.

"Royal Teas" Are Rightly Named

Ridgways Teas are grown in Ceylon—the plantations being located in the highlands, where every condition is favorable for the production of highest grade Teas; and it is an established fact—well known to people who are posted on Teas—that even ordinary Ceylon Tea is superior to the Tea grown in China or Japan—stronger in aroma, and richer.

But Ridgways Teas are not ordinary—in any sense. Only carefully selected leaves, from young plants, are considered good enough to be put up under Ridgways labels. The balance (seconds,) is sold in bulk to native dealers, and shipped by them to all parts of the world.

This careful selection and skillful handling—together with the knowledge that comes with long experience—has enabled the House of Ridgways to hold its prestige through three generations.

Ridgways Teas occupy first place in European markets—not alone on account of priority, but because the uniform excellence of their several brands has been zealously maintained at the high standard which the original members of the Ridgways Company established nearly a century ago—and it is due to Ridgways that the present consumption of Tea in England is many times as great as that of coffee—whereas, formerly, the reverse was true.

Twenty-five years ago China and Japan supplied 95 per cent. of the entire Tea trade of Great Brittain—while today only 5 per cent. of the Tea consumed comes from those countries.

Any one who has visited England is impressed by the Tea-drinking habit of the people—and by the excellence of the Tea that is served. Upon returning to America, these people continue, for a time, to call for Tea—but they find that the Tea in this country, as a rule, is so far inferior to English Tea that they soon abandon it.

But this condition will now be overcome—through the introduction of Ridgways Teas here. This announcement is the opening of an active campaign in California for Ridgways "Royal" Teas—which will be supplied by your grocer, at the same prices that you have been paying for other high grade Teas—which do not, in any sense, compare with Ridgways.

Put up in ¼, ½ and 1-pound air-tight tins, and sold at 50c, 60c, 75c and $1.00 a pound—with the distinct understanding that your money will be refunded if not found exactly as represented.

Ridgways are going to give away Ten Thousand Packages of their Famous Teas. Watch the papers for particulars.

CHANCE FOR FARMERS.

Free Tobacco Seed for Those Who Desire to Experiment With a Crop.

Farmers who desire to try raising tobacco are invited to put in acreage, free of cost for seed and instruction as to care of crop. This offer is made by E. S. Matteson, No. 618 West Sixth street, packer of seed leaf and importer of Havana. Mr. Matteson says that tobacco can be grown successfully in Southern California.

"This is the opinion of experts who have studied our soil and climate," adds Mr. Matteson. "I will agree to furnish the seed free to those who wish to try the crop, and will also watch the growing plants till harvested, and then cure them for the market. The tobaccos easily raised here are Connecticut seed, Havana seed, broad leaf, Zimmer Spanish, Imported Sumatra, Penn. B. and Big Flats.

George Spiker, who is looking after the expert part, asserts that he is an old tobacco grower, with experience in Australia and other parts of the world. He has, he says, for years past raised tobacco in Los Angeles city and county in small acreage with success. He recently had twenty-five acres at Marysville, but lost it through floods. Mr. Spiker says:

"It is easy to grow tobacco here, and the only reason I can advance to explain why it has not been put in before this on a paying basis as a permanent industry is because of the opposition of trust magnates in the East. But the time has come when Los Angeles should raise her own stock. Tobacco requires a light, sandy soil, and certainly we have it here. For Havana stock, our heavy adobe is excellent.

"The work is not difficult. Three crops may be cut. Plants are set out in March, and the crop must be plowed three times. Water the plants lightly and fight insect pests with Paris green. The first crop is harvested in three months. The yield should be from 1000 to 2500 pounds to the acre, or more, which, when cured, should bring the grower $200 to $300 an acre. It is easy work, and there are many waste lands around Los Angeles that could be made productive.

RECEPTION TO STUDENTS.

Maj. Joseph Hardie, teacher of a class in Immanuel Presbyterian Church, gave his girl students a charming afternoon yesterday. Mrs. Hardie acted as hostess. Miss Emily Standee recited "Penelope's English Experiences" and "The Coquette Conquered," and Mabel Henry, one of the class, "The Bald-headed Man." Strawberries, cake and grapes were served. Maj. Hardie, who is a veteran Bible teacher, held the class reunion at the Melrose Hotel. After the entertainment he saw that his young charges were all sent safely home. A pretty feature of the afternoon was a game, "Love Story, in Flowers." To each pupil Maj. Hardie handed a card, on which was a hand-painted flower. On the back of the card was a question, to be answered by guessing the name.

Would You Walk a Block To Make $5 or $10?

Then Buy Your Fall Suit at . . . THE HUB
154-156-158-160 N. SPRING ST. LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Yes, you can make $5 or $10--or even more, by walking a block north of First Street. And it's a short block at that.

We're up here out of the high rent district. We can afford to sell good clothing a whole lot cheaper than any other reputable house in Los Angeles. And we do.

With a big establishment, a big volume of business, a splendid stock of clothing--and a small expense--we can give you more value for your money than anybody else--clothier, tailor, department store--or anybody.

The offer we make below is evidence of this. You can prove it to your own satisfaction in five minutes' time. Come up here and see this clothing:

$7.50 For $15 to $25 Suits and Overcoats

About 500 Sack Suits in this lot. Single and double breasted styles, in plain and fancy all-wool cheviots, browns, blues, shades of green, etc. Also a line of the famous Auburn Meltons. These Suits are actually worth $15 to $25—examination and comparison will show you that. Our price for any Suit in the lot, $7.50.

The Overcoats are even better than the Suits. Grays, blacks, blues and covert cloths among them—all weights and descriptions, including rain-proof coats. Every garment has silk or satin sleeve linings—is genuinely worth $15 to $25. Just about 300 Overcoats in the lot. Our price, $7.50.

We Make Our Statements Good

Making a statement is one thing. Making it good is another.

We know and you know that our clothing must be as represented--else you won't buy a dollar's worth of it.

On this basis we urge you to come and examine it. The value is here.

The Drama---Players, Playhouses, Gossip of the Stage

FOOTLIGHT SNAPSHOTS.

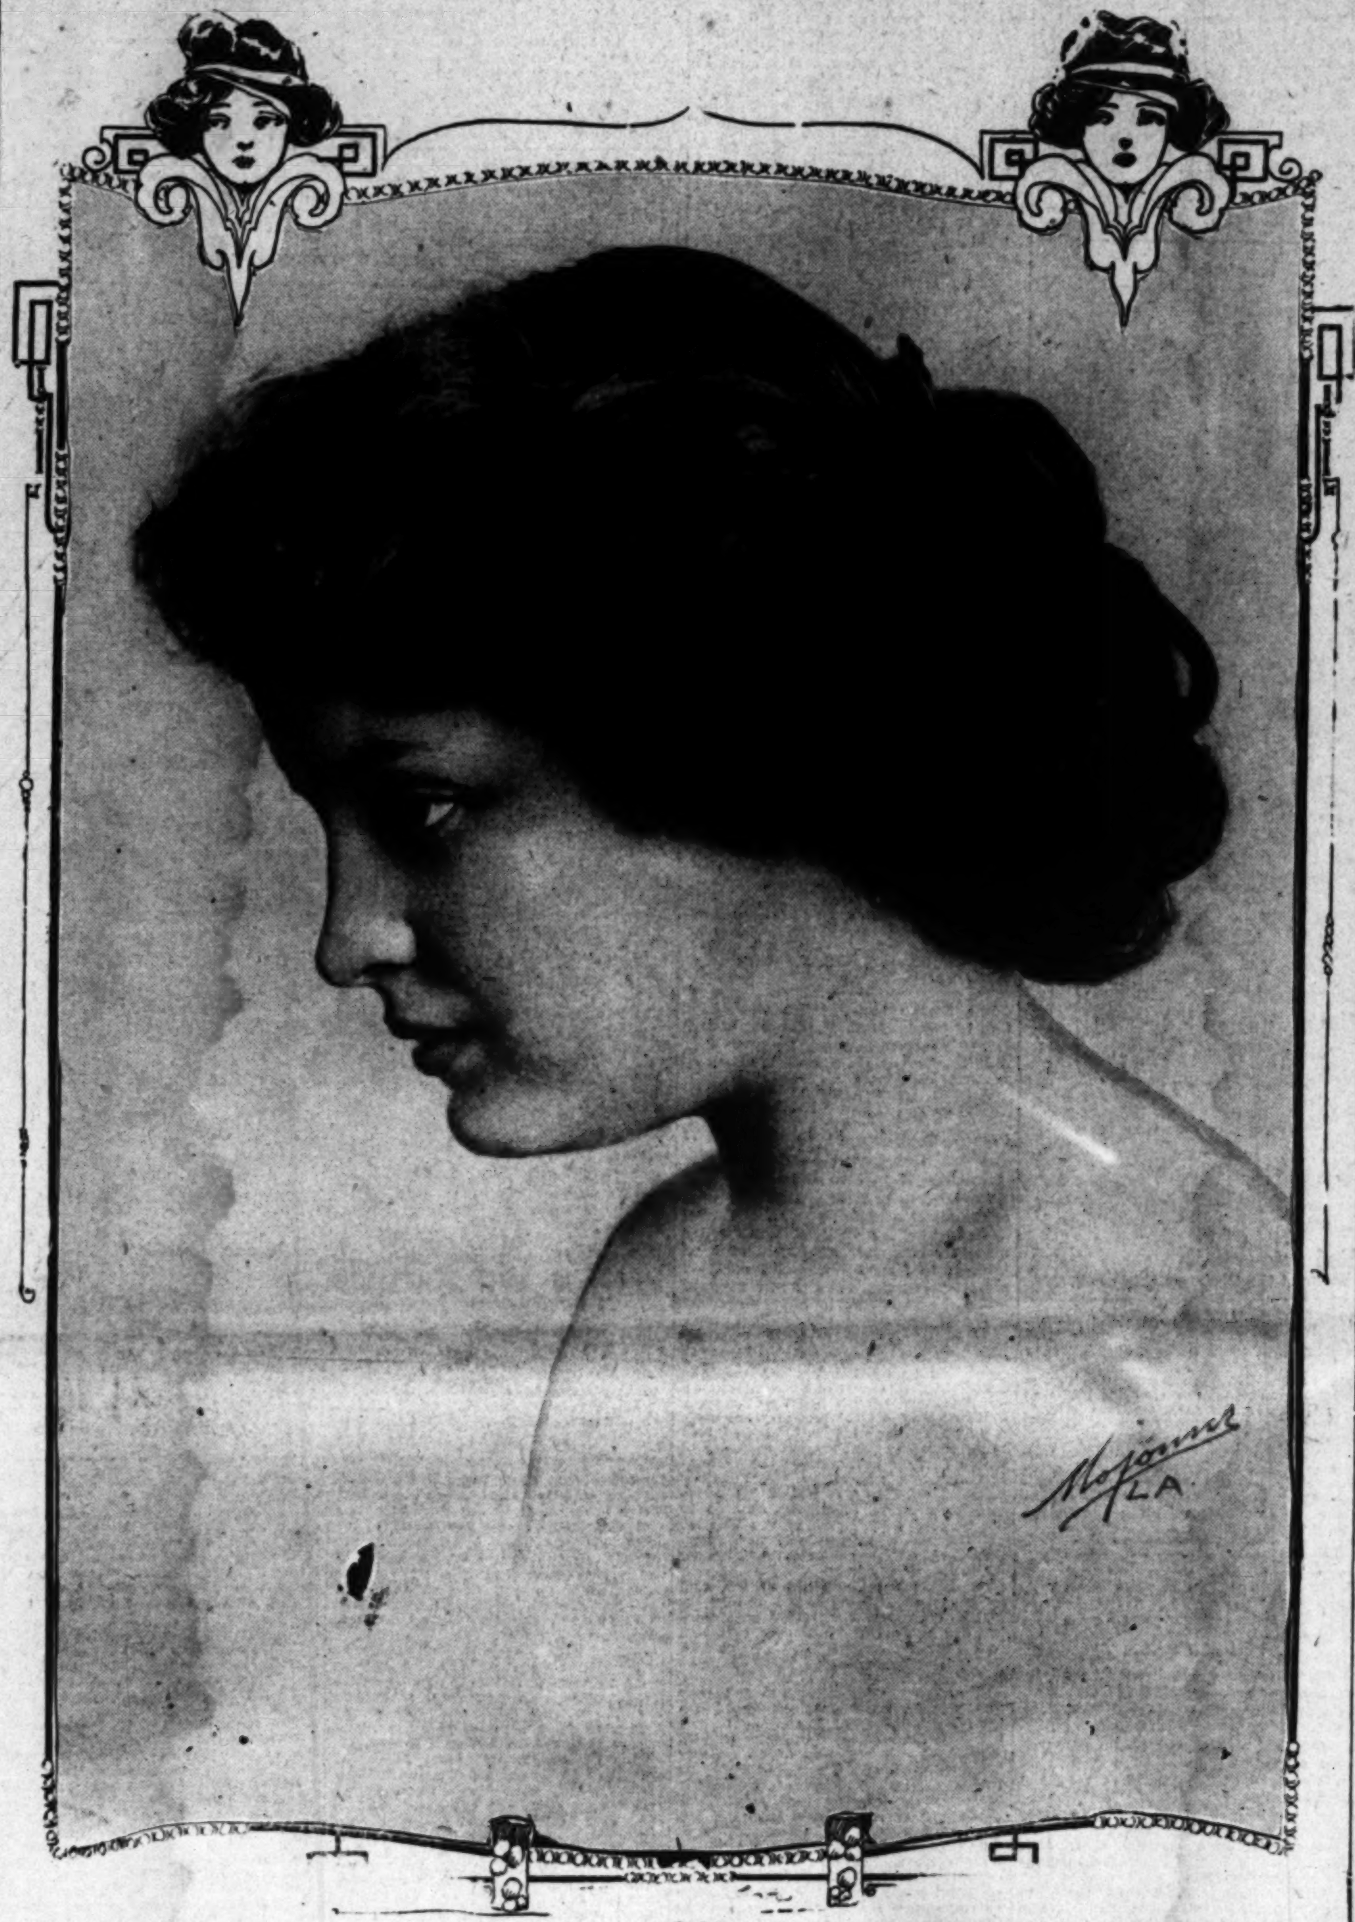
"The Times" Critic Will Tell of New York's Newest in Opera and Drama.

Taken as a whole, the theatrical outlook for the coming season in the metropolis is one of the most promising in the history of the country.

The center of dramatic interest in New York this year, however, is the two operahouses—Hammerstein's Manhattan and the Metropolitan—where will begin soon the most spectacular operatic conflict in history. Hammerstein, single-handed and hampered by debt, achieved a colossal victory last year and set the whole world talking. Now the endowed Metropolitan, to whose money-weary directorate expense has always been a trifling matter, will pour into casts and productions unstinted millions in an effort to finally and lastingly denominate the dauntless Hammerstein a second-rate adventurer. Hammerstein has built another operahouse in Philadelphia, and has announced himself ready for the fray.

The Times will present exclusively graphic, day-by-day accounts of the first month of this great struggle, together with the news and picturesque features of the new theatrical year, and interesting interviews with the foremost managers of the country, concerning the possibilities and probabilities for the theatrical year in the West.

Julian Johnson, dramatic and musical writer for this paper, will leave for the East this morning, and will devote more than a month to a study of theatrical and musical conditions as they are to be found in America's greatest city.



Florence Oakley,
leading woman of the Lewis S. Stone company and one of the cleverest young actresses who have appeared here in stock. During the past week Miss Oakley has given a powerful and intelligent portrayal of Leah Kleschna.

TOPICS OF THE STAGE.

Woe is the portion of the speculators who had hoped to reap riches from the Warfield engagement. They have found that metropolitan curbstone financier methods do not work in Los Angeles, and while the demand for seats was so brisk that practically none of them went broke, still, the results in general have been a matter of sad disappointment.

"Pikers!" contemptuously say the few professional brokers who ventured, concerning those who patronized the show.

"Pikers!" reiterate the Belasco box-office management concerning the ticket wholesalers who tried to beat them to it for profit.

And now that the engagement is over, observers may recall some very funny things.

For instance, there were two or three very rich—and well-known—men, who, having purchased a block of seats for a family party, found that they could not use them all. The box office would have gladly taken them back at the regular price, but these men, moved by an overpowering commercial sense, stood in front of the house, like so many messenger boys, until their goods had been triumphantly disposed of. Had they known how ridiculous they seemed, Messrs.——well, there's no need telling, after all.

It is said that the biggest loser on seats was the Van Nuys Hotel. This institution held the head of the now famous line, with almost a score of boys, and purchased an ample variety for all performances, for the accommodation of guests. Needless to say, speculation did not enter into this consideration, as it is customary for that hostelry to look after those within its walls. The demand, however, proved much less than was expected, and as a result there were many holdings not used on nights when all other seats were taken, among them several boxes.

Had the Van Nuys people been willing to enter the ordinary curbstone speculating line, there would have been a different version to the story. The seats, however, were held at the clerk's desk, and were not sold elsewhere.

Some speculators, more lucky than

And the very luckiest of them all, according to the account of the theater's attachés, was a little newsboy who had taken a true Gates plunge, and spent his year's savings for one fine $2 seat on Thursday evening last.

Tremors of doubt began to shake him soon after he made the investment, but he stuck around and piped his ware with persistent cheerfulness, though no one paid any attention to him, even after no other seats were procurable.

The evening wore on, and finally, when the curtain had been up almost ten minutes, a dress-suited man, with the look of a professional and financially-easy traveler, rushed into the lobby with express-train speed.

"Gimme good seat!" he ejaculated, coming to an abrupt stop before the window.

"No seats," answered the youth within, briefly.

"No seats?" A wild glare came into the man's eye. He turned, to find a grinning little boy sticking the coveted pasteboard fairly into his face. The man looked at the check number. It was aisle, and not more than ten rows back.

"Give ye $5," he said, quickly.

But the boy with the seat had the instinct of a business genius, the instinct which judges not only worth, but just how far a prospective buyer will go.

"Nope," he said decisively; "nothin' doin'."

"Make it $10!" Here was no piker, at least.

The lights in the lobby swooped in a giddy circle, but he clung to his faith in the other fellow's giving-up propensity. "Nossir!" His jaws worked like a pair of dry chips, but his tone was loud and firm.

The man heard some echo from within, hesitated, looked at a picture of Warfield, glanced at his watch, felt in his pocket, and withdrew a handful of coin.

"Well, $15, you little idiot, and if that won't do, you can go to ——"

The ticket shot into his hand with an instant resolution that crumpled it up. The money went into the boy's grimy palm, and in another moment the man, with a sigh of relief, settled back in a select position in the orchestra circle.

Entirely different, however, was the experience of a precious pair of get-rich-quicksters, who were just out to "this jay town" from "Broadway," and who, as they announced to several usher boys a few days before the sale opened, proposed to "show how a

These fellows did not get many seats, although they stood in line themselves and hired, with what capital they could scrape together, two or three messengers. All bought the full quota, and then the harvest began. It was good for the opening night, and they were jubilant.

They carried the war into Asia by going to different places in the business district. For some reason they could not make their sale pay in front of the theater. The receipts began to fall. They parted with tickets at last for face value. Then their stock began to go below par, and several men during the middle of last week jubilantly proclaimed that they had purchased good seats from them at $1.75. It was said that on Thursday night, in front of one of the leading hotels, they sold their last batch of tickets at 8:45 o'clock for $1.50.

On the whole, the ticket speculators, or those who tried in a half-hearted attempt to become ticket speculators, broke about even, and this deadly fact puts more of a crimp into the budding trade here than anything else that might happen. Let any bunch of fellows make spectacular gains and the effect could not be counteracted even by a score of fierce losses. The monotony of neither making nor losing, though, is something which the speculating fraternity cannot stand, for that sort of thing is, after all, merely a branch of gambling. And excitement is the very breath of life to gambling.

"The only real, bona-fide speculative offer," said Manager Jones, "came not from any of the out-of-town element, but from one of the boys employed at the Mason Operahouse. This young fellow, who has a business method all his own in handling tickets for outside sale, wanted a big block before the opening, and offered Treasurer Clayton a bonus of $50 for the privilege of picking them out. The offer was refused.

"So far as we have been able to observe, the speculators have not struck any note of public favor. There is the great weak point against their whole scheme. They haven't caught on. In New York there are people patronizing the best attractions regularly, who know the box office merely as a name. In New York one looks to the speculator rather instinctively. In Los Angeles one looks away from him. He's an alien element. He's struggling for a foothold, but he won't go. This Warfield engagement, his

THE LOCAL WEEK.

The Belasco Theater company will return to its own place today, and the routine will be changed somewhat by a Sunday night opening.

"Tom Moore" is the play to be produced. Its plot is woven about the life history of the Irish poet, doubtless with many fictional threads entwined in the woof of fact. It tells the story of Tom Moore, country poet, and Bessie Dyke, country school teacher; of Tom Moore, the starving genius in a London attic, and Bessie Dyke, the celebrated actress; of Tom Moore, the subject of royal favor, and Bessie Dyke, loving but overproud; of Tom Moore in a ceaseless struggle with poverty, ill-fate, the loathsome enemies of his mistress—in a struggle with himself.

Mr. Van Buren will play Tom Moore, and Miss Taylor will be seen as Bessie Dyke.

Vernon Bettin, boy soprano, will sing several songs.

Florence Stone will be seen at the Burbank Theater today in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," and the occasion will also be signalized by the return of the leading actor, William Desmond, who has been absent on a vacation.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is a comedy which had a large vogue in the East a season or two ago, and the story is an amusing one. Briefly, it tells how Jack Temple becomes stranded in mid-air, in a Ferris-wheel car, with a Mrs. Fuller. On being released from his predicament in the morning he makes proper excuses to his wife, but she does not believe him, and he accordingly fabricates the "sick friend" story. Complications of the usual sort, and some unusual ones, follow thick and fast. The piece is a clever farce, and should be well played by the good cast given it here.

Anthony Hope's romantic play, "The Adventure of Lady Ursula," will be made use of by the Lewis S. Stone company this week, at the Auditorium.

Lady Ursula, it will be remembered, is the piquant damsel who dons her brother's clothes to gain entrance to the house of a handsome bachelor who has foresworn femininity, vowing that no woman should cross his threshold.

Miss Oakley should do well in the title part, while Mr. Stone will be seen as Sir George Sylvester.

will present Frederick V. Bowers and a company of seven in "College Days," a musical comedietta.

Armstrong and Davis have an amusing travesty in "The New Chauffeur," and a variety of other sketches and specialties are on the bill.

"The Royal Chef," pleasant musical comedy concoction which visited Los Angeles last year, will return this week commencing an engagement at the Grand Operahouse this afternoon. A good production, fresh costumes and pretty girls are promised by the management.

William H. Conley has the title role, and the rest of the cast includes Mary Malatesta, Julia Curtiss, Bly Brown, Donald McKenzie, Walter B. Smith and others.

The new Orpheum bill for this week bids fair to outstrip the last in general excellence. There will be three new acts, and five of the best of last week's acts are retained.

The coming bill is again headed by a big "girl" act, but it does not feature then so much in musical numbers as in acrobatics. The "Phantastic Phantoms," put forth by Hilarion and Rosalie Cebellos, are nine in number, and they work on a dark stage against a setting of dead black, while they themselves are all in white. The act was originated by Ned Wayburn for the New York Hippodrome.

Jane Courthope, with a selected company, will give a playlet of the Sierra Nevadas, called "Lucky Jim." The sketch is a miniature "Girl of the Golden West," and elaborate scenery is carried.

A newcomer also is jolly Vinie Daly, comedienne and dancer of the famous Daly family, whose members include Tom, Bill, Bob, Dan and Lizzie.

Holdovers are the Pianophiends, Claude and Fanny Usher, the seven Yuillians, Reiff Brothers and "Gen." Ed. Lavine, whose burlesque jugglery is a scream.

"The Elopement" is billed for the coming week at the Unique. This is a two-act comedy by James P. Lee, in which many of the latest songs are interpolated, with chorus effects under the direction of Charles Justi, the orchestra leader.

All the principals will be seen in this piece, which has a humorous plot and a surprising denoument.

"Ryan's Reception" is the announced musical comedy at Fischer's this week. Ben T. Dillon is cast as a wealthy Irish politician, and the rest of the company support him in various character roles.

"The Little Prospector," a Colorado comedy-drama in which Chic Perkins enacts the leading role, will come to the People's Theater for a stay of one week, commencing this afternoon.

"Knight For A Day," fresh from a long eastern run, will be seen at the Mason Operahouse on the evening of November 2, commencing a week's engagement.

Dramagraphs.

"All this high brow stuff may be very well," said Al Woods, the melodrama king, "but 'The Millionaire and the Policeman's Wife,' played to $413 in Kansas City at a matinee and to $771 the same night. A show with a title like that can't lose."

The New York American reported on Tuesday that Julian Story, the ex-husband of Mme. Emma Eames, of the Metropolitan Operahouse, has spent the summer chiefly in seeking a reconciliation with his former wife.

A cablegram from London says that E. S. Willard has received a tempting offer to tour America this season for twenty weeks on a very large guarantee. He has been compelled to decline, however, as he has decided to make his next appearance on the London stage.

An entire season in one of New York City's smaller theaters has been set aside, beginning September 15, 1909, for Cyril Scott, who is to star under Brady & Grismer's management in a play written for him by George Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the "Well, yes," replied the young man, "I am willing to pay anything reasonable, of course. How much do you think you ought to have?"

The ticket shot into his hand with an instant resolution that crumpled it up. The money went into the boy's grimy palm, and in another moment the man, with a sigh of relief, settled back in a select position in the orchestra circle.

Entirely different, however, was the experience of a precious pair of get-rich-quicksters, who were just out to "this jay town" from "Broadway," and who, as they announced to several usher boys a few days before the sale opened, proposed to "show how a

These fellows did not get many seats, although they stood in line themselves and hired, with what capital they could scrape together, two or three messengers. All bought the full quota, and then the harvest began. It was good for the opening night, and they were jubilant.

They carried the war into Asia by going to different places in the business district. For some reason they could not make their sale pay in front of the theater. The receipts began to fall. They parted with tickets at last for face value. Then their stock began to go below par, and several men during the middle of last week jubilantly proclaimed that they had purchased good seats from them at $1.75. It was said that on Thursday night, in front of one of the leading hotels, they sold their last batch of tickets at 8:45 o'clock for $1.50.

On the whole, the ticket speculators, or those who tried in a half-hearted attempt to become ticket speculators, broke about even, and this deadly fact puts more of a crimp into the budding trade here than anything else that might happen. Let any bunch of fellows make spectacular gains and the effect could not be counteracted even by a score of fierce losses. The monotony of neither making nor losing, though, is something which the speculating fraternity cannot stand, for that sort of thing is, after all, merely a branch of gambling. And excitement is the very breath of life to gambling.

"The only real, bona-fide speculative offer," said Manager Jones, "came not from any of the out-of-town element, but from one of the boys employed at the Mason Operahouse. This young fellow, who has a business method all his own in handling tickets for outside sale, wanted a big block before the opening, and offered Treasurer Clayton a bonus of $50 for the privilege of picking them out. The offer was refused.

"So far as we have been able to observe, the speculators have not struck any note of public favor. There is the great weak point against their whole scheme. They haven't caught on. In New York there are people patronizing the best attractions regularly, who know the box office merely as a name. In New York one looks to the speculator rather instinctively. In Los Angeles one looks away from him. He's an alien element. He's struggling for a foothold, but he won't go. This Warfield engagement, his

THE LOCAL WEEK.

The Belasco Theater company will return to its own place today, and the routine will be changed somewhat by a Sunday night opening.

"Tom Moore" is the play to be produced. Its plot is woven about the life history of the Irish poet, doubtless with many fictional threads entwined in the woof of fact. It tells the story of Tom Moore, country poet, and Bessie Dyke, country school teacher; of Tom Moore, the starving genius in a London attic, and Bessie Dyke, the celebrated actress; of Tom Moore, the subject of royal favor, and Bessie Dyke, loving but overproud; of Tom Moore in a ceaseless struggle with poverty, ill-fate, the loathsome enemies of his mistress—in a struggle with himself.

Mr. Van Buren will play Tom Moore, and Miss Taylor will be seen as Bessie Dyke.

Vernon Bettin, boy soprano, will sing several songs.

Florence Stone will be seen at the Burbank Theater today in "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," and the occasion will also be signalized by the return of the leading actor, William Desmond, who has been absent on a vacation.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is a comedy which had a large vogue in the East a season or two ago, and the story is an amusing one. Briefly, it tells how Jack Temple becomes stranded in mid-air, in a Ferris-wheel car, with a Mrs. Fuller. On being released from his predicament in the morning he makes proper excuses to his wife, but she does not believe him, and he accordingly fabricates the "sick friend" story. Complications of the usual sort, and some unusual ones, follow thick and fast. The piece is a clever farce, and should be well played by the good cast given it here.

Anthony Hope's romantic play, "The Adventure of Lady Ursula," will be made use of by the Lewis S. Stone company this week, at the Auditorium.

Lady Ursula, it will be remembered, is the piquant damsel who dons her brother's clothes to gain entrance to the house of a handsome bachelor who has foresworn femininity, vowing that no woman should cross his threshold.

Miss Oakley should do well in the title part, while Mr. Stone will be seen as Sir George Sylvester.

FOOTLIGHT SNAPSHOTS.

"The Times" Critic Will Tell of New York's Newest in Opera and Drama.

Taken as a whole, the theatrical outlook for the coming season in the metropolis is one of the most promising in the history of the country.

The center of dramatic interest in New York this year, however, is the two operahouses—Hammerstein's Manhattan and the Metropolitan—where will begin soon the most spectacular operatic conflict in history. Hammerstein, single-handed and hampered by debt, achieved a colossal victory last year and set the whole world talking. Now the endowed Metropolitan, to whose money-weary directorate expense has always been a trifling matter, will pour into casts and productions unstinted millions in an effort to finally and lastingly denominate the dauntless Hammerstein a second-rate adventurer. Hammerstein has built another operahouse in Philadelphia, and has announced himself ready for the fray.

The Times will present exclusively graphic, day-by-day accounts of the first month of this great struggle, together with the news and picturesque features of the new theatrical year, and interesting interviews with the foremost managers of the country, concerning the possibilities and probabilities for the theatrical year in the West.

Julian Johnson, dramatic and musical writer for this paper, will leave for the East this morning, and will devote more than a month to a study of theatrical and musical conditions as they are to be found in America's greatest city.

will present Frederick V. Bowers and a company of seven in "College Days," a musical comedietta.

Armstrong and Davis have an amusing travesty in "The New Chauffeur," and a variety of other sketches and specialties are on the bill.

"The Royal Chef," pleasant musical comedy concoction which visited Los Angeles last year, will return this week commencing an engagement at the Grand Operahouse this afternoon. A good production, fresh costumes and pretty girls are promised by the management.

William H. Conley has the title role, and the rest of the cast includes Mary Malatesta, Julia Curtiss, Bly Brown, Donald McKenzie, Walter B. Smith and others.

The new Orpheum bill for this week bids fair to outstrip the last in general excellence. There will be three new acts, and five of the best of last week's acts are retained.

The coming bill is again headed by a big "girl" act, but it does not feature then so much in musical numbers as in acrobatics. The "Phantastic Phantoms," put forth by Hilarion and Rosalie Cebellos, are nine in number, and they work on a dark stage against a setting of dead black, while they themselves are all in white. The act was originated by Ned Wayburn for the New York Hippodrome.

Jane Courthope, with a selected company, will give a playlet of the Sierra Nevadas, called "Lucky Jim." The sketch is a miniature "Girl of the Golden West," and elaborate scenery is carried.

A newcomer also is jolly Vinie Daly, comedienne and dancer of the famous Daly family, whose members include Tom, Bill, Bob, Dan and Lizzie.

Holdovers are the Pianophiends, Claude and Fanny Usher, the seven Yuillians, Reiff Brothers and "Gen." Ed. Lavine, whose burlesque jugglery is a scream.

"The Elopement" is billed for the coming week at the Unique. This is a two-act comedy by James P. Lee, in which many of the latest songs are interpolated, with chorus effects under the direction of Charles Justi, the orchestra leader.

All the principals will be seen in this piece, which has a humorous plot and a surprising denoument.

"Ryan's Reception" is the announced musical comedy at Fischer's this week. Ben T. Dillon is cast as a wealthy Irish politician, and the rest of the company support him in various character roles.

"The Little Prospector," a Colorado comedy-drama in which Chic Perkins enacts the leading role, will come to the People's Theater for a stay of one week, commencing this afternoon.

"Knight For A Day," fresh from a long eastern run, will be seen at the Mason Operahouse on the evening of November 2, commencing a week's engagement.

Dramagraphs.

"All this high brow stuff may be very well," said Al Woods, the melodrama king, "but 'The Millionaire and the Policeman's Wife,' played to $413 in Kansas City at a matinee and to $771 the same night. A show with a title like that can't lose."

The New York American reported on Tuesday that Julian Story, the ex-husband of Mme. Emma Eames, of the Metropolitan Operahouse, has spent the summer chiefly in seeking a reconciliation with his former wife.

A cablegram from London says that E. S. Willard has received a tempting offer to tour America this season for twenty weeks on a very large guarantee. He has been compelled to decline, however, as he has decided to make his next appearance on the London stage.

An entire season in one of New York City's smaller theaters has been set aside, beginning September 15, 1909, for Cyril Scott, who is to star under Brady & Grismer's management in a play written for him by George Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the

as a musical comedy star it will be in "Havana," now running at the Gaiety Theater, London. The book of "Havana," is by George Grossmith and Graham Hill. The lyrics are by Adrian Ross and the score by Leslie Stuart. The three acts are laid in and about Havana.

"The Easiest Way," the latest Eugene Walter play, which Belasco is to produce with Charlotte Walker in the leading part, was originally offered as a one-act play in vaudeville under the title of "The Man From Denver." It failed to please then and was taken off after a week's trial.

Pauline Chase and Mr. Frohman's Duke of York Theater Company, in "Pantaloon," have met with success at the Theater des Arts, in Paris, and Mr. Frohman proposes they shall appear in Berlin before returning to London for the reproduction in December of "Peter Pan."

In London an English actor bothered Wilton Lackaye by invariably following his ordering of "Scotch and soda" with the observation: "If you'll pardon my being an Englishman." "I'll not only pardon you; I'll sympathize with you," replied Lackaye on one occasion. "Being an Englishman is not a fault, but a misfortune."

The author of "Agnes," which Miss Nance O'Neil is producing in New York, is Mrs. Sydney Drew, whose pen name is George Cameron. She wished to conceal her identity, but the secret leaked out. Mrs. Drew is the wife of John Drew's younger brother, and is the daughter of McKee Rankin, being before her marriage Gladys Rankin.

A novelty is offered in "The Prima Donna," the new play for Fritzi Scheff, which Victor Herbert and Henry Blossom have written, in the fact that there will not be a pair of tights or an abbreviated skirt worn by any of the sixty girls who make up the chorus. Another novelty is in the fact that all the girls are tall, not one measuring less than 5 feet 10½ inches.

Gustav Charpentier is accused by a French journal of attaching more importance to having his muse crowned than to completing the long-awaited sequel to "Louise," which is to bear the name "Julien." A short time ago he visited the city of Rion, in Auvergne, and there witnessed a performance of his "Coronation of the Muse" in the presence of an audience of 30,000 people. From all parts of the province enthusiasts flocked in to participate in giving the composer a royal welcome.

Some time ago a "Grand Concours International de Musique," organized by Gabriel Astruc, the Paris impresario and publisher, offered a prize of $6000 for the best opera submitted in open competition. It seems the jury found it difficult to arrive at a final decision and ended up by dividing the award among six budding young composers. The first prize of $2000, was given to Louis Lambert for his "Penticosa." This composer already has had one work, "Spahi," produced at the Opéra Comique. Then $800 was awarded to each of the remaining five: Max d'Ollone, for "Retour;" Jules Bouval, for "Anna Dea;" Edmond Missa, for "Aubeline;" Henri Maréchal, for "Pia," and Ezio Camussi, for "La Dubarry."

Rosabell Morrison, who is the star this season in a spectacular production of "Faust," tells this story: "Let me see some of your black kid gloves," said a lady to a shopman. "These are not the latest style, are they?" she asked when the gloves were produced. "Yes, madam," replied the shopman. "We have had them in stock only two days." "I didn't think they were, because the fashion paper says black kids have tan stitches and vice versa. I see the tan stiches, but not the vice versa." The shopman explained that vice versa was French for seven buttons, so she bought three pairs.

Another link with the theatrical past has been broken by the death of the widow of the great English actor, William Charles Macready, at the age of 81 years. Her maiden name was Cecile Louise Frederica Spencer, and she was a granddaughter of Sir William Beachey, R. A., court painter to George III., and Queen Charlotte. She was married to Macready as his second wife in 1860, and contributed greatly to the comfort and peace of his declining years. A son, Cecil Frederick Nevil Macready, was born to her in 1862. He entered the British army and has a distinguished record in South Africa and elsewhere. He is now a colonel and occupies a responsible position at the horse guards.

Arnold Daly got right up in court the other day and confessed that he didn't know anything about business; that he didn't want to; that he never knew where his money went; that he sometimes earned $1000 a week; that he was invariably broke; that his family was an expensive one; that he owned two suits of clothes, and that his brother was a stage electrician who couldn't work because he had such an ungovernable temper. He also insisted that he did not consider legal matters one-half as important as a rehearsal, and that he must be allowed to leave court to attend to some really important matters. Incidentally he admitted that he owed $50,000.

Chauncey Olcott has annexed that one concerning the elderly patient who was suffering from a malady the remedy for which the doctor prescribed in the medicine she evinced much suspicion. Some time after she had taken the capsules she arose from her bed and took her seat in a rocking chair. Thinking that the attention would be gratefully received the son filled her pipe and taking a live coal from the hearth carried both to his mother. "Take that away, son!" she yelled in the utmost fright. "Don't you know better to come near me when I've got them cartridges in me!"

Visiting stars will illumine the season at San Carlo in Naples. Maria Gay will sing there either before or after her Metropolitan engagement; Félia Litvinne goes from Paris to be Brunnhilde in "Götterdammerung;" Gemma Bellincioni and Feodor Chaliapine, the Russian, will each make several appearances, and Amadeo Bassi, the tenor, late of the Manhattan, and Titta Ruffo and Mattia Battisfini, the baritones, will also fill shorter or longer engagements. The chef d'orchestre is Guiseppi Martucci, director of the Naples Conservatory. Under his baton Cilea's "Gloria," Mascheroni's "Perugina" and Massenet's "Thaïs" will be heard, in addition to "Aida," "Carmen," "Hamlet," "Ratcliff," "Don Giovanni" and "Roméo et Juliette." Still more enlightening as to the status of art in the Old World countries is the announcement of the season's plans at the Opera in the little Galician city of Lemberg. American cities of double the population may find food for meditation in the fact that a public of 150,000 people make it possible and profitable to present in "guest" engagements such stars as Marcella Sembrich, who is called Sembrich-Kochanska over there.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Anent military band music, and its alleged decadence, Henry Ohlmeyer has something interesting to say. Mr. Ohlmeyer is director of music at Coronado, and during the past few years has given very much of the best in music, by a military band of very fine organization.

Mr. Ohlmeyer has taken up his headquarters in Los Angeles for the winter, and will remain until next spring, when he will go East to organize another band.

"The military band has come to stay," said Mr. Ohlmeyer, "and it will grow in favor with the musical and unmusical as well. Fortunately, the demand for good bands and good music has made wonderful progress in the past eight years.

"This can be proven by the fact that today most of the amusement parks in the East aim to have as their principal attraction the best possible bands, bands that for a very nominal admission fee can be enjoyed to the utmost by the public. I believe that these amusement enterprises have been the means of educating the general public to the better music and demanding a higher grade of bands and music.

"As for the Italian bands, I do not think that in general they have had anything but a beneficial effect. There are now in this country perhaps some twelve Italian band organizations of recognized worth, whose music elevates the taste of all who hear it. But unfortunately there are some fifty other harum-scarum organizations, claiming the most preposterous names, whose music and musicians are genuinely hurtful.

"When I was in Chicago last summer I made a tour of the principal amusement parks then opened, and I found five large Italian bands playing engagements. Of all these bands the only one that I could recognize as a valuable addition to our music was a most excellent company at Sans Souci, directed by Francesco Ferullo. Every musician who knows the worth of a director must admit—if he is honest—that Ferullo is a genuine artist, and during the two weeks that I was in Chicago it was practically admitted that Ferullo's band gave the best music in the city.

"However, Sorrentino is to my personal taste the finest Italian leader in this country. He is a man who does not go in for eccentricities of any sort, and he has mastered not only the music of his own country, but he is a thorough scholar in Wagner."

Adela Verne will be the first soloist of the Woman's Orchestra this season, and the first concert of the year will be given in Simpson Auditorium Tuesday evening, December 1. Two of the numbers to be given by Miss Verne with orchestral accompaniment will be the Chopin Andante and Polonaise, Op. 26, and the Grieg Concerto in A minor.

The choir of the cathedral of St. Vibiana, with assisting vocal and instrumental soloists, will give a sacred concert in San Gabriel this afternoon, as the closing event of the fiesta, which has been held there this week for the benefit of the famous Mission church.

the Blanchard building with an informal reception for the Passmore trio.

Moore's band programme, at Eastlake Park today, will include Ziehrer's "Wiener Burger" waltz, a selection from "Romeo and Juliet," a variety of popular bits, and a selection from "Aida."

The Harmonia Club met last Thursday at the home of Miss Sadie Stanton, on Halldale avenue, discussing a programme of Indian music and southern negro melodies. Programme participants were Mrs. B. B. Colborn, Miss Helen Smyser, Miss Jessie Stombs, Miss Ruth Colborn, Miss Venetia Leech, Mrs. Harrison Allbright, Mrs. J. J. Abramson, Mrs. F. B. Revnard, Miss Florence Stratton and Mrs. Frank Harford.

The First Congregational Choral Club will give Mendelssohn's "Athalia" tonight, under the direction of William H. Lott.

The club will be assisted by Mrs. George A. Dobinson, reader; Mme. Bertha Vaughn, Mrs. C. G. Stivers, Miss Dorothy Chevrier, Mrs. C. E. Richards, Walter F. Skeele and Mrs. Harry Clifford Lott.

At the Gamut Club, 8n South Hope street, a series of performances for the building fund of Sinai congregation's new temple will be given shortly, commencing November 1. The company will be headed by J. Weinstock and Miss Ida Blum, and the first production will be the historic "Kol Nidre."

Miss Huldah Nagel, contralto, of Boston and Chicago, has removed to Los Angeles and will make this city her home.

Archibald W. Sessions will give the first organ recital of his season at Christ Church on Wednesday evening, November 4. Mr. Sessions will be assisted by Eugene Nowland, violinist.

The Los Angeles Conservatory gave a complimentari silver medal piano recital in Metropolitan Hall yesterday, the programme being presented by Addie Olivia Lawson and H. Raymond Lawson.

The Nowland-Hunter trio will give a special public rehearsal for students only on the first Friday afternoon of each month at 3:30 o'clock. These rehearsals will be given in Symphony Hall, Blanchard building, and will precede the regular concerts, the programmes being exactly the same in every way. Mr. Nowland will give a short explanatory talk for each work taken up.

The Shrine band, under the direction of Noble A. F. Frankenstein, will give a promenade concert and ball at the Shrine Auditorium Wednesday evening, November 25.

DEBUSSY, SELF AND ART.

French Composer of Intensely Individual Characteristics Expresses Himself on Men and Music.

The success in New York last season of Claude Debussy's remarkable music-drama, "Pelleas et Melisande," has made its composer an object of keen interest to Americans, and I consider myself privileged, says Emilie Frances Bauer, in Harper's, in having secured the first interview with the unapproachable and eccentric M. Debussy that has been vouchsafed.

Surrounded by luxury which bespeaks originality, this singular Frenchman spends most of his time within the four walls of his interesting workshop, a large room lined with books and hung with pictures, a close scrutiny of which further accentuates the personal tastes of a man of genius. Debussy acknowledged to the writer his aversion to meeting foreigners as due to his lack of understanding the English and German languages, and to his nervousness when the French language does not flow easily.

"It takes too much out of me, and means nothing either to me or my visitor." I expressed surprise that during the hot months Debussy was still to be found hard at work in Paris, a fact which he explained in the following manner:

"You know, people leave their homes to get away from themselves and from their surroundings. I confess that I live only in my surroundings and in myself. I can conceive of no greater pleasure than sittings in my chair at this desk and looking at the walls around me day by day and night after night. In these pictures I do not see what you see; in the trees outside of my window I neither see nor hear what you do. I live in a world of imagination, which is set in motion by something suggested by my intimate surroundings rather than by outside influences, which distract me and give me nothing. I find an exquisite joy when I search deeply in the recesses of myself, and if anything original is to come from me, it can only come that way."

I then saw Debussy differently from the way my imagination had pictured the writer of "Pelleas et Melisande" and that vast symphony entitled "The Sea." He is a man of intense prejudices, and one would be safe in the belief that his self-appreciation is more an admiration for and devotion for his nationality than mere vanity or self appreciation. Debussy firmly believes that his music is purely French and he observed that that which is known as French music is quite as much German as it is French, which is to him a cause of regret as far as the purity of the French school is concerned.

"In your own early studies, M. Debussy, were you as antagonistic to the classics as you are in your compositions?"

Debussy answered by asking another question:

"What do you call classics? Believe me that most of these classics in spite of themselves, and that quality has been forced upon them without their knowledge, consent, or even expectation. I acknowledge one great master, but I do not know why he should be called a classic, because he lives, breathes and pulsates today. This is Bach; but I will not say the same of Beethoven, as I consider him a man of his epoch, and with a few exceptions his works should have been allowed to rest. I can never understand why all people who study music, all countries that work to establish original schools, should be built upon a German foundation. It will take France innumerable years to work out that influence, and when we look back upon the original French writers such as Rameau, Couperin, Daquin and men of their period we can but regret that the foreign spirit fastened itself upon that which would have been a great school."

It was not difficult to understand the implied word, although the name Cesar Franck was unspoken; it is well understood that Debussy is no admirer of the great Belgian writer, whose influence is to be found upon all of the present-day writers with the exception of Debussy himself. As may well be understood, Debussy is keenly interested in America. The appreciation manifested in "Pelleas et Melisande" has awakened in him the feeling that there is a responsive chord in that far-away country, and in speaking of its own musical development he expressed the same regret that it should build upon a German basis. He said, "The distinction of a country like that is than if it struggled into a foreign voice and then groped out of it into its own personality and individual strength—in short, they are less German bound than are the countries who hear little or no other music through Chauvinism or antipathies." The bond between Debussy and America is now being strengthened, as he has selected as his subject for further work Edgar Allan Poe's "Fall of the House of Usher" and the same writer's "The Devil in the Belfry," both of which appeal strongly to his tastes.

Debussy says that the work is not to be an opera, though his music will be set to the prose, and he himself is writing the book. The two works will be given the same evening in the order above mentioned, and they are already under contract to the Metropolitan Opera Company. Debussy has long been an admirer of Poe, and thinks it quite remarkable that some American has not been moved to find an inspiration in his masterpieces. "I shall not write this in the form of an opera, because I do not want to write anything which in any way approaches "Pelleas." I cannot understand the object of a writer who creates a second work along the same lines which made the first successful. I should no more want to repeat myself than I should want to copy some one who had written before me. Therefore when I have nothing to say I do not attempt to write. The inspiration I feel through E. A. Poe is totally different in its elements from that which I felt through Masterlinck, and I believe that it will be equally successful, and when I say equally successful I mean that it will find the same number of enemies and the same number of friends."

Art and Artists.

BY ANTONY E. ANDERSON.

Impressions of Modern French Art.

Returned to this country, his head surging with fine ideas, but not just certain of what he has accomplished while away, the American student is asked by the over-serious of his compatriots: "Well, did you work hard?"

To evade direct answer may be easy, and to prove a "Yes" may be difficult, but the one who can say, "No, not all the time," is he who can be sure that his trip has benefited him.

To work all day in Julian's, and study French grammar at night, and to wander through the Louvre on Sunday afternoons, brings one little in touch with continental movements.

It is coming to pass, however, that we go abroad—those of us who are students—less and less before we have gained a sort of artistic emancipation for ourselves. Once there, we are discursive, contemplative, less the recluse. There is so much to see that broadens and deepens, besides the work to be done.

Pen and Ink Illustration by a pupil of the Art Students' League of Los Angeles.

Paris, as the center of Europe, and the great international show place, though it does not monopolize all of art or any one interest, sets forth more in a year in the way of expositions than any other city.

Artists of all schools and nations bring hither their works, to submit them to a judgment that can boast its freedom from prejudice and sectationalism, not the judgment of single juries, to be sure, but of the great critics that review the exhibitions.

This cosmopolis of talent is varied enough, and would be a motley spectacle indeed, were not the shows throughout the year each different in character and scope.

Each school is discriminatingly honored with no show of favoritism. The government buys from all. And if the French public has any choice, it never goes to the extremes of fads that sweep over our little worlds of art from time to time. Art effort is such an accustomed thing that no one man's work can turn the public's head, and it is sure that those who are most used to seeing art are the most capable of judging. Even the Sargent, Lavery and Whistler crazes of yesterday, and the Zuloaga furore of today and tomorrow, could wield no true right to enthuse us until Paris had pronounced them worthy.

The five great exhibits of the year show, besides the work of foreigners, who are after all in the minority, the painting and sculpture of the industrious sons of France in all its varied tendency.

Composing the bulk of this are the to be expected things whose matrix was cast in times past—Bonnat and Carolus Duran, portraits; Bouguereau, sugar classics; Gerome, orientals; L'Hermitte, peasants; and '71 battleships, and the great crowds of almost Barbizon landscapes.

These pictures seem to paint themselves without the intercession of personality. They are French in general classification, and no one's in particular, though it may be hazarded that no medal ever goes astray.

Topping above this mass are the men who make their own form, and whose works have been thought over and make you think in turn. Their names are known, and will last, but they are too diverse to form a group except as they might be called scientific or modern, much the same thing for the moment.

This modernity lacks sentiment, as a penalty for the literal truths it carries, and is very much traveled and educated. It is still anti-Teutonic though, because abstract and incidentless. It is the problem and not his picture's story that interests the artist of this latter-day band.

The Salon d'Automne, the first exhibition of the season, comprises much of their work. The late Eugene Carriere, quite a revolutionary, was one of its founders, as was Rodin, while Scinon and Besnard are almost constant exhibitors.

It is the salon of the elect, of the artists accepted by the "Intellectuals," and it alone of all is a harmonious whole to the exclusion of any work that could be called banal or ordinary. The "arrived" of the extremists are there, and whatever the variety of aspect these walls present to the eye, as covered with pictures of more or less depth and more or less vibrancy, there is a oneness of intent in which all are painted, and that for clarity in regard of nature and luminosity of effect. Not the most important of the famous men's works are seen here, as they are usually reserved for the New Salon in the spring, but if one craves masterpieces there is the retrospective ex-shown alongside the picture of the year, consisting of works of deceased French masters—one year about fifty works of Ingres and Manet, for instance.

From the close of the autumn salon those days in March and April when the salons of the Artistes Francais and the Beaux Arts receive pictures and statues, there is work going on in Parisian ateliers, one may be sure. Unhappy indeed the model who is disengaged or the artist without ideas for a composition. The conversation where these solitary aspirants meet together is all about progress of work and the favoritisms of one or the other big salons whose shows are the world's art events.

Only one type of worker can look tranquilly ahead. (Not the Hors Concours man, for his peace is not unlike lethargy.) One band of artists are sure of space and place, and are not afraid of juries. For there is one organization that has none—the Society of Independent Artists, whose members pay so much per square meter for the space their pictures and statues ocupy, and exhibit what they choose individually.

Simple arrangement, with a result, oh, so complicated, taxing the risibilities on the one hand when one visits the exhibition, and strangely interesting one's most serious faculties on the other.

The more original of these workers form an interesting group, and it is out of this Society that great critics say the artists of the future will come.

Monet, the painter of vibrating sunlight, is mild indeed by the side of these later ones, Mattese, Manguin and their lieutenants. To sacrifice all qualities, even form, to vibration, is the tendency of this group. Monet at least kept the profiles of his objects, as witness his marvelous command of aërial planes. But these young men eliminate everything but dancing, humming color, and their forms are all whorls, like the spots seen when one closes one's eyes. They are intensely scientific, and, instead of seeking for the vibration that exists in nature (if any does exist,) are trying to fix on the canvas that which is created by the eye.

[These interesting and illuminating "Impressions" of a Los Angeles artist lately returned from Paris will be concluded in next Sunday's Art and Artists.]

ART NOTES.

Alexander Stirling Calder will give a private view of a memorial cross and other models on Wednesday, October 28, from 10 o'clock a.m. until 4 o'clock p.m., at his studio, No. 625 South Figueroa street.

Frank P. Sauerwen is at Taos, N. M., busily at work on landscapes with Indians. Some of his later sketches are among the strongest and finest work he has yet done.

Carl Oscar Borg left last Monday for Honduras, to be gone for a year. Besides painting, he will illustrate a book on Honduras which Mr. Gibson, the artist's friend and minister to Honduras, is about to write.

The twenty-five posters which the Painters' Club has been showing in different parts of the city, were sold at auction from the gallery at Blanchard Hall last Wednesday.

The exhibition of the work of the pupils of the Art Students' League opened at the Blanchard gallery last Friday morning. It will remain open mornings and afternoons, free to the public, till next Wednesday evening. The work of twenty-five pupils is being shown, in charcoal, pen and ink, and color.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Sonnet.

What is the sonnet? 'Tis the pearly shell
That murmurs of the far off, sounding sea;
A precious jewel carved most curiously;
It is a little picture painted well.
What is a sonnet? 'Tis the tear that fell
From a great poet's hidden ecstasy,
A two-edged sword, a song, a star—ah, me!
Sometimes a heavy tolling funeral bell.

This was the flame that shook with Dante's breath;
The solemn organ whereon Milton played,
And the clear glass where Shakespeare's shadow falls;
A sea this is—beware who ventureth!
For like a fjord its narrow floor is laid
Mid-ocean deep to the sheer mountain walls.

—[Richard Watson Gilder.

Dreams of the Grass.

Oh, to lie in long grasses,
Oh to dream on the plain,
Where the west wind sings as it passes,
A weird and unceasing refrain.
Where the rank grass tosses and wallows,
And the plain's rim dazzles the eye;
Where hardly a silver cloud bosses
The flashing steel shield of the sky.

To watch the gay gulls as they glitter
Like snowflakes, and fall from on high
To dip in the deeps of the prairie;
Where the crow's foot tosses awry,
Like the swirl o' swift waltzes in glee,
To the harsh, shrill creak of the cricket
And the song of the lark and the bee.

—[Hamlin Garland.

Criticism.

We bar the doors and close the shutters to,
And think that we are safe from prying eyes;
Then through a crack we peep to criticise
And are displeased by what our neighbors do;
But lo, men smile and whisper as they pass,
To think we do not know our house is glass.

OUT-OF-TOWN SOCIETY

Pasadena.

THE Valley Hunt Club was the scene of the largest social event of the week Saturday afternoon, when the postponed tennis matches between Miss May Sutton, Mr. Sinsabaugh, Mrs. Robert Farquhar and Lewis Freeman drew more than 200 spectators to the courts. The clubhouse was decorated with cosmos and yellow blossoms, and tea tables were arranged at either end of the reception hall and on the terrace. Mrs. Henry T. Fuller and Mrs. James S. Macdonnell presided. The next entertainment of the club will be a Hal-phantom costume, and dancing, Hallowe'en games, cards and suitable refreshments will afford entertainment.

One of the prettiest functions of the week was the bridge whist party given Friday evening by Miss Constance Maclintock at her home on Bradford street. The unique feature of the affair was a mystic entertainment given after the bridge by a Los Angeles fortune teller. A chafing dish supper followed. Those present were: Misses Mildred Cushing, Mabel Love, Louise Austin, Genevieve Stehman, Julia Holmes, Gladys Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Austin, Messrs. Roy Hull, Jack Dotten, Edward Rust, Sumner Cristy, John Stehman and others.

Mrs. Charles Woodbury of South Madison avenue was the hostess Tuesday afternoon at a bridge party. Golden chrysanthemums adorned the living-room, where card tables were placed, and the dining-room was gay with coreopsis. At 5 o'clock tea was served. Those present were Mmes. Thomas Nolmes, Wallace Woodworth, Neal K. Taylor, Fred Nash, Earl Nash, Herbert Holt; Misses Helene Fitzgerald, Helen Sickler, Edna Browne, Jessie Earley, Alice Earley, Stratton, Ellen Lowry.

Miss Gladys McAlpine arranged a pleasant party Monday evening at her home on Elmira street, complimentary to Leslie Ott, in celebration of his birthday anniversary. Music and readings afforded entertainment, and a supper with a candle-illuminated birthday cake rounded out the evening's pleasure. There were twenty present.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barlowe of South Euclid avenue entertained a few friends at five hundred Monday evening, and after the game dancing was enjoyed. The floral decorations were quite elaborate, pepper boughs and masses of colored chrysanthemums combining to produce a charming effect. There were twenty guests present.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stonestreet of Merritt Drive gave one of the prettiest ante-nuptial functions of the season Wednesday evening in honor of their niece, Miss Alma Lewis, who will marry R. C. Barnes early in November. Wedding bells, hearts, darts and Cupids were used in profusion with bridal flowers in ornamenting the rooms. Music and games entertained the guests, among whom were: Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Ferris, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fish, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Beaumont, Mr. and Mrs. James Bryden, Mr. and Mrs. McBride, Mr. and Mrs. Gain, Mr. and Mrs. Howard. Misses Mabel Root, Lilly Wright, Rose Wright, Florence Nickerson, Maude Prawl, Nell Prawl, Ethel Flint, Leonora Leiberg, Messrs. Fred Durkey, Lewis Rowley, Frank Duncan, Blain Galloway, William Leiberg, Clifford and Brown.

Rev. and Mrs. James H. Lash entertained Tuesday evening with an elaborately-appointed dinner, where covers were laid for twelve. Music followed the dinner, Mrs. Lash furnishing vocal numbers and Miss Stella Brown giving piano selections. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Prentiss, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Simpkin, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pickering, Mrs. M. W. Brown and Miss Brown.

Newton R. McMillan was the recipient of a delightful surprise party arranged for him Wednesday evening in celebration of his seventeenth birthday, by some of his young friends, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. McMillan, North Fair Oaks avenue. Games, music and a birthday supper, made the evening enjoyable. Those present were Misses Gladys Davis, Esther Aronson, Mildred Markham, Elizabeth Ogden, Ellen Kelly, Hazel Remy, Vira Robb, Elsie Truckenmiller, Oro Ordway, Edna McMillan, Messrs. Ernest Tuttle, Earle Robb, Jessie Rigg, Frank Griffith, Richard Place, Wayne Horn, Charles Clarke.

Miss Caroline Roos was given a pleasant surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Houck, West Hammond street, Wednesday evening. The happy feature of the evening was the presentation of a handsome Hav-

New Tailored Suits

$25, $29.50, $35 and $39.50

We've a new lot of suits for tomorrow's visitors, suits with style, character and individuality. And at prices, too, that will leave you in no doubt as to their value. Had we marked them half as much more you would still consider any one of them a most wise investment. In them are combined all the newer fashion features: the latest coat effect, the new skirt model, novel trimming ideas. And they are tailored and finished as only high-grade apparel is—there's no mistaking that.

There are suits of plain broadcloths, herringbones and other novelty striped goods. Navies, Catawbas, Greens, Taupe, Wisteria, and other fashionable hues. The values represented by these new suits will be the talk of the town by tomorrow night. See them before the best specimens are taken—$25.00, $29.50, $35.00 and $39.50.

TE STORE

Save Money In Every Part of Your Home

Two weeks ago our window displays and advertisements were mainly given up to prove that we could save you money on women's wearables and other goods generally bought by them. During the past week we have positively proven in windows and advertisements that Hamburger's Store for men is in deed as in name the "BEST IN THE WEST." This week our windows, this advertisement and our prices tell you the story of big savings throughout your household.

WHAT OTHERS ADVERTISE WE SELL FOR LESS.

lish Suits, Gowns and Skirts

From The Big Kantrovitz Stock, New York City

Our purchases through the receiver include nearly 8000 suits, coats and skirts. This firm, while in business, catered to the most exclusive and high-class stores. Their garments are the celebrated "VERIBEST" and known the world over for the superb tailoring and superior quality of materials. The designs were the most famous in the world of fashion. We bought the goods at practically HALF their real worth. Going to sell them the same way.

$39, $49 and $59 Suits and Gowns $25.

Beautifully tailored suits of broadcloth in black and all popular colors. Others of the season's newest novelty materials. The gowns are really exquisite creations of very fine imported broadcloth and satins. All the newest shades including a very delicate peach shade and the soft toned greens, blues and rose. Also white and black

Kantrovitz "Veribest" $10 Panama and Voile Skirts $5

DOES IT PAY TO BUY ... AT WHITLEY'S? ...

Here are two special values, that clearly and conclusively answer the question:

Women's Gold Filled Cuff Pins

They're very high class, distinctive new designs. Some are engraved, some etched, some beaded and others perfectly plain. There's an elegance about them all that is characteristic of everything that leaves this house.

75¢

We made a special purchase of these—that accounts for the lowness of the price—75c.

Solid Gold Scarf Pins

The Pins are 14 kt. Solid Gold. They are the very newest, exclusive designs. Every Pin is set with a birthstone—any birthstone you desire. These pins make very appropriate gifts—and they're typical Whitley values at $1.25.

Fashionable Autumn Milliner
For Every Purs

The Trend of Fashion

Large palette-shaped hats of bold outline are sharing favor with the Rembrandt shapes.

Medium size hats with dome shaped crowns are scheduled for extreme popularity.

And some very smart small hats are shown in attractive turban shapes.

Fancy plumage of all sorts is worn to a great extent and is very fashionable.

Enormous wings are used in profusion, in colors contrasting with the other trimmings.

Clipped ostrich pompons and umbrella shaped aigrettes are much in vogue.

But a visit to the Marvel will give you all the authentic fashion information first-handed. Come Monday.

Millinery supremacy in Los Angeles rightly belo conceded to the Marvel—it has been so for y never so obviously, so overwhelmingly as NOW.

No other store keeps such a close grip on the ters of fashion—no other store carries such ext diversified millinery stocks—no other store da such large quantities, nor sell at such low price

Here—a woman may buy a trimmed hat for as $5, or for as much as $100. The style will be cor exclusive, whatever she pays. Marvel hats are the correct interpretation of the prevailing Paris, New York and other fashion sources.

Or, if a woman prefer to buy her own trimmin come to the Marvel and get anything or every goes to the making of a fashionable hat—from the buckram frame—the untrimmed shape—the silk— ribbon—or ornaments, to the wings, or the swe trich feathers. What other store offers such a s and so economical?

And still further—the Marvel offers you the the most skillful millinery designers and trimm city. Here, you may bring your own mate trimmings and have your hat made to your orde your own face, fancy and purse.

NEW SKIN REMEDY STOPS ITCHING

Skin Troubles of Infants and Adults Quickly Cured.

When it is known that poslam, the new skin remedy, will stop the torturous itching attending eczema with first application and bring immediate relief and comfort to sufferers from all skin troubles, its merits will be instantly appreciated. On the tender skin of chafing infants, poslam may be used with soothing and beneficial effects. It is applied externally, and its remarkable healing powers begin their work at once.

All skin diseases, including eczema, acne, herpes, rash, tetter, etc., yield readily to its remarkable curative properties. Occasional applications of poslam, in small quantities, will quickly banish pimples, hives, blackheads, blotches, and will relieve and cure itching feet, scaly scalp, humors, etc. A special 50-cent package has been adopted for those who use poslam for these minor troubles. This, as well as the regular two-dollar jar, is on sale at the Owl Drug Co., and other leading drug stores in Los Angeles.

An experimental supply of poslam may be obtained, free of charge, by writing to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth St., New York City.

Without exception we consider them the best suit values in Los Angeles. They represent the highest quality of ladies' tailoring, both in design and workmanship. Practically all of the season's best fabrics and colorings, among them are excellent hard twisted worsteds in plain and fancy colorings, fine chiffon and English broadcloth in colors and shadow stripes. The styles are long and three-quarter coat, Piccadilly and cutaway effects. For style, fitting qualities, and a general dressiness they are in the same class as the made-to-order tailored suit, and the woman who wants a suit away better than the average will do well to see these.

Dr. Josiah Strong of New York sees in the rapid increase of wealth the country's greatest danger. This increase of wealth the country's greatest danger. This increase, he says, is appalling, having been from a total of $7,000,000,000 in 1850 to $107,000,000,000 in 1904, at which rate by 1950 the wealth of this country will be greater than that of all Europe and Asia combined. "It is increase of wealth," he says, "which constitutes the chief danger of the cities, where extremes of luxury and poverty produce intense jealousies and antagonisms. We have, probably, one more generation to solve this problem of city life, and if this great stream of concentrated wealth cannot be turned to the public service it may overwhelm us with its corrupting influences. I see ground for hope in the general movement for clean civic government recently felt in most of our large cities."

The personal influences of the lives of great men is called a spiritual force by Lawrence McTurnan, Assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Illinois. The subtle power of such personality eludes analysis, even while one is under its sway, and the mental impulse received carries with it physical benefits. It is this sensitiveness, he says, which makes the average boy love the heroes of adventure and creates the universal respect for the laborer who gives an honest day's work.

The American boy is put on a high level by Rev. A. Tremayne Dunston, an Englishman visiting in Seattle. "Sturdy, independent, resourceful," he says, "the American boy is hard to drive, but very easily led. He is splendidly independent, born of his nation's history, and like, his English cousin, has not learned to doff his cap to his betters because he has not discovered such persons. He has learned to stand, speak and act for himself. He is a born worker and has no false pride in his work. As a high school pupil he thinks it no disgrace to labor during vacation, and cares little what it is so long as the money is clean."

The supporters of the hypnotic theory will evidently see in recent events evidence that hypnotism is coming into its own. For many years the majority of people have looked upon hypnotism as a dangerous thing. Now, however, with clergymen effecting cures by mental suggestion, coupled with prayer, and medical men using mental suggestion for the cure of their patients' ills, a wave of faith in psycho-theraueptics is sweeping over the community. Dr. Edwin Ash of Harley street, London, has for a long time utilized this "natural curative force," as he calls it, "both by indirect and direct suggestion. The chief use of this force, he says, is in organic disease, especially in certain forms of dyspepsia and heart trouble which have a mental origin. It is of great use in consumption cases. Of one of his cases he says: "A girl who had injured her hip joint went to hospitals and doctors for two years without relief. She was then cured at two or three sittings by the simple process of direct suggestion—just a few passes over the joint with the reiterated assurance that she would be cured."

A LITERARY EXCURSION.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 7.—This year, literature with a big "L" is to be given a grand send-off by the new Lord Mayor. Distinguished men of letters are to be a feature of his annual circus, which goes in London under the more dignified title of the "Lord Mayor's Show." A notable portion of the pageant will be in the great founders of early English letters as well as distinguished litterati of modern times. Of course, there will be Shakespeare and Bacon as well, despite the controversialists. Dr. Johnson, Charles Lamb, Pope and Addison will also appear in the procession. It has been suggested by some that Charles Dickens should be borne in effigy through the streets of London; but, as many members of the Dickens family are still alive, others considered that his career is not sufficiently "antique" to figure in a show of this description. Another point, still undecided, is whether wax figures typifying the authors, or actual living men, dressed up to look like them, will be employed. If the latter, there will probably be no difficulty in finding plenty of men to look like Shakespeare, Milton and the rest, as there was no trouble in the Chelsea pageant in finding multitudes of Charles the Seconds.

H. G. Wells has resigned from the socialistic society known as the "Fabians." It has long been known that Wells and the Fabians were not getting along quite as well as they should and now the cat is out of the bag. The Fabians say that it was a case of Wells trying to run the society whereas the distinguished author, "More in sorrow than in anger," attributes their failure to get on to the pure cussedness of things in general. No author has done more than Wells to popularize that nebulous philosophy called socialism, which, so far, has refused to allow itself to be defined. In "Anticipations" and other of his books, he adopted the Edward Bellamy point of view, but when the Fabians drew up a formula putting metes and bounds to socialism which, like the primeval chaos, refuses to conform to any limitations, Wells found it necessary to drop out.

Inside members of the Fabian Society darkly hint at a struggle for control between Bernard Shaw and H. G. Wells. Any one who knows the "Great and Only G.B.S." must admit that it is difficult for two "Great and Onlys" to exist in the same society. The Fabians still retain G.B.S., though it must be admitted they are hit rather hard by the withdrawal of Wells. One of the ostensible reasons for Wells's resignation consists in the fact that the classical Fabians will not admit the principle of compensation to individual and class owners of land and property. Says Wells on this point:

"I think the repudiation of compensation in the Fabian basis is opposed to all those ideas of orderly social development inherent in modern socialism. I have lost any hope of the Fabian society contributing effectually to the progress of the movement and, to borrow a convenient Americanism, I have no use for a Fabian society that is not developing and spreading ideas. Moreover," he continues, "I want very much to concentrate myself now upon the writing of novels for some years."

Judging from the hint which Wells has thrown out, it is doubtful if his future books will contain quite so much socialism as have his early works. One thing is certain, the cause which he has championed so well, will lose, for the time being, much of the active support of one of its most brilliant and, it should be added, well-balanced advocates.

Some of the most hustling publishers in England are adopting all sorts of "dodges" to get the public interested in their authors aside from the purely literary attractiveness of the novel itself. For instance, one firm is offering a prize for "the best twelve-word telegram describing the personality of the author" of a certain book; another publisher offers a prize of $25 for the best drawing of an imaginary portrait ... identity is not disclosed.' A third one, not to be outdone, offers a prize for the exact height of the author; and the most accurate surmise as to whether a certain book is written by a man or a woman. With all these inducements before the public, it is a little difficult to choose which scheme gives the largest reward for the smallest amount of brain fag. It is a rather distressing sign of the times when publishers have to descend to giving away houses and lots in order to get their books read; and before long the question of the literary connoisseur will not be: "How did you enjoy such and such an author?" but "how many prizes did you win?"

A few years ago, when a publisher in England wanted to launch a book well, he usually gave a "little dinner" to which various influential press representatives and critics were invited—quite by accident, of course—and then the subject of conversation was—as Mark Twain puts it—"jerked around" until the novelist for whom the dinner had been given came under discussion. The reviewers and critics departed feeling happy over the dinner, and when the book came up, they usually gave it a "send off." Of course, this did not always work, but it was the time-honored custom with publishers who were supposed to be more or less "enterprising."

Today, however, all this is changed. The author is kept in the mysterious background; guessing competitions are started as to whether "its" a man or a woman; and prizes are given for the color of "its" hair. Literary criticisms are another novel device for interesting the wary public. Prizes ranging from $2 to $50 have been recently offered not only by publishers, but by the authors themselves, for the best criticism of certain books. After a while, public taste will be so "educated" to expect rewards, that ordinary prizes will fail to interest, and inducements to read will have to be run on the coupon system—the one buying the most books winning the highest prize. Of course there are a number of staid London firms who treat these "modern methods" of capturing trade with contempt, but that's another story, and the "prize packet" book idea seems to be winning a certain amount of popular favor.

For a novelist to get his or her book read by King Edward is one of the best guarantees of success. His Majesty, however, has little time to select his own books, and wisely deputizes one of his women friends to do his literary reconnoitering for him. One of the King's ablest "book tasters" is the wife of the Premier, Mrs. Asquith. She has long held this honored post, and reads nearly everything in the novel line that comes under the King's notice. In fact, before her marriage, as Margot Tennant, she became the King's literary adviser. It is not generally known, but King Edward is quite a devourer of the modern novel, with a predilection for the French school. Quite a number of his books are in French, for he has a profound horror of translations.

NOTES.

The Bible is now printed in 480 languages.

The recent death of John B. Farwell in Chicago at the age of 82, brings to public attention the fact that he was the man who "discovered" Dwight L. Moody.

The world's Christian Endeavor Convention, which was to have been held in Agra, India, in January, 1910, will be held November 20-23, 1909. The change in date is to accommodate travelers by certain special steamers.

Famous liquors have long been prepared by the Benedictines, Carthusians and other Roman Catholic monks. Now the Pope has ordered these brewing and distilling orders to print on all their labels the statement that His Holiness grants a partial indulgence to all teetotalers.

A new development in social settlement work by college students is the daily Vacation Bible Schools, twenty-nine of which were maintained during the past summer in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Providence and Albany. Between 6000 and 7000 children were enrolled. Meetings for religious instruction, industrial education and wholesome play were held in church buildings, and taught by volunteer college student workers.

The reach of the recent imperial irade of the Sultan of Turkey, restoring the constitution of 1876, has not been grasped by the public. Jerusalem is held by Turkey, and consequently under Moslem sway. The announcement of the granting of a constitution with its privileges of religious liberty, created great excitement in the city of David. Sheiks, priests and rabbi delivered speeches, denouncing the old régime, and Moslems, Christians, Jews, Samaritans and Armenians joined in a triumphal procession.

The South India United Church has been formed as the latest of denominational unions. It comprises the Congregationalists of the Madura and Jaffa missions of the American board, the Travancore mission of the London Mission Society, the Madras mission of the United Free Church of Scotland and the Arcot mission of the Reformed Church in America. The new denomination represents 22,000 communicants and 140,000 adherents. The notable feature, ecclesiastically, of the union is the combination of Presbyterianism and Congregationalism.

and the mine in which I worked when I was a boy of 11. Then we went to Ireland, and in a little town saw, by chance, the unveiling of a marble slab to the memory of William J. Sewell of New Jersey, whose money had practically built and maintained the Episcopal church of the village. When I returned to New York I learned that William J. Sewell had been a member of the United States Senate; that he began life as a section hand on a railroad at seventy cents a day, and that he died worth many millions of dollars.

"BEST STORY" ON RECORD.

"In this very room," Mr. Watchorn went on to say, "John D. Crimmins, the banker and contractor, who has employed as many as 12,000 men at one time, described how his father, coming from Ireland, was put ashore in New Jersey, and in the night, because the Knownothings of New York threatened all foreigners with death. The greatest and best story that was ever written is contained in the records of this office. It will be given to the world some day, and it will be true.

"The achievements of soldiers are perpetuated in romance, and poetry, and properly, but we read very little about the heroes of peace, the men who battle with adversity, who breast the storms of winter and who toil like galley-slaves in the summer's heat and finally build factories and mills that still other men may have work. America is filled with poor friendless boys, aliens by birth, who are to be the merchants and bankers and manufacturers of the future. Why, sir, the story, the first chapter of which was written in the sailing of the Mayflower and the Pilgrims, will continue until the culminating purpose of destiny, the freedom of all mankind, has been accomplished.

DOOM OF THRONES IN EMIGRATI

"Through the dust in the path that led to Canaan, I see Abraham, bearded, a staff in his hand, with Sarah at his side, going forth into a strange land to establish a mighty nation. I see Moses in the wilderness, heading another movement that was to overturn and reconstruct all human history. But the flight of the oppressed to the shelter of the American flag is the greatest exodus of all and is yet to drive every monarch from his throne and to liberate the whole of humanity.

"We often complain because foreigners sometimes come here, earn a few hundred dollars, and go back to their old homes," Mr. Watchorn continued. "Nothing better could happen for us or for the countries to which they return. Each immigrant who leaves the United States takes a banner of light with him. In all probability he will not stay for long—a look at the conditions he left when he went to America will make him dissatisfied with scenes for which his heart longed. But whether he stays or not, he is an evangel of liberty, just the same. Home again, in the ancient village on the mountainside, or in the city by the ocean, he starts a ferment for the things he enjoyed in this country.

SPREAD FAME OF OUR PRODUCTS

"The humble diggers of our ditches, the men who now do the heavy and common labor of the United States, have returned to Italy in considerable numbers, and have praised our shoes and cheese. So our foreign trade in those products has grown wonderfully. A British mechanic who once lived in the United States will not buy an English organ or piano. Here, again, the man who goes back helps American industry. At Trieste, the largest seaport in Austria-Hungary, stevedores were paid at a rate of 40 cents a day. Some of them emigrated to this country. Returning to Trieste they demanded $1.50 a day and got it.

"We overlook the fact that the countries from which our immigrants come are those which buy of us. Our business with Great Britain and Germany is immense. On the other hand, we have scarcely any trade at all with France. The reason is obvious. There are only 100,000 natives of France in the United States. Wherever there are returned immigrants the uplift of America is being felt. Increased demands by the people are bound to bring larger wages. Mexico will not prosper until its ignorant peons have wooden floors in their houses and a change of clothing for Sunday.

EXPECTS MUCH OF JEWISH LAD.

"I jumped on a tug and steamed to the side of the Umbria. The little monkey was let down to me on a rope. We sent him West in the afternoon. That boy," and there was much tenderness and confidence in Mr. Watchorn's voice, "will be Mayor of Kansas City if he grows to manhood and hasn't bad luck."

"Must an alien have a fixed sum of money before he can be admitted to the United States?"

"No, but he must be physically competent to earn his living when he gets here. A deaf man, young and strong, was turned back today. If he went into the street he might be run over and killed or injured, in which event he would become a public charge. A Greek farmer with $49 was here this morning. He was old and broken down. The steamship that brought him over must take him away. The cash in hand of the immigrant last year averaged $17 apiece. Laborers who come under contract, except professional persons and domestic servants are excluded. If they were not excluded employers could work up strikes among their workmen and fill their shops and mills with cheap hands hired in Europe."

MANY CRIMINALS ARE STOPPED.

"What measure do you take to prevent the landing of criminals and anarchists?"

"It wouldn't be proper for me to tell you. We stop about 220 thieves, murderers and anarchists a year. Most of our trouble, however, is occasioned by Belgians and Frenchmen who bring young women over in the staterooms of the best ships as their nieces or daughters, and sell or lease them out for evil purposes. I have eighteen of my best inspectors who go about in a boat of their own while hunting these wolves of the sea."

"Is the carrying of immigrants a profitable part of the business of steamship lines?"

"I don't know. A vessel makes the western voyage in seven days. The steerage rate to America is $35. Furthermore, the cargo walks on and walks off, and there is no charge for insurance. Of course, I am not proficent in figures concerning water transportation, but it looks like a mighty good business to me."

"Do Americans ever spend all of their money in Europe and then come home in the steerage?"

"I can't say as to that. Americans do come in the steerage, but they always take pains to tell us they are students of human character or investigators of social conditions."

"To return to your own experience," I said, "you mentioned that you began work in the mines at the age of 11?"

"Yes, in Derbyshire. At first I was a trapper boy, opening and closing the ventilating doors in the entries of the mine. When I was 16 I was put in charge of all the ponies that hauled the coal, and there were a good many of them. I was a miner two years later. Four times a week I went to night school, where I learned all about Lincoln, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Robert E. Lee. America, I thought, was the place for me. A lawyer of the name of Bone, a rich man, was much concerned in the school and the pit lads, as we youngsters were called. He offered to advance the money for my education as a mining engineer. But I told him a poor boy had no chance in England, and that I meant to emigrate to America. 'You can climb at home,' he said, 'if there is any climb in you.' But he couldn't change my mind. I met him again just before I started.

GOT A LOAN OF $30.

"'How much money have you?' he asked.

"'Two pounds and five shillings,' I replied, 'and twelve shillings besides.'

"'Going away with only twelve shillings,' Mr. Bone said, 'is preposterous.'

"So he loaned me $30. And that's how I came to America.'"

"After the pie episode," I asked "what happened?"

"I heard a man say at the lodging house where I was staying that he needed some miner to work in Ohio. The pay would be $2 a day. I went with him to a place called Jeddo Run, and boarded in his family. He sold his coal to farmers, and I was expected, so I learned, to wait for my wages until autumn. I wouldn't agree to that and made my way to the anthracite regions in Pennsylvania. There I heard of an old acquaintance, who was working near Pittsburg, and in a little while while I joined him. I was a strong young fellow, and I had no trouble in earning $30 a week. Every month I went to a banker in Monongahela City and sent money to my mother. One day he asked me why I didn't bring her to America.

BANKERS EXTENDED AID.

"'That's what I intend to do,' I told him, 'when I have saved enough money to pay her passage.'

"'Well, sir, the banker bought tickets that [illegible] glad to trust me, and in a little while my parents and five brothers and sisters were comortably settled in a mining town of Western Pennsylvania. One of my sisters is now the wife of a prosperous physician. He is a good man and an elder in the Presbyterian church. My youngest brother died from injuries sustained in a football game. Another brother, formerly my helper in the mines, is pastor of the largest Methodist congregation in Philadelphia.

"The men in the Watchorn family being employed at good wages, I returned to England and told Mr. Bone that I had decided to accept his offer and become an engineer. The arrangement was quickly made. On leaving Mr. Bone's office a messenger met me in the street and gave me a cablegram. It was from my brother. My father had been killed the day before in the mine where he worked. Consequently, I am not an engineer. I took the next steamer home. In ten days I again had a lamp in my hat and a pick in my hand. Alexander Dempster, now president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, was my employer. We often meet in New York and talk over old times.

"One morning I heard footsteps in the entry of the mine. 'Is this where [illegible] been elected president of the miners' union for the Pittsburgh district. I was to answer at once. After consulting with my mother I accepted the office. 'If it is a step forward,' she said, 'take it.' That was my last day in the mines.

"Fourteen years ago I entered the immigration service of the national government as an inspector and have been promoted seven times. When President Roosevelt called me to Washington in 1905 and asked me to come to Ellis Island, he simply said, 'If you decide to go, remember, I want an administration that is as clean as a hound's tooth.'"

1/3 Off For Cash

Twelve solid carloads of Furniture shipped to us from the East—our store is crammed from cellar to attic. In a few days this great purchase will be thrown on our hands and we have absolutely no room in the store for it. There is nothing for it but to make a monster sacrifice—to use the price knife vigorously on every line. Our decision is that all Furniture, Ranges, and House Furnishings will go this week at one-third off for cash—a wonderful sacrifice. It will be a busy store here tomorrow. The crowds will come from the entire southwest; you be on hand early and avoid the rush and bustle of a busy sale and secure the best bargains. This is the most stupendous offering of Furniture that has ever been made in the entire West.

CONVINCING.

DEMOCRATIC LEADER ABLE TAFT PLEADER.

Shows That Bryan's Policy of Extermination Would Be Ruinous to the Country—Republican Idea of Regulation Is Right.

THE TIMES has received from Frank G. Finlayson, long a Democratic leader in Los Angeles, who has often taken the stump for Democratic candidates, the following significant communication, giving the reasons why he and many other Democrats will this year vote for Taft and Sherman:

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] You ask why I intend voting for Mr. Taft. Your question should cut deeper. There are fundamental issues in this campaign; it is not entirely an issue between two personalities. And your question should be, Why do I, in this campaign at least, intend aligning myself with the party of Roosevelt and Taft? The better to answer this question, I submit the following exposition of my views:

In the first place it is my opinion that the two leading parties today are essentially two new parties under old names. For this reason, if for none other, former members of either party may go over to the other without being amenable to the charge of party disloyalty or change of principles. During the past twelve years the Democratic party has changed its principles far more than have I. In fact, fundamental changes have gone on in both parties. And I do not hold myself bound to yield allegiance to a mere party name.

HISTORICAL.

At the close of the conflict between the North and South at Appomattox, the Republican party was firmly in the saddle. It was apparent to the then seekers of special privilege that, under the guise of a pseudo patriotism, they might secure special favors during the turbulent times of reconstruction. There ensued a reign of corruption, both public and private. The era following a great war is almost always characterized by a lowered public conscience, and thieves have no party prejudices. There is always some corruption in all parties. The unprecedented growth in the country's wealth during the decades succeeding the war incited to gambling in all its forms and the intense struggle for the possession of wealth incited unscrupulous men to desperate deeds of corruption. The time was propitious for the harpies, and they fastened themselves upon the party in power because it was in power. Not until the administration of Theodore Roosevelt, he who is "fighting honest," did corruption give any real evidence of abatement. Cleveland, the ruggedly honest, raised the standard of public morals somewhat and was the first President to raise his voice against tariff iniquities. Not until the candidacy of Mr. Taft, however, has any Republican Presidential candidate had the courage and honesty to advocate a revision of the tariff in which the interests of the big tariff beneficiaries shall not be made the sole consideration. Under the leadership of Roosevelt and Taft the Republican party has taken a long stride toward policies which take account of naught but the welfare of the people as a whole. A serious and successful effort has been made to rescue the party organization from the control of an oligarchy and to place it under the control of all its members. If this movement has not everywhere been entirely successful, nevertheless, under Roosevelt's leadership the party organization has been and is being democratized. If the Chicago convention did not do all that was expected of it by the radicals, the party's long stride in the direction of progress is a sufficient earnest of a greater progress yet to come—not a fitful, hysterical progress, aiming at the subversion of the existing order for the mere sake of change, but an orderly, rational, conservative progress which holds to the good, as proved by experience, while advancing to the attainment of better conditions.

SOCIOLOGICAL FACTS.

Of the important sociological facts which have come to the surface in our day and generation none is more important than the gradual but inevitable progress toward Industrial Democracy, an industrialism in which the tool-users, by the coöperative combining of their savings in the ownership of corporate stocks, shall become also the tool-owners. Once the capitalists owned the laborer; then there was slavery. Next the capitalists owned the land, to which the laborer was attached as a serf; then there was feudalism. Next came the present system, the wage system; under it a comparatively few own the tools and implements of industry and a large body of men, known as workmen, use the tools. The tool-owner pays the tool-user for his work, and takes the product of his labor, assuming the losses if any and taking the gain if any; and industry is organized in two camps—tool-owners and tool-users. Today we have in this country a Political Democracy; when the tool-users become also the tool-owners, as the result of their ownership of stock in the great industrial corporations, we shall have an Industrial Democracy. Modern industrial development is destined to replace competition with coöperation.

BRYAN VS. TAFT.

Mr. Bryan's policies would arrest this development; Mr. Taft's policies would give it impetus. This industrial movement does not mean socialism; certainly not State socialism. It means coöperation through the medium of great corporations, whose stocks shall be largely owned and controlled by the tool-users, the workingmen. Modern industrialism trends inevitably toward greater combination, with resultant increase of production and decrease of prices; and there will be a more equitable distribution of wealth when the workers or tool-users, as stockholders, shall become, indirectly, the part owners of the tools directly owned by the corporations whose stock they own. Attempts to check this movement are as irrational as were the attempts during the early years of the last century, particularly by the laborers of England, following the invention of the steam engine, to check the introduction of modern machinery, because, forsooth, such machinery supplanted the old hand-workers and temporarily threw them out of employment. Combination is the mechanism of modern industry. Whoso would check the growth and perfection of these great combinations is as stupidly irrational as was the poor English laborer who threatened to destroy the steam engine when first introduced. That an Industrial Democracy, such as I have attempted to describe, will some day come to pass I have no doubt. Important industrial, political or sociological movements, such as we see about us today, are like glaciers; they may be retarded for a time, but they never retrograde; and humanity will ers shall be united in free, voluntary, coöperative and homogenous organizations.

CHANGED DEMOCRACY.

Before the advent of Mr. Bryan as its Presidential candidate, the Democratic party was the party of conservatism. It stood for such political doctrines as these: "The least government is the best government;" and "the general or central government should not do what the State or local governments can do;" and, that there might not be an unnecessary centralizing of political power, the party favored a strict construction of the Federal Constitution. Following the teachings of its founder, Thomas Jefferson, the Democratic party, before the advent of Bryan, advocated the laissez faire theory of government as one of its most cherished tenets; its leaders were of the Manchester school of thought. Under Mr. Bryan's leadership all this has changed. Mr. Bryan, not without reason, has walked in an opposite path. And today there are in reality two wings to the Democratic party. One, consisting of such old-line conservative Democrats as Judge Parker and Richard Olney, still adheres to the Jeffersonian doctrine, that the least government is the best government, and that the central government should not do those things which can be done by the local governments. I doubt not that these were correct principles of government in this country prior to the recent industrial changes and development. I believe that had this theory been adopted and steadfastly adhered to we should not now be troubled with some of our ills.

Unfortunately, however, during the years following the war the Federal government was lavish with its grants of special privilege, and now it is the beneficiaries of these privileges who are the most insistent upon the laissez faire theory of government and the doctrine of individualism. Having received their special favors they want to be left alone. It is too late now to insist upon the Jeffersonian laissez faire theory of government. If the rights of the great mass of the people are to be conserved some means for overcoming the evils attending the growth of these vast coöperative aggregations of capital must be devised. The modern industrialism which I have described and out of which have grown what we call the "trusts," is in a transition state. As is always the case while industrial growths are in their transition state and the various units of the social organism are endeavoring to adapt themselves to the new conditions as best they may, evils arise which are keenly felt, especially by the weaker social units. Such evils are parasitic. It does not necessarily follow that the new industrial organism must be destroyed in order to get rid of these parasitic evils.

HOW?

And this brings us to the fundamental issue of this campaign, which is, How shall the so-called trusts, these vast aggregations of corporate wealth, be dealt with so as to retain the good and eliminate the attendant evils? Upon this issue the two leading parties are as far apart as is the east from the west, and whoso says that Mr. Roosevelt has stolen Mr. Bryan's thunder, or that the former is the heir to the latter's policies, is a blind observer or a shallow thinker. Mr. Bryan can lay no just claim to be the originator of what is popularly known as the Roosevelt policies. The Roosevelt policy, a policy which Mr. Taft helped make and has pledged himself to carry out, is the policy of regulation. Mr. Bryan's policy is a policy of extermination; he would destroy the trusts, or limit the size of industrial organizations, hoping thus to destroy the attendant evils by destroying the organism upon which the evils are parasitic growths. This policy is much like killing the dog to rid it of fleas. These great industrial organizations are not necessarily evil in themselves. On the contrary, they mark one of the intermediate points between the old worn-out individualism of the past, when each tool-user was the tool-owner on a small scale, and the time when, through such coöperative instrumentalities as corporations whose shares are distributed among the workers, the tool-users shall become the tool-owners on a large scale. Whatever tends to arrest the progress of this modern industrialism tends to retard the onward march of civilization. Mr. Bryan's policy might arrest temporarily this onward march to an ultimate industrial democracy, but he could not and should not permanently change the current of its irresistible course.

Mr. Bryan cannot deny that his policies involve an extermination of these great industrial organisms or that they are antithetical to Mr. Roosevelt's tried and proved policy of regulation. When Mr. Roosevelt succeeded Mr. McKinley in the Presidential office, he announced, in the course of several speeches, that he would advocate a policy of regulation. In his famous speech of August 23, 1903, at Providence, Rhode Island, the home of corporations, he began his public campaign for the legislative control of the "great corporations commonly called trusts." And Mr. Taft, in a speech delivered at Detroit in 1895, the year before Mr. Bryan's first candidacy, laid down the fundamental principles which are embodied in the so-called Roosevelt policies. In fact, the so-called Roosevelt policies are as much Mr. Taft's as Mr. Roosevelt's. Mr. Bryan, in his speech at Mr. Kern's official notification of his nomination by the Democratic party, came out strongly and openly in favor of the policy of extirpation, or, to use his own word, "extermination." He would exterminate not only all monopolies, but such industrial organizations as by his own description, approach monopoly more than half way. A "trust" is defined by Mr. Bryan as any manufacturing or trading corporation which controls more than 50 per cent. of the total amount of any product consumed in the United States. How Mr. Bryan's policy of extermination can be confused with the policy of regulation undertaken by the administration of Mr. Roosevelt, and indorsed by Mr. Taft, passes understanding. It certainly needs no seer gifted with second sight to perceive that any policy which succeeds in extirpating or exterminating all manufacturing or trading corporations which control more than one-half of the whole amount of any product consumed in the United States, is a policy which not only would upset the business interests of the country and usher in an era of misery and poverty, but would give a decided setback to the great industrial movement which is now marching on to the realization of a genuine Industrial Democracy when the users of the implements of industry will, and laborers shall be united in one homogeneous body.

BRYAN EXTERMINATION POLICY.

Mr. Bryan proposes three specific remedies for the trust evils. These remedies are tantamount to a policy of extermination or are fraught with extreme injustice and danger, or are impracticable. He would prohibit the duplication of directors among competing corporations. This is a very pretty theory. But who does not know that any man who owns a majority of stock in a number of corporations can very easily have such directors as he wants; and whether there were any duplication or not, the effect would be the same. Mr. Bryan proposes licensing under a Federal license any corporation engaged in interstate commerce before it may control as much as 25 per cent. of the product in which it deals and he proposes also the prohibition of the control of more than 50 per cent. of any product of any such corporation.

These fanciful and wholly impracticable remedies were riddled by Gov. Hughes in his Youngstown speech. As Gov. Hughes very properly says, What is the meaning of "any product consumed in the United States?" Does it refer to a class of commodities, and if so, how shall the class be defined? Or does it refer to each separate article of commerce? And if so, what account does this proposal take of the skill and initiative of manufacturers who have built up a more or less exclusive trade in particular articles, often permitted by trademarks, although in most active competition with other articles designed for the same general purpose and seeking the same markets? In a desire to correct the evils of business are we to place an embargo upon honest endeavor whose activities present none of the abuses requiring the remedies? Any attempt to regulate manufactures by percentages would entail such a complicated system of government bureaus that the attempt would be obnoxiously bureaucratic.

Mr. Bryan also proposes that articles entering into competition with trust-controlled products shall be placed upon the free list. But this remedy would treat the small and weak competitors of the trust with far less mercy than that which the trusts themselves show their puny rivals. To throttle and destroy the trusts Mr. Bryan would punish the weak competitors of the trust. I believe, as I always have, that a revenue tariff is the only just and wise form of tariff for this country, and I shall welcome the day which ushers in a broader conception of our position in the world of nations and the righteousness as well as the economic expediency of a tariff for revenue only. Until then, however, we must strive for some sort of justice in the distribution of our tariff beneficences. So long as we choose to remain upon a "protective" basis we must at least endeavor to distribute the tariff favors equitably and refrain from punishing the innocent tariff beneficiary for the sins of the guilty. Mr. Bryan's proposal to put upon the free list all articles entering into competition with trust-controlled products would punish the weak manufacturers engaged in the manufacture and sale of the same products turned out by their stronger business rivals, the trust. The strong but wicked trusts would not suffer as much as their small but innocent competitors.

AS TO TARIFF REFORM.

But, you ask, how can I, who have always believed in a revenue tariff, espouse the cause of the Republican candidate? If I believed the election of Mr. Bryan would advance the cause of real tariff reform one iota I should gladly continue to follow his leadership. The fact is, however, I can see no reasonable hope for a revenue tariff until the people of this country, the men of all political parties, shall have come to an understanding of the economic questions involved in the tariff problem. The question is economic as well as political. The average business man does not look beyond the radius of his own little business circle. He sees that under the present system others are receiving tariff favors and he naturally asks himself why he also should not reach out and demand a tariff favor. He does not pause to consider the possible benefits of a revenue tariff to those who are content with a square deal, a fair field and no favors; he does not now see that under a revenue tariff there would ensue a great stimulation to our foreign commerce and a rebuilding of our merchant marine.

But I am content to wait until the "man in the street" discovers, as he will in time, the economic merits of a revenue tariff. Today we are working out our domestic industrial problems; the time will come, however, and it is not far off, when we shall seek the markets of the world. When that time arrives I expect the tariff question to be taken out of politics, for then the people, coming to a clear understanding of this economic question in all of its bearings and perceiving that we cannot sell unless we buy, will demand a genuine tariff reform, a tariff reform which, perchance, may be ushered in by the Republican party itself, or rather by the neo-Republican party of Taft and Roosevelt. "Not in this election or the next is the question of tariff at all likely to be a paramount issue. That will come later when conditions have altered nationally and our foreign trade interests have assumed something of the gigantic proportions that are their ultimate destiny." I can see no encouragement today from the Democratic party in the direction of genuine tariff reform. In his first speech of the campaign Mr. Bryan disposed of the tariff question in thirteen words, as follows: "The Democratic party, if entrusted with power, can and will reduce the tariff." This sentence will not satisfy those tariff reformers who remember that when the Democrats were in power under popular instruction for tariff reform, they succeeded in passing only the Wilson-Gorman bill, a measure which continued the protective system, applied it no more equitably than its Republican predecessor and was declared by Mr. Cleveland to be perfidious. In fact, Mr. Taft has been more outspoken in his advocacy of tariff revision than has Mr. Bryan. Furthermore, Mr. Bryan has stated that his party does not contemplate an immediate change from one system to the other, but intends that the change shall be gradual. This plan, as Gov. Hughes points out, "opens a vista of indefinite tariff tinkering to accomplish the desired object."

Revision there must be; but it must be prompt and thorough. Any attempt to reach a revenue tariff by successive gradations would not only unsettle all business but would fail of its purpose. No party would be continued in office long enough to reach the end of such a goal. The history of all great reforms teaches that the party which is the first to advocate the reform seldom puts it upon the statute book; that work is almost always done by its more conservative political antagonist, after the people have been educated up to a popular demand for the proposed reform. Any lasting reform which involves the overturning of some long-cherished system, comes only when the people are ready for it, and then all parties heed the popular voice and hasten to enact the legislation demanded. So I think it will be with the tariff; and the daily increase of the tariff reformers in the Republican party itself, the party of constructive legislation, gives earnest of an early and genuine reform of the tariff, and particularly now that the Republican party organization, thanks to the efforts of Mr. Roosevelt and his is to have a greater voice in shaping the party policies.

ROOSEVELT REGULATION.

You express surprise that one who has advocated the Jeffersonian theories of government can view with complacency the Roosevelt policy of regulation, which, by increasing the activities of the national government, tends toward political centralization. I have already shown why it is too late now to expect good results from the laissez faire theory of government; the most clamorous advocates of the "let-alone" policy are those who already have their special privileges and governmental favors. It is too late to lock the barn door after the horse has been stolen. Only a minority of the Democratic party is today treading in the footsteps of Thomas Jefferson and they are doing so from force of habit. Mr. Bryan certainly is not a protagonist of the Jeffersonian doctrine of individualism and laissez faire. His proposed measures, such as the licensing of Federal corporations doing a large interstate business, for example, involve in a large measure the extension of Federal powers. But the fact is that only a strong national government can control the great industrial organizations which have grown up in our midst. Industrial Democracy requires therefore a strong national government. The danger to America is not from political autocracy, but from industrial autocracy, and the only remedy for concentration of plutocratic power in industry is the concentration of democratic power in government. We must, perforce, choose between industrial centralization and some increased measure of political centralization. I for one prefer some increase of political centralization to unregulated industrial centralization and its attendant tyrannies. If the great industrial organizations were allowed to remain under the sole and unregulated control of a plutocratic oligarchy bent on usurping the prerogatives of the people, the conditions would be infinitely worse than under any centralization of political power. In the case of political centralization the people have some chance to rule through their government and the representatives whom they select; in the case of unregulated industrial centralization the people would be little better than serfs.

If the bogie man of governmental centralization has no fears for me, it apparently has none for Mr. Bryan either. Judging by his proposed trust remedies, the licensing of corporations by the Federal government, for example, he also perceives that the day has arrived when, perforce, we must choose between the tyranny of an unregulated centralized oligarchy of wealth and the exercise by the Federal government of a larger measure of power within the grants of the Federal Constitution. And therefore the fundamental issue in this campaign is, Shall we cure the trust evils by regulating the so-called trusts, or shall we remove these evils by eradicating the trusts?

NOT ERADICATION.

Time has proved the wisdom of those who, in the early years of the nineteenth century, when the development of machinery was accompanied with certain great evils, advocated the cure of those evils by the passage of laws regulating the use of machinery; and the folly of those who then fought against the introduction of machinery and wanted to restore hand work is now apparent to the dullest intellect. Today there are those, and Mr. Bryan is one of them, who would oppose the growth of coöperative combinations, the modern mechanism of industry. In the present era, industrial development is marked by a commercial organization which tends to replace competition with coöperation, and this phase of development has its attendant evils. The Democratic party, under the leadership of Mr. Bryan, would cure the evils by resisting the tendency toward coöperation and attempting to restore competition. The Republican party, under the leadership of Roosevelt and Taft, has undertaken the plan of making the government strong enough to control the commercial organizations that are coöperative rather than competitive, and compel them to serve the public welfare. Those who would exterminate the trusts and restore competition will approve of Mr. Bryan; those who would regulate and control the trusts, so that they may be of real service to the whole people through developing methods of equitable coöperation, will approve of Mr. Taft. That the march toward the ultimate ideal Industrial Democracy which I have endeavored to describe may not be retarded by any act of mine, I shall not only vote for Mr. Taft but shall work for the enforcement of his policies.

Very truly yours,

FRANK G. FINLAYSON.

THE INSURANCE WORLD.

The enormous fire losses that have occurred in the United States are resulting in a discussion among foreign insurance companies as to the advisability of continuing business in this country. It is claimed that these heavy losses are "largely due to the inferiority of municipal government, poor building laws, bad inspection and inadequate water supply."

The new Emporium of San Francisco has just had placed upon it insurance to the amount of $1,800,000.

The insurance companies that quit the Arkansas field because of the anti-trust laws, are now seeking a way to return to the State. They are, however, held up at the State line by a demand from the insurance department that they settle all back taxes before they do any business. The Prudential Insurance Company, in its own showing of business, was compelled to pay a tax of $909.

The cause of the great fire that swept Chelsea, Mass., last April and caused nearly a score of deaths, was declared to have been a "natural and obvious consequence" of "wanton and gross negligence" on the part of Israel Smulsky, foreman in a rag shop, in the report of an inquest rendered by Judge Cutler of the local Police Court.

Judge Cutler states that the evidence showed that Smulsky was in charge of four men who were at work in the rag shop of Rubin Bros., on the day of the fire, and that his negligence consisted in permitting the workmen to smoke cigarettes in the midst of inflammable material.

The totals of fire loss in this country may signify little to the average mind, but the comparative figures should mean much. The figures issued by the national board of fire underwriters show that the average fire loss per capita in the United States for the last five years, was $3.02, against 33 cents for six European countries, including France, Germany and Austria. It may be objected perhaps that it is unfair to select this particular period for purposes of comparison, since both the Baltimore fire of 1904 and the San Francisco fire of 1906 are included in it. And yet if these two fires, representing about $350,000,000, were deducted from the total fire loss of the country for the five years—which is estimated at $1,257,716,965—the total would be reduced by but little over a fourth. And the American per capital loss would remain about six and one-half times larger than the European.—[Exchange.

An extra 25 cents was added to fire insurance rates in Portland, Or., because the same generator supplied the circuit for the street cars as well as the power used for commercial purposes about the city. This penalty has now been removed, as the company has remedied the defects in its system as Marvelous Psychic Phenomena.

THE SHADOW WORLD. By Hamlin Garland. Harper & Bros., New York. (Price $1.50.)

The serial publication of the various chapters of Mr. Garland's book, which appeared in Everybody's Magazine, has caused, without doubt, much discussion and excited comment. Indeed, the offer of prizes for authentic accounts of experiences similar to Mr. Garland's own have brought forth responses which are published in the current number of Everybody's. In these answers, several prize-winners go one better than Mr. Garland himself. Some of their experiences with "spirits" are hair-raising, to say the least.

The author gives his results in research in the form of fiction, though he assures us that only the names he uses are fictitious. "I have not attempted," he says in his preface, "to be profound or mystical or even scientific, but I have tried to present clearly, simply, and as nearly without bias as possible, an account of what I have seen and heard. The weight of evidence seems, at the moment, to be on the side of the biologists: but I am willing to reopen the case at any time, although I am, above all, a man of the open air, of the plains and the mountains, and do not intend to identify myself with any branch of metaphysical research." Mr. Garland, it would seem, is much more cautious than Sir Oliver Lodge, who has lately joined the ranks of the avowed believers in spirits and spiritism.

The author, who is guide, philosopher and friend to the seekers after truth in these amateur seances, discourses for them on the published experiences of others in the spirit world, tells of the work done by the Society for Physical Research, in England, in America and on the continent, and, in short, gives in this way much useful information to the curious reader of "The Shadow World."

Of Fine Workmanship.

WALDO TRENCH AND OTHERS. By Henry B. Fuller. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. (Price $1.50.)

These seven short stories of Americans in Italy have the charm of true and delicate workmanship. At times they are as circumstantial and as subtly analytical as the verbal mosaics of Henry James. Indeed, there can be little doubt that the elder writer has been the younger's adored master, for the style that Mr. Fuller uses in these delightful stories is not the more robust style of his earlier books, "With the Procession" and "The Cliff-Dwellers," both novels of Chicago. Yet the difference may be due to Italy, and not Henry James, after all—for the tempered airs of Italy assuredly differ from the shrewd winds that blow from Lake Michigan.

Yet the resemblance to Mr. James persists, for what is "Eliza Hepburn's Deliverance" but a Fullerized "Europe?" And doesn't "A Coal from the Embers" bring at once to mind "The Aspern Papers" and "The Author of Beltraffio?" However, it doesn't really matter, for Mr. Fuller is as exquisitely satisfactory in these stories as Mr. James is in his. He gives us the color of Italy, and his Americans are projected against it with starling distinctness. For, truth to tell, they are not always particularly admirable Americans to contemplate, even though there is nothing radically wrong with them—from the American standpoint. The Italians's view may be different, though he seldom expresses it. In "New Wine," however, Ruggiero degli Stellini, who was, after all, half an American himself, "executed a slight elevation of his darkly-definite eyebrows; this meant that he regarded Sybil McChesney as one who had a preposterously exaggerated idea of her own deservings and that he was dismissing her alike from his ken and from his country." Ruggiero, it must be added, had had serious thoughts of marrying Sybil.

WILLIAM JORDAN, JUNIOR. By J. C. Snaith. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York. (Price $1.50.)

"William Jordan, Junior" is the unfortunate and misleading title of a novel of quite unusual strength and beauty. It is not in the least like "Mr. Barnes of New York," or books of the same ilk, though its name might suggest it. He who dips into the book, even for a minute or two, will find evidences of a fine literary flavor on every page.

William Jordan, Jr., the son of a poor but scholarly London bookseller, is an idealist and a great poet, though he does not know that he is either of these till his buffetings with a world which has scant sympathy for the delicate poetic temperament, and no understanding of it, have almost beaten the life from his frail body. They could not, however, crush his heroic and dauntless soul.

The story is one of a profound and unforced pathos. It grips the heart of the reader who understands it, and he cannot let it go till he has reached the very end. William Jordan, Jr.'s belief in himself never seems ridiculous, even when his environment is most sordid and disheartening.

Mr. Snaith satirizes, with no uncertain strokes of his keen pen, some of the characters that the poet comes in contact with in his struggle for existence—notably the men in the publishing house in which William Jordan, Jr., toils for his daily bread. Jimmy Dodson, the Cockney clerk, who believes in the poet and loves him, is one of the most delightful characters in fiction. Jimmy sticks to the real as profoundly and unswervingly as William Jordan, Jr. clings to the ideal in life. The close friendship of these young men is exquisitely paradoxical.

Local Lore.

HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA. By Helen Bandini. Published by American Book Company.

Helen Elliott Bandini of Pasadena, a member of one of the old-time Spanish families of Los Angeles county, and one which has shed luster on the Spanish name and our California, has done the State a notable service in her interesting book, the "History of California." In the preface the author tells us her purpose was "to present the history of California in so simple and interesting a way that children may read it with pleasure." This design she has carried out with great success, at the same time telling the story in a style that "children of larger growth" will not fail to appreciate.

This history is particularly rich in the lore which goes back to the earliest known records and traditions of California. The days of the aborigines are set out in a charming manner, a real story rather than a formal history. The same simple spirit is well preserved in the chapters which tell us the coming of the Spaniards, of the English and other European peoples. The mission times are dealt with in a loving spirit, as becomes the daughter of the church which planted the cross on these shores and led the Indian tribes to kneel before the emblem of universal salvation.

We then come to the days of the early "caballeros," those dashing horsemen with their bright sashes around their waists, their large sombreros and soft love songs in which they serenaded their soft-eyed sweethearts. This period is painted in words with colors as brilliant as the scenes to which they relate.

The days of gold are told of, the Civil War period, and the coming of the railroad with all the recent material and intellectual development of California.

The book is illustrated by Roy F. Warner in a style as simple as that of the author's writing, which adds greatly to the charm of the work.

The little history is well printed and bound by the American Book Company.

AMONG MAGAZINES FOR NOVEMBER.

The Seine, "river of laughter and sighs," is the study by Marie Van Vorst which opens Harper's for November. The text is supplemented by the paintings of Andre Castaigne, shown in tint. "To the Cold Land of Fire" is Charles W. Furlong's narrative of a hazardous trip of exploration through Terra del Fuego, in regions unapproached since the time of Darwin. Norman Duncan tells of a night on the Arabian desert, and Robert Kennedy Duncan, brother of Norman Duncan, discourses on "The Trend of Chemical Invention." Lawrence Gilman writes of the moods of the sea as a motive for musical composers. "A Hero of Inkerman" is a battle story told to Robert Shackleton by an old English artillery sergeant. Noteworthy art features in this number are the drawings by Edwin A. Abbey, expositive of Coriolanus; Horatio Walker's paintings, reproduced with a discussion by Charles H. Caffin, and several etchings by Charles Henry White to accompany his spirited argument upon Pittsburgh as one of the most picturesque cities of America. The short stories of the number are by Arthur Sherburne Hardy, Muriel Campbell Dyar, Jennette Lee, Beatrix Demarest Lloyd, James Branch Cabell, Leo Crane, Marie Louise Goetchius and Emery Pottle.

"The Firing Line of a National Campaign," by John R. Winchell, the leading article in the Metropolitan, is a timely and interesting paper, which carries the reader behind the scenes of a great Presidential fight, and shows him the inner workings of the national committees. "Speed on the Land, on the Sea and in the Air," by Charles H. Cochrane, shows how the world must go faster as its activities broaden. Brander Matthews discusses "The Play and the Plain People." H. N. D. Pierce, United States Minister to Norway, writes entertainingly of the strange land to which his diplomatic travels have taken him. Eustace Miles, the English expert on exercise and diet, contributes a paper on "The Way to Rest," which he thinks of particular importance to Americans. The contributors of short stories are Mary Cholmondeley, R. E. Vernede, Frederic Walworth Brown, Lucy Pratt, Roland Ashford Phillips and Clinton Daingerfield.

In the Smart Set, Channing Pollock begins a series of comments on the fall plays, under the title "Ringing Up on the Theatrical Season." The complete novel of the month, "An International Drama," is by Christian Reid. Rita Graves's story of a suicide bureau advertising "Advice to Timid Suicides," is a curious tale centering about the mysterious Madame Morte and her patrons. Other stories are by Helen Frances Huntington, Ellis Parker Butler, H. B. Marriott Watson, Wilson C. Missimer, Inez G. Thompson, Kate C. Turner, while T. W. Hanshew contributes a play in one act, "The Harvest."

Everybody's for November is an election number—that is, three out of the seven articles in it are particularly pertinent to this time. First of all, a real national election issue, "The Independence of the Philippines," is discussed by William Howard Taft and William Jennings Bryan, while Eleanor Franklin Egan contributes a plain statement of the work that has been done by the United States in the islands. William Hard's series, "The Woman's Invasion," has its first instalment in this number. It really involves, at bottom, the question: What is the effect of four millions of workingwomen upon this country, upon men, upon children? And is the workingwoman a success, physically, economically, morally. "Forward, Citizens, to the Firing Line," is Charles Edward Russell's patriotic exhortation, embodying three ways in which those who have the common good at heart may render practical good to the country. Rex Beach has a story of a bear hunt in Alaska, "The Chronicles of a Chromatic Bear Hunt," while Ernest Poole contributes an article, "Cowboys of the Skies," descriptive of the perils of those who work on the great skyscrapers.

"Speaking of Heroes," a novelette by George Bronson-Howard, appears in the November Popular. The principal character is a mediocre actor who, for years, has been accustomed to play the part of the "heavy" villain on the stage. In private life he is anything but a villain, preferring quiet and a peaceful life above all things. Fate, however, by a curious succession of incidents, forces him to act the role of a domineering, villainous gun fighter in real life. He acts it to perfection, his years of work on the stage making him letter-perfect in the part. But underneath his truculent exterior he is frightened nearly out of his fits. The story is very good reading, with plenty of humor and excitement. Ralph D. Paine contributes a complete novel, "The Stroke-oar," and the college athletic tone is equally pronounced in Leyendecker's colorful and realistic football cover. There are seven short stories and instalments of three serials.

NEWS AND NOTES OF FORTHCOMING BOOKS.

A binding which will eventually become uniform for all of William Dean Howells's works has been used in the new reprint of "A Traveler From Altruria."

The publishers of Chesterton's new book, "Orthodoxy," appear to be taking pleasure in the fact that the first edition, which certainly did exist, now looks as if it didn't. They report it exhausted ten days after publication, and have gone to press with a second edition.

The most interesting autobiographical record of many years seems promised in Helen Keller's "The World I Live In," which will be issued in late October. The volume will include "A Chant of Darkness," published in the Century, a chapter on "Dreams," and several chapters of impressions and emotions which are hers.

There is soon to be a new novel by the author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress." The Harpers are bringing it out this month, and it will be called "The Cradle of the Rose." As a story, "The Cradle of the Rose" is said to be a new departture for this already surprising author, depending for its interest upon swift movement of narrative and a plot replete with dramatic episodes. As in "Emerald and Ermine," which preceded it, the new book is laid in Brittany, and it need scarcely be added that the new title-page, like all its sister title-pages, still refuses a name to the incognito.

In order to bring "A Manual of American Literature" completely up to date, the authors have asked for an extension of the time of issue, and the publication of the volume has therefore been postponed until the end of the year, when it will appear, in the Tauchnitz edition, in New York, and in different European countries simultaneously. The work will be dedicated, with permission, to President Roosevelt. The authors of the lish department of Cornell University and its editor is Theodore Stanton, master of arts of Cornell.

"Women, Etc.," is the title by which Col. George Harvey has elected to call his forthcoming book expressing his sentiments on the sex and other topics which may be more or less interesting than they. We understand that some of these essays have been exposed to notice in the "Editor's Diary" of the North American Review, from which record there is no reason to suspect that the spirit of mischief will be far distant from any of them. "Is the American Girl a Bore?" demands one essay. Others discuss "Second Wives and Husbands," "Why Bachelors Should Not Be Taxed," "The Ignorance of Women in the Management of Men," etc.

Neumann's "Personal Recollections of Wagner," which has been issued here in translation, is now announced for publication in England by Archibald Constable & Co.

A series of articles on Lincoln's life and character—to include hitherto unpublished documents from his own pen and that of one of his secretaries—will be one of the strong features of the Century in 1909. Frederick Trevor Hill has written of "The Lincoln-Douglas Debates," the fiftieth anniversary of which occurs this year; and there will be later papers on "Lincoln As a Boy Knew Him," "Lincoln As a Peace Negotiator," "Lincoln and the Theater," etc.

Hy. Mayer, whose merry cartoons are known throughout the United States, and who has recently made another pronounced hit with his illustrations for "The Top of the World," has furnished some thirty pictures to Thomas R. Ybarra's "Davy Jones's Yarns and Other Salted Songs," which will be issued before the end of the month.

It is a bit early to be announcing Christmas books, but it is a matter of common belief that magazine writers have to write their Christmas stories while they are sweltering in July, and Miss Carolyn Wells has been at work for some time back on "The Carolyn Wells Year Book," which Henry Holt & Co. will place on the market within the fortnight. There will be decorations by Miss Bertha Stuart, pictures for each month by Mrs. M. E. Leonard, and further illustrations by de Fornaro, Oliver Herford, and Strothmann.

Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst has just returned from his customary vacation in Switzerland. During the summer he has been working on the preparation of a book, the MS. of which he has placed in the hands of his publishers, the Fleming H. Revell Co. The book is entitled "A Little Lower Than the Angels," and Dr. Parkhurst describes it as arising from the conviction that the inherent dignity and destined glory of humanity is the revelator of sin and the most powerful incentive to a worthy life.

Very opportunely, with the opening of the opera season, comes the announcement by Stokes of a large volume entitled "The Operas Of Wagner," by J. Cuthbert Haddon, with illustrations in color by Byam Shaw. It includes all the knowledge that is necessary for an appreciation of the various operas, giving the story, the leit-motiven, and illuminating comments on the music and the drama of each. There is also a concise biographical note on Wagner, which shows the significance of his efforts and explains his theory of music drama. Shaw's paintings are done in gorgeous colors which harmonize peculiarly well with Wagner's wealth of tone.

One of the principal books that Longmans & Co. will publish during the coming season will be "The Journal of Elizabeth Lady Holland," edited by the Earl of Ilchester. Lady Holland is known to the readers of memoirs and historical biographers of her time as the domineering leader of the Whig circle; as a lady whose social talents and literary accomplishments drew to her house the wits, the politicians, and the cognoscenti of the day. She is known as the hostess who dared to give orders to such guests as Macauley and Sydney Smith, and, what is more, expected and exacted implicit obedience. As yet, however, little has been written of her earlier years, and on these her Journal will throw much light. It is a record of the years of her unhappy marriage to Sir Godfrey Webster; and after her marriage with Lord Holland is continued with more or less regularity until 1814.

Song and Sentiment.

In my house of life in an Upper Room—
A small and garnished place—
And there I dreamed in the mist-gray gloom,
And I looked my soul in the face,
(O Upper Room, with your dreams, where I Let my friend, unwept, go passing by.)
Once Love tried the door, and a child's voice came—
I heard it through my prayers—
But the door was barred when they called my name,
And the steps went down the stairs.
(And yesterday at the door I found
A toy and a rose trampled on the ground.)
And my prayers were heard, for with toil my house
Has grown, though empty, great;
And from my Upper Room I see
Crowds gather round my gate.
(From my Upper Room with its dreams,
Where I let the loveless years go passing by.

I have fought my fight. Hark, they bring the prize.
I have run; I have won the race;
But I sit and I dare not lift my eyes
To look my soul in the face,
(For yesterday at the door I found
A toy and a rose trampled on the ground.)

OUR NEIGHBORS.

AMERICANS IN DIAZ LAND.

Ambitious Schemes of Busy Los Angeles Capitalists.

San Diego Man Proposes to Start Newspaper.

Notes of California Visitors in the City of Mexico.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 18.—Americans are apt to be too independent. It is said that Max O'Rell, the noted French critic, once remarked that he liked the American ladies because "they had every liberty under the sun and took the rest." American men are just as apt to be independent and force their views on people living here. For instance, a tourist recently saw the abbreviation of Santa Maria (Sta. Maria) on one of the electric cars, and called it "Stay Mariah." The car did not stay. The people of Spain and Cuba cut off the final "S" and place the softest sort of Castillian lisp on the article "Los," making the name "Loth-Ahn-hell-eh," but the Mexican gives the full Saxon value to the "S." Therefore in this city the name is pronounced by Mexicans "Los-ahn-hell-es." The "Los" is long; the accent on the chief word falls on the first syllable without any marked nasal ring; the second syllable is plain "hell" (of which there may be some in Los Angeles,) and the final syllable fluctuates between "es" and "is," with a merciful leaning toward the latter pronunciation.

A Mexican inventor has just been developing the experiment of giving cinemetograph pictures by daylight. Two different persons with the same invention independently developed, is the situation reached by José Muñoz, of Puebla, and Mariano de la Cueva of Mexico City. As a result, instead of fighting over the matter the two have combined and will together float the same invention, the projection of cinemetograph views in full daylight. Mr. Muños joined Mr. de la Cueva here. They have agreed to form a company for the exploitation of their common invention, which will be pushed both in Mexico and abroad.

J. M. Neeland, the vice-president and general manager of the Pan-American Railroad Company, is one of the large army of Californians who is capturing Mexico commercially. He has just completed his line to Guatemala from San Geronimo, and thus finished the last link in the all-rail route which sooner or later must connect New York and Buenos Aires. This line, which will be 10,400 miles in length, is more than twice the extent of the famous Siberia Railroad, and probably half again as long as the Cape-to-Cairo route through the heart of Africa. The Mexican portion of this stupendous railroad enterprise has thus been completed by Mr. Neeland, a Los Angeles man, associated with heavy capitalists and railroad men such as D. P. Doak and Eleneious Smith. Mr. Neeland now has another ambitious scheme, to connect his line with the railway system of the Peninsula of Yucatan. This second scheme, however, will cost in the neighborhood of $50,000,000 on account of the heavy work, which includes difficult fills and cuts in the southern Sierra. But while this second line will be at least seven years in building, it will bring into touch with the City of Mexico a hitherto isolated yet exceedingly productive region, including the States of Yucatan, Campeche and Tabasco, a virgin jungle as yet lost in the mazes of tropical and unconquerable vegetation. Mr. Neeland leaves in a few days for London to arrange the financial end of this big enterprise. There is a well grounded rumor in connection with the building of this road to Yucatan, that the government will give a contract for building a harbor either at Campeche or Progreso. Mr. Neeland is non-committal on this point.

Duncan Bankhardt, general agent of the B. & O. S. W. R. R., left for El Paso last night, accompanying his wife and son, who are going to San Francisco for some time. Mr. Bankhardt will return to Mexico again next week.

A weekly English newspaper for Culiacan is one of the possibilities of the near future, if the plans of W. S. Hunt of that city and C. J. Anderson of San Diego, Cal., are carried out. Mr. Hunt is a real estate dealer in the progressive little west coast city, and Mr. Anderson has just closed a deal for a large tract of land in Sinaloa. Both Mr. Hunt and Mr. Anderson are now guests of this city.

Charles T. Sutton, a Los Angeles attorney, and a brother of Miss May Sutton, the tennis champion, is registered at the Sanz Hotel. Mr. Sutton is accompanied by his wife and is here on a combination of business and pleasure.

A card party was given at the hotel Sanz last week to Charles Sutton and wife of Los Angeles by Mrs. F. H. Seymour and her daughter. The supper was served by one of the best caterers in the city, and the first toast of the evening was by Vice-President Corral, the guest of honor, who later opened up the new billiard room of the hotel by playing the first game of billiards. There were over thirty guests present.

Miss Blanche Ruby, a society leader in Los Angeles and one of the best-known amateur concert singers in the United States, was a guest last week of our city. Miss Ruby is a daughter of Hon. S. G. Ruby, American consul-general at Belfast, Ireland, and possesses a voice of wonderful power and sweetness. She is prominent in all musical circles in Los Angeles and is a moving spirit in the upbuilding of music in that California city. While there Miss Ruby was paid the distinguished compliment of being invited to sing before the Queen of Holland and also before the Prince Royal at the Royal Palace in Munich. She will spend some time in Mexico and will make a study of the republic from a musical standpoint. It is likely she will sing in the city before her return to the States. Miss Ruby was entertained royally in Zacatecas, where she is receiving many social attentions, and will probably remain there some two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Hills, residents of this city about fifteen years, left last week for California where they will locate.

Mrs. John Pratt, whose death occurred in Los Angeles on August 31, last, had many friends in Mexico City and throughout the republic. She had lived for some time in Rio del Monte.

Some Los Angeles capitalists have recently taken over a group of mines in the Territory of Tepic, and J. P. Casey, a prominent mining man of Sonora, has been engaged for three months in making examinations of their properties.

RAILROAD WORLD.

The current railroad reports for the most part excee disappointing, says the Wall S Journal. It is almost ing to see the great Pennsylvania road, the leader among the Ame railways, running through the thickly populated section of the try, experiencing a falling off in earnings during August of $2,5 east of Pittsburgh and of over $1, 000 west of Pittsburgh. As an o to this, however, must be placed splendid economy which the Penn vania, and, as a matter of fact, all leading railroads of the country h instituted. Since January 1, the P sylvania has reduced its expenses 700,000. These economies have established without any reducti wages.

S. H. Clark, vice-president of Missouri Pacific, recently admitte the Kansas Board of Railroad C missioners that his company had been able to spend much on impro ments, and could not see any prosp in the immediate future for increa these expenditures. Mr. Clark pain a very gloomy picture of the fut of railroading in the United Sta "Unless Europe will let loose of of its money mighty soon," he "and give the railroads of this co try some capital to work with, the railroads in the United States go into the hands of receivers."

The Canadian Pacific Railway spent $10,000,000 double tracking line between Winnipeg and Thun Bay during the past year, and it p poses to soon start on similar w through to the Pacific Coast. T company is preparing to operate tra over the mountains by electricity g erated by water power for 700 mil probably the biggest railway und taking in the history of the contin

J. C. HEREABOUTS.

A. B. ROGERS, a Denver millionaire, who owns one-third interest in the North Star mines of Nevada, is at the Lankershim, where he has apartments for perhaps a month. Mr. Rogers has offices in New York City, and after a trip across the country, he expresses himself very favorably impressed with the manner in which business in all directions is reviving. "The better tone in commercial circles is even more noticeable in the West than in the East," he declared.

A party of Middle West business men, who are on the Coast looking after various ventures, as well as acting as representatives of commercial associations in their individual towns, is registered at the Alexandria. R. Cairns of Ames, Iowa, and Lewis Schroeder of Des Moines head the list. Edmund E. Morris of Kansas City and G. N. Roberts of Lawrence, Kan., are the other members of the party.

G. S. Myers, millionaire tobacco merchant, who for several months past has been making his home at Redlands, is at the Van Nuys for a few days.

Mrs. F. W. Guerin of San Francisco and Miss A. Rechtenwald of Redlands are at the Van Nuys. Mrs. Guerin is a well-known social leader in the northern city and was a guest of Miss Rechtenwald for several weeks.

J. M. Snow and bride of Salt Lake City, here on their wedding tour, have apartments at the Alexandria. Mr. Snow is a broker and mining man. After a week's sojourn here they will proceed to Mexico.

Nicholas L. Sargent, wife and daughter, form a party of tourists registered at the Van Nuys. Mr. Sargent is proprietor of the Seaside House at Portland, Or., and also is president of a catering company.

E. W. Durghl, a Philadelphia capitalist, has taken apartments at the Alexandria for an extended stay. He is accompanied by Mrs. A. Archibald and Miss Eileen Andrews of New York City.

E. W. Hammer, western representative of the American Pin Manufacturing Company, Chicago, is at the Hollenbeck.

Mrs. Frank C. Martin and Miss Zveena Martin, mother and daughter, are at the Alexandria while here visiting friends. Mrs. Martin is wife of the cashier of the Fairmont Hotel, San Francisco.

J. Conner, a London tourist, accompanied by W. A. Doble, a San Francisco merchant, is spending a few days at the Alexandria before proceeding to the Grand Cañon on his return to England.

A. A. Smith, an official of the Eastman Kodak Company of Rochester, N. Y. at the Hayward.

J. E. Baker, wife and son, are at the Lankershim. Mr. Baker is a mining engineer of National City, Nev.

Benjamin Fershtand, a manufacturer of jewelry, San Francisco, is at the Nadeau.

Thomas M. Lelland and wife are guests at the Westminster. Mr. Lelland is a leading merchant of Burlingame, Kan.

Peter Jaeger, a retired capitalist of Denver, Colo., is a guest at the Hayward while in Los Angeles visiting old friends.

Dr. W. T. Liggett, a Goldfield physician, is registered at the Hollenbeck.

John S. Maxwell, a manufacturer of leather goods, whose home is in Milwaukee, Wis., is registered at the Hayward. His wife is with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Van Deusen are guests at the Angelus. Mr. Van Deusen is a broker of New York City.

Philip C. Brenon, owner of a general store at Tucson, also interested in mining properties in Arizona, is a guest at the Angelus.

U. Sesamori, a Japanese merchant of Nagasaki, is at the Van Nuys while here visiting several of his countrymen. He is on his way East.

Levi Baker, an attorney of Shenandoah, Iowa, is registered at the Angelus for a few days.

James M. Denny, a Goldfield mining man, is registered at the Westminster.

J. B. Lindsay, a well-known mining man of Rhyolite, is a guest at the Alexandria.

D. D. Wagner, a Denver merchant, is a guest at the Lankershim for a few weeks.

Theodore Roche, a San Francisco attorney, is at the Van Nuys.

F. M. Grose of Las Vegas, Nev., is registered at the Hayward. He is interested in various mining properties.

C. F. Egan, an insurance adjuster of San Francisco, is a guest at the Angelus.

C. Riegger, a retired New York capitalist, is at the Westminster.

G. W. Yancey, a mining engineer of Tucson, Ariz., is a guest at the Nadeau.

Among prominent Arizona people now in the city are Gen. L. H. Manning and wife of Tucson, and W. F. Durmont of Williams. Gen. Manning is heavily interested in lands and mining while Mr. Durmont is an extensive dealer in lumber. They are at the Van Nuys.

STATESMEN, POLITICIANS.

THOMAS J. O'BRIEN, American Ambassador to Japan, who has been in the United States on a leave of absence, has returned to his post of duty in Tokio. Ambassador O'Brien was welcomed at the railway station by large numbers of persons, including officers of the Japanese Foreign Office, members of the American Embassy and the American commissioners to the Japanese international exposition.

Senator Harry A. Richardson of Delaware, 55 years of age, started as a boy of 16 to learn the canning business, and has been at it ever since, having accumulated a big fortune incidentally.

H. A. Taylor, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, has just completed a tour of the world with Mrs. Taylor, spending nearly two and a half years on the trip, and visiting every part of the globe. "If anybody tells you this is a small world, don't you believe it," said Mr. Taylor, when asked for his impression of the journey.

Fred M. Dearing, secretary of the American Legation at Peking, is in the United States on an indefinite leave of absence, owing to ill health. He intends to stop in San Francisco for a couple of weeks, and will then go on to Washington. He expects to be able to return to Peking about January.

Esme Howard, counsellor of the British Embassy at Washington, has been transferred to Vienna and has already sailed for his new post.

Montgomery Schuyler, Jr., secretary of the American Embassy at St. Petersburg, has left St. Petersburg for London on his way to the United States on a three months' leave of absence. He is accompanied by Mrs. Schuyler.

Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to Great Britain, has been authorized by a meeting of prominent men in New York to appoint a committee of fifteen to make plans for a celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of President Lincoln, on February 12, 1909, and to plan to raise a memorial to Lincoln. This may take the form of an arch in one of the city plazas.

Dr. J. Loudon, Minister Plenipotentiary of The Netherlands, the youngest diplomat who has ever been sent to Washington in that position, has arrived in New York, accompanied by his wife and Miss Eustis of Louisiana. Dr. Loudon was in this country seven years ago, that time coming by way of Boston. He has before been attached to several of the foreign bureaus of The Netherlands, notably that of Peking.

John I. Burnett, member of Congress from Alabama, is the shortest man in the House, and is less than five feet tall. He enjoys unusual health, and, although he comes from the Far South, he has not worn an overcoat since he reached Washington.

EDUCATORS, AUTHORS.

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD of Owasso, Mich., is about to leave for the Hudson Bay to make investigations for the Canadian government and to gather material for a book. He will go over a route never before traversed by an author and will be provided with equipment and guides for a two months' trip.

M. Marcel Debois, who has been a professor in the University of Paris for twenty-five years, has arrived in New York and will go to Quebec and Montreal, where he will lecture in the schools on colonial geography and on the connection between colonial and maritime expansion of the nations of the world.

James O. Fagan, a plain signal towerman on the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, has been invited by President Eliot, of Harvard University, to deliver a course of lectures to the students on railroad matters and other subjects. He has written a book entitled "Confessions of a Railroad Signalman."

Dr. Adolph Meyer has been selected to head a new department at the Johns Hopkins University for the study of the treatment of nervous and mental diseases.

Prof. Liberty H. Bailey, director of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, has consented to become the head of a commission appointed by President Roosevelt to investigate conditions among the agricultural population. His acceptance is regarded as insuring thorough work by the commission and the rendering of a most valuable and practical report, Prof. Bailey is one of the leading authorities on agricultural matters in the United States.

Eugene Kuhnemann, professor of philosophy at the University of Breslau, Germany, has arrived in New York from Hamburg. Prof. Kuhnemann is on his way to Harvard University, he being one of the German exchange professors. This is his second duty at Harvard.

One of the six Aldermen of Magee, Tenn., is an Alderwoman—Mrs. H. P. Gates. Her specialty is looking after the town schools.

SCIENTISTS, ARTISTS.

DR. E. M. HOLDER of Memphis, Tenn., is erecting a new residence, one of the features of which will be a formaldehyde room where he can disinfect himself and his clothing thoroughly before entering the home circle.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell and several other members of the Aëronautical Experiment Association, who attended the funeral of Lieut. Selfridge at Arlington last week, returned immediately to Baddeck, Nova Scotia, where experiments with the tetrahedral kite are to be continued during October. Dr. Bell has been working on this project for many years.

Jerome S. Blum of Chicago, who has been pursuing his art studies in Paris since January 1, 1907, has had three pictures accepted for exhibition in the October salon. On his arrival in Paris he presented two of his drawings, "The Chef" and "The Chevalier," to the faculty of the Ecole des Beaux Arts, who found the work of such superior workmanship and skill that they forthwith gave Mr. Blum a scholarship for eleven years, which permits him to carry on his studies in any school in France, under any professors he desires, for that length of time. The quality of Mr. Blum's work may be best told when it becomes known that 34,000 pieces of work were rejected.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

DR. MARY WALKER, the pioneer in the dress reform movement, having adopted trousers while a nurse in the Civil War, says dresses are doomed. The cumbering dress of woman, she says, is a predisposing cause of consumption. "The time is coming," she says, "when all women will dress as I do. I may not live to see it, but it must come."

Miss Daly, professor of home economics at Missouri State University, is referred to as an authority by the United States Department of Agriculture in an article in a recent bulletin. She is given credit for the planning of a kitchen arrangement of stove, sink, table, closets, etc., all intended to lighten the labors of the housewife.

Miss Cook, the Cornell co-ed, who has gone into the stock and bond business, after having won honors as a speaker in her college, is described as a small, pale girl, young looking and plainly dressed. She is ambitious to become a bank president, and thinks that women have made a success of that business, more than a thousand having entered it. She made a study at college of financial subjects, and will not speak in an oratorical way for some time to come.

Mrs. David Jayne Hill, who joins her husband, United States Ambassador to Germany, in Berlin, this month, will be very much at home in that center of music and social interests, for she speaks French, German and Spanish with ease, and has quite a reputation as a musical critic. Her daughter will be at school this winter in Paris, her mother having just returned to Berlin from placing her there. Mrs. Hill has much social talent, and will be quite equal to the responsibilities that her husband's position will require of her.

Mrs. Carl Muck, wife of the new director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, is so fond of America that she says she has no desire to return to Berlin.

Miss Lucille Eaves, a graduate of Stanford University, and more recently superintendent of settlement work in San Francisco, has been called to the chair of sociology of the University of Nebraska. She has done lecture work in university extension work at Chicago University and later filled the place of instructor in sociology at Stanford University for over a year. She was instructor in sociology at Columbia University, New York, at the time of the San Francisco fire.

Mrs. Louise Waterman Carpenter of Brookline, Mass., has just passed her one hundred and second birthday. She was born at Warwick, R. I., and is a direct descendant of Roger Williams.

Miss Dorothea Klumpke of California, the astronomer who was the first woman to win the degree of doctor of mathematics in France, has a special building for her exclusive use in the great observatory garden of Paris. One of her duties is to photograph the stars in that section of the heavens known as the Paris belt. For this purpose she has made frequent balloon ascensions.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

F. B. SMITH, Director of Agriculture of the Transvaal Colony, is in the United States in connection with the agricultural development of the Transvaal. A number of Boer students, selected for special training in American agricultural colleges, are also leaving London this week.

Dr. Ida Kahn, the Chinese woman who was graduated several years ago at the University of Michigan, has returned to this country to take a post-graduate course at Johns Hopkins. When she first came to this country she could not speak a word of English, but learned the language in six months. It was she who obtained permission for the missionaries to go to Nanchang, having won the consent of the viceroy by curing his wife of typhoid fever.

An expedition organized in Boston by George M. Boynton will explore the great unknown regions of the southern watershed of the Amazon River between the fourth and tenth parallels.

Charles Taylor, of White River Junction, Vt., 103 years old, was an excited spectator of the horse races at the Palmer, Mass., catle show last week. Taylor drove a pacer in the winning heat in the 2.22 class at the age of 96. He was anxious to drive at Palmer, but the fair managers, fearing disaster, dissuaded him. Horse owners were willing to give him a chance. Taylor says he is going into training and will try to get down to the lightweight limit and accept mounts on the Metropolitan circuit next spring.

oJhn and Henry Haberich, twins, aged 80, entertained at St. Louis recently their friends, including John and Fritz Miller, twins, aged 77.

Miss Christine Richards, 14 years, of Cincinnati, is in line for a Carnegie hero medal. While spending the summer at Cape Cod, her brother, aged 5, fell into the ocean from the end of a pier, and Miss Christine being a fairly good swimmer, plunged in and succeeded in reaching him just as he was sinking the second time. She swam around to shallow water with him when other help arrived.

Young Marshall Field, grandson of the late famous Chicago merchant of the same name, is a student at Eton College, England where he has displayed unusual talent for oratory. As soon as he finishes at Eton he is to enter Harvard University and prepare himself for political life. Every year hereafter he is to spend some months at Washington, learning as much as possible of political affairs in this country.

The world's record for a baby globe trotter, is held by Kathryn L. A. G. Morgan, who, though only 8 years old, has traveled 280,00 miles, or more than eleven times around the globe. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Morgan, formerly of Chicago, whose business inetrests have taken them into all parts of the world.

OVER THE SEA.

SIR DOUGLAS STRAIGHT, who has been editor of the Pall Mall Gazette for some years, after having been an Indian judge, announces his intention to retire, as he expresses it, "from everything except the task of trying to enjoy myself." At the same time he admits that laziness will be a new experience, as he has been at work since 12 years of age.

Lord Brassey, at the age of 72, has taken up the study of German, though he is already noted as a scholar and economist. He has held various offices, including the Governorship of Victoria. He is an expert on naval questions, having served as civil lord of the admiralty and secretary of the admiralty, and he also has been president of the Institute of Naval Architects. Italy has honored him with the Grand Cross of the Order of the Crown of Italy, and he also is a commander of the Legion of Honor and Knight Commander of the Bath.

Neither King Carol of Roumania, nor his Queen, known in the world of literature as Carmen Sylva, had any desire for regal honors, and when the assassination of Czar Alexander in 1881 forced them on Roumania's unhappy throne, they went protestingly. Carol finally consented to be King, but declared he would never sit upon a throne nor wear a crown.

Countess Lydie Rostoptchine of Russia, who has arrived in New York, chose in a novel way to make certain she would have no trouble in reaching her destination. In a letter to her hotel, engaging rooms, she inclosed a photograph of herself and directed the hotel management to give it to the porter who was to meet the steamer. Consequently, armed with the photograph, a porter made a thorough canvass of every feminine countenance and had no trouble in locating the distinguished visitor. The Countess was highly pleased at the successful outcome of her plan. She is an extremely well-educated woman. Her visit to America is for the purpose of delivering a series of lectures on Russia. She is democratic in her manner and a charming conversationalist. She is 70 years old, but looks twenty years younger.

The smallest king in the world is Sawbe, or Myoisa of Chen-tung, who is 4 feet 9 inches tall. His palace is a thatched hut on stilts, close to the Salween River. He has several wives and a retinue of twenty-four men armed with the quaintest collection of old guns that ever came out of a curiosity shop.

The Countess de Casa Miranda, better known as Christine Nilsson, has a large place in the hearts of the people of Sweden. On the recent celebration of her sixty-fifth birthday, when she visited the little crofter's cottage at Swaland, from which, at 8 years of age, she used to start on her concert tours, the people paid great attention to the event. She spends several weeks each year among her old townspeople.

Emperor William gives careful attention to his very extensive private correspondence, and writes personally every line that has not an official character. It is very rare that he allows anything to interrupt him when he has once begun a letter, and he will not accept the services of a private secretary in this work.

Joseph Chamberlain's rumored retirement from the House of Commons is denied by his family. His health is reported considerably improved.

Admiral Nebogatoff, who comanded a squadron of Admiral Rojestvensky's fleet at the time it was defeated by the Japanese under Admiral Togo, is writing a naval history of the war. The The first volume, dealing with events prior to the decisive battle of Tsushima Straits, has been completed.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN.

FIRST LIEUTENANT E. ALEXIS JEUNET of the Thirteenth Infantry, who has had general supervision of the equipment of the five new wireless stations between Nome and Seattle, has reported the stations in working order and ready for business. He was ably assisted in his work by Capt. Mack K. Cunningham of the Signal Corps, in charge of the second section of the Alaskan military telegraph system, and First Lieutenant Charles L. Willard of the Signal Corps, in charge of the third section. Lieut. Jeunet is on his way from Alaska to Seattle, where he will receive orders assigning him to duty at a station in this country.

HIRE THEM OVER AGAIN.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

When the time comes for a business firm to terminate the services of its managers or to hire them over again for another term, stock is taken of what they have accomplished for the benefit of the firm. The time has now come for that point to be decided with regard to the Republican party as managers of the greatest business firm on earth, the United States of America. Here is a partial record of what the Republican party, as managers, accomplished by legislation for its employers in only the first session, December 2, 1907, to May 30, 1908, of the Sixtieth Congress:

Widows' pensions increased from $8 to $12 a month, and certain unnecessary restrictions abolished.

Model child labor law for the District of Columbia.

Government liability law providing compensation to all Federal employés for injuries received in the line of duty.

Financial law whereby banks in periods of financial stringency may issue currency to the amount of $500,000,000, depositing as security therefor bonds, commercial paper or other assets, such emergency currency being so taxed as to insure its retirement immediately the stringency has passed.

Militia made integral part of the national military establishment, with additional appropriation of $2,000,000 for equipment, etc., making total yearly appropriation for militia of $5,000,000.

Customs law changed so that importers must present all evidence in appeal before board of appraisers, simplifying procedure, increasing appraisers' salaries and making them removable only for cause.

Two new battleships at a cost of $6,600,000 each, exclusive of armor and equipment; ten torpedo-boat destroyers, three steam colliers, and eight submarines.

National money commission created to devise a sound monetary system for the government.

Increasing army pay officers approximately $500 a year each, and enlisted men about 40 per cent., increase applying to both retired and active lists.

Efficiency of army medical corps increased by additional officers and creation of reserve medical corps.

[illegible] tional safeguards provided for regattas.

Consular service reorganized, abolishing unnecessary consulships and consul-generalships and establishing those most needed.

Public buildings bill, authorizing many needed structures, purchase of sites, etc., including sites for Departments of State and Commerce and Labor, adjoining Treasury and White House grounds.

Importation of impure tea, siftings, etc., prohibited.

Investigation of tariff, preliminary to revision, confined to Ways and Means and Finance committees.

Provision for fortified naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, for Hawaiian dry dock and the completion of coaling stations at San Diego and California City point.

Increasing navy pay, officers and enlisted men practically equalized with army. Enlisted naval force increased by 6000 men, and marine force increased approximately 600 officers and men.

One hundred and fifty million dollars added to taxable property in Oklahoma by restrictions on lands of the Five Civilized Tribes.

Many additional lights, lighthouses, and buoys.

Enlarging the classification of employés to whom railroads may grant free transportation.

Payment of $400,000 damages for church property destroyed in the Philippines.

Efficiency of life-saving service promoted by raising compensation and providing pensions.

Granting 3000 pensions to deserving veterans of the Civil and Spanish wars.

Prohibiting desecration and improper use of the flag.

Appropriation of $29,227,000 for investment in the American Panama canal.

Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the relief of sufferers from the cyclone of April, 1908, in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana.

Military bands must not compete with civilian musicians.

Female nurse corps established for navy hospitals and navy hospital ships.

Authority to sue Central Pacific, Oregon Short Line, etc., for the recovery of certain lands because of violation of contract.

[illegible] laws for bridges over navigable streams and nine for the construction of dams.

Chippewa national forest reserve created in Minnesota.

In all 152 laws of public benefit were enacted, besides 3000 pension bills, out of 22,000 bills introduced into the House and 7000 in the Senate.

The Senate ratified the following treaties:

Eleven Hague conventions.

Establishment of international health office.

Pan-American copyright and code of international law.

Twelve arbitration conventions, Denmark, France, Italy, Great Britain, Japan, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

With Great Britain-Canadian boundary, Canadian fisheries, wreckage and salvage and conveyance of prisoners in the United States and Canadian territory.

Extradition with Spain, San Marino and Portugal, and Uruguay.

Protection of trade-marks in China and Korea with Japan.

Naturalization with Peru, Portugal and Salvador.

Not an enactment of this Republican Congress was vetoed by Republican President Roosevelt, except one about a dam in Rainy River, Minn., which one was, with his consent, passed over his veto. This evidences the complete unanimity of Republicans when engaged in the work of managing Uncle Sam's great business. Contrast it with the work of the several Democratic Congresses and ask yourself, Mr. Voter, this question: "Is it not to your true and lasting interest as an individual and to that of your country, to hire those managers over again? By what they have done in only one session as herein enumerated, and by what is recorded in American history of their work since the active birth of the Republican party when Lincoln was inaugurated on March 4, 1861, you can safely predict what they will do in the next four years, if again entrusted with the management of the country. Recall the names of the chief Republican managers, Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt, and ask yourself another question, "Is not William Howard Taft, with his great training and ability, a fit successor?"

THE MOTHER.

[illegible] of President Roosevelt Before the International Congress of Mothers.

[illegible] the benefit of the members of [illegible] Mothers' Chapter, the address of [illegible] Roosevelt, delivered before [illegible] International Congress of Mothers, [illegible] met in Washington, by his special invitation is given.

"When all is said, it is the mother, [illegible] the mother only, who is a better [illegible] than the soldier, who fights [illegible] country." And of the responsibility of mothers the President had [illegible] to say:

"The successful mother, the mother [illegible] does her part in rearing and training aright the boys and girls, who are [illegible] the men and women of the next [illegible], is of greater use to the [illegible] and occupies, if she only [illegible] realize it, a more honorable, as [illegible] a more important position, than [illegible] successful man in it. A good [illegible] who does full duty, is sacred [illegible]; exactly as the brave and [illegible] soldier is to be honored above [illegible] man. But the woman who, [illegible] from cowardice, from selfishness, from having a false and vacuous [illegible] shirks her duty as wife and [illegible], earns the right to our contempt, just as the man who, from any [illegible], fears to do his duty in battle [illegible] the country calls him.

[illegible] mother can do her duty in her [illegible] without genuine tenderness [illegible] genuine sentiment, but if she [illegible] sentiment and tenderness of [illegible] may through folly do more [illegible] than another could through [illegible]. You must have the tenderness, you must have the sentiment, but [illegible] and woe to the children [illegible] after you, if that is all you [illegible] the sentiment, with the [illegible] of heart, encourage the [illegible] that will enable you to [illegible] tenderness, when it becomes weakness and injustice. In addition [illegible] what in the long run [illegible] more than intelligence, for [illegible] sentiment, and that is [illegible]. He is [illegible] the sum of those qualities, [illegible] make up a strong, brave [illegible] or woman. You can not [illegible] if you develop your intellect [illegible] point that you lose all other qualities. It does [illegible] difference, how intelligent [illegible] is, if she looks upon her [illegible] only with intelligence, they [illegible] to care overmuch for her.

[illegible] forget that love must come [illegible] love is what the family is [illegible] don't do children, don't do [illegible] the dreadful injustice— [illegible] love that is merely one form [illegible] of failing to make the [illegible] I might add, the man, be[illegible] himself.

[illegible] should be a partnership, [illegible] of the two partners, has [illegible] rights, where each should [illegible] to do his or her duty [illegible] duty from the other [illegible] where each must in justice [illegible] other partner, no less than [illegible] or herself exact the performance of duty by that other partner. [illegible] do not take half of that [illegible] take it all, let each [illegible] his or her duty first, put [illegible] on that; but, in addition, [illegible] your self-respect by submitting [illegible] wrong. So with the children. A hard and unloving mother [illegible] harm to her children, but [illegible] more harm than the loving [illegible] and foolish mother, who [illegible] train her children to behave [illegible] for the feelings of others, who permits them to be selfish, or cruel or thoughtless. I remember reading a story years ago that greatly impressed me. It described how a worn, tired looking woman was riding in the cars with her son, she sitting by the window. The son was a thoughtless boy and soon began to whine and complain, until he made his tired mother move away, and let him sit by the window. The observer looking on, remarked that in the future, there would be some unfortunate wife, who would wonder why 'men are so selfish,' instead of placing the blame, where it really ought to be placed—upon the lack of strength of character, the lack of wisdom, the lack of genuine love on the part of that woman in not bringing her boy up to be unselfish and thoughtful of others, so that he might live decently in his own household, and do his work well in the world at large."

Calendar of Meetings.

Invalid Cheer Chapter, 2 p.m., Tuesday, October 27, with Mrs. B. Fry, No. 124 Witmer street, West second street car.

Annual Aid Chapter, 2 p.m., Wednesday, October 28, with Mrs. Louise Yard, No. 2637 La Salle avenue.

Health Chapter, 7:30 p.m., Friday, October 30, with Mrs. Speare, No. 215 Rosemont avenue.

Invalid Cheer Report.

The regular meeting of the Invalid Cheer Chapter was held at the home of Mrs. Mathias, with an excellent attendance. We are still busy sewing for the little ones, but expect to have a comfortable wardrobe completed for them in a short time.

We will then begin work on our quilt, and also the task of dressing some dolls for the festival, most of our girls pledged themselves to dress two at least.

Several letters were received and read from invalids and shut-ins. We wish to mention one in particular in very straitened circumstances, to whom a letter containing a few stamps or dimes would be greatly appreciated. Her address is Mrs. Sarah Hunt, No. 101 Hansell street, Manetta, Ga.

Bible Study.

To those who wished to enroll in the class for the study of the Bible as literature, I will say that I have sent a letter explaining the work to all whose names have been sent in. The lessons will follow very soon. I failed to receive the address of E. F. B. of September 20, Each and All page, and inclose a card for her address, to be forwarded to me, also that of L. E. G. of Moneta.

These lessons are sent only upon request or where I know that they are desired, as they are arranged for private study. I intend them for publication some time, so all rights are reserved. There is no fee or charge made for the use of them. You may send stamps to pay postage. A number of people are interested in the unique arrangement of these lessons, which may be studied profitably on the Sabbath day. Only members of the Each and All may enroll in this chapter, as I do not care to send these lessons except to those who are trying to keep our beautiwul pledge.

The course contains twelve lessons. About 25 cents in stamps will pay the postage, as the lessons can only be sent one at a time. The text-book used is the Bible. I have no lessons or books to sell, and no commissions to make on any books I may recommend at the end of this cause. This is no "graft" in any sense of the word. The arrangement of the lessons is the result of many years' study, and because they have proved soul-satisfying to myself and a few intimate friends, they are thus given wider publicity to the few who are "encouragers and lifters" of humanity.

L. E. G. of Moneta inquires if the lessons are sent to out-of-town members. Certainly, and gladly. Just send your address for this class of nineteen, which I have just started. I would like to graduate each one, and would like to have each one take up the work after graduation and interest others in the literary treasures of the Bible.

A Worthy Cause.

A "Friend of the Helpless" writes as follows:

I desire to do all I can to help the worthy cause of the Animal Aid Chapter, in its endeavor to promote kindly treatment to all dumb creatures under our protection and in our power. I believe this can be done by writing and speaking freely in favor of such treatment, as each letters to the page will help to draw out others, and one thing that is needed is a more general expression of opinion on the subject, a subject on which the public thinks too little, a subject in which every man, woman and child should be interested, which should be taught daily in all public schools and preached from our pulpits.

It is quite as easy to train the heart as the intellect, and more important. If children were taught kindness when small, it would be a blessed habit when grown. A child can be taught kindness or it can be taught cruelty. Put guns and whips into a little boy's hands, and you have planted the first seeds of cruelty; he will begin by whipping his hobby horse, but will soon find greater pleasure in striking living things. A boy can be taught to go to the woods and kill the little song birds, leaving the young to starve in the nest, or he may be taught to feed the birds and spare the nest; it is simply a matter of training and teaching, and any public school system is imperfect while such an important study is neglected.

Kindness to everything should be the first lessons that our school children receive. It should be instilled into the minds of the little ones at home. A very small child can be taught to respect the rights of even a kitten. Because a kitten is tiny and helpless is no reason that baby should have license to pull out its fur, squeeze it almost to death, or worry it from morning till night. How often we hear "Don't hurt the cat, she will scratch you," instead of "Don't hurt the cat, she will feel the pain as you would." The child thus gets the impression that the harm is in getting scratched, not in making poor pussy suffer. Nothing is said about the rights of the animal.

J. W. Cottrell, general superintendent of the Detective Association of America, says: "With an experience of twenty-five years as an officer, I know of but very few criminals who were taught to love animals; and in searching for the causes of crime, we find that the lack of humane education is the principal one. Every family should be a small band of mercy, with the mother as president. If all mothers taught their children to be kind to all helpless things, what a grand world this would be! But, alas, too many mothers and fathers are heartless themselves, only feeling pity where their own particular loved ones are concerned. Mothers will sacrifice themselves and all their comfort for the sake of giving pleasure to their little ones. It is also a fact that they sometimes allow other things to be sacrificed also. Many mothers allow their love for their children to crowd out all pity for other helpless, innocent things; hence the fact that some children grow up to be cruel men and women. If parents commit heartless acts, how can the children grow up with human ideas? How can Bessie have a proper feeling for the little songbirds when mamma wears dead ones on her hat? How can the boys grow up with feelings of pity for suffering animals when they witness the cruel acts committed by papa, who teaches them that what he does is right?"

The education of children in matters of mercy cannot begin too early. If they have pets, their parents should see that they take proper care of them—feeding them regularly and giving plenty of fresh water to drink. If dogs are kept tied, they should always have water within reach. If birds are kept in cages, never allow any exciting event to crowd them out of mind; they cannot speak, and, if forgotten, must suffer in silence.

I know children who think it their duty to hammer all the toads they see, and kill all the crabs they find, and who never receive one word of censure from their parents for it. By all means, let us have more humane education. There is nothing so much needed as kind hearts.

FRIEND OF THE HELPLESS.

EACH AND ALL MOTTO.

Golden thoughts, golden deeds,
Rid life's garden of its weeds.

OUR PLEDGE:

"To make one another happy, to lighten one another's burdens, to share one another's cares, to be lifters, not leaners, to make the world a little sweeter place to live in, to be mutual encouragers, never discouragers of any one, to start songs, not complainings, and to do every day something beautiful, some kindness which will cheer and strengthen another."

The Walkers' Chapter.

I. R. M., a stranger in our city, wishes to join the Walking Chapter of the Each and All Society.

I would like to be a member of your society. Am a stranger in the city and would like to get acquainted with some young women. The Walking Chapter of Each and All Society interests me; will you please send me the address of the chairman of that chapter? Inclosed is self-addressed envelope. Sincerely.

As soon as the members of the Walking Chapter arrange for their first outing you will receive a notice to join them.

Loves the Pledge.

T. C., a young Los Angeles girl, loves the pledge of the Each and All Society and will live up to it. She says:

I wish to join the Each and All Society. I am particularly interested in the Postal-card Exchange, and would appreciate very much any information you can give me.

I like the pledge, too, and will try to live up to it every day.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain your friend.

The Each and All pledge should impress every girl as a beautiful rule by which to set her young life; and you are wise to say you will try to live up to it every day. The post card list will be sent to you as soon as possible.

Wants Post-Card List.

Another eastern girl who signs herself Y. J. F. Y., Scranton, Pa., asks to join the post card exchange.

I would like to join the Each and All society and also to have my name on post-card list. Will you kindly send me a list of post-card exchanges.

This list will be forwarded to you in due time, we would be glad to hear from our eastern members often.

Friend of the Helpless.

Mrs. L. Y. of Los Angeles, writes to the Each and All girls upon her favorite theme—Kindness to animals.

The letter from J. M. on our page of October 18, telling of the poisoning of a member of the family, namely, their faithful dog, aroused my indignation to the highest pitch, as it could not fail to do with any one who has the faintest idea of right and wrong.

In what category can we class the dog-poisoner? The dog-poisoner should be classed with the vivisector, and merits only our contempt. Still, the work of both goes on, and how powerless the lovers of justice and mercy are to stop it; the enemy who makes his attacks openly can be met and fought, but for the fiendish work of the cowardly dog-poisoner there is no redress.

One can easily imagine the sorrow and indignation of a family who find that the faithful friend they love and who loves dearly every one of them, must die in agony, through no fault of his, while they are powerless to give aid.

This case is only one more proof of the fact that there is urgent need of more humane education, and this is just what the Animal Aid Chapter hopes to do, to help in the work of educating this generation, and through it the generations to come, to the fact that animals have a God-given place in the universe; that they must have been created for some Divine purpose, or they would not have been created at all. How can any one suppose for a moment that an all-wise Creator gave the gift of life to any creature that even the outward semblance of that life should be tortured and destroyed by a (supposedly) higher form of life? If children were taught, as soon as they were old enough to be taught anything, the wonderful mysteries of the "divine spark," no matter in what form it is found, the sacred gift of life in all its phases, which is so easily taken away, but which one power alone can give, there would be a much greater value placed upon life, human as well as animal, for J. M. is surely right in saying that "the person who will poison a dog has the true murderer's instinct, and only fear of the law prevents him from choosing a human victim."

So much has been said in criticism of "extremists," and "silly faddists" because of a few women, for the sake of starting a new fashion rather than from any kindness of heart, put diamond collars on their dogs, etc., that many who have a natural instinct to protect and defend dumb creatures hesitate to do so because of fear that they will be classed with these "faddists." If we could all cultivate a wholesome disregard for public opinion when we feel ourselves to be in the right, how much good we might do.

There is a great deal to be said against the silly and unnecessary pampering of pets, which does not materially add to their comfort or well being, while thousands of children go hungry; but we need not be extremists. The fact that it is foolish to lavish money on an animal pet which might save the life of a human being need not bar us from treating them kindly, and protecting them from abuse. Love and kindness cost nothing and should spring spontaneously from the human heart of all God's helpless creatures.

Another expression of opinion from J. M. with which I heartily agree is this: "I would give nothing for the friendship of a woman whose heart is not big enough to hold husband, children, dogs and the whole bird and animal kindom." The power to love should be fostered in the human heart, or it will wither and die from disuse. The more we exercise our power to love, the more that power grows, and broadens, until it becomes a universal love. The idea that love can be wasted is one which would have no weight with any one who has given the subject a moment's thought.

There are many whole-souled women with large families of children, whose lives are very busy ones, and who yet think it no waste of time or affection to show kindness and consideration to the animals that are household pets, or to teach these sentiments to children. This example and training, as well as the knowledge which comes to the children through constant association with household animals, of their numerous faithful and lovable qualities, is the very best kind of an education, as the lasting impression made on the childish mind so imbues them with a love for animals, that they are ever ready in the years to come to raise their voices in protest against unfair treatment of them. This early training is an important factor in the forming of character. Fortunate is the child who receives it, and the mother makes a serious mistake who fails to instill these sentiments into the hearts of her children.

We can all help in this important branch of human education by expressing ourselves on the subject whenever opportunity offers, by writing letters and articles in regard to it, for any newspapers or periodicals that will publish them, and by never neglecting to correct any form of abuse which comes to our notice, and which it is in our power to remedy.

In expressing ourselves on this question, either with pen or by word of mouth, let us not hesitate for fear. A great deal has been written and spoken in favor of humane treatment of animals, and yet instances of brutality prove to us every day that not half enough has been said. You may express your idea in a way that will appeal to some one who has never looked at it in quite that light before. And to sum the whole thing up in a nutshell, it is a subject on which too much cannot be said.

For a sentiment to thrive it must become popular. Let us help make this sentiment of kindness to animals so popular that every one who desires to respect of his fellow-men will advocate it.

Let us join forces with those who have started this great movement, and never cease our efforts until it has become a universal law for all human beings to defend and protect our animal friends.

All lovers of animals will reëcho the sentiments expressed in the above letter.

Passes the Jokes by.

Bouncing Beth writes her farewell letter, for, though still an Each and All girl, she has tabooed merriment for the time being.

How sad you will all be when you hear my tale of woe, for you will sympathize with me—my jokelet didn't go! You remember that on a bright May day I proposed the "Jolleigh Joquers." Our editor thought it would rain jokes upon me, that the story-teller would get an inning, the would-be authors edit out jokes and I, who am thin, would soon weigh at least 120 pounds. What happened? The Each and All forgot me, all but one K. P. R. She did her best in prescribing a laugh for me and it arrived after a hard day with the dear public and served to poise my nerves. You will see how apt it is in this case.

"JOLLEIGH JOKERS."

By way of explanation, Mollie was our horse on the ranch, and a veritable paragon of horse virtue in the eyes of the little Rs. One day, recently, little Bessie came to tell me about the fire horses going by, and I asked, 'Were they going very fast?' to which she replied, 'Oh, about as fast as Mollie goes when she gets scared, only Mollie never gets scared.' Now, how is that for an Irish bull?" Of course, this wins the prize. The only one of its class.

I see that certain chapters only are recognized, and I did so want a jolly chapter, and so my particular pet is in the cold and winter coming on. What a dreary time we will have with nothing of our own to laugh at. This chapter was to have been our mascot. I had delightful visions of sending laughable sketches, etc., to our would-be authors, our invalids, our nervous people and our dear editor, our beloved president and others. I once dreamed of compiling the shower of jokes and selling them for the benefit of the Each and All fund, but none of you were like "Mollie." You were too scared to send them, and now your opportunity is gone and I shall be thin to the end of my days, unless Versatile Verona will send me some rules to overcome my thinness. There's nothing so good for thinness as laughter—it is the only remedy. I could laugh if I only had something to laugh at, but you dear people have failed me and I feel very lugubrious over it, for if you wanted to do so ever so much I could not listen to your stories. I waited so long for a response, and there was only one true laughing comrade, but she is such a dear one that the effort was repaid. Now I am busy in other directions, no time to laugh or cry, no time to question why. I cannot be

"BOUNCING BETH."

If Each and All girls only knew who Bouncing Beth really is they would understand why she cannot devote any of her time now to jokelets, for, although still a very merry girl, she is now engaged in very serious work.

The Health Chapter.

V. V. of Los Angeles writes particulars as to the Health Chapter, as follows:

One sweet lady asks how old I am. Dear girls, is that fair? With only a thread or so of silver in my hair, she probably imagines that I must be gray-haired in order to have enough gray matter to answer questions on health. Some one asks for the secret of retaining color and life in the hair, as she is sure I must have it. The hairdresser thinks so, too. All in good time, little girls, I will tell you at one of our meetings. Another one tells me our out-of-town members cannot have the benefit of the talks. That is another problem that will be solved, also, and you must help solve it, if we are each to help the other.

I have sent E. B. of Monrovia a few rules for indigestion and hope she will return them, so they can be forwarded to some one else. Remember that a private letter will be answered if stamps are sent. Also I would ask rheumatic friends to kindly copy their rules and return them so they may be sent on another round robin list. Kindly note that you can use these rules with any course of medicine or philosophy, as they are simply correct codes of eating, breathing, sleeping, etc., the basic fact being that the body is the house in which one lives and if it is cared for properly, it is in health. Eating, breathing, sleeping and thinking correctly assist greatly in attaining this blissful state of being. [illegible] ingly yours for health.

V. V.

Versatile Venona writes humorously, but she is a very serious little lady when it comes to the subject of health, and will give freely of her time and advice to our Each and All girls just for the sheer pleasure of doing.

An Ohio Girl.

A Middletown, O., girl is a member of our society, and wishes a post-card list. Her letter follows:

Will you please put my name in your post-card list and will you please send me a list. My name is on your Each and All roll.

J. W. B.

Once an Each and All girl, always one, so long as you live up to your promise, for you have taken the pledge of the society. The post-card list will be forwarded to you.

A New Member.

Vera H. of Los Angeles likes the Each and All Society, and is interested in two chapters. She says:

I would like very much to become a member of your society. The Invalid Cheer and Domestic Science Chapters. Kindly let me know when I can consider myself one.

You may already consider yourself a member of our Each and All Society for girls. You will be put in communication with the chairmen of the two chapters which interest you.

A New Member.

The Each and All Society of Girls is, indeed, an attractive force, which leads many into the charmed circle.

Will you kindly tell me the requirements for joining your Each and All Society? I am interested in the chapter which will study the Bible as literature and will be very grateful to be put in touch with this department. Will you please forward the inclosed envelope (V. V.) to Versatile Verona, also?

(MRS.) M. O. S.

Your address has been sent to V. V., who is directing the study of the Bible as literature. Elsewhere on the page today you will see directions from V. V., as to this study.

Animal Aid Chapter Report.

The Animal Aid Chapter met Wednesday afternoon at No. 2637 La Salle avenue, with a good attendance, and spent a very busy afternoon. Each one had some question to bring up for discussion, and in an exchange of ideas as to the best ways and means of working for the cause the time passed very quickly. Mrs. Thompson was elected secretary of the chapter, and Mrs. Riles, corresponding secretary. During the week the Animal Aid Chapter received a donation of $2.60. At this meeting two new members entered their names on our book. The interest in this work grows, and we have good reason to feel encouraged. The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock to meet again October 28 at the same address.

Stories for Poor and Sick.

M. R. of Los Angeles will make good use of The Times story pages.

Inclosed please find stamped envelope for a post-card exchange list. Also, I have a lot of papers (Los Angeles Times) of Polly Evans's Story Page, which I would like to pass along to some poor or sick child or give to some hospital, but do not know where they would be welcome. If you can tell me where to send or take them I would be very glad to give them to some one.

I hope to receive a post-card list from you soon, as I am trying to get up a collection.

The post-card list will be sent you in due time. Make a neat rolled package of the story pages and send them to the Children's Hospital on Castelar street.

These little girls, Hazel Lark, Helen Gwin, Margaret Maple, Dorothy King, Helen Learmont, Alenath Binford and Irene Dressor, served their little queen as maids of honor, and a prettier picture than they made, seated on the big throne at either side of the little queen, it would be hard to find.

Robert Basler.

The usual classes for boys and girls of different ages were arranged, but one baby came in a class by itself. This was little Margaret Eileen Smith, only seven days old, who easily won the prize as the smallest baby entered. In the twin class, two little golden-haired children, Teddy and Lydia Rasmason, were awarded first, and the little queen was given the special prize as the most beautiful child present.

More than a hundred babies were entered, and the judges grew anxious-eyed and their glances sought the door as the size of their task became apparent. Their work was made more difficult, of course, from the fact that some of the pretty babies would go to sleep and others would cry just when their names were called. But as this couldn't be helped, the judges went hard-heartedly on with their work, and awarded the prizes as best they could.

In the final list, the following babies were given first prizes: Stirling Bonnett, Margaret Fanning, Lester Allison, Marion Williams, Blythe Triplett, Beulah Proud, Marion Hugh Moss, Arline Cox, Teddy and Lydia Rasmason and Margaret Eileen Smith.

Sorrows of Bedtime.

Just when the laugh
Is growing loudest,
And Uncle's showing
With his proudest
Air,
The things he's brought
From everywhere;
Just then my Mamma says:
"Your bedtime, Jackey, run;
Tomorrow you shall see the fun."

And then the fun
Goes on.
And I creep back
Behind big Grandpa's
Big armchair.
And all seems safe
Until Mamma looks 'round again,
And everywhere,
And says:
"Did any one see Jack go up the stair?"

And then they find me
And I go;
But I'm too big to show
The tears.
They say that if to bed
I did not go
With all the birds,
I'll surely never grow
To be a man. When I'm in bed
I cover up, and wish that I was dead.

I wish we were not made
To want to sit up
Nights,
And then be told
To go to bed;
When all the lights
Are making it as bright
As day,
And night is every bit
As good a time for play.

The result:
When I'm a man
I'll let my children
Sit up late,
Or else I'll make the grown folks
Go to bed at eight.

Didn't Like the Location.

Humiliation at being deprived of the seat next to the teacher's desk and ordered to occupy a seat with a girl brought Gustav Vissagio, 10 years old, who leads his class in Public School No. 78, before Judge O'Keefe in the children's court on complaint of a truant officer, who found the boy on the street during school hours, says the New York Herald.

Gustav, who is small and has snapping black eyes, lives with his parents at No. 10 Veranda Place. Ever since he entered the public schools, five years ago, he has been a favorite with his teachers because of excellence in his studies and deportment.

When school opened a week ago, Gustav was given the seat directly in front of the teacher's desk. Had Gustav been given to reading dime novels between the covers of his geography he would not have prized a seat directly under the eye of his instructor.

R. L. Webster.

For a few days everything went smoothly, but a rift in his happiness came last Thursday, when in a fit of anger he kicked the boy who occupied the seat directly across the aisle. The teacher was looking.

Had his punishment been only the loss of his favorite seat, Gustav would probably have submitted meekly, but to be compelled to study by the side of a girl was adding insult to injury. Gustav revolted. He refused to go over to the girl's seat. His teacher ordered him to report at the office of the principal.

"If you refuse to occupy the seat to which your teacher sends you, you might as well go home. When you are realy to obey, come back," he was told.

Monday afternoon a truant officer found him playing in the street.

No tears came to the boy's eyes and his voice never faltered as he talked to Judge O'Keefe.

"Why should they send me to a girl's seat?" he asked. "I want to go to school, but I do not want to sit with a girl."

"That's something you will probably get over some day," said the judge kindly, with a twinkle in his eye.

"Now Gustav, don't you think you can patch up your troubles with your teacher? Will you promise to return to school if I let you go this time?"

Making Telephone Operators Polite.

The authorities in Paris have made the important discovery that the telephone system of the city is largely controlled by the nervous system of the Paris telephone girl.

They have found, also, that the majority of the Paris telephone girls are unmarried and live alone, that they neglect their proper meals, and that in consequence the unfortunate subscribers suffer from the telephone girls' nerves more than is necessary.

The telephone authorities have in consequence organized canteens to provide their girls with luncheon and dinner at six and seven cents a meal, consisting of roast beef and mutton, and plenty of sweets.

All kinds of sweets are provided, but the authorities have drawn the line at caramels, which, says the official circular, "tend to disorganize the service."

Subscribers' complaints have diminished 30 per cent. since the innovation.

LIVE AND LET LIVE.

Never before in the history of occult science has a man of PROF. W. E. KING'S professional standing consented to place his services at the disposal of the public for such a nominal consideration. Realizing that this city has been overrun with pretenders and that many of its citizens are anxious to visit a genuine psychic PROF. W. E. KING has decided to place his consultation fee within the reach of all.

Years of study, travel in far eastern lands, and endless experience, coupled with rare psychical gifts, have made him the world's greatest living exponent of HINDOO and OCCULT MYSTICISM.

DO YOU WISH TO KNOW
How can I have good luck?
How can I succeed in business?
How can I make home happy?
How can I conquer my enemies?
How can I marry the one I choose?
How can I marry well?
How soon can I marry?
How can I conquer my rival?
How can I make any one love me?
How soon will my lover propose?
How can I get a letter?
How can I get a position?
How can I remove bad influences?
How can I control any one?
How make distant ones think of me?
How can I settle my quarrel?
How can I hold my husband's love?
How can I hold my wife's love?

PROF. W. E. KING tells all—never asks a question.

EXTRAORDINARY PSYCHIC POWER, combined with his superior knowledge of occult force, enables him to read human life with unerring accuracy from infancy to old age; his powers are wonderful and indisputable; his advice is reliable, his information clear, concise and to the point, in love, marriage, divorce, sales, wills, patents, journeys, old estates, investments, property mortgages.

I WILL TELL YOU HOW TO ATTRACT, control and change the thoughts, intentions, actions or character so that you will reach the highest possible development of mental vigor, health, happiness and capacity to earn wealth; how to accumulate a fortune and be happy.

I WILL TELL OF YOUR HUSBAND, WIFE, lover, friends, or enemies; who is true and who is false; will tell you every hope, fear, ambition, better than you could tell it yourself; those that are unsuccessful are made prosperous and started on the road to wealth; tell you how to make your husband or wife, or any one, be kind and true to you.

IF YOU ARE GOING TO SEE A PSYCHIC WHY NOT SEE THE BEST?

As the best is always the cheapest in the end. Better consult no clairvoyant at all than one who is unable to help you, as false prophets do more harm than good, as they leave you in a worse condition than before by their false advice, based upon guesses; but PROF. W. E. KING has an established reputation; testimonials and credentials from thousands of your own citizens and friends.

If you have already made a mistake, thrown away your money and lost confidence through dealing with much-advertised and self-styled palmists and psychics and their cheap, clap-trap methods, start from the beginning and consult PROF. W. E. KING. He will tell you frankly your condition and what you may expect; if nothing can be done for you he will not take one cent of your money. Has not this honesty on the face of it?

PROF. W. E. KING FORETELLS MANY EVENTS.

Some of the prophecies made by Prof. W. E. KING and which were fulfilled to the letter and day were:

The explosion of the United States warship Bennington at San Diego, Cal. It was predicted that on that day the government would lose a ship in the Pacific.

Prof. W. E. KING, Psychic, had warned the public of San Francisco's earthquake of 1906 for years.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the Japanese-Russian war. The day of the month and year was predicted on which hostilities would be begun and the victory of the Japanese.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the late President McKinley's assassination at "Buffalo Exposition."

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the assassination of Carter Harrison the elder three weeks before the weak-minded Prendergast fired the fatal shot at Chicago's chief executive.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the earthquake at Kingston, Jamaica, W.I.; the earthquake in Chile; the Thaw-White tragedy; also predicted the Galveston flood.

On Jan. 17 two earthquake shocks were felt at Oban, Scotland. They had been predicted by W. E. KING.

Prof. W. E. KING, Psychic, has foretold many great events that took place on the day set.

Prof. W. E. KING is now located at 247 S. Hill st., where he will be pleased to meet his clients and many friends.

Recommended by a New York Judge: August 20, 1905—I cheerfully recommend Prof. King as a gifted psychic. He predicted my election and located important documents that had been lost three years. JUDGE F. B. CROWELL, Supreme Judge.

FROM LILLIAN RUSSELL, THE WELL-KNOWN ACTRESS.

I was greatly impressed with PROF. W. E. KING'S reading. His powers are truly marvelous. He develops in one a force that enables them to attract people, to interest them and to please them to their good and to your advantage without the least effort on one's part. His advice and assistance have been of great benefit to me.

FROM A PROMINENT MINISTER.

I desire to bear evidence to the genuineness of PROF. W. E. KING'S work. God gives to us an intuition whereby we may guide our lives. That PROF. W. E. KING possesses this guiding power to a marvelous degree is evident. The fact that his clients are his warmest and truest friends is alone a tribute to his sincerity and honest methods in dealing with all. He has rendered me immeasureable assistance. Rev. W. C. Jessup.

FROM M. ROTHSCHILD, THE WELL-KNOWN FINANCIER.

For the past five years PROF. W. E. KING'S advice and assistance have favorably influenced my business and financial affairs. I have tested nearly every psychic in this country and find PROF. W. E. KING'S advice reliable and far superior to any that I have ever met.

PROF. W. E. KING: I wish to give my testimonial for the benefit of those who wish to read it. Since I consulted you several weeks ago I have followed your advice and the instructions you gave me as nearly as I possibly could, and I can truly say the result has been marvelous. I shall consider it a privilege to recommend you to any person who will take the trouble to write to me. Yours truly, Maurice Winkler, 2829 State St., New York.

To Whom it May Concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. W. E. KING, as a psychic of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental psychicship. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his services.

Mme. Annuve gives reliable and important advice in all affairs of life, business transactions, speculations, claims, collections, mortgages, inventions, patents, stocks, law suits; brings about marriages, reunites the separated, helps more people to health, wealth and happiness than any psychic in America. Will tell you what business or occupation to follow to be successful. Where you shall go and whom to avoid. Her advice may be the means of saving you thousands of dollars and a great deal of trouble. Her parlors are visited by business men of good repute, anxious for reliable information as to the outcome of present and future investments. Whatever may be your troubles, anxiety, hopes, fears, and wishes, call on this gifted psychic, who has helped others and why not you?

Mme. Annuve has found it unnecessary to use columns of advertising space to secure patronage, for her business is already of a character to insure success; built up thro' accuracy and the demonstration of wonderful psychic power, she depends not on extravagant advertising of impossible character. She presents herewith a modest, truthful statement, which her work will verify in every particular.

KARMA IS NOT A PSYCHIC FROM CHOICE, BUT BECAUSE FATE HAS SO DECREED IT. HER ANCESTORS WERE POWERFUL PRIESTS AND PHILOSOPHERS, AND HAVE FOR AGES HANDED DOWN THEIR WONDERFUL POWER OR GIFT FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION; SO SHE HAS RECEIVED THE RICH INHERITANCE TOGETHER WITH COMBINED KNOWLEDGE AND PRICELESS KNOWLEDGE OF GENERATIONS. NO MATTER WHAT YOUR PRESENT TROUBLE MAY BE, OR WHAT YOUR PAST EXPERIENCE HAS BEEN, YOU WILL SAVE TIME AND AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT BY AT ONCE CONSULTING HER.

YOU MAY WISH TO KNOW
"If it is advisable to make a change in business, in love, in marriage?"
"Shall I succeed in my new undertaking?"
"Can I obtain my hopes, my wishes, my ambitions?"
"Shall I ever enjoy the luxuries of wealth?"
"Can I trust my friends?"
"When shall I marry?"
"Shall I ever be divorced?"
"Does another share the love that rightfully belongs to me?"
"If so, whom?"
"Am I loved in return?"
"Is there a rival in my love?"
"When shall my love affairs terminate in marriage?"
"When shall my domestic troubles end?"
"How can I make my life and home happy?"
"Why do I not receive a letter?"
"Should I invest my money?"

"TRUTHFUL IN HER PREDICTIONS; RELIABLE IN HER ADVICE. No mater what troubles you may have with yourself or others, come and she will guide you. Mme. Karma advises you with a certainty, higher than human power.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE
EXPERT ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST.

A resident of Los Angeles 25 years, and whose work is known throughout this entire land has made a life study of ASTROLOGY AND PALMISTRY, convincing hundreds of the BEST INTELLECTS and persons in all walks of life that his REMARKABLE READINGS and PREDICTIONS for future events in their lives are UNPARALLELED.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HOROSCOPE shows diseases, tells all about love, whom to marry and when, describing the marriage partner; shows deaths, divorce; tells about children; speculations, the best time to invest or to push affairs, and when to hold on to what has been gained; your talents; your environment; when and where to travel; what to seek and what to avoid; when in danger of illness, accidents, death, losses, troubles; also your good periods, coming—giving dates of these events for the future.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING GIVES ALSO AN ASTROLOGICAL READING.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Frederick Warde, Louis James, Paul de Longpre, Admiral Schley, Senator Clark, ex-Gov. Pardee, David Starr Jordan, Gen. Chaffee, Baron Rothschild, Joaquin Miller, Ysaye, Sousa, Edison, Capt. Hobson, Caruso, Josef Hoffman, Huntington, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Lillian Nordica, Calve, Julia Marlowe, Modjeska, Sembrich, Jefferson, Lillian Russell, Nat Goodwin, Maxine Elliott, Fritzi Scheff, and hundreds of others.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of horoscopes and hand reading has brought him a large and successful practice. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances.

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store,) by those desiring CAREFUL CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn, in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health, marriage and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—
The navy needs many capable men who will render faithful service—you may be one. Go to the Navy Recruiting Office and talk it over anyway.

This is a chance to serve your country with honor, at the same time to earn good money and improve your condition physically and mentally.

It costs nothing to be examined, whether you decide to enlist or not. No better recommendation could be obtained than an honorable discharge after four years' faithful service in the navy.

Four years in the navy is an education. You will be greatly benefited by the physical training, the fresh-air life, and the wholesome food. Your mind will be broadened by the many opportunities for travel.

You will form habits of regularity and self-reliance, which will fit you for the duties of civil life, or for advancement in the navy. Many opportunities are offered for learning a trade. The Navy's Electrical School, Artificer School, Gunnery Class and School for the Hospital Corps are equal to any manual-training schools in the country—and your pay continues while you are under instruction. The pay is good and the chances to save excellent.

If you have ambition to better your condition, go to the Navy Recruiting Station at SAN FERNANDO BLDG., Fourth and Main streets, Los Angeles Cal. Or address Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, Washington, D. C. 25

WANTED—
Partners.

WANTED—I OWN A LARGE, BEAUTIFUL, high, sightly and commanding site for a national hospital, hotel and health resort. This site comprises about two acres, joining a beautiful city park of 1200 acres, walks, drives, flowers, shrubbery, etc., in Los Angeles city, within eight minutes' ride by electric cars from the business center of Los Angeles.
My property is the only private property joining this park and connecting with it.
I want to build a national hospital, hotel and health resort on this property, equipped with modern, up-to-date, surgical operating-room and hotel accommodations for invalids and the latest discoveries in curing diseases, comprising electric and solar baths, harmonic, magnetic vibrations and the great salt water sub-cutaneous injection treatment now in successful use in France by Dr. Quinton, and in England under the patronage of the Duchess of Sutherland.
The leading physicians and surgeons of the United States can be interested in the enterprise. The banks, leading brokers, railroads, civic and military orders will negotiate the bonds of this enterprise, which will pay from 20 to 30 per cent. profit on the investment.
In Europe there are many national hospital hotels and are none on the Pacific Coast, and Los Angeles is the Mecca to which the invalids of the United States are looking.
I want to borrow $10,000 to promote this great humanitarian enterprise, and will give a first mortgage or trust deed on my property as security and pay 10 per cent. interest and give a bonus of ¼ interest in the enterprise, worth a fortune.
I will furnish bank reference of my ability to promote this enterprise successfully and my property considered solely as city lot is good security for the money.
If you want to promote or finance this proposition to the benefit of yourself and mankind, address

"OWNER,"
400 Union Trust Bldg.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Estab. 23 years. Member L. A. Realty Board. 25

I OWN A LARGE, BEAUTIFUL, HIGH, sightly and commanding site for a national hospital, hotel and health resort. This site comprises about 2 acres joining a beautiful city park of 1200 acres; walks, drives, flowers, shrubbery, etc., in Los Angeles city, within 3 minutes' ride by electric cars from the business center of Los Angeles.

My property is the only private property joining this park and connecting with it.

I want to build a national hospital, hotel and health resort on this property, equipped with modern, up-to-date surgical, operating-room and hotel accommodations for invalids and the latest discoveries in curing diseases, comprising electric and solar baths, harmonic, magnetic vibrations and the great salt water sub-cutaneous injection treatment now in successful use in France by Dr. Quinton, and in England under the patronage of the Duchess of Sutherland.

The leading physicians and surgeons of the United States can be interested in the enterprise. The banks, leading brokers, railroads, civic and military orders will negotiate the bonds of this enterprise, which will pay from 20 per cent. to 50 per cent. profit on the investment.

In Europe there are many national hospital hotels and are none on the Pacific Coast, and Los Angeles is the Mecca to which the invalids of the United States are looking.

I want to borrow $10,000 to promote this great humanitarian enterprise, and will give a first mortgage or trust deed on my property as security and pay 10 per cent. interest, and give a bonus of 1-4 interest in the enterprise. Worth a fortune.

I will furnish bank reference of my ability to promote this enterprise successfully and my property considered solely as city lot is good security for the money.

If you want to promote or finance this proposition to the benefit of yourself and mankind, address

"OWNER,"

JOIN THE CALIFORNIA SYNDICATE.
Pay $1 monthly for 100 months or $100 and make $1000 in a legitimate, safe and proven realty enterprise. Money secured by trust deeds on the realty of the syndicate.

We are promoting a national hospital, medical and surgical college and health resort. We have the site adjoining a large city park of 1200 acres of beautiful walks, drives, flowers, shrubbery, etc., and another site on the sea shore.

We will furnish medical services, medicines and hospital service to our syndicate members free, it only costs membership dues of $1 a month.

BUSINESS CHANCES—

Miscellaneous.

BUSINESS OPENING—SAY, READER, IF you are looking for good business, yet a good, neat, clean, paying business, I have it to offer. It is a furniture store and house furnishing goods in one of the best up-to-date young cities in Southern California; the stock new is about $25,000; sales past three years have run from $90 to $100,000 per year. This is an exceptionally good chance to get a paying, established business.

The owner of above business also has a store in the Imperial Valley; stock runs about $7000 or $8000; will also sell, as he wishes to retire from business.

Call and see me about particulars of the three business chances.

PIONEER AUTOMOBILE EXCHANGE—
The Leading Brokers,
605-607-609 W. Seventh st.
(Opposite Postoffice.)
F5516. Main 5518.

Largest concern of this kind handling second-hand cars exclusively on the Pacific Coast. We have demonstrated our ability to sell more and make quicker sales than all other brokers combined. Why? Because we are not novices, and depend on copying other brokers' ads and methods for business; we originate and have our own ideas, and can assure you better results, as we have proven in the past our ability to make quicker sales than you can get elsewhere.

NOTICE: TO PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS. WE only handle machines that are in good running order and ready to use. No cars misrepresented in order to make sales.

MACHINES CALLED FOR AT A DISTANCE WITHOUT ANY CHARGE TO THE OWNER WHERE THEY ARE LEFT WITH US FOR SALE.

We do not depend on a small amount of storage from parties leaving car for sale, but a reasonable amount of commission, without storage. We solicit patronage of cars for sale that others have failed to dispose of for you, and can assure you results that usually follow a modern and well-conducted place

ALL CARS LEFT FOR SALE HAVE OUR PERSONAL ATTENTION, AND STORED FREE OF CHARGE.

WARNING—

Automobile owners are hereby notified that certain unscrupulous, irresponsible automobile companies are soliciting automobiles on a consignment basis for other purposes than ON SALE. They are used to educate would-be chauffeurs, torn down and never put back in anything like their original condition. They are also used to teach scholars how to drive, tires are worn out and any good left of the machine is soon used up, and what was a good car is soon reduced to so much junk.

They are also used for rental purposes and joy rides, parts are broken and in many ways very much abused.

Clean competition helps the automobile business, and the majority of the automobile brokers in Los Angeles are honest and square. I warn you, however, to make inquiries before placing your car, as this advertising is especially aimed at firms running schools and renting cars in connection with the business.

Automobiles do not increase in value, they depreciate every day, so be careful. Send your car to a good reliable, responsible firm. If you have a car to sell, investigate. It will pay you.

MINING—

A VALUABLE MINE. We own an old and well-known silver mine in the District of Sahuaripa, the most highly mineralized portion of the State of Sonora, Mex. The vein is on contact of lime and porphyry, both big formations, and runs from 6 inches to 8 feet in width; ore, both sulphide and native silver; more than 2000 feet of work has been done on this property by the Jesuits, 200 years ago. We have no assay reports or samples, to but to parties interested, can show the ore in the ground.

We would like to meet some one willing to furnish $3000 for a half interest in this ground. With the expenditure of this amount mine can be put on a paying basis and likely to prove a bonanza.

Spanish spoken, written and translated and the best of references furnished. For further particulars call on or address A. E. LOTT, 626 D ave., Douglas, Ariz. 25

INCORPORATE UNDER ARIZONA LAWS. No franchise or annual tax, no public statements. Members exempt from corporate debts. Hold all meetings, do business and keep books anywhere. TYPEWRITERS—
Of Various Makes.

REBUILT TYPEWRITERS. Webster's Dictionary defines the word "rebuilt" "to build again" and "repaired" as "mended." The difference in the meaning of the two words clearly explains the difference between a "GRADY" REBUILT TYPEWRITER and one second-hand—(repaired.)

Note the prices on the following rebuilt machines.

No. 3 Olivers	$53.50.
No. 6 Remingtons	$56.50.
No. 7 Remingtons	$67.00.
No. 4 Underwoods	$65.00.
No. 2 Smith-Premiers (late models)	$41.00.
No. 5 Densmores	$41.50.
No. 2 L. C. Smiths	$56.50.
No. 12 Hammonds (new)	$60.
Chicagos (portable machines)	$16.

A written guarantee goes with every machine we sell. We are sole agents for the "GRADY" REBUILT TYPEWRITERS for Southern and Lower California. Call or write for catalogue.

QUICK GUN ACTION.

Policeman and Cowboy Drop Dead Simultaneously in Shooting Affair.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GULFPORT (Miss.) Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A bloody tragedy, which was a sequel to the Miller Brothers 101 Ranch Wild West show, occurred tonight, in which Lee Varnado, a city police officer, and Lon Seely, a cowboy belonging to the show, who was familiarly known as the "Bill Rider," lost their lives.

Owing to the extreme excitement only meager details are obtainable. Policeman Varnado was unable to give a statement, being killed almost instantly, as is also the case of the cowboy. A row occurred among the showmen, in which one employe, it is said, used a club on the head of another. When officer Varnado attempted to make an arrest, the cowboy interfered, drawing his gun. Many claim the guns were fired simultaneously and both officer and cowboy dropped to the earth.

The bullet from the cowboy's gun penetrated Officer Varnado's mouth, killing him instantly, and Varnado's shot took effect over the left eye with about the same effect. The shooting occurred just outside the show when the grounds and street were crowded with visitors, causing the wildest excitement.

Lon Seely, the dead cowboy, was the champion steer roper of the United States. His home was at El Paso, Texas.

President Roosevelt hunted on Miller Bros. 101 Ranch in Oklahoma.

REVOLUTION BREWNIG.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 24.—Private advices from Honduras indicate political conditions are even worse than reported in press dispatches. According to this information it is not ex-President Manuel Bonilla, but Gen. Policarpo Bonilla, who threatens a revolution.

An attempt, it is reported, was recently made upon the life of President Davilas' private secretary, whose conduct has incensed the wing looking to the moral support of President Zelaya. It is said the jails are full of political prisoners.

FUTURE BRIGHT FOR UNIVERSITY.

SEAT OF LEARNING AT REDLANDS SEEMS ASSURED.

Only Sixty Thousand Dollars Now Needed by Trustees of Baptist Institution—City Donates Hundred Thousand and Valuable Site. Beautiful Classic Buildings Planned.

Redlands University soon will be a concrete fact instead of the hazy and alluring possibility planned more than a year ago. With the donation of $100,000 and forty acres of land by the city of Redlands, and the generous contributions of the Baptist churches in the convention field of Southern California there is on hand a total of $240,000. As the deed of gift from the city of Redlands provides that $300,000 be raised by the denomination by which the University of Redlands is planned, there remain $60,000 yet to be subscribed.

As there are still the three largest and richest churches in the field yet to canvass, viz. the Temple Baptist of this city, the First Baptist of Pasadena and the First Baptist of San Diego, the future looks particularly bright to the men who have been giving so much of their time to the project since its inception.

Exclusive pictures printed on this page give a faint idea of the wonderful beauty of the buildings planned as a nucleus of the new seat of learning in Southern California.

The general plan for the university is such that a symmetrical effect will be produced when the entire layout is completed. The whole plan is designed to produce the most harmonious effect, and form a unit, itself sufficient for all the needs of an institution, such as this will be.

Construction work on the first five buildings will begin about January 1. The preliminary sketches and plans have been completed by the architect, Norman F. Marsh of this city, and have been approved by the board of trustees. Everything is in readiness for the work of preparing the working drawings, which is to move forward rapidly.

The five buildings to be put up immediately will comprise the administration building, the president's mansion, the fine arts building, one of the women's dormitories and the gymnasium.

The buildings will undoubtedly be built of reinforced concrete, with possibly a brick veneer. They will be as nearly fireproof as possible. The roofs will probably be of red tile.

The "classic" style of architecture has been adopted and all of the proposed seventeen buildings are designed in this—a style which for simple beauty and grandeur stands preëminent. In the days to come, when all are completed, the group will be a symmetrical whole. In the grouping of the buildings, the idea has been to so arrange the different structures that each shall show at its best, in its own setting, and the whole mass work up to a fitting climax, with the stately administration building, located on a knoll at the head of the campus, its crown.

The campus, which is to cover fifty acres of land at the western limits of the city, will be improved from a comprehensive landscape design. A portion lies on one side of Colton avenue, rising forty feet to the summit of the knoll on which the administration, executive mansion and fine arts buildings will be built. On the other side of the avenue, fourteen buildings, comprising a library, museum, three dormitories for women and a similar number for men, a gymnasium for men and one for women, and the organic sciences, inorganic sciences, college of medicine and college of liberal arts buildings will be grouped around a huge sunken garden. Behind this imposing group will be the athletic field with its grand stand, and the power plant.

The present building plans call for an administration and auditorium building three stories in height, faced with four imposing Ionic columns. This, with the college of fine arts and the executive mansion will occupy the place of honor on the terraced mesa, overlooking the city and the valley. On the lower portion of the campus will be erected the library and museum; the college halls, designed each for fifty students, so arranged that they will not only provide an abode for the students who live within their walls, but also a social center.

The women's and men's halls are located on opposite sides of the quadrangle. The larger buildings, the colleges of sciences, medicine and letters, enclose the other end of the quadrangle.

Each building is planned for its particular use, the executive offices to be located in the administration building, which in the first five years of the university will also provide class rooms, temporarily. The college of fine arts will house the music and fine arts courses.

In addition to the above buildings there will be a power plant, which will be constructed and equipped immediately, and probably a college commons or dining hall.

Being located in a beautiful valley, under the shadow of the "Everlasting Hills," the University of Redlands will have an inspiring setting. Its fifty acres under the skill of an experienced landscape architect, aided by the Southern California climate, will in a short period make it a spot of rare beauty.

The board of trustees is composed of the following gentlemen: Mattison B. Jones, Los Angeles, president; A. H. Smith, Pasadena, vice-president; F. G. Cressey, Los Angeles, secretary; H. P. D. Kingsbury, Redlands, treasurer; A. T. Currier, Spadra; J. W. Curtis, San Bernardino; W. H. Fowler, Los Angeles; A. Gregory, Redlands; G. F. Holt, Riverside; C. C. Pierce, Los Angeles; W. W. Wilcox, Colton; T. C. Roseberry, Los Angeles; Carey R. Smith, Santa Ana, and J. H. Strait, Redlands.

Pastor J. N. Field of Redlands is financial manager.

PLANTING GLENWOOD GROVES.

Riverside Capitalists Setting Out Thousands of Valencias and Navels on Western Mesa.

Much work is being done to put the Glenwood Groves, at Riverside, in shape for the arrival of the winter tourists, and other visitors to the famous orange-growing section. L. V. W. Brown, one of the best-known Riverside fruit growers, is personally superintending the planting and care of the young groves. He is the president of the company, which owns more than 1000 acres to the north and west of Riverside, near Crestmore, the location of the Southern California Cement Company's plant.

At present there are 400 acres set out to one, two and six-year-old trees, the latter being in full bearing. The orchards are located to the west of the Santa Ana River, in a rolling mesa of fine decomposed granite, in which the trees do remarkably well, and attain a size seldom expected in older trees in other sections. The conformation of the country is such that the mesa is frostless.

Within the next few months the company will plant the remaining acreage, develop additional water by sinking wells, construct roads, and plant ornamental trees along the latter. It is planned to sell this acreage to visitors and professional men located here, prices varying from $550 to $1000 an acre, according to the age of the trees, on an easy payment plan, and at the same time care for the young groves until these reach maturity.

The water supply is at present obtained from two wells, which throw a 200-inch stream sufficient to irrigate the acreage already set out. A feature of the groves is the absence of the usual square system of setting the trees. Instead of this, these have been planted on the 'contour' system, each row following the grade of the slope with an average fall never exceeding 3 per cent., thus making irrigation simple, and washing impossible. Water is conveyed to the various delivery points in steel pressure mains, and then distributed over the land by means of uniform cement flumes.

Roads have been constructed throughout the acreage along the highest lines of the subdivision, to avoid interference with irrigation. These are graded, and will be graveled and oiled. Rows of cypress and eucalyptus have been set out along these avenues, and already have made a remarkable growth. The main street of Riverside will be extended to pass through the location, and on to Rialto, and an electric line already is within a few hundred feet of the acreage.

REDLANDS GROVES WANTED.

Twenty-five Thousand Is Price of One Place—Acres in Ireland Attract O'Toole.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

REDLANDS, Oct. 24.—The D. J. Stillson place on Edgemont Drive, bordering on San Timoteo Cañon, was sold yesterday to William Burrows for $25,000. There is twenty-three acres of broken land, and sixteen acres are set to oranges of different varieties. In the deal are included nineteen shares of Redlands Heights water stock, which are said to be ample for the care of the place. The place is improved with an eleven-room, two-story house. The ranch is known as the old Ezra Crossman property, but was purchased seven years ago by Mr. Stillson. Mr. Burrows is a comparative newcomer to Redlands and he plans to live on his newly-acquired ranch.

John O'Toole has disposed of his ten-acre orange grove in Crafton to C. A. Wood for $12,000. The land is planted to Washington navels and is improved with a cottage and outbuildings. Some time ago Mr. O'Toole received word that he had been left 400 acres of valuable land in Ireland by a relative, and he and his family will now go to that country to look after their inheritance.

Ground was broken yesterday for the foundation of the new Spates building on East Central avenue. It will be a two-story brick building, 25x80 feet. The cost will be $3000. F. Garvin Hodson has secured a permit to erect a $3000 bungalow of concrete on Garden street. A one-story, six-roomed brick and wood residence is being erected on Chestnut avenue by L. H. Huntington at a cost of $2500.

BUYING TO BUILD.

New People Purchase High-Class Property, and Plan to Improve With Homes.

The Edwards & Wildey Company reports an increasing demand for the best class of residence property in the west and south ends of the city. The particular feature of nearly every purchase is the fact that each buyer intends to immediately improve with a handsome home, to cost from $3000 to $9000. The sales report follows:

For George M. Beach to H. A. Church, two lots 100x178 feet on the west side of St. Andrew's boulevard, near Sixteenth street, for a consideration of $5000. Mr. Church has commenced to build two handsome residences upon the property, of eight and ten rooms, respectively, to cost about $9000.

For Marie Weid to G. L. Louden, lot 60x132 feet, on the east side of Magnolia avenue, between Tenth and San Marino streets, for $3000. This was bought for immediate improvement with a nine-room residence.

For N. F. W. Pond to R. B. Mills, a lot, 50x114 feet, on the east side of Oxford avenue, near Sixteenth street, for a consideration of $2250.

For Edgar Dearden to George Mastrovich, a lot, 50x130 feet, improved with a modern five-room bungalow, at No. 4106 Budlong avenue. The consideration was $3850. This was purchased for a home.

For D. E. Spangler to Thomas O'Neil, a lot, 50x116 feet, on the east side of Hobart boulevard, between Sixteenth and Washington streets, for $2200. Mr. O'Neil is preparing plans for a two-story eight-room house, to cost $3500.

For John McNeil to E. Markert, lot, 50x135 feet, on the south side of Twenty-seventh street, near Western avenue, for a consideration of $975. This was bought for improvement with a six-room modern bungalow.

WILL PLANT RHUBARB.

Six Months' Experiment Convinces Men That Crop Will Be Big Income Producer.

A six months' experiment on three acres in the foothill district, near Monrovia, has induced the Joseph R. Loftus Company to plant forty acres of Burbank Crimson rhubarb.

As this plant is about the only winter vegetable to reach the eastern market in November and remain until April, it should create a large industry. This variety is successfully raised at Ventura and Pomona.

Agents of the Pomona company now in the East are organizing the market. The raisers of winter rhubarb will endeavor to avoid the common California mistake of creating a product before thoroughly preparing a market in advance as has happened in oranges, melons, etc.

The Rhubarb Vegetable Union will undertake to control the crop and manage the market through its own selling agencies. The cost of planting is somewhat high, $150 to $200 per acre owing to the scarcity of plants. The growers at Monrovia Acres will, in all probability, unite with the original company at Pomona in shipping and in distributing.

The area capable of successfully producing Burbank Crimson variety is limited in extent, being confined almost wholly to certain parts of the foothill districts in the orange belt.

The plant is exceedingly prolific. Mr. Burbank's estimate is 50,000 pounds to the acre. One-third of this yield, or say 15,000 pounds, however, will make very generous returns, as it is expected that the eastern market can be maintained at about ten cents a pound.

CHANGE.

SEES MONEY IN FARM LANDS.

OLD LINE FIRM PLANNING TO ENTER FIELD.

Increased Arrival of Agricultural Element in California Making Most Active Market for Arable Lands State Has Ever Seen—Black Brothers in New Location.

The real estate firm of Black Bros., which for more than five years was located in the Union Trust building, removed its offices this month to the H. W. Hellman building, where the firm occupies a large and handsome suite on the second floor, facing Fourth street.

In the past the firm has confined itself exclusively to the handling of business property, but from now on will handle a general line of real estate. In an interview, Julius R. Black, one of the firm, said:

"For almost ten years our city has enjoyed a most remarkable influx of moneyed men, who have come here to live and invest their fortunes. As a direct result, the activity in the business property market constituted one of the most important elements of the real estate business, and in the beginning we felt justified in confining ourselves to that single line. While the situation in this regard has not altered very much, a new phase has recently presented itself. Despite the short, sharp panic we passed through, there has been a remarkable and steadily increasing immigration of the farming element into the State of California, and we have at the present time the most active market for farm lands the State has ever seen. In fact, the entire State seems to be on the verge of going farm-land crazy.

"In this connection it is important to note that in the October number of the Review of Reviews Magazine, Charles N. Harger, a prominent writer on financial topics, calls attention to the fact, as follows:

> "For eight years real estate values in the Western States have been advancing regularly. Recurring good crops and unceasing immigration from States further East have enhanced the worth of farms, and incidentally of city property, generally from 30 to 100 per cent. higher than a years ago. It was predicted that these values would fall along with the decrease in price of some other lines of investment during the panic. On the contrary, there was some further advance. Added to the element that had already lifted the market for real estate was the desire of a large portion of the westerners themselves to make fixed investments which neither stock exchange nor clearing-house could affect. So instead of prices of real estate falling they went on advancing through this new impetus. Money that was withdrawn from banks bought land and some of it found its way back to the bank through the deposits of the seller.

"There you have the situation in a nutshell. If this means anything it means that California is going to enjoy the greatest gain in population as a whole in the next few years that the State has ever witnessed, which in itself will help more than anything else to build up and solidly establish a great metropolis in Los Angeles.

"We are anxious to participate in this feature of the local development, and are planning our future campaign accordingly. Country property is going to be the top liner for the future, although I should say that the speculator had better keep out of this field and stick to city real estate. Country property is only for the consumer. In other words, if you want to be a farmer, buy it, but if you want to be a speculator, keep out of it, because a farm increases in value only according to the personal attention given to it by the purchaser. But the real estate speculator has nothing to fear from this coming activity in farm lands, because that in itself will stimulate and increase the values of city property."

BUYS RUTH AVENUE FLATS.

F. J. Steele & Co. reports the following sales: B. S. Lauder to James Gysin, the property at No. 774 Ruth avenue, consisting of a lot 45x110 feet, improved with four five-room flats, for $10,000. The property was bought by Mr. Gysin as an investment. The Rockcastle Land Company to Katherine Lander, the property at No. 1162 East Fifty-fifth street, consisting of a lot 50x136 feet to an alley, improved with a modern two-story eight-room house, which the new purchaser will soon occupy as a residence; price $4000. W. H. Obear to Mrs. Hattie Stone, a lot on the east side of Gladys avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets, 40x135 feet, unimproved, for $5000.

ON WESTCHESTER PLACE.

Robert Marsh & Co. have sold to A. T. Bushnell, a lot 60x150 feet in Westchester Place, 125 feet south of Pico street, on the west side of the street, for the reported consideration of $6000. Mr. Bushnell will erect at once an eleven-room modern residence of tile, at a cost of about $12,000.

SOUTHWEST.
$2075.

One of our clients has a beautiful five-room bungalow in the southwest which he has reduced in price from $2300 to $2075, the actual cost of the building. He only wants $200 cash and the balance monthly. It is a dandy five-room bungalow, up-to-date in every way. It is a snap and a bargain. It is seldom you can buy a house at actual cost, but this is the case this time.

SOUTHWEST.
$3400.

Have you thought of buying a little bungalow? We have just had listed with us one of the most complete and up-to-date bungalows built in the southwest. It is only three blocks from car line, and has every convenience known to modern building. The floors are hardwood, the living-room has beamed ceilings and the dining-room is finished off with beautiful paneled work and a very large, up-to-date built-in buffet. This place can be handled at $400 down, $25 a month, including interest.

WILSHIRE DISTRICT.

Just completed. One of the most up-to-date and attractive bungalows built in the new Wilshire district has been offered to us at the remarkably low price of $4500. It is not necessary to tell the average man the values in the Wilshire district. Prices will double in two or three years. The house that we mention has just been completed, and is thoroughly modern in every way. Has three handsome bedrooms, living-room, dining-room and kitchen. In fact, it is absolutely compulete. It has built-in bookcases and in fact all the little built-in fixtures which go to make a house attractive and comfortable. The buffet in the dining-room extends across the whole side, and is a work of art.

The sidewalks and the lawn are put in, and, in addition, there is a garage in the rear. We believe that for the right party we can get this house on very easy terms.

WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS.
$7250.

It is very difficult to find a modern, up-to-date, attractive and well-built house in this high section of the city as we are offering in this house. It is absolutely in the highest point of West Adams Heights, one-half block from Washington street and surrounded by beautiful homes.

The living-room is large and attractive, 16x18 feet. In addition to this, there is a large reception hall, not the ordinary size, but sufficient to use in entertaining, together with the living-room. The dining-room itself is a most attractive design, and is so located that the other two rooms mentioned and the dining-room can all be thrown into one. Then there is the den, which is a real den. It has cement floor, and is finished off with very handsome paneled work and windows on all sides. There is also downstairs, a breakfast room, kitchen and back porch.

Upstairs, one bedroom is 16x18, a size you seldom find in a house costing under $14,000. There are also two other good-sized bedrooms, a large hallway and a covered, screened sleeping porch 12x20. The lot is 50x175 feet deep and improved with the prettiest of flowers, lawns, etc.

WEST ADAMS DISTRICT.
$7500.

A beautiful corner lot, 50x150, located just a block from West Adams street, and the car line, and in one of the most attractive, well-built-up sections in Los Angeles. On this lot you will find a new, well-built, eight-room house, not built for sale, but up to a short time ago occupied by the owner, who was only there a few weeks.

The present owner is in Denver, and his idea is to sell. The price is only $7500, and the terms can be easily arranged. There are four large, airy bedrooms, and the beautiful white maple floors; downstairs the floors are all covered with oak, and the house itself is attractive and compares favorably with the highest-class homes on West Adams street. It is an east front, too.

If you are really in the market for a house, one that is comfortable and will suit you in every way, let us show you this place.

WESTLAKE DISTRICT.
$8500.

Did it ever strike you that you could find a home, and one that is well built and attractive and up-to-date, located on Alvarado street, just a short distance from Westlake Park, for a price of $8500? You probably know what lots are worth in that section. In fact, it is hard to get them ranging less than $100 to $125 a front foot. Figure the cost of this fifty-foot lot and a beautiful eight-room house. One that is modern. If you are going to build, it would probably cost you between $10,000 and $11,000.

This proposition can be handled for $1000 cash and the balance to suit. The owner has been compelled to leave the city, and the matter of terms makes very little difference.

WILSHIRE DISTRICT.
$10,500.

Was $12,500; now $10,500. About three days ago one of our friends announced that he was compelled to sell his beautiful home, located just off Wilshire boulevard, and a short distance from Wilshire Place. The character of homes in this district will indicate to you that the one we are offering must be a handsome place, for there is nothing else in that section. This house is an east front and the lot is 60x150 feet deep. Three houses not over 1½ blocks away fro mthis place have recently sold for $16,000 each.

The house itself was built about four or five months ago by the owner, who expected to locate here, and was not built on contract, but by day labor. Every piece of the lumber that went into the place was selected.

Our reputation as builders in Los Angeles is well known and established, and when we say that this is one of the best-built houses that we have ever seen, you can know that it is absolutely the truth.

The house contains nine rooms; five bedrooms, living-room, dining-room, kitchen, den, or library, good-sized halls downstairs and upstairs. The bathroom is large and airy; it is covered with woodstone flooring, and the bathroom fixtures are of the very best, not what you find in the ordinary house, but the most costly that can be had. The place is highly improved, and contains a garage which cost about $750. The price of this place has been reduced $2000, as the owner expects to leave the city in a short time. We can recommend this house, and our reputation is behind it.

WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS.
$7500.

This is a pretty low price, and a drop of $250 the past week. We approached the owner of this house a short time ago on a price, and he gave it to us at $7750, but he is anxious to sell, and gave us yesterday a figure of $7500. It is an eight-room house, too, not ordinary, but new and up-to-date. You may ask if the floors are hardwood; yes, and all over the house, and with the most elegant finish. The built-in fixtures are the best and most expensive. The buffet is not a small one, but large and handsome in size. The home is one that would please you. It is elegant in style, and attractive, and we believe it can be handled on remarkably low terms. This place is only a short distance from Harvard boulevard, in the West Adams Heights section. You probably know this is a locality of pretty homes.

WESTLAKE DISTRICT.
$16,000.

We have a beautiful house of 12 rooms in the Westlake district on the high ground, on an east-front lot 70x150, beautifully improved with choicest of flowers, trees, etc.

This place, without doubt, is one of the handsomest homes in Los Angeles.

Downstairs it has an exceptionally large living room, dining-room, den, reception hall, pass pantry, kitchen and a good sized back porch.

It has hardwood floors, beamed ceilings and the dining-room has a handsome built-in buffet, paneled walls, etc.

The second floor has four large bedrooms, sewing room, hallway and two baths.

The third floor being fitted up with servant's bedroom and billiard hall.

Vacant property on this street cannot be bought under $100 per front foot and we are offering the house and lot for the sum of $16,000, which is less than it can be duplicated for today, and satisfactory terms can be arranged.

WEST ADAMS DISTRICT.
$10,000.

This house contains three stories and eleven rooms. Oak floors, downstairs and beautiful white maple upstairs. The lot is 64x135 and an east front. It is just a short distance from the West Adams car and in one of the most exclusive residence districts of Los Angeles. The place is beautifully improved with flowers and shrubbery and without doubt is one of the show places of Los Angeles.

WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS.
$9200.

This house is on a corner lot and surrounded by beautiful homes comparing favorably with the high-class section of any residence portion of Los Angeles. It is located a short distance from Western avenue and Washington street. The house is new and just completed. The floors are all hardwood, ceilings beamed, walls of dining-room paneled and all the modern convenient built-in fixtures have been put into this house. The four large bedrooms are airy, and have a beautiful mountain view. The lot being a corner, it is more than ordinarily improved. The flowers, trees, shrubbery on this place have been put in at a cost of over $300.

Similar houses in this section are being offered for $11,000 and $12,000, but for a short time we have a price of $9200.

This place is not an ordinary house, and one that you tire of seeing, but one that attracts you the more you look at it. It is one of the show places of West Adams Heights.

BARGAIN BUNGALOW.
$3800.00.

A splendid, modern, six-room home, in a fine southwest location near Western ave. Practically new, just old enough to show how it will wear. Built by owner; no "built-to-sell" property, but solid clear through. All large rooms, sunny, handsomely fitted, hardwood floors, beamed ceilings and paneled walls, every modern built-in feature. This house is big enough to have two rooms finished in the attic if you desire. Remember, we say this bargain will not last, and we KNOW.

SEVEN-ROOM BUNGALOW.
$5200.00.

Located on fine corner lot, in the heart of a beautiful southwest home section; stone and cement, veranda, seven very large and completely appointed rooms, all hardwood floors, furnace pipes throughout, garage, etc., etc. It's as beautiful and splendidly built a moderate-sized home as there is in the city; handsome stone mantel, elegant buffet, and all modern built-in features; the best lighting fixtures to be had. You could not save a dollar if you tried to build it yourself without a contractor's profit, so why not buy a bargain where you can see just what you are getting? It's worth while seeing at once.

BEAUTIFUL, NEW, 7-ROOM BUNGALOW.
$5500.00.

Here is a complete and perfectly appointed home of seven large rooms, including large living-room, dining-room, breakfast-room and kitchen, with three large sleeping-rooms, all on one floor. The interior is finished as handsomely as any $10,000 house, with oak floors, beamed ceilings and paneled walls, unique lighting fixtures, large plate-glass windows, massive buffet, extra large closets and pantry, built-in bookcases and a beautiful mantel; every modern convenience, such as furnace, wash trays, etc. The lot is an east front, 50x150. The exterior of house is of rustic, with porch of stone and cement across entire front, and the location is first-class, on high ground and near Berkeley Square. See this by appointment.

BUNGALOW BEAUTIFUL.
$6500.00.

Original, new, will be completed within a week, half a block from Berkeley Square. Go and see it with us and select your own tints. Eight rooms, including breakfast and servant's room; three beautiful bedrooms. The living-room is finished in mahogany; the dining-room in solid oak with fourteen French windows. Just off the large living-room with its inglenook and massive mantel is an open court, with space for ferns and flowers, the bungalow being built around this court. The kitchen, porch, cellar and furnace are in keeping with this handsome property. See this Monday.

ELDEN AVE. HOME.
$7500.00.

Half a block north of Pico st., east front, lot 50x150, and nine very beautiful rooms, almost new, and the biggest bargain on Pico Heights. The owner of this home is building a much larger house, which will be ready shortly, and has cut the price $1500 to make a quick sale; hardwood floors, cellar, furnace and very beautiful grounds. A chance like this, in this location, doesn't come very often, so act quickly. Cash, or easy terms to suit.

CALIFORNIA MISSION HOME.
$9000.00.

This house is a quaint replica of the bygone Mission days, artistic and softly beautiful, like a picture in some old book. With its concrete plastered walls, arched entrance, balconies and long, vine-covered porches, it lies in the midst of large grounds, completely set to lawn, roses and smiling flowers. There is even a sun dial with roses nodding by. Withal, the rooms are modern, spacious and completely and artistically fitted. Not a large house, we want you to know, but one to please the man who loves beauty, and the ideal location of this high western ground. Fine, large homes, the best residences in the city, lie all about. It will take an hour of your time to see this bargain. See it with us today.

BONNIE BRAE HOME.
$10,300.00.

This beautiful home, located on Bonnie Brae, north of Seventh st., is elevated about ten feet above the street, granite retaining wall, and has a splendid view of the mountains and Westlake Park; ten large rooms, hardwood floors up and down, finished third floor with servants' quarters, large cellar, furnace piped to every room—this property was built about two years ago at a cost of over $12,000. The lot today is worth about $6500, the house $7500, improvements to grounds, about $1000; $200 will make it like new; the above price good for a few days only. Is fully $4000 under value. Don't miss this opportunity to own a beautiful home in the Westlake district on the highest lot in this section.

RESIDENCE ON LARGE LOT.
$10,560.00.

Do you want a superb nine-room home, located in Palm Place, on a 60x150-ft. lot, half a block from fine car service, and only four blocks from Westlake Park? We recommend this residence for its admirable qualities, because its arrangement is spacious and ideal, and because we know how strongly and correctly it is built. Every room in the house is large; the living-room after our California ideal, the dining-room admirably fitted, the den cosily secluded, the five bedrooms commodious, sunny and bright, with many windows. Useless to attempt detailed description; we know the property is excellent, we recommend it to you. It's close in. See it with us, if possible, at once.

WESTMORELAND HOME.
$16,000.00.

The entire first floor of this home, except the kitchen, is finished in solid fumed oak—quartered, and rubbed to a handsome dull, piano finish; the kitchen and butler's pantry is finished in white cedar, servant's room off the large screen porch. Upstairs, on second floor, there are five sleeping-rooms, 15x17 each, with very commodious, cedar-lined closets; two bathrooms—complete, with white tile floors and side walls. A broad stairway leads to the third floor, where are found a very beautiful ballroom and sewing-room. The view from this floor, with its many large windows, is most charming and can never be shut off; furnace piped everywhere, including the ballroom; the grounds are highly improved. This property is new, and cheap at the above price; a better location cannot be had in close-in property—W. Ninth st. car line, and only fifteen minutes to Broadway. 'Phone us for an appointment and let us show you one of the best-built homes in Los Angeles.

HANDSOME RESIDENCE IN THE SOUTHWEST ON A LARGE CORNER LOT.
$17,000.00.

Beautiful eight-room modern residence on a "double clean" corner lot, 148x150 to alley, highly improved with fruit and shade trees. The house has seven-eighth-inch oak floors. The rooms are exceptionally well planned, with beamed ceilings, paneled walls, plate-glass and art windows, built-in bookcases, etc. The second floor contains four very large bedrooms with huge closets, and one of the handsomest tiled bathrooms in the city. There is a furnace and fine garage. If you want to see the "cleanest-cut" and handsomest home in the southwest, with beautiful grounds and unequaled view, let us show you this one.

MISSION HOME IN WESTLAKE DISTRICT.
$30,000.00.

This magnificent residence contains 14 rooms on a lot 100x150. The house is built of best Portland cement on wire lath and roofed with Old English tile. The situation is one of the best in the Westlake district. The rooms are exceptionally large and well planned. The living-room is 22x38, the dining-room 18x22, and other rooms in proportion. There are two beautiful bathrooms with tiled floors and walls, also a servant's bathroom. The best workmanship and architectural skill obtainable has been used and the result is a beautiful, massive and livable home. There is a fine garage and man's room outside, and the grounds are highly improved with lawns, flowers, trees and shrubs, and, last but not least, is a beautiful patio (entered from either the living-room or den) and a stately porte cochere.

The owner has left the city and the house must be sold. Let us show you this place.

BUILDING SITES, WILSHIRE WAY,
$1000.00 TO $35,000.00.

We are prepared to show you the best building sites in this desirable district. Two in particular—one a corner on the boulevard, highly improved with old trees and shrubbery, ready for a fine home; another near the boulevard, east front, 100x150, for $4500, which is a bargain. Let us show you around and convince you that this is going to be one of the finest residence sections in Los Angeles.

AN ABSOLUTE BARGAIN—WESTLAKE DISTRICT.
$14,000.

It is seldom we have a snap like this. A modern, 10-room residence in the choicest part of the Westlake section, on one of its best streets, a delightfully arranged, large reception hall, living-room, reception parlor and well lighted dining-room; up stairs comprises 5 large, airy bed-chambers, extra large closets, two baths, three lavatories, etc. The attic is finished to allow for billiard room. The home is complete in every detail; on an east front lot 100x150 to an alley and beautifully improved, with lawn, flowers and rare shrubs and trees; there is also a $1500 garage on the lot. We know it is a bargain, and you will when you see it. Any reasonable terms will be accepted. Make an appointment with us to show you this home.

ANOTHER BEAUTY IN A WESTLAKE PARK HOME.
$16,000.

Large lot, 75x150 to alley; east front; easily worth $7500. The house cost $14,000 less than three years ago to build; finished throughout with hard woods, curly birch, maple and oak. There are 11 rooms and 5 baths, delightfully arranged. A beautiful house for entertaining. Fine lawns, flowers and shrubbery. WE SAY POSITIVELY THIS IS THE BEST BUY in a home to be had in Los Angeles, and can be recommended fully. If bought within the next few days, $16,000 takes it, and only a part cash needed.

AN ELEGANT HOME—WESTLAKE CORNER.
$21,000.

One of the finest new and modern homes in this elegant section. Situated on large northwest corner, the best street in the whole Westlake district. Nine delightfully arranged rooms and three baths. House finished throughout with hardwoods, mahogany, oak and maple.

This property will compare with any $25,000 or $30,000 home in Los Angeles, but owner very much embarrassed financially and must sacrifice. See us about this sure before buying.

A FINE HOME—EXCLUSIVE WESTMORELAND TRACT.
$40,000.

The above residence was built by a Los Angeles capitalist, and the best that money could buy, both material and labor, were incorporated therein. Many rare woods are used in its interior finish and etchings and wall decorations are of expensive and foreign design. The completeness of this home and its artistic beauty must be seen to be appreciated. There are 13 large rooms, 5 baths, with tile floors, showers, etc., billiard room, sun parlors and sleeping porches. Every appointment is correct and rich in make-up. The lot is beautifully improved, 120x150, east front, with large cement garage, rare ferns, flowers and velvety lawns. Terms can be arranged—payments easy.

FOR SALE—HOUSES BY MINES & FARISH.

WEST ADAMS SECTION, NEAR 22ND AND NORMANDIE.

7-ROOM, nearly new bungalow, fronting west. Oak floors and polished pine. Fine bath and [illegible], very artistic buffet, open grate, wash trays. This is a splendid buy. 7 rooms; only $3300. Get busy. 42x130.

Westlake Park four blocks west, this beautiful new 8-room house. It is an awfully good buy. Fronts east on 60-foot lot. Large living-room with Grueby tile mantel reaching to the ceiling. This feature, as well as many others, is entirely new. Most charming den, with folding doors and columns. Dining-room is 14x18, with buffet and sideboard. Cabinet kitchen. Cemented basement, with furnace. Wash trays, 2 toilets. Woodwork is piano finish. Fixtures especially handsome. We reiterate that this is a splendid buy. Large upper and lower front porches. The price has been reduced to $6500. As low as $1500 cash will handle it.

LOT 60 FEET FRONTAGE.

$7500—7 rooms, on very high ground, east front, on Bonnie Brae. This place is a good buy and could easily be converted into apartments or flats. This is a modern home, and its charming location should appeal to you. You don't find many places in this section for sale at a price.

LOT 50x150 TO ALLEY.

JUST BEYOND WESTLAKE PARK.

We have the very place you will like. It fronts the park, too. You know what that's worth, don't you? Of course you will appreciate the joy and privilege of feasting your eyes on an exquisite landscape, with its velvety carpet of green, flowers, shrubbery and trees. Another good thing is the construction of this house. It may be dull reading to the wife, sister or daughter, but the man is glad to know that he is getting more than his money's worth when he buys a home. Foundation concrete, 18 feet wide, joists 2x10, uprights 2x6, floors double matched, doors special, stringers and. These few things will give you an idea of the solid construction. Now for interior. All woodwork first floor, paneled and beamed in the best selected stained Oregon pine, hand-rubbed to piano finish, and hardwood floors. Second floor white enameled, six coats on all woodwork. Reception hall 9x12, living-room 20x20, dining-room 14x14, kitchen 9x16. Three large bedrooms and one small one. Furnace, cemented basement, automatic gas water heater, wash trays in rear screened porch. Beautiful open grate and large mantel in living-room. There are three porches, good garage with cement floor. The house cost to build 2½ years since $9000, the lot is worth $2250; total, $11,250. Yet you can buy it for $10,500. By the way, there are two vacant lots in the block. Try to buy one of them and see what they ask you.

FRONTING THE PARK, $10,500, ONLY.
LOT 50x130.

BARGAIN, $3000 UNDER VALUE.
PRICE $16,500, CLEAR.

There is not another house in the city, equaling this, that could be had for less than $19,000 to $20,000. Beautiful east front 11-room house, near Vermont and Wilshire blvd. Aristocratic and delightful section. There are 6 bedrooms, sun parlor and finished attic. First floor consists of large living-room, den, dining-room, elegant reception hall and maids' room. The entire downstairs finished in quartered oak, beautifully selected, with piano finish. Unusually spacious cemented front porch. Laundry is separate from the kitchen porch. Floors throughout are ⅝ oak. Woodwork second floor 6 coats ivory finish. The very best plumbing and fixtures. The general plan is graceful, spacious and convenient. You will not find a more beautiful staircase, reception and upper hall, as well as the general effect of the entire house. Combination gas and electric fixtures, cemented basement, ready for furnace. Large garage that will hold two machines. This house was built by day labor and finished in February, this year. It is at least $3000 under value, and is snap for some one. Will that be you?

LOT 60x150 TO ALLEY.

WILSHIRE BOULEVARD FRONTAGE.

CLOSE IN, OPPOSITE A BEAUTIFUL PARK.

Unobstructed view of mountains glorious. Eleven rooms; 6 bedrooms, billiard-room, 3 bathrooms, two beautifully tiled. First floor consists of reception hall; to the left a most beautiful living-room with open grate. From this room you pass into a charming den. To the right of reception hall is the spacious dining-room, with its elaborate buffet, thence into the pass pantry and kitchen, which contains every convenience to delight the cook's heart. There are three verandas and the screened porch. Very large basement, cemented, furnace, Ruud automatic gas water heater, wash trays. The first floor is beautifully paneled and beamed. Woodwork hand rubbed to piano finish. Wilshire boulevard and park frontage is a good thing to have, do you know that? It is worth money now, and will be worth more. This home has every convenience, and would undoubtedly please you. You could not build a house that would please you in every way when finished, so why don't you buy one already built that will please you just as well, saving the annoyance and risk of doing it yourself.

PRICE $18,500.
LOT 65x147.

READ ABOUT THIS BARGAIN!
SWELL WEST ADAMS SECTION.

Where there are flowers, trees and shrubbery. We have for sale a 12-room house and large barn for autos, horses and drivers, fronting east, that is new and delightfully arranged, and the street is more than a hundred feet wide. Every wall on the first floor is finished in handsome and artistic tapestries. The first floor consists of a broad reception hall with grand staircase. Very large, beautiful living-room, a delightful den, exquisite reception-room, rich silk tapestries and hangings; dining-room, breakfast-room, pass pantry, kitchen, screen porch, lavatory between den and living-room. Billiard-room, trunkroom and servant's room, third floor. Five bedrooms and 2 baths, second floor. Basement with furnace and laundry. The price includes all the hangings and draperies, which are very expensive, and the house and barn could not without a single doubt be duplicated for less than $20,000, the hangings and draperies surely cost as much as $3000, and the lot would be cheap at $6000, which is only $80 per front foot, as it is very deep. This makes a total value of $29,000, and yet the price is away below that, because the owner is very anxious to sell. See this place without delay. Bargains of this kind don't last. Call us up and make appointment at least a day ahead. Absolutely no lower price will be made.

LOT 75x200.
PRICE $22,000.

WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS SECTION.

Elegant home of 11 rooms; 5 bedrooms, 2 baths, garage with man's room, Rudd heater, furnace, fine basement, wash trays, several toilets and lavatories. First floor consists of living-room, reception hall, den, conservatory, dining-room, breakfast-room, kitchen, screen porch. Four bedrooms, second floor. Billiard-room and bedroom, third floor. Living-room, den, stairs, reception hall and upper hall completely finished in mahogany; dining-room finished in beautifully selected oak. The entire arrangement impresses you with its beauty, spaciousness and solid construction. The elevation affords a view in every direction. It is without a doubt a most attractive place, and more than that it is a bargain. Owner would sell furnished, but it is not obligatory.

OXFORD SQUARE.
THE FINEST OF THE LATE RESIDENCE SUBDIVISIONS IN BEAUTIFUL WILSHIRE.

Oxford square is a refined and aristocratic section in the most desirable portion of the Wilshire district.

Added to the natural advantages of location, neighborhood and enhancements of value, it possesses unusual features in the high character of its improvements.

It has been so recently platted that every late improvement has been made. All previous efforts have been surpassed in the ambition to place it at the front in preference and desirability.

The avenues are 70 feet wide and are graded and oil-tamped. The best quality of material has been used in the curbing, gutters and walks. The latter are wide and ornamented by wide parkings, set with large palms.

Handsome corner pillars, surrounded by decorative electroliers, grace the street intersections, imparting a distinction and exclusiveness entirely its own.

The electric railway facilities are excellent, providing rapid and frequent transportation to and from the business section.

Oxford Square contributes to every nice home comfort and convenience and permits of easy access to and from the business center by auto or electric car lines.

Considering its many remarkable advantages and the high character of the improvements and surroundings, the prices are very low and the terms very easy.

LARGE 171-FOOT LOTS, $1000 TO $1800.

IT IS UNEQUALED FROM A PURELY INVESTMENT STANDPOINT.

A POSITIVE SACRIFICE.

IT MUST BE SOLD.

I own a fine property within about a block of the Hamburger Bldg., with improvements now paying $4000 a year. This property is a good buy today at $75,000, and will bring $100,000 in less than 5 years, for it is just in the line of the city's best and most rapid growth; but I've got to have a certain amount of cash for a purpose and so must sacrifice; $56,000 buys it and only $30,000 is required. Don't reply unless you can qualify for I haven't any time to devote to curiosity-seekers. And if this interests you don't lose any time in answering. Address X, box 46, TIMES OFFICE. 25

ALFALFA LAND. WALNUT LAND.
BERRY LAND—VEGETABLE LAND.

No doubt you have been all over the State investigating all the high sounding land, propositions on the market, but you have, in nine cases out of ten been disappointed in soil, water, market or climatic conditions.

Right here in good old Los Angeles county, under the cooling influences of the old Pacific, and within a few miles of Los Angeles we have 3000 ACRES of the choicest land that the sun shines on. An abundant supply of the purest water for irrigation and domestic purposes. If you want to see fine fields of alfalfa or thrifty looking walnut orchards, let us show you around this district, you will be convinced. Alfalfa sells in the field at $10 per ton. If you are from "Missouri" let us "show" you some potatoes grown on this land. "Only 16 miles N.E. Los Angeles, in the San Gabriel Valley."

5, 10, 20-ACRE OR LARGER LOTS.
$200 TO $350 PER ACRE.
ONE-FOURTH CASH—BALANCE 3 YEARS, 7 PER CENT.

BEARING ORCHARDS.

$6250—8-acre walnut orchard near El Monte; trees in prime condition; choice soil; abundance of water; only 5 minutes to car line; will take $5000 and reserve crop; one-half cash. Biggest snap in the district.

ALFALFA AND WALNUT RANCH.

40 acres set to walnuts, 3 years old; all in fine condition, perfect stand of alfalfa between trees, 45 H.P. pumping plant, pumps, 175 in. of water, very choice soil. Location 3 miles S.W. Covina, 1 1-4 miles from electric car line. Price $450 per acre, easy terms.

5-acre lots, choice alfalfa or walnut land, with water, $1500; ¼ cash, balance 3 years, 7 per cent.

10-acre lots—$3000, ¼ cash; suitable for any purpose.

$8500—20 acres, 2½ miles S.W. Covina, all in walnuts, interset with alfalfa; choice soil; A1 water right; modern 1½-story, 6-room house, good barn, windmill and tank; convenient to electric car line; small amount of cash, balance to suit. This is the best bargain in Los Angeles county.

$275 per acre, with water—3 acres, 3 miles southwest Covina, 1 mile from car line; ¼ cash. Here's a snap. Choice walnut or alfalfa land.

$4900—20 acres ½ mile east Hansen Station, Santa Ana line; choice alfalfa or walnut land; plenty of water; 2 good wells; $1000 down, balance to suit.

36 acres in walnuts, 3 years; fine large trees; 28 acres in alfalfa; modern 7-room house, barn, 150 inches water; 1 mile car line, 3 miles El Monte; 15 miles from city, in San Gabriel Valley; a great buy at $417 per acre; one-third cash; this is one of the best buys in Los Angeles county.

20 acres, 3 miles S.W. Covina, 1 mile from car line, all in walnuts, 3 years out; corn between trees; A1 water right; choice soil. Price $8000; $1500, balance 4 years, 7 per cent.

$20,000—40 acres, 3 miles S.W. Covina, all in walnuts, 4 years old, alfalfa between trees, all in perfect condition, modern 6-room house, large barn, water system that pumps 150 inches of water. Income from alfalfa about $500 per month during season. Here is a money-maker and something with a future. One-third cash, balance to suit.

List your orange groves, walnut and alfalfa ranches with us.

TURN YOUR WORK INTO PLAY AND MAKE MORE MONEY.

5 ACRES COSTS ONLY $1250.
$5 CASH AND $5 PER ACRE PER MONTH.

You can make more money on 5 acres at Monte Vista than on 40 acres at many other places. It all depends on the productivity and usefulness of the soil and the abundance of the water. At Monte Vista the soil is among the best in the State for oranges, and the water is developed and piped. The water stock goes free with the land. Every modern facility is at hand. The railroads and the packing houses are right there on the tract. There is no lost time; nor no lost effort. Every improvement made by your neighbors reacts on the rising value of your own property.

JUST TO PROVE THIS STATEMENT.

You will find upon investigation that improved orange groves surrounding the Monte Vista are being sold at prices ranging from $1500 to $2000 an acre. Monte Vista has the same future. All it needs is your effort planting it, and there is no farm industry wherein so little effort counts for so much as in orange growing.

GO AND SEE MONTE VISTA AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Monte Vista lands are good for all farm products. They are fine for fruits of all kinds besides oranges and lemons. Grain, alfalfa, berries, melons and all garden vegetables yield big profits. Crimson rhubarb is returning $500 to $750 net per acre a year in that district. The property is only 60 minutes east of Los Angeles, ten minutes west of Pomona and half a mile east of the postoffice at Ontario.

CORCORAN GREATEST SNAPS IN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY LANDS.

We are absolutely the largest land dealers in the Corcoran district and can offer you land in tracts of from five to 640 acres at prices and on terms that cannot be duplicated by others. Our long experience in the land business and particularly in the Corcoran districts enables up to know the good land and secure the best bargains, which we offer to our customers at a very small margin; for instance, we have secured a 480-acre tract one mile from the sugar factory, all under cultivation, with ample water supply, so that we can sell for a short time in 40-acre tracts, at $55 per acre, with free water, with small payment down and balance in 5 years, 6 per cent. We also control larger tracts that are a little farther out that we can sell at from $30 to $40 per acre in quarters, halves and sections, for one-third cash, balance on or before 10 years, 6 per cent. This land is exceptionally good vineyard and orchard and alfalfa land. We have a large list of small ranches in and around Corcoran, improved and unimproved that we can sell on good terms or exchange for Southern California property at prices that are right. We have the land if you have the collateral and will take a trip with us to Corcoran we will guarantee that we can convince you that you cannot afford to let the opportunity of your life go by and not get in on some of these bargains. We will show you you will be perfectly free at Corcoran and in fact, we want you to investigate any and all other propositions. We are heavy investors in and around Corcoran and we realize that the greater the number of people that come to Corcoran and utilize God's three greatest gifts to mankind—good land, good water and sunshine, the greater will be the increase of our holdings and therefore we invite you to compare our proposition with all others and if you find any other that is better take it, with our blessing.

FOR SALE—$380 AN ACRE WITH WATER, at "MONROVIA ACRES." 2 acres planted less than 8 months ago give promise of netting their owners $1000 yearly per acre. Let us show you. Only a few foothill localities that will grow this crop. New York City alone will take the entire product of 2000 acres and there are but 125 acres in existence, planted. This land is in the heart of the orange belt; sandy loam soil, fine for Valencias, fruits, vegetables and alfalfa. Some cheaper land, good poultry. Near schools, churches, business. 50 minutes from Los Angeles on Pacific Electric and two steam lines. Fine neighborhood. JOSEPH R. LOFTUS CO., 128 W. 6th st. Main 5518 or F5518. H. A. SMITH, Country Dept. 25

FOR SALE—

We offer fine level land in 10-acre tracts and upward that will grow anything, adjoining the town of Tipton, in Tulare county, at $60 per acre; with each acre of land sold we furnish one share of water stock, entitling the purchaser to one inch of water to each five acres.

Tipton is located upon the main line of the Southern Pacific, has a fine depot, brick hotel, store, creamery, school and church, and is a town that is growing, and is going to grow more; terms one-third cash, balance in one and two years with interest at 7 per cent.

FOR SALE—THE BEST BARGAINS IN ORANGE GROVES THAT PAY. I HANDLE NOTHING BUT ORANGE GROVES.

5 ACRES, COVINA, CAL.
Solid to full-bearing navels, with a good crop now on trees; no improvements, but a pretty building site.
PRICE $6000—TERMS.

7 ACRES, COVINA, CAL.
All bearing navels and Valencias, except about 80 young Valencias. Right on electric line. Small California house and barn; this ranch is worth $10,000.
PRICE $9000; ½ CASH.

10 ACRES, COVINA, CAL.
All navels, 14 years old, and in excellent condition; on electric line, and near schools; business center, etc. A $3000 crop now on trees; small 5-room California house on place; this ranch can't be duplicated for less than $20,000.
PRICE $15,000; TERMS.

20 ACRES, COVINA, CAL.
10 acres of full-bearing navels, in excellent condition and location; 10 acres vacant land, suitable for oranges or lemons; near electric line; full water right.
PRICE $19,000. TERMS.

139 ACRES IN THE FOOTHILLS.
LA VERNE HEIGHTS.
9 acres in bearing oranges, mostly Valencias, 270 deciduous trees; 20 acres table grapes, 26 varieties; 8 acres of beautiful parks and drives; over 300 date, fan and Japanese palms, 50 varieties of eucalyptus. Several varieties of acacia trees; 20 red and white banana trees. Canyons filled with live oak, pine and sycamore trees.
Over $10,000 expended in developing water. Large reservoir and canyon water piped all over place.
Over 1½ miles of terrace planted to loquats, oranges, palms, pines, grapes and roses.
Beautifully terraced building site above parks and orchard, with winding drives.
The actual cost of improving this place was about $18,000. For a beautiful country home it can't be equaled. Absolutely frostless.
PRICE $20,000—½ CASH.

20 ACRES, COVINA, CAL.
The best full-bearing 20-acre ranch, all navels, in this valley for the price; crop has been estimated at over 6000 boxes. The location and water rights are the best; no improvement but solid to full-bearing trees.
PRICE $25,000—TERMS.

20 ACRES, RIVERSIDE, CAL.
The cream of all groves along Victoria Drive, 2058 full bearing trees with a crop that should bring $7500. The heaviest crop in this section. Valencias and navels.
The prettiest view in valley. Small California house and barn.
PRICE $30,000—TERMS.

61½ ACRES, POMONA, CAL.
Valencias, navels and alfalfa. Ranch will show 10 per cent. net on price asked and will increase as trees grow older. Fine improvements; right on boulevard to Los Angeles. Cement walks around house; flowers, etc. The best water in this section. Team, implements, cow, etc., go with ranch.
PRICE $500 PER ACRE.

50 ACRES, ANAHEIM, CAL.
The finest walnut and orange ranch in this section. Good improvements, teams, etc.
PRICE $60,000.

The crop goes with all the above places, but prices will change after Nov. 15, '08. These ranches are the best and below their market value; a day spent with me in the country will prove to you I understand my business and that I handle nothing but the best.

See what the other agent has and then look at my property. My best references are those that have bought ranches from me. One had better pay a few hundred dollars more and get the best. It takes a lot of money to bring up a ranch that is in poor condition.

FOR SALE—
TURN YOUR WORK INTO PLAY AND MAKE MORE MONEY.
5 ACRES COSTS ONLY $1250.
$5 CASH AND $5 PER ACRE PER MONTH.

You can make more money on 5 acres at Monte Vista than on 40 acres at many other places. It all depends on the productivity and usefulness of the soil and the abundance of the water. At Monte Vista the soil is among the best in the State for oranges, and the water is developed and piped. The water stock goes free with the land. Every modern facility is at hand. The railroads and the packing-houses are right there on the tract. There is no lost time; nor no lost effort. Every improvement made by your neighbors reacts on the rising value of your own property.

JUST TO PROVE THIS STATEMENT.

You will find upon investigation that improved orange groves surrounding Monte Vista are being sold at prices ranging from $1500 to $3000 an acre. Monte Vista has the same future. All it needs is your effort; planting it, and there is no farm industry wherein so little effort counts for so much as in orange-growing.

GO AND SEE MONTE VISTA AND JUDGE FOR YOURSELF.

Monte Vista lands are good for all farm products. They are fine for fruits of all kinds, besides oranges and lemons. Grain, alfalfa, berries, melons, and all garden vegetables yield big profits. Crimson rhubarb is returning $500 to $750 net per acre a year in that district. The property is only 40 minutes east of Los Angeles, 10 minutes west of Pomona, and half a mile east of the postoffice at Ontario.

FOR EXCHANGE—
40 ACRES.
IMPROVED ALFALFA RANCH.
NEAR CHINO.
$12,000.

This ranch consisting of 40 acres, of which 37 acres is planted to a fine stand of alfalfa, located 5 miles S.E. of Chino in the famous Pomona Valley, where alfalfa land is selling as high as $500 per acre.

IMPROVEMENTS consist of a 5-room plastered cottage with porch, large barn with room for about 100 tons of hay, wagon shed and stalls for horses. Around the house is a fine small orchard, with vines about the house, and chicken house, good well and windmill at house. First-class pumping plant furnishes ample supply of water for irrigation. This water is distributed over the ranch in cement pipe lines, making irrigation very convenient.

Adjoining property is held at $400 per acre. This land will easily produce 600 tons per year worth $10 per ton on ranch, and is worth in SPOT CASH the price asked for it.

Will exchange for good Eastern, Los Angeles or and orange grove. Will assume.

PRICE $12,000.
Mortgage $3000, due 5 years at 6 per cent.

FOR SALE—FARM LANDS.
VALLEY VIEW COLONY LANDS
$2.50 TO $12.50 PER ACRE.

To get good farming land in Southern California at bottom prices join our new colony, only 80 miles (3 hours' ride) from Los Angeles, where good rich soil, abundance of pure mountain water and fine climate go together. This is the coming dairy section of Los Angeles county. Six crops of alfalfa every season. Sugar beets, onions, corn, fruits, berries and wheat all thrive in this soil. The prices of land here are going to rapidly advance. We offer for quick sale three bargains—320 acres, $12.50 per acre; 160 acres, $10 per acre; 160 acres, little farther out, $2.50 per acre. These lands are near good school, store, postoffice; good roads; free wood; eight miles from railroad; three trains a day. Cme in and let us show you how to get a home cheap. Our motto is quick sales, small profits and a square deal to everybody.

MONEY WANTED—
On Collaterals.

WANTED—I OWN A LARGE, BEAUTIFUL, high, sightly and commanding site for a national hospital, hotel and health resort. This site comprises about two acres, joining a beautiful city park of 1200 acres, walks, drives, flowers, shrubbery, etc., in Los Angeles city, within eight minutes' ride by electric cars from the business center of Los Angeles.
My property is the only private property joining this park and connecting with it.
I want to build a national hospital, hotel and health resort on this property, equipped with modern, up-to-date, surgical operating-room and hotel accommodations for invalids and the latest discoveries in curing diseases, comprising electric and solar baths, harmonic, magnetic vibrations and the great salt water sub-cutaneous injection treatment now in successful use in France by Dr. Quinton, and in England under the patronage of the Duchess of Sutherland.
The leading physicians and surgeons of the United States can be interested in the enterprise. The banks, leading brokers, railroads, civic and military orders will negotiate the bonds of this enterprise, which will pay from 20 to 30 per cent. profit on the investment.
In Europe there are many national hospital hotels and are none on the Pacific Coast, and Los Angeles is the Mecca to which the invalids of the United States are looking.
I want to borrow $10,000 to promote this great humanitarian enterprise, and will give a first mortgage or trust deed on my property as security and pay 10 per cent. interest and give a bonus of ¼ interest in the enterprise, worth a fortune.
I will furnish bank reference of my ability to promote this enterprise successfully and my property considered solely as city lot is good security for the money.
If you want to promote or finance this proposition to the benefit of yourself and mankind, address
"OWNER,"

FOR SALE—
COEUR D'ALENE MINING AND DEVELOPMENT CO.
A. J. RICHARDSON,
504 WRIGHT & CALLENDER BLDG.

OUR STOCKS MAKE YOU MONEY.

Clients originally purchased from us Hecla at $1, which is now selling at $4, and paying $40,000 per month dividends; Bunker Hill and Sullivan at $5, now selling at $53, and paying $90,000 monthly dividends, and Snowstorm at 25c, which sold as high as $4, paid 45c a share in dividends, and is now paying 3c a share.

We are now promoting three properties which have even a better showing with the present amount of development than the above-mentioned properties at the same stage, namely, the Snowstorm Extension, adjoining the Snowstorm, and Idaho Lead Silver, adjoining Bear Top, of Coeur d'Alene District, Idaho. Work is being pushed on these three properties, and we feel confident that we shall have them all developed into shipping mines in the next 12 months, and the stock which is now being purchased at 25c will be worth dollars.

Received a letter from contractor on Snowstorm Extension, and he says he believes when he has driven the tunnel 70 feet we shall have a body of shipping ore.

We have four feet of shipping ore in the Idaho Lead Silver, and by the time the Idaho Northern R.R. is complete, which it is expected will be Dec. 20, we shall be ready to ship.

Two of the directors of Whipple Mountain are at the property now, making arrangements to install a pump and further development work in continuing our present shaft from 179 feet to 250-foot level, where we expect copper sulphides. Just received word from the American Eagle property they have large bodies of sulphide ore, and we expect the same results when we get below water level.

The following is a letter of indorsement from clients who have made money through stocks purchased from us:

To Whom It May Concern—This is to certify that I have purchased Snowstorm stock from A. J. Richardson at 25c per share and since could have sold the same at $4 per share, besides having received 45c per share in dividends. Mr. Richardson is a mining promoter, who handles only properties in which he is a heavy stockholder, and sells enough treasury stock to develop them. He has a reputation of having successfully promoted several properties which are now producers. I know him personally, and can recommend him as an honest, square dealing man of integrity, and can safely say that any proposition he promotes has unquestionable merit.

Since the foregoing was handed The Times, I have received the following:

FOUR FEET OF ORE EXPOSED IN MURRAY PROPERTY.

CONTRACT LET TO GET DEPTH ON VEIN
UNDER THIS FINE SHOWING.

Ed Eisman, a well-known mining man of this district, was Saturday awarded a contract for 300 feet of tunnel work on the property of the Idaho Lead-Silver Mining Company near Murray. Mr. Eisman will put on two shifts, a total force of five men, and rush the work through as rapidly as possible. Work will begin about the middle of the week.

The work will consist in the driving of a lower tunnel to tap the ore disclosed in the upper workings at a further depth of 400 feet. According to Mr. Eisman, who is a mining engineer, the vein will be struck within the first twenty or twenty-five feet and will then be drifted upon.

In the upper workings, four feet of galena ore was opened up, but the depth there is superficial and the purpose now is to get under it. The holdings of the company adjoin the Bear Top on the north. Two parallel leads traverse the claims.

There is no more Whipple Mountain treasury stock for sale at any price.

TURKISH RUGS Interest Society Women.

Large Gathering at the Auction Sale of Michaelian's Collection at 252 South Broadway.

MUST GO AT ANY PRICE.

Owner Going to Constantinople and Must Dispose of Rugs Regardless of Price Obtained. Chance of a Lifetime for Lovers of Oriental Rugs and Carpets.

The great sale of Oriental rugs and carpets at 252 South Broadway, will continue all this week. There will be sales both morning and afternoon—10:30 a. m. and 2 p. m.

This unusual sale is attracting extraordinary notice on account of the size and character of the rugs and carpets. It is very rare that a collection of such rugs reaches America. Most of the large size, which are very scarce at the best, are snapped up in Europe. This collection, personally made by Mr. Michaelian, embraces rugs and carpets as large as 19x15 feet.

The interest aroused by this sale last week surpassed that ever manifested in any similar sale in this city. All day long, club and society women, business and professional men thronged the rooms to view the handsome collection. The auction sales, which were held daily, were also well patronized, though the prices obtained were lower than the average. A Princess Bokhara realized only $17.50. Value was $50. Many other pieces also knocked down at little prices.

Commencing tomorow, Monday, at 10:30 a. m., Thomas H. Kullujian, the famous rug expert and native lecturer, will exhibit to the visitors prior to the auction sale, the wonderful hemp rug, made by the Shah's daughter over 400 years ago. He will read the symbols woven into this remarkable rug and explain its romantic history. He will also give one of his interesting talks on the history, character and quality of Oriental rugs. All who attend are promised a rare treat in Mr. Kullujian's interesting talks.

This opportunity to secure fine rugs should not be neglected by people of taste. These floor coverings are the finest produced in the world. The necessity is urgent and all must be sold, no matter how small the amount realized. It is a chance to get the cream of Oriental art and skill at your own price. You must not neglect it. Society ladies, members of prominent clubs and professional men and women whose time is limited will be acorded every facility to transact their business promptly. Any rug or carpet desired will be put up at once, and knocked down promptly to the highest bidder. Remember, two auctions daily, 10:30 a. m. and 2 p. m., commencing tomorow. Store 252 South Broadway, between City Hall and Third street, on the City Hall side.

BEHIND CLOSED DOORS.

ITS PRESIDENT IS CENSURED.

Medical Examiners' Board in Secret Session.

To Review Papers of Those Who Failed in Exams.

Bundle of Charges Against Doctors Considered.

By the decision of the State Board of Medical Examiners, yesterday, Dr. J. Park Dougall, its president, was censured for acts of familiarity with applicants, and for lecturing at "quizzes," and a review of the papers of sixty-seven applicants who failed at the August examination is ordered. The meeting was held in a classroom at the State Normal School, and the eleven members of the board were present.

The meeting was secret, and at its conclusion Secretary Tisdale and the out-of-town members fled precipitately, as they announced, to "catch a boat." The secretary carried a large bundle under his arm. It contained all the affidavits concerning the examination of last August, the charges against President Dougall, and all other documents except the stenographic notes of the shorthand reporter who took down oral evidence.

Secretary Tisdale explained that the matter of giving out news of the meeting had been placed in charge of Dr. L. D. Tasker, a Los Angeles member of the board.

The meeting began in the morning, and did not adjourn until 7 o'clock in the evening. It was called especially to hear the charges against Dr. Saxton T. Pope of Watsonville, Dr. J. Park Dougall of Los Angeles, Dr. George F. Rhinehardt of Berkeley and Secretary Tisdale of Alameda.

In support of the charges, affidavits were submitted by Drs. J. R. Renacker, W. R. Tyler, A. H. Jackson and C. D. Hubbard of Los Angeles and Dr. C. H. Knox of Colton. All were applicants who claimed to have been "flunked" at the examination, except Dr. Hubbard, who passed. The affidavits were secured by Guy Barham, whose brother, Frank, was among the disappointed ones.

After these were read, the doctors named (doctors still, though without licenses) were orally examined, and obligated to secrecy by the board.

CHARGES IN BRIEF.

The charges, in brief, were that Dr. Pope, while in charge of the examination in pathology at Cooper Medical Institute, San Francisco, in August, permitted students of that institution to have access to the laboratory and to examine specimens about which they were being examined, and that examination questions given to Dr. Pope by Dr. Rhinehardt had reached Cooper applicants before the proper time.

There was a general charge that there was collusion between Secretary Tisdale of the board and the watchers named for the examination, by which Cooper students were made watchers and gave their comrades help.

The charges against Dr. Dougall, president of the board, were that he had lectured at "quizzes" conducted by his office partner, Dr. D. D. Nyce, and by Dr. H. V. Brown, and that he had done things that led applicants who took the "quizzes" to believe they would have advantages through him.

The charge that the markings were made for the purpose of "flunking" applicants from the Southern California schools was not specific, but was embodied in the affidavits. Just what the latter contained is not known, as there was no opportunity given to examine them, and Dr. Tasker, who gave out the results of the meeting, was not familiar with them.

Witnesses examined in defense on the various charges were Drs. Dougall, Nyce, Brown and A. H. Winter, for Dr. Dougall, and Dr. Tisdale for himself.

Toward the close of the session Dr. Dougall was out of the room about an hour while his colleagues debated his case. What form the discussion took is not known, but just before adjournment he was called in and the resolution adopted during his absence was read to him. He responded with a statement that his zeal in the interest of applicants had perhaps led him into acts that were misunderstood and that he had intended only to help in an honorable manner. He did not say he would resign and the board did not ask him to.

The resolution concerning him is as follows: "The charges against Dr. Dougall, as set forth in the affidavits and testimony of witnesses, were met by affidavits and testimony of witnesses of equal credibility. Apparent discrepancies in the testimony of the two sides may be explained by misinterpretation of circumstances which actually occurred. Although we censure him for his acts of familiarity toward applicants for examination, and we further censure him for addressing the "quiz" class of Drs. Nyce and Brown,

"Resolved, that we hold him free of any criminal intent."

Dr. Tasker said the board found no cause of reproach as regards the "quizzes" themselves, but found fault only with the relation of Dr. Dougall to them.

REVIEW RESOLUTION.

The decision to review the papers of candidates who did not pass was reached before the action was taken on the president. The purpose of the board was expressed as follows:

"Resolved, that, owing to the apparent irregularities in the last examination, we hereby agree to review all the papers of that examination and make such corrections as in our opinion will establish a just marking, the review to be conducted by a committee named by the president."

This committee includes Drs. G. F. Rhinehardt of Berkeley, Ernest Sisson of Oakland and Lincoln C. Cothram of San José. As they must visit San Francisco and go through more than 700 examination papers, the time for a report was not fixed. The committee, Dr. Tasker said, would begin its work without delay.

That the charge of collusion between watchers and candidates was established by the testimony was admitted by Dr. Tasker, who said this was one of the reasons why the review of the papers was ordered. It was shown that Dr. Rhinehardt gave his examination papers to Dr. Pope, who gave them to the watchers. Either through confusion or collusion, applicants got these questions before the examination began. The board did not determine just how this happened but Dr. Pope and Dr. Rhinehardt were exonerated from all blame.

It was also shown that seniors of the Cooper school were used as watchers, but Dr. Tisdale explained this by saying that at the last minute it was found additional watchers were required, and the most accessible were chosen—that he did not know they were Cooper seniors until the examinations were well under way. Then he spoke to members of the board, who said they saw nothing reprehensible about it.

The president, to show that there had been no discrimination against the Southern California applicants, read a comparison of twenty-seven students from Cooper and the University of California and an equal number from the Southern California Medical School and the College of Physicians and Surgeons. This indicated that, in bacteriology and pathology, the subjects complained of, Southern California applicants were marked 4060 points and those of the northern schools 3997 points. This, he thought, disproved the allegation of "flunking" because of geographical differences.

While the board did not discuss needed revision in the medical examination law, Dr. Tasker and Dr. F. S. Barnard, both of this city, say the system of examination should be changed.

The law now requires all examinations to be practical and in writing. The result has been that "quizzes" have been conducted all over the State—were cramming processes.

Dr. Nyce, in his testimony, showed that, by following the course of previous examinations, he had anticipated 85 per cent. of the questions asked by the board's examiners.

Dr. Barnard admitted that many of these questions are technical and that the process of cramming lets many an applicant pass who is not as well qualified as some who may fail. He thinks the examination would be better if it were written, oral and demonstrative in the hospital.

It is likely the result of the review will not be known until the semi-annual examination is held in Los Angeles, early in December.

STILL POPPING.

JUD RUSH ON M'LACHLAN.

TAKES UP OPPONENT'S FUNNY PENSION LITERATURE.

Quotes from Ridiculous Letters Written by Present Congressman to Old Soldiers Seeking to Make Them Believe He Had Been of Service—His Negligent Habits.

In addresses which he made at Azusa and Covina last night, Jud Rush again took up Congressman's McLachlan's record, and having found another weak spot in it, he proceeded to exhibit the new discovery to the public.

The Democratic candidate for Congress found his opportunity to make votes for himself in this campaign when his opponent, Mr. McLachlan, speaking at Azusa a week ago, said that he did not think there was one weak spot in his record, but that if there was he would like to know what it is.

After putting in a solid week pointing out weak spots to Mr. McLachlan, Rush last night took up the matter of obtaining pensions. The record discloses the fact that McLachlan is fairly entitled to the championship of the House in the matter of introducing pension bills for old soldiers, and that after having introduced them he considers his duty done, and forgets all about them, with the result that he obtains fewer pensions or increases of pensions than almost any other member of the House of Representatives. His record was disclosed in figures obtained from the Congressional Record last night. Mr. Rush said:

"Mr. McLachlan introduced seventy-four pension and private relief bills into the two sessions of the Fifty-seventh Congress. They were referred to appropriate committees, and, so far as the record discloses, Mr. McLachlan never made one single inquiry about any one of them during that entire Congress. Two were reported by the committee, amended and passed, and seventy-two are still in committee. But Mr. McLachlan was faithfully representing the interests of the old soldiers, so he introduced 143 private pension and relief bills into the Fifty-eighth Congress. Of these 143 fifty-three were but duplicates of bills introduced into the Fifty-seventh Congress. Out of those 143 bills introduced and referred to their proper committees Mr. McLachlan, by two years' hard work, succeeded in inducing Congress to pass four of them. But, if the official record is correct, Mr. McLachlan never uttered one word in behalf of any one of his bills at any time during that Congress, and the four were amended and reported by the committees without reference to Mr. McLachlan's efforts.

"It is unnecessary to burden you with a detailed description of Mr. McLachlan's arduous efforts on behalf of the old soldiers in the succeeding sessions of Congress, but it is sufficient to say that at the beginning of the present Congress he introduced another batch of private pension and relief bills, five of which were bills he introduced in the first session of the Fifty-seventh Congress, eight years ago, and which have been introduced by him into every Congress since. I think, judging from the gradual decrease of the list of applicants proposed by Mr. McLachlan during the first session of the Fifty-seventh Congress for pension relief, that as the years have gone by they have gradually died while waiting for a grateful government to relieve their necessities.

"If these veterans were entitled to relief Mr. McLachlan was guilty of a great wrong when he failed to work to secure that relief, and to do all in his power to urge the passage of these bills. If they were not entitled to the relief sought, Mr. McLachlan ought not to have introduced the bills in the first place. I do not believe that any unprejudiced man can investigate this record without coming to the conclusion that Mr. McLachlan has been introducing great numbers of bills which he never expected to pass, and never tried to have passed, in order to pad his record. Not only that, but I have here a letter written by Mr. McLachlan, and mailed under Mr. McLachlan's frank, to a veteran of the Civil War who, without the aid, assistance or knowledge of Mr. McLachlan obtained a pension from the government while he yet resided in the East, and shortly after his arrival in this place he received this letter from Mr. McLachlan:

"'Dear Sir: I congratulate you on the receipt of your pension, granted under the general service pension law, passed at the last session of the Fifty-ninth Congress. If at any future time you think I can be of any further assistance to you, kindly let me know, and I will be glad to do what I can for you.

"'Very sincerely yours,
"'JAMES M'LACHLAN.'

"Inasmuch as the veteran who received this communication did not know that Mr. McLachlan had ever lived or reigned until after he received this communication, he is at a loss to know what assistance Mr. McLachlan rendered him. Not only that, but I have a communication received by another veteran whose application for a pension was filed, presented and granted without the knowledge or consent of Mr. McLachlan. More than a month after this veteran had officially been notified that his pension had been granted, and before he had ever heard of this great friend of the old soldiers, he received this communication:

"'My Dear Sir: I congratulate you upon the fact that you have recently been granted a pension under the privileges of the general service pension law, passed at the last session of Congress. This will reach you in due time, and will begin from the date of the filing of your application. I have urged the department to be as expeditious as possible in placing it at your disposal. If at any future time you think I can be of assistance to you, let me know, and I will be glad to do what I can for you.

"'Very respectfully,
"'JAMES M'LACHLAN.'

"Inasmuch as all the work that the department had to do was done before Mr. McLachlan ever heard of the matter, this veteran is at a loss to understand how Mr. McLachlan had 'urged the department to be as expeditious as possible' in placing it at his disposal.

"I have seen and know of several veterans who upon reaching the age of 70 years file the proper affidavit with the department, without the knowledge of or consent of Mr. McLachlan, and yet they have invariably received a communication from him within a month or so afterward, in substance the form of those I have read, each one assuring the veteran of his earnest desire to render him any further assistance within his power."

The meetings last night were both large and enthusiastic ones, and Mr. Rush's talk was well received, especially that portion of it in which he declared that McLachlan has done nothing for the fruit growers, and pointed out what can be done by an active man in Congress.

Mr. Rush will speak at Alhambra Monday evening.

FIREWORKS.

AUTO FLASHES INTO FOUNTAIN OF FLAME.

FRANK P. FAY, president of the Fay Fruit Company, and his wife narrowly escaped injury in a remarkable accident at Fifth street and Broadway about 8 o'clock last night, when their automobile blew up in a fountain of flame. Before the fire was extinguished by the fire department, the machine was almost consumed. The loss is estimated at $1000.

The accident occurred when James Crow of No. 2131 Cimarron street, who was driving an automobile with a party of friends, collided with the rear end of Fay's machine. The front spring of Crow's machine punctured the gasoline supply tank on Fay's car and the headlights which were smashed ignited the oil. With a terrific explosion the tank burst and scattered oil over the machine. The flames leaped to the canvas top and enveloped the tonneau in which Mr. and Mrs. Fay were seated. In an instant after the explosion Paul Hinkley, the chauffeur, stopped the machine and opened the side door, assisting the occupants in getting out without being injured.

Crow backed his machine out of the way as soon as possible. It was slightly damaged, the radiator and the lamps being smashed. Crow was accompanied by his brother, Fred, and two women, whose names they refused to divulge.

According to witnesses, Crow was driving rapidly north on Broadway and ran into the Fay machine when it slowed down at the crossing. The force of the impact carried Fay's machine over the crossing where the explosion occurred a moment later. An alarm was immediately turned in to the fire department. The foreman at the White garage on South Broadway also sent a machine equipped with fire-extinguishers to save the machine.

Mr. Fay's machine was a sixty-horse-power Pope-Toledo, which he purchased last year. The body of the car was practically destroyed, but the engines and running gears can be used again.

SUIT FOLLOWS LAND DISPUTE.

Rival McKittrick Concerns in Bitter Fight.

Claim Jumping Is Alleged in the Midway Field.

Residences Increasing Fast at Bakersfield.

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 23.—Following the bringing in of a well on section 12, in McKittrick, Wednesday, the members of the California-Pittsburgh Oil Company, which is engaged in a dispute with the McKittrick company over the possession of the land, were served with notice of a suit to quiet title, and also ordered to show cause why an injunction should not be issued preventing them from doing further development work.

The property is lots 1 and 2, and the north half of the northeast quarter of section 12-30-21, 138 acres in all. During the early summer Will Davis located the land for the California-Pittsburgh company, and, in July, began a well. The McKittrick company has claimed the land for years, and had a well started several weeks before the California-Pittsburgh people began operations.

The McKittrick people brought in the first well, and last Saturday it was put on the pump. Wednesday, the California-Pittsburgh concern struck oil.

The papers in the suit allege that if the California-Pittsburgh people are allowed to continue development of the property, they will damage it to the extent of $100,000; that they have met with great difficulty from water, and that if they are allowed to penetrate the oil sand belt farther, it will be ruined by the percolation of water from the stratas above.

ALLEGED LAND GRAB.

I. Strassburger of the firm of Strassburger & Wrampelmier of San Francisco, today stated that the efforts to grab land in the Midway have been inspired by a scrip broker in Oakland.

"This land grab is nothing more than scripping," he said. "Ten years ago we drove the scrippers from the Kern River field, and I am for driving them from Midway now."

Mr. Strassburger says that the jumpers are building barbed-wire fences and cabins in order to substantiate their claims, and that for the past week he has been engaged in destroying those erected on his property. Last Sunday one of his employés was arrested on the southwest quarter of section 30-31-23, in the Midway, for destroying a cabin erected by the McCutcheon Bros.

Mr. Strassburger says he has clear claims to the immense territory located by his firm, and that the time has not yet expired in which their work has to be done.

Elmer Condley will add another residence to the dozen, or more, that have been erected on West Nineteenth street during the past eight months. Walter Burke began work this morning on a residence in the Chester tract.

COOK KNOCKS HIM DOWN.

A. P. Eyraud, a pioneer liquor man, was assaulted this afternoon by John Borell, a French cook, as a result of a dispute over a game of cards. Eyraud accused the cook of cheating. Later, when he went out on the street, he was knocked down by the Frenchman. Borell was arrested.

Rev. O. F. Thayer, pastor of the Congregational Church in Kern for the past two years, was given a farewell reception by the members of his congregation last night. He will take up work in another part of the State.

THE MARKETS.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

When the market closed at noon yesterday, there was still an amount of produce which might have fared much better in retail places than it will by holding over until today. Grapes, peaches and pears were the fruits which were left over in large amounts. They are all more or less perishable and if they are not put back into coolers will spoil in one or two days. Prices were lowered in many instances to clear the supply on hand, but buying was not sufficiently brisk. Some of the perishable vegetables were also left over in large quantities, particularly lettuce.

Trading in eggs was light on the street, and on the Produce Exchange there were few offerings and no sales. Arrivals were only 11 cases. The past week has seen eggs advance more than 5 cents in nearly all varieties, due to the fact chiefly that locals continue scarce and that eastern arrivals have been decidedly less than anticipated. The average eastern shipments to Los Angeles for the past three weeks have been less than three cars according to general statements. With high prices now on dealers who have large storage holdings are getting rid of all their stock as rapidly as possible.

The butter market is unchanged. It has stood at 67½ for more than a month now and light receipts have so strengthened that price that another rise is in order. Yesterday the arrivals 25,100 pounds, were considerably above the average of the week. Offerings were light.

Cheese has been active and there is little chance for a decline with the regular demand and the fluctuating receipts, which have gone as low as 25 pounds in the past seven days. Yesterday 2240 pounds were reported in. Much of this was northern fresh.

Potato arrivals were 1430 sacks. A car of Highlands was sold at the choice rating. The margin between the buying and selling prices of jobbers is gradually growing smaller and reports from the north hold forth the probable better prices to take affect up there soon.

Onions are one of the most quiet commodities on the street. They have been arriving with the regularity of a clock and receipts are to be depended on at a certain average, about 100 sacks a day from the outside and that many locals. Yesterday 101 sacks were reported in.

Bean receipts are growing with the shipments beginning to come in from Ventura and other crop districts, to the north of Los Angeles. They totaled 914 sacks yesterday, the largest arrivals in weeks. Prices are fairly steady at their present location.

A slight decrease in sweet potato receipts is noticeable; which is serving well in firming up the heretofore weak quotations. Yesterday 231 sacks of the potatoes were brought in.

Instead of the apple receipts decreasing, they are going along about the same, touching occasionally the high water mark of the season and keeping prices at their present low figures. There is little outlook for higher quotations in these until the middle of November. Receipts were 5296 sacks. Persimmons are arriving in larger quantities and sell at 7 and 8 cents per pound for fancy stock. Pomegranates are moving slowly.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

PRICES HOLD ON ACTIVE ISSUES.

FRACTIONAL ADVANCES SCORED IN SOME INSTANCES.

Associated an Exception, Sells Off and Closes Weaker—Insiders Unloading—Trading Good—Thousand Shares of Olinda Land Are Handled—Two Bonds Sold.

There was good trading during the morning session on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday. In the majority of cases the active issues maintained their prices well, and there were fractional advances in one or two cases; Associated Oil, however, sold off and closed weaker.

Deliveries of thirty day seller contracts, entered into when the terms of subscription to the new stock issue of Associated were made known, were a feature of the hour prior to the call, and this affected the market very materially. All deliveries were of new stock, showing that the insiders, who subscribed to large amounts, have begun to unload. The reason for the continued bullish position of a number of traders now appears plain. The question outsiders are asking is: "Will the price hold, or is it going back to previous levels?"

The close yesterday was at 34.62½@35.00; off 1-4 and 1-8 point, respectively. Trading amounted to 10 shares at 34.75, regular delivery; 10 at 34.25, seller thirty days, and 10 at 35.00 buyer thirty days. Twenty shares were sold off the board at 34.75.

There was a slightly increased demand for Elk Consolidated Oil, and 5000 shares changed hands during the call. The price was 6 1-4@6 1-2. The close was 6 1-4@7 1-2, up 1-4 point in the bid.

Olinda Land was another trader, 1000 shares changing hands at 17 3-4, regular delivery. The close was at 17 1-2@18, the asked price showing a 1-8 point advance, compared with Friday's level.

There was no trading in Union oil, or its affiliated companies, but closing quotations were strong, indicating a busy trade on the curb. Union closed at 84.00@84.75, up 1-4 point in the bid. Union Provident was quoted at 83.75@85.00, a rise of ½ point being apparent in the bid, while the asked price was 1-2 point lower than on the previous close. United Petroleum was 1-2 point lower in the bid at 84.75@86.00, remaining unchanged in the holding price.

Central Oil closed at 89 1-2@92 1-2, up 1-2 point, and off the same amount, respectively. Columbia was quoted at 94 3-4@96 1-2, unchanged. Amalgamated was also unchanged at 85.00@95.00.

Home Telephone sold up to 49.50 during the call, and the demand for the stock was remarkably strong. The close was at 49.00@49.50, up 1 and 1½ points, respectively. The rise was predicted several days ago, and indications point to further advances, as demand is keen for the issue on account of the November 1 dividend disbursement of 1 1-4 per cent.

Sales of 30 shares of Edison Electric common stock were reported off board at 60.00. The stock was quoted at 58.50 bid at the close. The rest of the industrial list was quiet.

Two $1000 Associated Oil bonds changed hands at 84 1-2, and the security closed in good demand, with a gain of 7-8 point in the bid at 84 3-8@87. Fractional advances were made in several other bond quotations.

Trading during the mining call was confined to California Hills at 4 1-2@4 3-4 regular, and at 4 3-4 buyer sixty days; Consolidated Mines at 2 7-8 buyer sixty, 20,000 shares changing hands, and Johnnie Consolidated at 1 3-8@1 1-4.

MINE MARKET STRONGER.

More Inclination to Trade, Despite Unfavorable Week-end Condition of Business.

There was a better tone to the market on the Los Angeles-Nevada Mining Exchange, yesterday, than has been apparent for some time. An inclination to trade and insistent bidding for several of the favorites were pleasing features of the day.

Consolidated sold up to 6.10, 200 shares changing hands. The close was at 6.10@6.17½, an advance of 5 points in the asked price, compared with Friday.

Combination Fraction was another trader which maintained its level, selling at 1.22@1.25, and closing at 1.25 bid, up 2 points. No other Goldfield leader was handled. Florence was quoted at 3.75 bid, off 5 points, while Daisy closed at 1.00@1.02½, up 1 and 1½ points, respectively.

Florence Extension sold at 13, to the extent of 300 shares, and Florence Wheeler changed hands at 4. Booth was a trader at 40, closing with that amount bid for it. Diamondfield sold at 15; Kewanas at 30¼; Red Hills at 25; Red Top Extension at 8; Triangle at 5, and Tonopah Extension at 60, and this price was regarded as a true indication of the market level. Some outside brokers are said to have sold to clients at 95 recently. Lower California Dredging sold at 20, 3000 shares changing hands, and California Hills at 4 3-4.

SAN FRANCISCO LIST.

CLOSE STEADY AT WEEK-END.

LEADING MINE STOCKS REMAIN IN GOOD DEMAND.

Goldfield Consolidated the Strong Feature, Selling Ten Points Higher Than on Friday—Daisy and Fraction Also Are Firm—Scalping Predicted Until After Election.

[Special service to The Times by B. F. Taylor, Citizens' National Bank Bldg. Member Los Angeles-Nevada Mining Exchange.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—While the market was quiet all day, it closed strong with all the Comstocks and Tonopahs in demand, and at the end of the session higher prices were predicted for next week. Goldfield Consolidated was the strong feature, selling up to 6.20, a gain of 10 points over last night's close. Daisy hung around 1.00 and closed at 1.00 bid, offered at 1.02½. Fraction moved up a peg and is 1.22½ bid. Sandstorm was bid for, but no stock came out. The lease known as the Kendall-Sandstorm is opening up some good ore, which may account for the strength of Sandstorm. Nevada Hills was one of the strongest stocks on the list and was bid up from 1.10 to 1.35 at the close, no stock coming out.

There was nothing doing in the Manhattans, and the Bullfrogs were practically neglected; the slump in Homestake yesterday being reflected in the balance of the Bullfrog list.

The trading all during the week was largely influenced by the absence of Eastern orders, due to poor wire service.

The feature of the week's trading was Goldfield Consolidated, which moved up from 5.70 to 6.20, a gain of 50 points. Florence held its own, as compared with last Monday's closing. Daisy gained 7 points; Great Bend gained 3; Fraction, 5; St. Ives, 6; Kewanas, 1. Belmont lost 2½ points.

Montana showed more weakness than any of the Tonopahs, which is explained in two ways: One is that there is friction among the big insiders—the other that the ore bodies are not holding up in the lower levels.

A scalper's market is fair to expect until after election. Following are the closing bid and ask prices and sales on formal call:

SHARES AND MONEY.

AUTO CUP RACE DULLS MARKET.

MANY BROKERS DESERT FLOOR OF STOCK EXCHANGE.

Their Withdrawal Leaves Very Little to the Market—Accounts Were Largely Closed Out the Day Before—Political Activity Responsible for Sluggishness of Trading.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Interest in the automobile race for the Vanderbilt cup was responsible for a large reduction in the usual number of brokers on the floor of the stock exchange today. The effect on the rate of activity which has prevailed lately was illustrative of the professional character of the market. Withdrawal of so large number of the professional traders left little to the market. Accounts were largely closed out yesterday afternoon, preliminary to the departure for the racing grounds. Some repressive influence is attributed to the furious activity in the political campaign which is looked for next week.

The price movement today was sluggish and hesitating in agreement with the slight interest in the market.

The railroad equipment stocks were firm in response to the reports of increasing disposition to place orders for equipment by the railroads. That group was favorably affected by the further decrease of 18,752 in the number of idle freight cars reported by the American Railway Association for the two weeks ending October 14, bringing the total down to 115,636. The report gains additional force from the fact that a large decrease has occurred also in the number of "bad order" cars by taking them from the repair shops and putting them back into service. The first stage of the reduction of surplus cars was accompanied by increases in "bad order" cars, showing that surplus cars were being drawn on simply to defer repairs on cars in use. The present condition places beyond dispute the substantial improvement which is occurring in the amount of railroad traffic.

Bonds were firm. Total sales par value $1,404,000. U. S. 2s registered declined 1-4 on call.

GENERAL EASTERN.

LIGHT TRADING IN WHEAT PIT.

MARKET EXCEEDINGLY NARROW AFFAIR.

Prices of All Deliveries Hold Within a Half-cent Range—Market Closes Steady, but Bearish Sentiment Prevails During the Greater Part of the Day.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The wheat market was a narrow affair, both in regard to the amount of business transacted and in the range of prices.

Throughout the entire day the price of all deliveries held within a half-cent range. Although the market closed steady, sentiment during the greater part of the session was bearish, owning chiefly to the weather condition which prevailed in the west and southwest. The weather bureau reported rain over the entire winter wheat belt and the predictions were for continued wet weather in many sections. News from Argentina also was more optimistic, several dispatches claiming that the damage to the new crop by frosts would be only slight. Prospects of a further liberal increase in the visible supply of wheat in the United States and Canada for the week furnished an additional motive to sellers. The principal bullish influence of the day was a continued excellent demand for flour at Minneapolis where heavy sales were reported yesterday. Cash wheat here was steady at unchanged premiums and no export business was reported. The sea-board also reported no sales for export.

The corn market closed firm with prices a shade to ⅛ to ¼ higher. May at 62¾.

Trade in oats was quiet and the market was steady. Cash oats were steady and eastern demand was said to be poor. The market closed steady with prices unchanged to ⅛ higher, compared with the previous close. Provisions were rather weak early in the session. After the first selling furore was over offerings dwindled to small proportions and a firmer tone developed. At the close prices were 5 to 15½ higher.

Cash quotations were as follows: Flour was steady; winter patents, 4.40@4.80; straights, 4.20@4.65; spring patents, 5.25@5.50; straights, 4.00@4.85; bakers, 3.00@4.00; No. 2 spring wheat, 1.02@1.03; No. 3, 95@1.01; No. 2 red, 99@99¼; No. 2 corn, 70@70½; No. 2 yellow, 78; No. 2 oats, 47⅛; No. 2 white, 49½; No. 3 white, 48@48½; No. 2 rye, 75; good feeding barley, 52½@53½; fair to choice malting, 55@60; No. 1 northwestern flaxseed, 1.26; prime timothy seed, 37½; short ribs, sides (loose,) 8.00@9.00; mess pork, per bbl., 13.62½@13.75; lard, per 100 lbs., 9.55@9.57½; short clear sides (boxed,) 9.50@9.75; whisky, basis of high wines, 1.37.

PLANNING MORE WORK.

Local Architects Busy With Many Jobs, and Much Activity Is Anticipated After Election.

Saturday's issue of the Southwest Contractor and Manufacturer, the new building newspaper, is replete with much interesting matter. The following items of construction news are from its columns:

Pemberton & Kent are preparing drawings for a sixteen-suite two-story and basement apartment house to be erected at Redondo by J. I. Lechner, mayor of that city. The exterior of the brick walls will be stuccoed. It will have a concrete foundation, pressed brick porch pillars, composition roofing, baths, lavatories, wall beds, shower baths and laundry in basement, electric wiring, sanitary plumbing.

Myron Hunt and Elmer Grey have completed the plans and specifications for a two-story and basement ten-room residence on South Marengo avenue, Pasadena for J. O. McCament.

C. E. Shattuck, plans extensive alterations and additions to the partially completed brick building at Fourth and Brand Boulevard, Glendale. L. C. Brand is the owner of the property. The walls of the building, which will cover 50x75 feet, are up. The Home Telephone Co. will occupy the lower floor with offices and the upper floor will be occupied by the Woods Hotel.

Kelly & Newberry have completed plans for a two-story eight-room residence to be built at Hollywood for Mr. McKeever. The lot being located on a hillside, a portion of the house will be three stories in height. A garage will also be built.

A. B. Benton, is preparing the working drawings for the Young Men's Christian Association building at Riverside and it is expected they will be ready for figuring in two weeks. The proposed structure will cost $50,000 to $60,000.

A. B. Benton also has about completed plans for the proposed Episcopal church building at Covina. Frame with stone base to the window course, shingled exterior and open timber work gables, stone tower and porch, interior trim in stained pine are specified. The building will be 50x100 feet, and have a seating capacity of 350.

F. M. Tyler, has plans for A. P. Fleming for a two-story, eight-room residence on Oxford near Sixteenth. The same architect has plans on the boards for a two-story, nine-room frame residence for R. B. Mills, on Oxford near Sixteenth. Mr. Tyler has plans for a five-room bungalow for T. Gombers in Manchester Heights. He also completed plans for Gladys Klienberger for a two-story, eight-room residence to be built on Twenty-first Street near Cimarron.

E. C. Kent has plans for a brick garage to be built for A. Dodson Lyster at No. 3950 South Flower street.

Bids for the construction of the Ontario High School building were opened and under consideration yesterday.

G. Corwin Keyes, plans a school building to be erected at Casitas and Atlanta streets, Pasadena. There will be two recitation rooms, two cloak and hat rooms, teachers' room, screened lunchroom and a hot-air furnace. The Board of Education of Pasadena will also erect a four-room temporary building on the high school grounds.

Ferdinand Davis plans a building to be used for a city stables and bids will be received for thirty days. It will cost $5,800.

Ferdinand Davis, also has completed plans for a two-story brick structure to be erected by Harold Dewey at Upland. The building will contain three stores on the ground floor, two-room office suites in front on the second floor with two-room apartments in the rear.

The El Reposa hotel it is reported will be remodeled and converted into a modern sanitarium. A company is being organized with a capital stock of $75,000 to operate it.

W. J. Wilton is remodeling the interior of the First National Bank's quarters, at a cost of $6000.

A. G. Munn of San Jacinto, is building a new office block to be occupied by the San Jacinto Register. The building is to be located on Central avenue in that town, and will be completed by Dec. 1.

It is stated a three-story and basement building, to be used for bath purposes, will be built on East Second street, Long Beach, at a cost of about $25,000. The project is backed by R. W. Reading and others.

It is reported that a mission style pavilion will be erected at Naples at a cost of $40,000.

The burned business district of Bisbee, Ariz., devasted by a fire last week with approximately $750,000 damage, will be rebuilt immediately. The burned residence sections will not be rebuilt until later.

W. E. Harrison will commence the construction of a two-story concrete building at Brewery Gulch, near Douglas, Ariz. It will be used for cold storage and bottling purposes. from $15,000 to $20,000 will be expended.

It is reported Dr. J. C. F. Cummins will erect a five-flat apartment building at the southeast corner of Gibbs street, and Holt avenue, Pomona.

The Southern Hotel at San Bernardino, has been purchased by the Oasis Company of Riverside, and announcement is made that $20,000 will be spent in improvements, remodeling store fronts, etc.

It is reported that W. Parker Lyon will have plans drawn for a sixty-room addition to the Hughes Hotel at Fresno.

Ferdinand Davis' plans for a three-story Masonic Temple at the corner of Thomas and Fourth streets, Pomona, have been accepted by the building committee and W. J. Wilton is now figuring the job. The ground floor will contain a banquet-hall, laides' parlors, billiard room, library and large entrance hall with fire-place and mantel; the second floor will be fitted up as the lodge room, finished in ivory white enamel and handsomely frescoed, and the third floor will contain the chapel, committee rooms and lockers. The building will be used exclusively by the Masonic order and will accommodate all its branches. It will cost approximately $20,000.

George H. Skidmore has plans and is taking figures on a one and a half-story, nine-room residence at No. 320 Cheramoya street, Hollywood, for Mrs. Palmer.

T. J. Davis is building a five-room bungalow on White Oak avenue, Monrovia. Mr. Davis is also building a one and a half-story, nine-room residence for himself on North Ivy avenue, Monrovia, at a cost of $5000.

The First Baptist church congregation has decided to proceed at once with the proposed $25,000 church building. The building committee appointed consists of J. M. Fryer, A. T. Currier, A. H. Whitman and others.

The American Disappearing Bed Company will erect immediately a 40x100 foot factory building at Johnson and Alhambra streets to provide for larger equipment. It is expected the new factory will be in operation by Jan. 1, when the company will make all its iron and woodwork.

The Richards-Neustadt Construction Co., will erect a storage warehouse at No. 660 Mill street.

The San Jacinto Lumber & Box Co., re-organized, has started operation of the sawmill in the San Jacinto mountains. No native lumber has been sawed during the past ten years until this fall.

The Morton Gas Engine Company will establish a factory at Fresno. It is said $10,000 will be expended.

The Atlantic, Gulf & Pacific Company, is drawing plans for the proposed 900 foot extension of the Windward pier, at Ocean Park, to carry the sewage outfall pipes 2000 feet out into the ocean. The extension will cost about $35,000, which it is proposed to raise by a bond issue.

LOTS IN DEMAND.

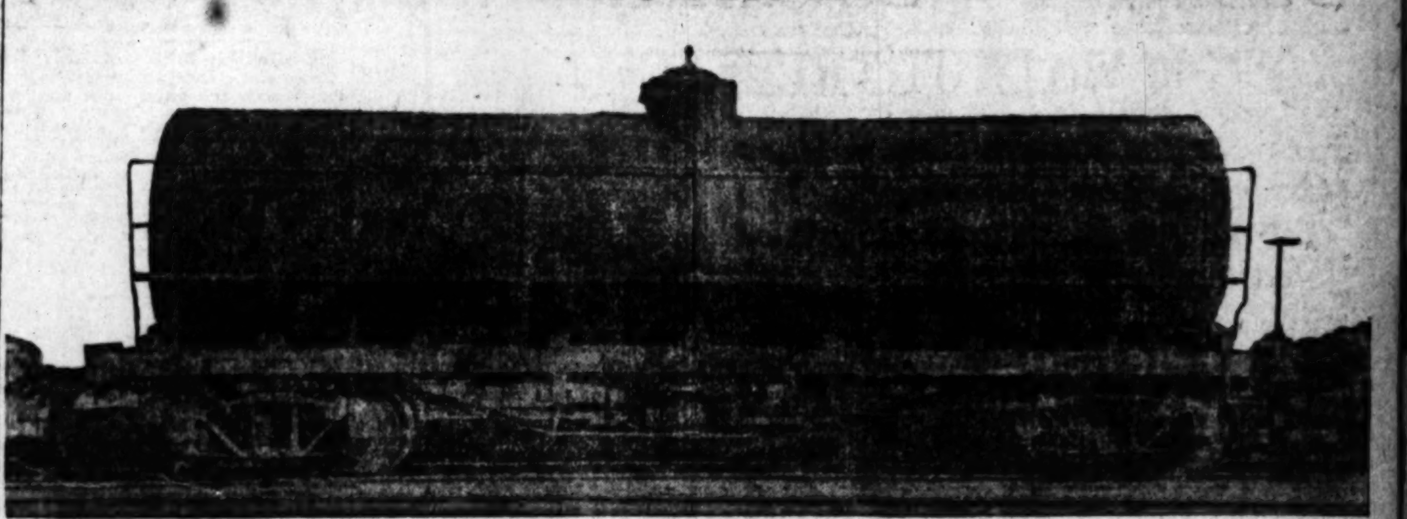
BACK FROM THE EAST.

L. T. Bradford, member of the real estate firm of Bryan & Bradford, is again in Los Angeles. He has been away on a five months' vacation trip, having visited in Maine and New York. While the East is a great place, Los Angeles and its matchless climate suit Mr. Bradford. He expects to see considerable activity immediately following the election.

Differential Axle An Entire Success



Car now being equipped on the Santa Fe Railroad at the San Bernardino shops. As soon as this car is equipped and in operation, there will be equipped a locomotive, passenger coach, 30 one-hundred-thousand-pound capacity coal cars and probably a passenger train at Chicago and run through to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. B. R. Seabrook, inventor of THE SEABROOK-BOX DIFFERENTIAL RAILWAY AXLE COUPLER, has just returned to the city from San Bernardino, where he is equipping the Santa Fe Railroad with his differential axle invention. He brought with him the small flat cars on which is being demonstrated the Differential Axle. They are being exhibited at 238 S. Spring. Mr. Seabrook is very glad to inform his friends that the Axle device is an entire success from a mechanical and manufacturing standpoint. The first two car equipments are nearly completed, and he says that the manufacturing of them is very simple and there is no difficulty at all in making them entirely commercial. The stock is selling now at $1.00 per share but will probably be advanced to $2.00 per share as soon as the first car rolls on the Santa Fe Railroad. The car will run regularly between Los Angeles and the Olinda oil fields.

"Shake Well Before Using"

Thus reads the label. Do you know what it means?

It's a pretty good sign that the medicine contains a deadly poison which settles at the bottom of the bottle. One dose would make business for the undertaker, hence the warning to mix it up.

Few people realize the danger in drugs until their health is gone or their nerves and vitals wrecked by poisonous mixtures.

Then you can understand how useless it is to try to fool nature with stimulants, narcotics and poisons.

The ostrich hides its head and thinks he is out of reach of the hunter's rifle. Some people do things just as absurd.

You cover up the symptoms of a disease and imagine you are cured. Just as soon as you stop using the drug the trouble returns worse than ever.

You have got to remove the cause before you can cure any ailment.

If you have a splinter in your finger, the only way to get rid of the pain and inflammation is to get the splinter out. Of course, you could take cocaine or morphine and relieve all pain for a while, but that wouldn't remove the cause.

The reason for nearly every chronic disease or ailment is a want of vitality and energy by some part of your body machinery.

What is this vitality? Nothing more than electricity. Then, the only way to restore it is to restore electricity to the body.

Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt is the best and most successful device for applying electricity. It is easily, comfortably worn while you sleep. All night long it will send a steady, unbroken current of electric life coursing through your nerves and veins, giving new strength, new vim to every part that is ailing.

During the four weeks' time which I have used your electric belt it has built me up wonderfully. I am well and strong, and the bowel trouble and lumbago are cured—something which years of doctoring failed to accomplish. O. F. KEZER.

KNOCK DOWN DOLLARS FROM WALNUT TREES.

Growers and Pickers Busy in Many Green Orchards Gathering Big Crop of Nuts for Feasts and Christmas Stockings.

AFTER citrus fruits, English walnuts make up the best crop from Southern California orchards—amounting to $2,000,000 this year. The difference is yet that of many millions, but the financial gap is slowly closing, for half the acreage in walnuts in the three best districts near Los Angeles for this nut are still planted to young trees, the greatest part of which is not even bearing a crop of any commercial size. When these thousands of young trees come into full bearing it will be a mighty industry.

This year the price for walnuts is not quite as high as during some other seasons, but at from 9 to 12½ cents a pound there is an excellent margin of profit when orchards are bearing from 1200 to 2000 pounds of nuts to the acre. Naturally the price is determined largely by the grade of the walnuts, which are divided into two classes, the soft shells and the hard shells. The latter are not particularly popular, and all the new acreage for a number of years has been planted to the soft-shell walnut.

So great has become the demand for these California nuts in all parts of the country that the supply is not nearly as great as the demand. Some day, say the walnut growers of the principal districts, the Southern California walnut will drive out all competitors from the Atlantic to the Gulf and the Great Lakes. They are already gone from the Pacific Coast.

What counts greatly to the benefit of the walnut grower is that he does not have to sell his crop at a certain fixed time to prevent its rotting on his trees, as is the case with fruits. If the price he is offered is not satisfactory, he can calmly store his crop in the barn and hold it till the cows come home—and the buyers come to terms.

PICNIC FOR PICKERS.

Just at the present is one of the busiest times in the walnut industry, for the crop is in process of being picked. This year there is no dearth of labor, as in some past seasons. Hundreds of families have gone to the walnut districts around Rivera, El Monte and Anaheim, Orange county, to help gather the crop.

In many ways it is a case of a picnic for pickers.

On the big walnut ranches little colonies of pickers camp out in tents. Sometimes there are three or four children in the family, and they can pick the nuts off of the ground just as well as the grown-ups, and as the pay is from 30 to 40 cents a sack for shelled walnuts, the children help greatly. Some families make as much as $8 and $10 a day.

In one of the photographs taken in a big orchard near El Monte, a family of five is shown as busy as bees gathering the walnuts from the tree as well as from the ground. This family has averaged $9 a day so far this season, and it is only half over.

But a great many of the pickers in the districts are Mexicans, men and women, who gather here for the harvest during the sixty days it lasts, from all parts of Southern California and even Mexico. These people make almost enough in these two months to support them in the Mexican villages during the rest of the year. There are few Japanese engaged as pickers, for Jap labor is high priced.

There are three big districts especially adapted for English walnuts near Los Angeles, of which Rivera is the oldest and largest and El Monte the nearest and growing. The other is in Orange county. But in spots all over the county can be found walnut orchards of greater or less extent, for in the great majority of the counties of the State this tree will grow and bear, although nowhere so well as in Southern California.

MILES OF ORCHARDS.

The Rivera walnut district is the oldest and largest in the United States. As one rides on the electric cars of the Whittier line he passes through miles and miles of orchards, from the newly-transplanted trees to the hoary and full grown, bearing 2000 pounds to the acre. Without counting the acreage devoted to young trees, there are between 6000 and 7000 acres of walnut orchards in the Rivera district, which is in the Los Nietos Valley.

Almost entirely the output of walnuts is controlled by the various mutual associations for growers. The oldest and largest of these organizations is the Los Nietos and Ranchito Walnut Growers' Association, with headquarters at Rivera, which is the ganized by the pioneer walnut growers of that part of the county, and the first to realize the value of the crop as a commercial venture.

There is a wonderful picturesqueness about the old walnut orchards at this time of the year. Most of the trees are great, wide-spreading arbors of bright green, with a subdued note of brown running through them. The nuts grow in clusters, and when fully ripe a slight knock will cause them to tumble to the ground.

Often streaks of a darker green, like bright ribbons, run between the trees of the younger orchards, and this is alfalfa, which grows well in such a place, while the irrigation of the alfalfa is just about the water which is good for a growing orchard.

But the orchards now are full of life. The pickers are busy, and where an orchard is getting its first or second picking (it generally gets three) the sounds of merry voices, the cries of the children and the loading of the wagons lend to the scene an interest dominant with life and the idealism of Southern California ranching.

PREPARING THE WALNUTS.

Every rancher is expected to not only see to the picking of his own walnuts, but to shell them, wash them (which is done by machinery) and dry them. When sufficiently dried they are gathered in sacks and carted to the packing-houses of the association to which he belongs. These mutual associations take in the ranchers on the basis of his acreage. If he owns ten acres of walnuts he has to have ten shares of stock. He cannot hold more, and he is not allowed to hold less. The stock goes with the land.

When he carts his crop to the packing-house an inspector looks at every bag. If the nuts are not perfectly dry, back they go to the farm for more sunshine. This is imperative, for a bag of damp or half-dried walnuts would endanger a whole binful by spreading a light mould on the shells.

Passed by the inspector, the nuts are weighed and the amount put to the credit of the grower. Then the nuts go through a process which—so far as walnuts are concerned—is new. This is a treatment by a solution of salt and water electricized. A powerful electric current passes through the solution and generates oxygen, which in turn "burns" away the dark patches and discolorations on the shells without in any way touching the meat. This leaves the shell very clean and of the light buff color, which is now recognized as the most marketable condition for the walnut to be in. The old treatment by acids or sulphur is now a back number.

The picking of the crop begins about September 20, and the last of the third picking is generally over by November 20. In the Rivera district this means a total of nearly 200 carloads of walnuts for a big crop, although this season there will be only about 160 carloads shipped. For the picking alone of these nuts the growers pay approximately $35,000.

AUTOMATIC MACHINERY.

Secretary J. A. Montgomery of the ranch owner himself, is one of the experts of the valley, and in practical charge of the largest of the packing-houses of the association at Rivera. There is another packing-house on the southern branch of the Santa Fé, and it takes both big packing-houses to handle the crop. Yesterday Mr. Montgomery explained the working of the new automatic machinery, which sorts and sacks the nuts after they are passed by machinery through the electric-salt process. In this way the crop is handled in a much shorter time and in a more uniform manner than in the old way by hand.

Time and again there have been attempts upon the part of dealers to lower the wholesale price of walnuts, but so successfully have the growers stood shoulder to shoulder in demanding a fair price for their product that it is seldom that there has been any reduction. The price of the walnut is fixed at a meeting of the association, held once a year in the Chamber of Commerce in Los Angeles, and this price is determined by the size of the crop, the transportation figures, and other conditions.

This year the price is 12½ cents a pound. A year ago it was 15 cents a pound. Next year it is expected that the crop will be much larger than this season, as hundreds of acres will be in nearly full bearing at that time, yet the price is expected to be even higher than this year, on account of the greater demand from the East. At present nearly all the crop shipped finds its way to St. Louis, Chicago and the Middle West. The Atlantic Coast still depends upon foreign importations for its walnuts. But this will not have to be for long.

THOUSANDS OF ACRES.

There are still thousands of acres of land in Southern California well adapted for walnut orchards, and undoubtedly in time much of this land will be taken up for this purpose. A great deal of this land is semi-desert, yet as good as the best as soon as water is developed for irrigating, and much of it can be bought now at a ridiculously small price—and is really worth no more without irrigation.

For Southern California it is estimated that the value of the walnut crop this year will approximate $2,000,000. This will be divided among the principal associations, a little over $250,000 going to the members of the Mountain View Walnut Association of El Monte. The Rivera growers, of which there are 350 in the Los Nietos and Ranchito Association, will be richer about $750,000 and the other half will go to all the other districts.

Walnut growers have little faith in the experiments now in progress to determine a cure for the walnut blight, the only disease which attacks walnut trees. They say everything has been tried, and nothing found to be of any service. "The blight comes and goes and in time just wears itself out," said an old-time grower yesterday. This blight causes the nuts to fall off the tree before they are ripe.

But take it all in all, the lot of the walnut grower is in the main a happy one. With a good orchard and energy and water enough to take care of it, there are no wolves prowling about the doors, and the occasional lone coyote stands little chance of getting away with its scalp.

NEW BUILDING LEASED.

Jared S. Torrance, who recently purchased sixty feet on the west side of Broadway between Seventh and Eighth streets, and who is erecting three one-story storerooms on the plat, has just closed a lease for one of the stores through the agency of C. Herbert Diamond. Frank K. Scofield, a milliner, is the tenant, and the lease is for three years, from December 10, 1908; the rent is $350 a month for the first year and $400 a month for the last two years. Mr. Torrance took title on the first of the month.

SPECTACULAR PARADE.

The Prohibitionists have planned a spectacular parade for Monday night, November 2. They have engaged the Hill street barracks for the night, and the parade, in which several large sprinkling carts will figure as "water wagons," will be led by the Salvation Army band. The wagons will be profusely and apropriately decorated, and will be followed by all the Prohibition clubs in the city. Invitations have also been extended to the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Good Templars, Loyal Temperance Legion, and other similar organizations throughout the county. The parade will form on New High street and march down Broadway to Seventh, thence to the barracks at Fourth and Hill streets.

ON INGLEWOOD RANCHO.

The Inglewood Rancho reports sales aggregating $10,175 for the last week. J. M. McLeod, who has secured the sales agency for this property, reports that a great many sales have been made to local people, as well as to home-seekers. Sales follow: To E. C. Schunr, two acres on Lennox avenue, $450; to Kate V. Rardon, one acre on Kenwood street, $325; to Vida H. Adams, one acre on Kenwood street, $325; to Fred F. Morse, two acres on Kenwood street, $650; to F. S. Roach, two acres on Market street, $1100; to Marie A. Swain, one acre on Inglewood avenue, $550; to O. F. Martinson, three acres in Kenwood street, $1100; to James Lewis, one acre on Eucalyptus avenue, $475; to Margaret Langdon, five acres on Market street, $2250; to W. S. Anderson, two acres on Kenwood street, $700; to H. V. J. Swain, two acres in Grervillea street, $1050; to Bert Goinach, two acres on Grervillea street, $1050.

SALES AT OXFORD SQUARE.

Emil Firth has sold six lots on Alta avenue, in Oxford Square, to the following purchasers, all of whom are already constructing handsome two-story residences, or having plans prepared for them: Mrs. Lucy G. Baker, Miss Mary V. Leach, H. B. Parsons, D. Sherwood, George F. H. Wilson and Security Building Company.

Oxford Square is situated on a high plateau, in the Wilshire district. In his ambition to make it a desirable tract, Mr. Firth has expended $100,000 in the street improvements. The 70-foot wide avenues are oil-tamped and lined with palms. Handsome corner pillars, surmounted by decorative electroliers, are at street intersections. The property is accessible via the Sixth-street, Ninth-street and Pico-street car lines, as well as the Los Angeles-Pacific lines. The subway line, when completed, will have a station on the tract, and will bring the property within ten minutes of town.

COMPANY DONATES PARK.

The proposal of the Southwest Land Company recently to the Park Commission to give the city the highly-improved park in the Vermont Avenue Square tract in the southwest part of the city has awakened lively interest, particularly in the section directly to be benefited. Usually when a high price, and then improved at considerable cost. In this case the park is fully improved and has been maintained by the company for several years past. All the consideration asked is that the city shall properly maintain the park. This locality is showing the greatest growth of any part of the city, and public sentiment demands that this park shall be acquired by the city.

SUE FOR ACCOUNTING.

George J. Hoffman and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth F. Hoffman, filed two suits in the Superior Court yesterday through Attorney H. H. Roser, against Attorney Alfred Cooper of this city. In the first action the Hoffmans demand an accounting for $3000, which they claim was given in the shape of notes signed by them and secured by valuable Redondo real estate. In the second action the sum asked to be ac-harvest hand of one year is pretty sure to be the tenant of the next year and the independent farmer of the third. It is as a landed proprietor that he becomes of interest to us, for the thousands of Italian farmers in Argentina and Brazil are among the best customers our manufacturers have in South America.

Traveling over the Pampas on a horseback trip I stopped one night with the Italian major domo of an estancia whose Italian owner had been in the country but seven years. For dinner we had some Omaha canned beef and Columbia River salmon—recooked on a stove made in Michigan—and California preserved fruit, all served on American enamel ware. I slept that night on a patent Yankee folding bed, and the next morning had some American "health" food and some Chicago bacon for breakfast. In the leading store of an Italian colony which I passed through this trip I found an American scale and cash register in use, and all the correspondence carried on with American typewriters. Moreover, its stock of general merchandise, which was being sold to none but Italians, was a trifle over half made up of American goods. In this connection I may state that the average of our goods to be found in the run of South American stores of this character is from 2 to 4 per cent.

In Italian, Russian, French and Boer colonies, I found our machinery in practically exclusive use. This is principally because its first cost is rather less than that of English machinery of similar type, while the fact that it does its work faster, with less men to handle it, is a strong argument on the ground of economy. In all of these foreign colonies I was much impressed by the fact that the farming machinery appeared to be quite as well cared for as in the States. During planting and harvesting seasons, plows, harvesters and threshers get their nightly "going-overs," while in winter they are stowed snug and dry in substantially built sheds erected especially for the purpose. On many Argentine-owned estancias, on the other hand, and even on some of those of Englishmen, machinery is often left exposed to the elements from the end of one season to the beginning of the next. This treatment has less effect on the heavily-built English machinery than on that of America, and for this reason the former is still preferred on some of the big native estancias.

That our agricultural machinery and light metal manufactures should sell well to the Italians, French, Russians and others I have mentioned, is not greatly to be wondered at, since none of their own countries has a great quantity of goods of these classes on the South American market; but that we should be almost as successful with the Germans, the merchants of whose country are most actively pushing the sale of similar lines, is a distinct triumph for the American manufacturers. In many lines Germany can undersell us in South America with goods so closely resembling our own in appearance that nothing but use will show the difference. An example of this was a German gangplow that was put on the Chilean and Argentine markets, a few years ago. It was a perfect imitation of an American plow that had been meeting with much favor, and the fact that its price was but 75 per cent. of that of the former brought it a ready sale—for one season. During that season it transpired that its shares were made of cast steel instead of the wrought metal of the American implement, and those that survived the rough handling of the Argentine and Chilean railroads succumbed to the first rocks they encountered after being put into service. It is instances such as this that have been responsible for aligning so many Germans as buyers of American goods.

As yet we are not selling a great deal to the Germans of Brazil, but this is largely because their transportation facilities are still backward and, as a consequence, they are living somewhat primitively. Neither from Montevideo, on the south, nor from Sao Paulo, on the north, is there unbroken railway communication with these districts; nevertheless a considerable amount of American machinery has gone in across the Uurguayan frontier, and this is proving very popular. Besides canned goods, I noticed not a little American cutlery and heavy hardware in use in Rio Grande do Sul, and I was told that many of the people had catalogues of our big general supply houses and were ordering by mail, direct, a very substantial amount of light farming implements.

In Chile, both in city and country, the Germans are thoroughly familiar with, and are using a large quantity of, American goods. I took particular pleasure in calling the attention of the manager of the leading German importing house of Valdivia to the fact that his swivel chair, his desk, his set of filing cabinets, his copying press, his safe, his adding machine and his typewriter, as well as a number of other things that I could see without leaving my chair in his office, did not bear the regulation "made in Germany" legend. He laughed a little constrainedly as he replied that, "You Yankees have specialized on these things and we can't hope to compete with you; our field lies in other directions." Yet when, an hour later, he took me across the river to see his sawmill, it was in his American gasoline launch that we were ferried over, and on every important piece of machinery in the mill I found evidence of the existence at one time of the letters U.S.A.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILROAD BECOMES OPEN SHOP BY DEFEAT OF STRIKING UNIONITES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—Trades unionism in Canada is waking up to the fact that its prestige has been dealt a death blow at the hands of a big railway corporation, when the C. P. R. R. a few days ago forced a capitulation of 10,000 striking mechanics who had laid down their tools on August 5 and stayed out for two months. Whatever may have been said on the opportuneness of the strike it was evident at the outset that it was a fight to the finish on the part of the railway. In the end it has been a win for the railway company, whereby the latter forces the men to accept the terms which they refused two months ago, and more vital than all, the railway hereafter refuses to recognize the unions and may use its own judgment in the matter of taking the striking mechanics back to work. Union men and nonunion men are now working side by side and the C. P. R. R. shops are open.

Indignation, suspicion and dissatisfaction are reflected in equal proportions in the attitude of the men. The announcement of the settlement has been known for five days. During that time some of the men have returned to work and some have not. If the smouldering fires of dissatisfaction continue, it is possible that the real fight is only about to begin, for at one single stroke the railway has dealt a fatal blow to unionism and union principles, and indirectly lays down the mandate that it will hereafter not recognize the standing of the mechanical unions.

The surrender of the workmen through their executive, J. H. McVety of Vancouver and Bell Hardy of Calgary, both of whom are well known in labor circles in Canada and the United States, is the most complete capitulation which has been recorded in the history of Canadian industrial disputes. The trouble has dated back for months, and its history shows that the industrial and labor legislation of Canada has been tried and found wanting. In April last the C. P. R. R. gave notice that on May 1, the then existing schedule would be abrogated, and thereafter the company would deal with the men individually. Consequently a workman's remuneration would depend solely upon his competency. Were he an expert he would receive an expert's pay. Were he below the standard his wages would be pay to the men was not to be diminished, but the inevitable result of such a sliding scale of wages would have been to decrease the pay of a portion of the workmen.

The new arrangements were refused by the men. The trouble kept brewing, and negotiations were conducted until a strike was imminent. Then the men made application for arbitration under the much-talked-of Lemieux act. Each party to the dispute chose a representative, and these two being unable to select a representative, the Dominion government stepped in and selected one for them. Hardly had the sittings of the board begun when a division ensued as to the jurisdiction of the board. The men clamored for a common schedule, to begin and end at the same time over the eastern and western divisions of the transcontinental. The company claimed that the trouble was being experienced with their western men only, between Fort William and Vancouver, and held that the matter ought to be held to them alone. When the chairman of the board claimed that the equitable view was to allow the men on all the system to come under one schedule, the basis claimed by the men, the C. P. R. R. arbitrator withdrew.

Once again the Canadian government was forced to the rescue, and upon this occasion named an arbitrator for the company. The new board of conciliation now consisted of J. Somerville, Moose Jaw, for the men; C. F. Galt, Winnipeg, for the company; and P. A. MacDonald, master in the Court of King's Bench, Winnipeg, as chairman of the board.

The new board held its first sittings on July 3, and began taking evidence on July 4. Sittings were held at Winnipeg and Moose Jaw, and the finding of the board was made known on July 20, and was presented in the form of a majority and minority report, the former signed by Mr. Galt and Mr. MacDonald, and the latter by Mr. Somerville. The recommendation of the majority report was that the new arrangement recommended thereunder was to become effective on August 1. On the seven points at issue in the dispute, the two reports were widely different, and the reconciliation of factions was thus further away than ever.

The decision of the board favored the men with regard to the sliding scale, which the company wished to enforce, and held that upon the evidence submitted it should few men would be affected. But the men alleged that a more harmful substitute to their cause had been substituted when the board had recommended a classification of the boiler makers and other mechanics, one of which class included expert workmen who did a certain class of work, and the other class who did less expert workmanship. To this the men objected, claiming that it was an indirect attempt to lower the wages of the mechanics. In other important issues the men were upheld by the board, the changes recommended being chiefly with respect to shop management.

It was this award which the men were forced to accept on Monday, October 6, in accordance with the terms

A short time before the C.P.R. authorities made a proposition to take back the striking mechanics on the terms of the award of the board of conciliation, giving immediate employment to 60 per cent. of the men, with the understanding that the remaining 40 per cent. would be placed as soon as vacancies occurred, in the order of seniority. Through some agency that offer was not considered. Under the accepted settlement none of the men are guaranteed employment. At one stroke the company had reverted to a condition of industrial freedom, in which it no longer could be worried by the restrictions and regulations of unionism. The new rules originally advocated, aimed at open shops. The C.P.R. tried to enforce this on May 1.

fidence was well founded the history of the trouble has shown. The men struck at a most crucial period of the year, so far as the public was concerned. They walked out at a time when their action occasioned a minimum of advantage to themselves and a maximum of disadvantage to the country. If the C.P.R., in the autumn of the year, with a large freight traffic, could defeat the men, they could have done so much more easily in the late spring and early summer, when the movement of freight was not much more than the nominal. The industrial depression placed in the company's hands a weapon with which it was enabled to break up and destroy the organization of the machinists, and it used it to good effect.

dent, for the forthcoming Dominion elections on October 26. The Liberals claim that the measure which saved the men from irremediable disaster was the Lemieux Act. The Conservatives claim the act defeated the workmen's unions. The men claim that the statue is a detriment to their cause, inasmuch as it deprives them of the only weapon whereby they can enforce their demands, the right to strike. To do so is to subject them to a penalty. The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, two weeks ago, denounced the act, and asked for its repeal.

The one result of the whole trouble is that the results of years of organization on the part of the unions has been obliterated. Th estrike has cost

THE CAMPAIGN.

BRYAN ACKNOWLEDGES HIMSELF A SPOILSMAN.

Is Against Civil Service and Pensions to Veterans.

The Republicans Have Favored Both and Enacted All the Legislation Favorable Thereto—Of All the Presidential Candidates Mr. Taft Alone Stands for Something Definite—Bryan a Cloud on Business.

IF BY any chance Mr. Bryan should become President and have his own way, all our slowly achieved reform of the civil service would go a glimmering.

While the Democratic platform pledges "honest and rigid enforcement of the civil-service laws," it does not commit the Democrats against changing these laws to conform to Mr. Bryan's publicly expressed views which are in direct conflict with all ideas of civil-service reform. In his book, "The First Battle," he says, "I do not believe that life tenure is, as a rule, a wise thing in a government like ours. As suggested in my letter of acceptance, the fact that the people make frequent changes in their public officials in case of elective offices is conclusive proof that life tenure is not popular. If they desire to have their public servants hold office for life they should manifest that desire by keeping elective officials in office permanently."

Mr. Bryan is still of the same faith regarding the spoils system, but since he published the above he has developed a more elaborate theory, as appears from a conversation he had with Robert Underwood Johnson at the time of the conference of Governors in Washington last May. Mr. Johnson says:

"Meeting Mr. Bryan at the White House one morning last May during the conference of Governors on the conservation of national resources, I said to him: 'Mr. Bryan, when are you going to become interested in civil-service reform? You know you must come to it sooner or later, as the merit system is the only practical way of running the service.'

"To this he responded, in a voice that might have been heard by a dozen persons near us:

"'Why, I am interested in civil-service reform. I believe everybody who enters the service should do so on his merits. But I have a plan of my own. I believe that the offices should be divided among the parties, in proportion to their political strength.'

"'And you would include in this arrangement third parties also?'

"'Certainly,' said Mr. Bryan, without flinching.

"At this point our conversation was interrupted by the opening of the session, and I did not ascertain the details of Mr. Bryan's project."

Mr. Bryan appears to be against about all of our governmental principles—against the gold standard, against a protective tariff, against pensions for veterans, against the civil service. If elected President he would be the worst disturber that ever occupied the White House.

The Foe of Pensions.

When Mr. Bryan was in Congress he put himself on record as opposed to pensions; as hostile to the remnant of the Grand Army of the Republic; as a doubter of both the patriotism and the honesty of its members, and as an open wisher for the speedy disappearance of the old soldiers from the soil they once defended.

These opinions were delivered to Congress itself. On the next day they appeared credited to him in the Omaha World-Herald, the paper with which he was politically and editorially connected.

"The next session of Congress," he said in this speech, "will have to wrestle with one deficiency of $36,000,000. This is on account of pensions. The appropriation for next year must be not less than $150,000,000. It is, therefore, easy arithmetic to perceive that the appropriation that Congress must make aggregates not less than $186,000,000.

"This tremendous sum, which would in itself be enough to run a reasonable government, is held up and despoiled of. It is not an honest debt at all, because it was never earned by any act of patriotism or heroic service. The government is held up and despoiled of no mean portion of this, and it seems helpless to defend itself. One cannot help being curious to know how many more years it will take to exhaust the generation which feels itself injured by the war. It is safe to say that never did a generation display such remarkable longevity."

Democratic Pension Plank.

One of the curiosities of the campaign is the Democratic platform plank on the subject of pensions. It is a sample of political legerdemain and acrobatics that is worthy of preservation along with some of the other paramounts that have been developed since Democracy gave way to Bryanism. The Denver declaration is as follows:

We favor a generous pension policy, both as a matter of justice to the surviving veterans and their dependents, and because it tends to relieve the country of the necessity of maintaining a large standing army.

What, in the name of all the Democratic foibles and vagaries at once, has "a liberal pension policy" to do with the appropriations or the reasons for the maintenance of a standing army, large or small? It may be argued, of course, that the money spent for pensions cannot be used for hiring soldiers, just as it may be argued that money contributed for Democratic campaign purposes cannot be used for pressing missionary work in Turkey and Afghanistan.—[Omaha Bee.

Republicans Favor Pensions.

The Republican party favors a generous pension policy to veterans and their dependents as a matter of justice and gratitude, and this is reason enough without dragging in other issues. Since 1866 the government has paid $3,660,000,000 in pensions, and practically every line of legislation to that end has been passed by Republican administrations at Washington. The Democratic position has usually been as it is today. When the party has not openly opposed pensions, as it has seldom dared to do, it has fought them in an underhand way. No veteran will be deceived by the Democratic pension plank this year.—[Omaha Bee.

What They Stand for.

Simmered down, the positions taken by the Presidential candidates are only two. Mr. Taft stands for something. All the others spend their efforts in attacking something. Mr. Bryan charges the Republican leaders with various shortcomings and wrongdoings. Mr. Debs shakes his head and stamps his hoofs before the red flag of capitalism. Mr. Chafin assaults the rum power as the source of all mankind's ills. Mr. Watson rails at about everything on the face of the earth. Mr. Hisgen impartially devotes himself to the two older parties alike, and Mr. Preston, through his proxy, August Gilhaus, finds fault with all the rest.

In the mass of fantastic theories advocated by the candidates it is a relief to find the solid ground occupied by the Republican candidate. Mr. Taft is no chaser of chimeras. He advances something actual, the record of his party.—[Detroit Free Press.

Vote of Bryan's State.

As for Mr. Bryan, the candidate who had his opponent "on the run," his campaigning, although strenuous enough at all times, is not spectacular at present. He is making a desperate attempt to capture Nebraska, his home State, which, according to the usual run of affairs, might be supposed to be his without much effort. It is evident, however, that he does not so regard it, and in this his judgment is not at fault. In 1896, when Mr. Bryan first ran, Nebraska gave him 12,500 plurality. Since that time the people of that State have been learning things. In 1900, after four years of Republican protection and prosperity, Nebraska repudiated Mr. Bryan and his 60-cent dollars and gave McKinley 7800 plurality. Four years later it was so well satisfied with continued Republican control that it gave Roosevelt a plurality of 86,600. That is what Mr. Bryan has to overcome in his home State. No wonder he is devoting special attention to it.—[San Diego Union.

A Big, Strong, Liberal Man.

Had he not been a big, strong, liberal man, Mr. Taft would not have gone into the South. He would have remained north of the Ohio River to appeal to States which might be classed as doubtful. But he wanted to talk to the people of the South. He wanted to help reunite the country and enable the men living south of Mason and Dixon's line to exert the influence upon public affairs to which their number and their intelligence entitle them.—[Denver Republican.

Taft's Record Permanent.

As for Mr. Taft, nothing can rob him of a record in the service of his country and a training such as no President in a generation has had. The voter who is in doubt as to how he should cast his ballot can do no better than to hold fast to this one thought: Do the achievements in public life, the experience, the long record of Mr. Taft or the professions and the shifting ideas of Mr. Bryan promise better for sane consideration of the various problems that confront us and for a prompter and more permanent rehabilitation of public confidence and return of prosperity.—[Baltimore News (Ind.)

The Best-equipped Man.

"Of all the Presidential candidates within the memory of this generation, Taft is unquestionably the best equipped, in training and experience and in wide and close contact with large affairs." Thus declared the Philadelphia Public Ledger, an Independent Democratic paper. It spoke truthfully. While Taft may not accomplish as much as Roosevelt has done and is not as well equipped as a fighter as Roosevelt was, yet it is true that Taft surpasses even Roosevelt in experience at the beginning of a Presidential campaign.—[Portland Oregonian (Ind.)

The Only Cloud.

Only one cloud is on the business sky, the peril of a triumph for Bryan. Not many observant persons believe Bryan has any chance of victory, but politics has accidents and surprises, and Bryan's defeat cannot be announced positively until the election figures are in. The country cannot know to an absolute certainty that it is rid of the Bryan menace until the night of November 3. In the meantime trade will continue to make slow but steady gains. Factories here and there which have been closed will reopen, and other mills which have been working on shorter hours or with smaller forces will increase their activities. But the great body of the orders for new work which are coming to the mills contain the "not-to-be-filled-unless-Bryan-is-defeated" stipulation. When the news of Bryan's overthrow is published on the morning of November 4 the country will see an immediate business expansion which will remind it of the forward bound which came just after his defeat in 1896.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No Politics in Business.

There is no politics in business. When a business man waits for politics to settle down and let him know what to expect, it is not because he is a Republican or a Democrat, but because he wants to know what chance he is going to have for getting it back before he lets go of any of the money he has either worked hard or schemed hard to get. If he had not taken just such clear-headed looks into the future the chances are he would not have any money to worry about investing.

And for the man who has no money to cause him to worry about investing how is he ever to get any unless the business of the country is moving in a way that guarantees him work at good wages? It is when things are moving and new work being undertaken on every hand that the moneyless man finds his opportunity to become a moneyed one. What affects one investor affects ten workmen; every enterprise that takes a dollar takes a man; every project involving the expenditure of millions means that fully half the sum will go to the men who toil for daily pay. And whereas the capitalist can wait for good times to come back, can tide over the unfavorable period should the election go the wrong way, the laboring man in need of this day his daily bread cannot wait. The working man has most at stake in this and all other elections.—[Denver Republican.

The Surest Way.

The surest way to relegate Mr. Bryan and his vagaries to the waste heap for all time is to defeat him, for it is to be assumed that the Democratic party will never have the nerve to nominate him again after a third defeat. The next thing to do is to defeat the Democratic Congressional candidates, in order that President Taft's administration may be sustained by the House; that the safety of the republic may the better endure, and that this government may be conducted along the lines marked out by its founders.—[Baltimore American.

Renounces Mr. Bryan.

After thirty years as a Democrat, Frank M. Jones, secretary of the American Trust and Savings Bank, who served under President Cleveland for four years as First Assistant Postmaster-General, has announced that he will vote for William H. Taft.

In a signed statement to the Republican National Committee, the former postoffice official gave his reasons for renouncing Bryan and the Democratic party, saying that he does not want prosperity to be imperiled by the "unsound experimental policies" of the Nebraskan, and that the "country needs Taft to carry on the Roosevelt policies."

Bryan's Nerve.

Greater audacity was never showed by Mr. Bryan than in his current presentation of himself as "the advance agent of prosperity," a phrase borrowed unblushingly from the late Mr. Hanna's McKinley outfit in 1896.—[Springfield Republican (Ind.)

The Man That Makes The Money Is the Man That Buys It Now

Whether Farmer, Gardener, Orchardist, Poultry Rancher or Suburban Homeseeker, the Man That Buys Close to San Pedro Harbor Today Will Coin Money on the Investment.

Don't make any mistake about this San Pedro harbor land. While there is no better soil in the State of California, no bigger crops grown anywhere in this section and no better markets or better market facilities on the coast, it is in the land values that the real big money will be made. Think of getting land in this day and age, close to the only harbor in Southern California, for $375 an acre, on easy terms. Remember that the ship channel into Bixby Slough, for which condemnation proceedings are begun, will come within about half a mile of Lomita Farms. The electric line runs close to the property, with a station at Weston street. The Shoestring Strip, extending along beside Lomita Farms, commands $1000 an acre and upward. The new boulevard from Redondo Beach to Long Beach intersects Lominta Farms.

MANY SALES AT BEAUMONT.

Town Growing Rapidly, and Houses Are in Demand—Plan to Build Electric Power Plant.

Sales at Beaumont the past week amounted to $2850. Some of the buyers have come direct to Beaumont from eastern cities to locate permanently and the three hotels are well patronized. There is not a vacant house in town and quite a few of the buyers will use tents until their homes are erected.

Another active nurseryman, G. F. Van Velzer, has located in Beaumont and as representative of the famous Stark Nurseries of Louisiana, Mo., is taking many orders for fruit trees, apples and pears being the favorites.

Over a hundred boxes of apples from the Oak Glen district of the Beaumont Valley have been stored for the Alaska-Yukon Exposition and a fine exhibit will also be made at the coming Spokane apple fair, where a prize of $1000 will be awarded for the finest individual apple. Beaumont growers expect to win with either of two famous varieties, the Gloria Mundi or the Missouri Pippin, the former often reaching twenty-one ounces in weight.

Preparations are being made to entertain the Southern California Editorial Association, which expects to visit Beaumont November 17.

Consequent to the rapid growth of the town in population and new buildings several electrical power plant designers are considering the erection of a municipal and public lighting plant to use the power in mountain streams controlled by the Beaumont Land and Water Company. Engineers estimate there are 250 horse power in summer and 500 horse power in winter in Edgar Creek alone, which is more than sufficient to supply streets arcs, inside lights and power for light manufacturing and pumping.

Caley, the property at No. 1143 West Thirty-sixth street, consisting of a two-story eight-room house, on a lot 50x179 feet, to Enid Olcott for $7000. W. S. McKee to George I. Lamy, lot, north side of Fifty-third street, near Figueroa street, 60x120 feet, for $750.

Notice to Fat Women

Presumably you know, ladies, that the proper caper nowadays is lines. Curved are passe. You have got to take off your fat. This must be done in one of three ways. By dieting, by exercises, or by means of Marmola Prescription Tablets. The two former will keep you busy for months and punish you pretty severely, the latter will cost you 75 cents at the druggist's. The tablets will not make any alteration in your diet necessary, and yet in all probability, before you have used up one case, you will be losing from 12 to 16 ounces of fat a day. Which method do you like the best?

If you fancy this pleasant method of getting off the fat, see your druggist instantly, or else write the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., to send you a case by mail. These cases contain so generous a quantity of tablets that the treatment is very economical. It is, also, quite harmless, for the tablets are made exactly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription.

SALES AND EXCHANGES.

The Jones & Ryder Land Company reports the sale of the nine-room residence at No. 743 Berendo street to Henry Weaver by Dr. H. W. Seager for $12,500. The property has a frontage of sixty feet on Berendo street. The buyer is a recent arrival from Chicago.

The exchange department reports the following: W. H. Warfield has exchanged his forty-four-acre alfalfa ranch, located at San Fernando, valued at $15,000, for the property at No. 7011 Waterloo street, this city, having a frontage of 145 feet and a depth of 157½ feet, improved with a nine-room two-story residence in addition to $7000 cash, owned by Arthur Gregory. A ten-room two-story apartment-house in Bairdstown, on lot 50x120 feet, valued at $3000, was exchanged by Catherine Buchanan for two vacant lots in San Francisco, valued at $1200, by Olive G. Putnam. Gager C. Davis exchanged his twenty-four-room apartment-house, located on the north side of Twenty-third street, near Central avenue, valued at $15,000, for Charles V. O'Brien's forty-acre ranch at Highlands. This ranch is well improved, set twenty acres to apricots, peaches, etc. A good water right accompanies this land. It was valued at $15,000.

ALASKAN BUYS HOME.

ANAHEIM, Oct. 24.—C. W. Dyer has sold his seventy-five-acre unimproved place, four miles southeast of of town to C. R. Staples, a newcomer from Alaska, for $5000. Mr. Staples has commenced the erection of a handsome residence, and will erect a thirty-five-horse-power pumping plant and make many more improvements on the ranch.

DOVE OF PEACE.

ENGLISH TOWN HAS FIRST WOMAN MAYOR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "It is my intention to try to bring peace to the deliberations of the town council," declared Miss Dove, the newly-elected Mayor of High Wycombe, the first city in the United Kingdom to choose a woman Mayor since the step became possible through an act of Parliament last year. Miss Dove, who is about 50 years old, stands high in the esteem of the town council, which elected her Mayor, so she can afford to make little of the grumblings of the man in the street, who in High Wycombe is making an ungallant protest, declaring that "we don't want to be overcome by women."

The Mayor-elect is a Girton graduate, a master of arts and master of sciences of Trinity College, Dublin. The founder and head of the High Wycombe Abbey School, with 240 pupils, she has behind her a great record of charitable and philanthropic work.

"My election is only one sign that the time of women has come," she said to The Times correspondent this morning. "I can tell you and others that I have just returned from Canada. I made a trip on Lake Huron and the ship had a woman purser who understood her business so well that the passengers were loud in her praise. At Harvard University, a woman is at the head of the inquiry department. So it is everywhere. It is woman's ability that is bringing her forward, and not mere rushing to the House of Commons."

Miss Dove must appoint a deputy Mayor to represent her on the magisterial bench, since there no woman may sit, but she will fulfill all the other duties of the Mayor's office. Her first efforts will be to help the unemployed in her town and get clean streets.

MONROVIA MOVEMENTS.

MONROVIA, Oct. 24.—Real estate sales for the week agregate more than $12,000, and agents report many inquiries for both home sites and ranch property, with a preference for small ranch holdings in good locations. Robert Manford sold for Charles H. Rassler to Paul Nelson, a house and two acres in the Oak Park tract for a consideration of $4500. The same agent sold for E. P. Collins to J. P. Gasser, a modern bungalow and lot 50x150 feet on East Lemon avenue for a consideration of $2750. Same agent sold for Thomas Wardell to W. E. Tuggle, seven acres on South California avenue for $2200, and also for James Maher to Levi Drake a lot on Wild Rose avenue, 50x160 feet, for $450. J. E. Bunker sold for B. F. Williams to W. H. Marquis, a two-acre place improved with a seven-room house on Mountain View avenue, for $2500.

TRADES FOR EASTERN HOUSE.

Charles N. Green reports the exchange of the forty-acre alfalfa ranch located two and one-half miles southeast of Santa Ana, improved with a seven-room house, two large barns, two flowing wells, all fenced. Owned by W. J. Cullen and valued at $15,000, for the eight-room modern residence on Second avenue, Minneapolis, Minn., owned by C. E. Wenzel and valued at $10,000.

Free Water Land

Go Where the Soil Is Fertile and the Trolley Stops at the Door

Good land is made better by some superior feature. There is no better soil than that of Somerset Acres. There is no better location. There is no faster transportation. There is no more charming scene. There is no more delightful climate. There is no finer spot for a home. There is no more productive place for a garden or orchard. There is no more desirable poultry land. There is no cheaper land with these superior advantages, 30 minutes from business.

Yet With All These Advantages There is One More Matchless Argument

FREE WATER

Pure, sparkling artesian water flows in unlimited abundance from deep wells. There is no engine—no engineer. There is no stoppage—no breakdown. There is no cost. The water flows through large steel mains direct to each acre and does not cost a penny. That's why Somerset land is the best and cheapest on the market. That's why the crowds are going there, and that's why you should follow the crowds. $350 per acre; one acre, or five or ten. $10 down, $10 a month per acre or 1-5 cash and balance within 4 years. Stomach and Bowel Trouble?

ARE YOUR CHILDREN PUNY AND ANAEMIC?

Stomach, intestinal, liver worms, tape worms, thread worms, and all other parasites which infest the human body, and are the cause of so many chronic troubles, can be removed without inconvenience or fasting. My treatment is absolutely harmless and can be taken by the youngest child or most feeble person. Worms afflict all ages of the human family from the oldest person down to the youngest infant. PASSING OF MUCUS IMPORTANT SYMPTOM. The usual symptoms of worms are intestinal irritation, pains in the belly, irritation or itching at the lower end of the bowels, alternation of diarrhoea and costiveness, great thirst, and variable and often voracious appetite. The patient sometimes becomes hungry almost immediately after eating heartily and at other times the appetite is feeble and depraved. There is a fetid breath; the complexion is pale or sallow. There is pain of the bowels and at the pit of the stomach, with occasional purging and a good deal of gastric distress. The head is much affected, sometimes painfully. Worms may also be suspected where there is emaciation, and especially weakness of the bowels, accompanied by discharges of slime and mucus.

I diagnose and tell you whether you have any of these parasites or not.

WANT HOMES.

GOOD DEMAND FOR RESIDENCES.

GREAT ACTIVITY IS MANIFESTED IN BEST DISTRICTS.

Good Class of Buyers Making Los Angeles Their Home—Prices for Properties Well Maintained—Interest in Early Orange Lands Also Strong—Change in Management.

Considerable interest is reported by Edward D. Silent & Co. in local residence property. This firm has been very successful in handling this class of business lately. The demand is good and the buyers are a high class of people, who are making Los Angeles a permanent home. Interest in Terra Bella early orange lands also is reported by this firm, and several sales have been made. The following large list of transactions tells the story in eloquent terms.

V. P. Gilbert to Mrs. B. S. Lemon, modern residence on north side of Francis avenue, between Westmoreland and Hoover streets, on lot 50x126 feet, for $5700.

G. A. Murphy to Mrs. Jean L. More, new six-room modern cottage on lot 50x142 feet, on east side of Richard street, in Aurora Heights, for $3000.

John Hayes to local investor, unimproved lot, 45x98 feet, on south side of West Third street, between Boylston and Bixel streets, for $3000.

W. T. Booth to Julia M. Brostrom, modern bungalow, No. 1475 West Twenty-second street, on lot 50x125 feet, for a consideration of $2900. Mrs. Brostrom is a recent arrival from Bismarck, N. D.

J. L. More to John Hayes, the property at No. 1354 West Thirty-fifth street, lot 50x150 feet, improved with a modern six-room cottage, for a consideration of $3000.

W. E. Premo to a local investor, 160 acres at Terra Bella, Tulare county. Buyer intends to plant the land to navel and Valencia oranges. This section is noted for its early fruit. The same firm has also sold the adjoining 160 acres to one of the largest orange grove owners of Redlands. The same company has made some good sales of its Terra Bella property as follows. To E. E. McGill, ten acres for $900. To L. C. Maguet of Washington, ten acres for $900. Mr. Maguet also bought twelve lots in Terra Bella townsite, and will erect a modern seven-room house at once, making his future home there, where he will engage in orange growing.

Edward D. Silent & Co. have sold to a local investor for Mrs. A. D. Wallace a lot fronting fifty and one-half feet and a depth of 135 feet on the south side of West Forty-third Place, between Forty-third street and Vernon avenue, for a consideration of $8000.

The same company reports the sale of a fine six-acre orange grove near Corona for A. L. Clarkson for $8900. The property is improved with a good dwelling, barn, outbuildings, etc. The purchaser bought for a home.

W. P. McIntosh and G. A. Murphy have handled the country department for Edward D. Silent & Co. so successfully that they have been promoted to the position of manager and assistant manager of the real estate department of the firm.

This change will tend to stimulate the sales and increase the planting of the early orange at Terra Bella, for the reason that both of these men are practical orange growers, as well as being well versed on soils and localities best adapted to the growing of deciduous fruits and other products.

Mr. McIntosh can point to a score or more groves in Redlands district planted by him on lands that he selected for his customers. Every grove has been a decided success, and many of them produce from $500 to $900 worth of oranges per acre each year.

BUY MEXICAN LANDS.

Several Parties Visit Yaqui Valley and Make Purchases of Large Tracts.

A party of eighteen ranches and investors from the neighborhood of San Francisco have returned from the Yaqui Valley, after having purchased land there. They left Los Angeles on October 10 for Esperanza, Sonora, to investigate the land owned by the Richardson Construction Company of this city.

Among those in this party who purchased land were T. B. McElwee, 125 acres; W. J. Kane, 150 acres; William Butler, 125 acres; J. H. Flory, 240 acres, and E. H. McClay and J. H. Flory, 240 acres. James Crawley, who accompanied a previous party, has purchased a large ranch, and Messrs. Cameron and McQuaig, of Manitoba, Canada, have selected a tract containing nearly 1000 acres.

Last month a number of men from California went to the Yaqui Valley. One party, all of whom came from Mountain View, purchased lands as follows: P. D. Newman, 50 acres; D. B. and L. D. Frink, 100 acres; Frank L. Huff, 200 acres; C. Andrews, 200 acres; George Parkinson, 100 acres; W. H. Bates, 100 acres; D. E. Morey, 100 acres; I. Milner & Son, 100 acres; Alvin P. Rogers, 100 acres, and B. O., W. J. and G. B. Howard, 100 acres.

The interest in these irrigated Mexican lands is growing, and the cheap land and free water rights are attracting many investors from all parts of the United States and Canada.

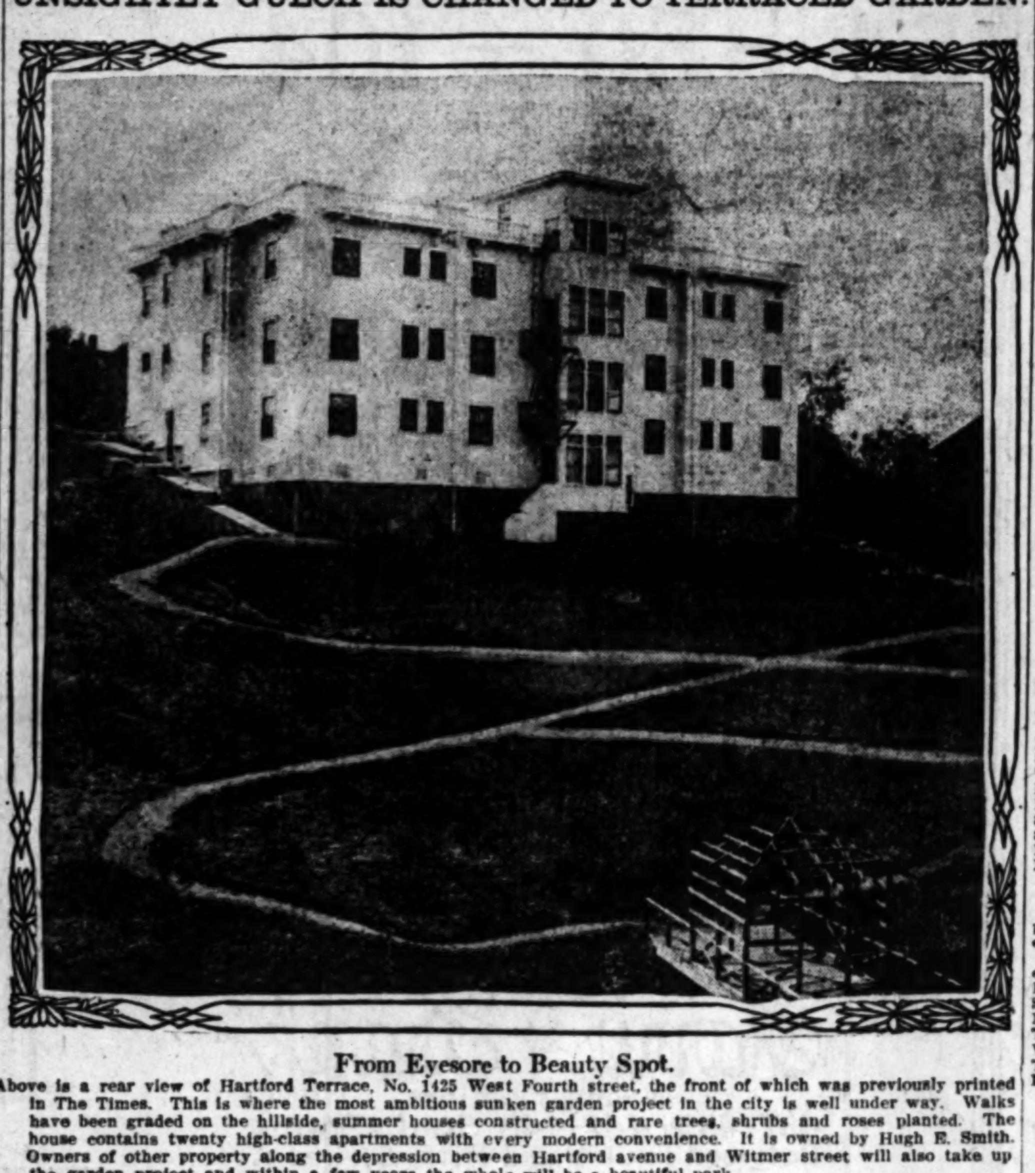
BUILDING COMPANY BUSY.

Local Concern Erecting Dozens of Handsome Bungalows in City and Outlying Towns.

The Security Building Company reports a phenomenal rush in business during the past two weeks. The managers say the outlook fo[r] the late fall and winter is most encouraging. Fifteen new homes have been contracted for, while the company is erecting many others throughout Southern California. The modern bungalow is the most popular style of residence, and the company is having numerous calls for such homes.

Among the contracts taken by the Security Building Company during the last two weeks are the following: Mary E. Hunter, four-room house; Dan Emmett, Jr., six-room house, Lancaster; Mrs. Esther Blair, three-room house, Somerset Acres, Herbert E. Sharp, two-room house; A. Shannon, six-room house, Arlington Heights; W. Q. Dodd, five-room house, El Monte; C. W. Owen, six-room house, No 1927 New Jersey street; Mrs. Frank Swain, four-room house, Inglewood; George W. Seward, six-room house, Alhambra; W. P. McBride, four-room house, Washington boulevard and Ivy road; Mary E. Seeley, five-room house, Sawtelle; Maud G. Jackson, six-room house, Glendale; J. M. Melvin, five-room house, Orange; Fred D'Acre, four-room house, Bellevue tract;

UNSIGHTLY GULCH IS CHANGED TO TERRACED GARDEN.



From Eyesore to Beauty Spot.

Above is a rear view of Hartford Terrace, No. 1425 West Fourth street, the front of which was previously printed in The Times. This is where the most ambitious sunken garden project in the city is well under way. Walks have been graded on the hillside, summer houses constructed and rare trees, shrubs and roses planted. The house contains twenty high-class apartments with every modern convenience. It is owned by Hugh E. Smith. Owners of other property along the depression between Hartford avenue and Witmer street will also take up the garden project and within a few years the whole will be a beautiful park.

FACT AND COMMENT.

trees planted years ago have grown up, spread across overhead, interlocking their arms, until they produce all the effect of the vault of some magnificent Gothic cathedral. Over in Berkeley and Alameda, too, there are ample lawns around the residences of the people, spangled with flower beds, dotted with flowering shrubs, and all kept in perfect order, charming the eyes of all who pass along. The effect produced upon visitors from San Francisco is very marked. Accustomed as they are to live in flats or separate houses whose front steps encroach immediately upon the sidewalk, void of a single living thing to set them off, inartistic in facade and so lacking in lawn or shrubs, when these San Franciscans ride through the beautifully shaded streets of Berkeley and Alameda they are naturally lost in wonder, but for some inexplicable reason it never occurs to any San Franciscans to raise a word of protest against the unbeautiful appearance of their own city, or to utter one plea for a change of conditions in these respects. It is not because they lack artistic taste or power to appreciate the beautiful. Why some one does not make some plea for different conditions in the way of cleaner streets or of thoroughfares better adorned with shade trees and shrubs is a question no one can answer.

—o—

Now for Home.

Is there on the face of the earth another city in all ways so conditioned to be really beautiful as our own Los Angeles? Here we have broad stretches of level land, rolling hills and mountain for a background and the sea far in the distance, a climate where all vegetation springs magically if it is given the opportunity. These natural conditions of this city would naturally suggest in the mind of one who had never seen it a city as beautiful as Brussels in Europe or as Washington in our own country. Those of us who have been here twenty-five years and have forgotten the beauty of the trees in our old home cities may think Los Angeles marvelously beautiful. Undoubtedly there are beautiful features in this city. Nature has made them and we could not destroy them if we would. There is the magnificent background of the rampart of mountains. There is the glint of the blue sea in the far distance southward. There is the blue sky bending lovingly to embrace the earth. There are our rolling hills and our broad plains. Land here is still cheap. By going a little way from the center one can buy a fifty-foot lot for $500 which in San Francisco would cost just about $5000. This gives us lawn space, and the people in their private home life manifest a great love for flowers and greensward. These features of the city attract a great deal of attention and are greatly admired by all visitors from abroad. San Franciscans rave over the beauty of Los Angeles, and well they may when they compare our conditions with theirs.

Where We Lack.

Nature has done everything to make Los Angeles the City Beautiful above all the cities of the land. We have done but little to take advantage of the limitless possibilities placed before us by indulgent nature. In the first place, Los Angeles is a dirty city. We have all heard of Lady Dufferin's epithet for Dublin, which she called dear, dirty Dublin. Los Angeles is dear to us, but the charm is in no respect enhanced by its dirt. We are not forgetting the vast extent of street to be taken care of, nor the fact that many of our thoroughfares are mere dirt roads, fit only for country use. But our paved streets are often very unlovely in their unkempt condition. We make a spasmodic effort once in a while to clean up, but what we should

Why no Trees?

But the marvel of marvels which caps the climax in the lack of beauty in the city of Los Angeles is the comparative absence of trees along the streets. Fact and Comment has fiddled upon this single string like a Chinese musician in the temple of the idol for long, long years. The tune may be discordant and monotonous, but these unattractive features perhaps will make it more emphatic. If we will think a minute about what might be in the way of shade trees in this climate where the growth of vegetation is so rapid, then think of what a charming prospect the streets of Berkeley present, the streets of St. Louis, or St. Paul, of the small towns along the Hudson River, of the cities all through New England, and then come back home and glance over our own municipal nakedness, we must entertain a mingled feeling of sorrow and shame. We need not go very far afield. Go into any of the few rather circumscribed districts in the city where those who laid out tracts planted them with trees ten or a dozen years ago, and after looking at the beauty of the scene, go half a mile into a district where the planting of trees was neglected, and the contrast is sharp. Los Angeles ought to be embowered in a world of shade. Think of the beautiful streets of Pasadena, our next-door neighbor, and contrast them with the bareness of our own thoroughfares. We ought to have several hundred miles of streets in Los Angeles this present Sunday over which the trees would tower twenty to fifty feet and reach their friendly arms across overhead in a loving embrace the effect of which would be to heighten the attractiveness of this city 500 per cent.

—o—

The Greedy Real Estate Man.

Those who laid out tracts in the city of Los Angeles generally had only one purpose in mind, to buy the tract at from $100 to $1000 an acre, lay out the streets at the least possible expense, ignore the future and sell them off as rapidly as possible at from $500 to $5000 a lot, then turn their backs upon the tract with their pockets bulging with gold. Former City Councils should have attended to this matter and made it a condition of accepting a new plot as an addition to the city that the streets should have been aligned harmoniously with trees. There is little wisdom in crying over spilled milk. The only recourse at this late day is in the hands of individual owners. They are unaccountably negligent about this matter. One is amazed in going in any direction through the city to notice how few property owners think of planting two or three to five or six young shade trees in front of their own homes. What a change might be wrought here in a short period of five years if we would all take this matter in hand at once and align our streets with trees. There should be some concerted action on the part of the owners of property along individual blocks, or better still, if a series of half a dozen to ten blocks could be brought into concerted action and all planted in about the same way. Two pepper trees or one pepper tree and one eucalyptus tree planted in front of a fifty-foot lot in five years will enhance the intrinsic value of the property $1000 or more. There are numerous varieties of palms, a couple of which in front of each fifty-foot lot in five years will transform a block from naked ugliness to entrancing beauty.

—o—

An Appeal to Property Owners.

We all know these facts and recognize their force, but so few of us act. Why can we not stir up a general interest in this matter? Why will not neighbor agitate the subject with neighbor, and this winter, the proper time for planting trees, create a movement that will start the work of making Los Angeles what it ought to be, the most beautiful city in America? The task before us is so small. Two trees in front of each fifty-foot lot will ture, the perpetual sunshine and the occasional rains of this glorious climate will do all the rest. The cost of the trees is a mere trifle, the labor of planting them about an hour's work, and then we may sit still and see them grow, and at the end of five years marvel at what a large result has come from so small an effort. Let us make Los Angeles more beautiful than Washington, and in this way five hundred times more attractive to the outsider than it is today.

SOUTH END BUILDING UP.

Great Improvements Noticeable Out Main Street and Moneta Avenue. New Homes Everywhere.

Great building activity is noticeable in the outlying districts along the southern edge of the city. A ride out Main street and Moneta avenue will disclose numbers of homes in course of construction, while indications show where other houses have recently been completed, all telling of the growth of the city, and an increased population. One can hardly look in any direction and not see a new building.

The character of the structures also is a striking point about this building activity. All, or nearly all, are of high-grade appearance, and some are really pretentious. The soil of the district lends itself easily to cultivation, and the new houses are surrounded by gardens, and lawns. A solid, substantial class of people are building out in these districts, the class that forms the backbone of the people. They will make homes here, and add to the material wealth of the city very considerably.

Here and there a cluster of subsidiary business buildings, often two stories high, rise, which take care of the varying needs of the districts in which they are built. The upper floors are generally finished in pleasant apartments, and these find a ready rental at the moderate prices asked. A rapid car service places the section as near the city as any other along the outskirts.

SELLS FINE ORANGE GROVE.

SOUTH PASADENA, Oct. 24.—H. W. Bailey of South Pasadena has sold his thirty-acre lemon and navel orange grove at Covina to Dr. C. L. Bennett of the City of Mexico, for $25,000. Dr. Bennett will build a $10,000 house on this place, and make California his home as soon as he can dispose of his interests in Mexico. Fifteen acres are planted in Eureka lemons, and ten acres in Washington navel oranges. Mrs. La Motte Holmes has taken out a permit to erect a two-story eight-room house at No. 1916 Huntington Drive, which will cost $4200.

BUILDING BOOM IN SAN DIEGO.

VALUATION EXCEEDS TOTAL OF NINETEEN SEVEN.

Great Activity in Erecting Handsome Houses, and Reports Tell of Growing Population—Demand Is Strong for All Classes of Residence Property.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 24.—With a continuance of the rate at which building operations have progressed during the summer San Diego will soon be a city of 100,000 people. Houses are going up in every section of the city that can be reached by the street car. Substantially homes are these houses. They are being built by former residents of the East and North, who have come here to make this their permanent home. During six days the Board of Works issued thirty-one building permits, aggregating in value $38,707. In the corresponding period last year the aggregate value was $25,750. Of the thirty-one permits issued last week all but four were for residences. The total number of permits issued since January 1 is 1005, and the aggregate value is $1,801,305. During 1907 the total number of permits failed to reach the 1000 mark. So far there is a gain in the year of 203 permits, and an aggregate value of $43,555.

Trading in residence properties continues brisk. One of the best sales of the week was the purchase of a lot at the corner of Third and Thorn streets by Charles S. Davis for $3000. Davis will immediately begin building a handsome home. Four lots in Park Villa, a growing suburb just outside the city limits, were sold by Magly & Brockmeier to Dr. S. J. Millsop and Rudolph Winter. Each secured two at $500.

Clark Braley, recently from Portland, Or., bought a new eight-room house and lot at the northwest corner of Second and Pennsylvania avenue from C. S. Davis for $7000. C. V. Norton bought of John D. King a lot 50x110 feet on Fifth street just north of University avenue for $3500. The location is suitable for business and Mr. Norton will erect a building. O. V. Sexton has purchased of W. H. Badger a lot 50x130 feet on Second street between Robinson and University avenues, where he will build a home.

Inquiries for locations for flat purposes are more numerous than ever.

Several sales in this line have been recorded within the last few days. The southwest corner of Second and Juniper street, 100x100 feet, has been purchased by Mrs. Ella R. Everts through Rice & Potter for $2000. The buyer is having plans prepared for a two-story apartment building. The same firm has sold to Clara E. Anderson for Mrs. Everts fifty feet of the same property. The purchaser will erect a flat to correspond with that to be built by Mrs. Everts.

AMERICA WINS COVETED CUP.

Vanderbilt Honors to Nervy Yankee Driver.

Robertson in Locomobile Captures Classic.

Lyttle Drives Close Second in Italian Car.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONG ISLAND PARKWAY (N. Y.) Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] America won the Vanderbilt cup here this afternoon when a Locomobile, built in Bridgeport, Ct., and piloted by a Yankee driver, George Robertson, finished first in the great American motoring classic, practically nosing out the gritty little English driver, Herbert Lyttle, in the Italian built Isotta Fraschini.

Robertson's time was 4h. 48 1-5s. for a course covering 258.06 miles. His 120-horse-power car was only 1m. 48 1-5s. ahead of Lyttle at the finish.

The winning car averaged for the 110 laps 64.3 miles an hour, beating the previous best American record of 64.25 miles, made by Lyttle two weeks ago on the same track.

Owing to the fact that the enormous crowd became unmanageable after the arrival of the second car, and piled in on the track, the race was declared ended by Vanderbilt after the arrival of the two first cars, although his own Mercedes, driven by Walter Luttgen, was credited with third place, while J. Florida, in another Locomobile, was given fourth place, in the unofficial time of 4h. 11m. 10s., the Mercedes being credited unofficially with 4h. 10m 35s.

The victory of the Locomobile, which was decidedly popular, was a fitting climax to the series of brilliant records which had been made recently in several big meetings throughout the country.

Lyttle's average in the Isotta was 63.88 miles an hour, as owing to the slippery condition of the course he failed to equal his record of a few weeks ago on the same course.

It is estimated that a quarter of a million persons saw the race. It was providential that it was not attended by a series of severe accidents, due to the utter recklessness of the spectators in crowding on the track. The only incident which might be regarded as an accident to a contestant occurred when Foxhall Keene's car took fire and he was slighted burned.

It would have given the average speed-law maker heart disease to see the cars shoot by the grand stand, barking like a battery of discharged Maxims, and emitting flames that would make a steel furnace look like a torchlight procession in a prohibition parade.

It was the first time in the history of American motordom that a car built in this country has won the Vanderbilt Cup.

American manufacturers were enthusiastic at the great victory which they scored over the foreign makes which have hitherto had a cinch on all the big events on both sides of the pond.

There was no fluke about the victory, it was clean cut, and the race between the Locomobile and the Isotta was a fight every inch of the way.

Outside of his driving, which was nigh faultless, Robertson and his mechanician, Etheridge, showed a finesse in handling their car at the different controls, when tires had to be adjusted or water and gasoline taken on, which was simply wonderful. They seemed to do everything automatically and with a rapidity that was amazing, with the result that little or no time was lost in keeping the car in going condition.

DETAILS OF RACE.

CROSSES THE LINE FIRST.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MOTOR PARKWAY, Oct. 24.—Florida was the first to complete the course, his time being given officially as 23 minutes and 10 seconds, but the best time on the first lap was made by Robertson. His time was 20 minutes and 54 seconds. His radiator was leaking badly, and he lost nearly a minute in replenishing it in full view of the grand stand.

The delay in getting off put Strang under a handicap of 28 minutes, and it seemed a forlorn hope, but he threw in his clutch, and set out to overtake the field.

The third car, Chevrolet's Mathewson, came to grief when it cracked a cylinder at Jericho. At the end of the derbilt Cup a little more than half finished, Haupt, in his Chadwick; Robertson, in a Locomobile, and Herbert Lyttle, Isotta, were making a desperate fight for leadership. Haupt had the honor at that point, but as he flashed across the line Robertson was tearing along only thirteen seconds behind him, pushing his big car to the limit of its speed. He went past the grand stand like a whirlwind, finishing his sixth lap at an average speed of almost seventy miles an hour. Forty seconds after Robertson came Herbert Lyttle. He was pushing his machine to its utmost in an effort to overcome the slight advantage Haupt and Robertson had over him.

RAIN FALLING.

A drizzling rain, which began just as dawn was breaking, turned a magnificent road surface into one that made each of the numerous sharp turns an extra hazardous task. Yet the cars kept right down to work, making up on the long back and home stretches what they lost at the angles.

Seventeen coughing, snapping cars lined up, and sixteen went off with a succession of pistol-shot explosions at 6:30 a.m. The "left at the post" car was the Renault, with Strang at the wheel. Something would not start, so Strang, with a smile on his face, allowed his car to be pushed aside.

Meanwhile, the barking, spitting cars were pounding over the course, the high-powered jumping ahead of their weaker rivals. Every car—including the Renault, which Strang patched up after half an hour's delay, completed the first round, but after that the race was a long chapter of accidents.

First the Mathewson and the second Thomas car, which Gill drove, dropped out. Then the Hotchkiss and the Acme retired, and, after going three laps, Strang gave up. But there was a dozen left to make the contest exciting.

The Locomobile car, with Florida at the wheel, had the honor of starting the day's spurt, followed a minute later by one of the Knox machines. Then came a Mercedes, with Stricker driving. The Chadwick car followed, the second Mercedes, driven by Luttgen, was fifth, and the Isotta, the favorite, left sixth.

ONE OF A DOZEN.

During the first laps a dozen of the cars still seemed possibilities. Then the race began to narrow. Florida kept his place at the head of the procession until the third lap, when tire trouble caused a halt and the Chadwick dashed into the lead.

For three laps Haupt drove with apparently no regard for his own or the machinist's safety, but on the seventh lap an accident caught him and he stopped to mend a broken magnet. Then the unbeaten Isotta dashed to the fore, with Lyttle, the hero of the Savannah races, Briar Cliffe and Lowell, driving like a fiend.

Robertson drove his Locomobile for three laps at an average of 66.3 miles an hour, making the first at a speed of 69.3 miles an hour. A bad tire stopped him on the fourth for two minutes.

Then came another stop, this time for water, but by lively work only a minute was lost. So lap by lap went the race, the excitement which had subsided a trifle after the first three or four laps, reviving as the end approached until the great crowd burst into cheers as the winner came flying down under the wire.

At the end of the ninth lap the race had become a hair-raising duel between Robertson and Lyttle. In spite of having to literally plow their way through the surging masses of humanity that only parted wide enough to let both hubs pass clear, now one, now the other hurled over the course at a speed of sixty-seven and sixty-eight miles an hour. At the end of the tenth lap Robertson led Lyttle by four minutes and ten seconds, an advantage the least tire trouble would wipe out and the excitemetn was at fever heat.

Robertson was proving the hero of the race, reeling off the first three rounds at an average of 66.7 miles per hour.

Completing the third lap, the Locomobile, driven by Robertson, led, followed by Chadwick, driven by Stricker, and the Isotta, driven by Lyttle.

Robertson made the third lap in 20m. 17s., which is the fastest time so far. He relinquished the lead on the fourth lap because of tire trouble. At the completion of the fourth lap, Haupt, in a Mercedes, was leading, closely followed by Lyttle and Stricker.

Official time, start and finish, Vanderbilt race: Driver Robertson, Locomobile, started 6:45, finished 10:45:48½, time 4h. 48 1-5s. Driver Lyttle, Isotta, started 6:35, finished 10:35:36 2-5, time 4h. 3m. 36s. Distance 258.06 miles.

SCRAMBLING.

HIGH SCHOOL AGAIN WINS.

Beats Pomona Easily in Fast Football Game.

Contest Marred by Fumbles of Both Teams.

Players Use Valuable Time in Fierce Wrangles.

L. A. High School, 14; Pomona College, 0.

A crowd of 1500 persons saw the speedy football eleven of Pomona College go down to defeat after putting up a gallant fight against Los Angeles High School at Fiesta Park yesterday afternoon, 14 to 0. Barring the frightful tendency of both teams to fumble, the contest was a great game, and the enthusiastic rooters were kept on the anxious seat throughout the two periods.

The Congregationalists held the heavier High team at bay for fully fifteen minutes of the opening half, and repelled nearly every trick and fine-edged play concocted by Coach Noble for gains against the collegians. Taking advantage of costly fumbles and intercepting several unsuccessful attempts of the forward pass, Pomona plunged through the High School defense, and nearly scored a touchdown.

By fast play on end runs the collegians carried the ball to High's 10-yard line, but could not continue the advance and there lost their only real chance to score. When the visitors were nearest to scoring Coach Noble appeared on the side lines until Referee Chisholm thought the High coach too conspicuous and ordered him to retreat. Umpire Rook came to the rescue, however, and Noble was permitted to remain where he was.

CASS STARTS THINGS.

Cass started the procession that resulted in the first touchdown in the first half by circling the Pomona backs for 20 yards at receiving one of Mahoney's punts. A forward pass netted 15 yards more, and a buck through tackle by Wingett added 5 yards, and High was on Pomona's 10-yard line. Decius fumbled and an exchange of punts followed, with High 5 yards nearer the goal than before the error. Winget pushed over for first touchdown. Decius missed the goal.

That was all Los Angeles could do in the first period. The second opened with even more spirit by Pomona. Coach Noble also seemed to have instilled more life in his men, and the conflict resumed with much rough give-and-take attack and defense on the part of both teams.

Superior endurance told the story, however, and High opened up its offense, circled the Pomona ends, punted freely, and executed the forward pass with great effect and precision. The college ends began to miss occasional tackles, and were less sure in passing the ball, and the backs more than ever before allowed themselves to be sidestepped by the Mercurial Cass, who made telling gains on snappy dashes around the ends.

The second score came early in the final period. High had threatened the college line from the opening of the half, and after a see-saw exchange of punts Cass caught a high punt from Mahony on the 50-yard line, drew his backs together to block the onrushing ends, dodged a college back, and sidestepped another, straight-arming all but one of the surprised Pomona tacklers, and was downed on Pomona 20-yard line. Two bucks netted but five yards and Decius stepped back for a place kick, sending the ball straight between the posts. Score, High School, 9; Pomona, 0.

The final score came even quicker. Much time had been appropriated by the players of both teams in beefing over decisions, and but six minutes of the twenty-minute period was left, when High punted from the 45-yard line. The Pomona backs fumbled the catch, and Geissler fell on it. A forward pass and two end runs by Brant advanced the ball 25 yards more. Pomona was fast becoming demoralized, and the youngsters simply waded through the tackles almost at will. The advance was checked but a moment on the one-yard line, when on the second down the collegians repulsed High within a foot of the chalk, but it was of no use. Winget smashed through again, and the score was 14 to 0, in High's favor. Decius was unable to kick goal, and the count remained thus till the end of the game.

Few games have been seen at Fiesta Park so early in the season, in which the play was so fast and furious. When the Pomona ends got down the field on punts—and they rarely failed to keep close to the ball—they tackled their opponents hard and low. High kept barely within the bounds of sportsmanship in their methods of defense and attack, and it would have taken a dozen umpires to have noted all the flagrant abuses of the rule book.

Beefing between the High School players and the referee was the most unpleasant feature of the game. Chisholm appeared rattled and ignorant of the new points of the game, and High players took advantage of this apparent deficiency to protest on every occasion. The officials allowed the back talk to continue, and throughout the game the High players kept up a running line of talk that spoiled the exhibition, and made the contest tedious and monotonous.

The fight was hot between the players at all times, and the game was open and characterized by an abundance of forward passing and onside kicking, that produced almost a constant thrill in the grand stand which was only broken by the beefing tactics.

FAULTS IN PASSING.

The one glaring fault in the play itself was the handling of the forward pass, both teams appearing to be amateurish at the trick and penalties inflicted caused the backs to be even more nervous in repeating the trick. Pomona tried the onside kick often in both halves and this, varied with end runs, were the only formations that resulted in the desired gains. High attempted a fake place kick, the kicker converting the play into a forward pass that nearly earned a touchdown. The visitors tried the same trick in the last half, but a fumble spoiled its probable effect.

Brant, High School's left half, sustained a broken rib near the end of the first half, but he gamely played through the period, and walked to the dressing room at the call of time. Boyle was sent in his place the second half, and played a strong game.

For the collegians Mahoney and Valle played a fast heady game. The Pomona backfield was fast, and the whole team quick in lining up. Kepner at tackle and Capt. Taylor at right guard formed a defense that baffled the determined rushes of Winget and Decius all through the first half, and were only crushed when the High School took its great brace in the last period.

Both Benner and Parker, and later Lorbeer, started at end, and frequently broke up the lightning end runs of the prep backs, and on punts were down with the ball nearly every time, generally tackling Cass in his tracks.

The visitors put up a far stronger game than was expected, and the miserable fumbling of the high backs took from the glory of the youngsters in their winning game, and the taking of another college scalp.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

HARVARD AND NAVY SPLICED.

Play Fierce Tie Contest in Drizzling Rain.

Sailors Have a Big Find in Punter Dalton.

Nourse Scores for the College by a Long Run.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) Oct. 24.—The big mid-season struggle on the Academy gridiron between the Midshipmen and Harvard was played today in a drizzling rain and the game ended 6 to 6.

The brilliant touches of color which had marked the parade from depots and cars were hooded and covered with the dull black of umbrellas. From under these peeped eyes of fair youth and grizzled beards of elderly naval officers. The younger naval element, like the true salts, braved the elements boldly. The score at the end of the first half was 0 to 0, and the situation showed Navy's line to be the stronger of the two, but the Midshipmen were not as consistent gainers as Harvard.

The advantages of speed and open play were shown in the fact that the Navy's only score was made on two well-executed end plays. The punting between Dalton and Burr showed that the Navy has a find. Dalton was almost if not equally as good as the Harvard man.

Reifsnyder made a touchdown for the Navy on a forward pass, receiving the ball from Lange just as he crossed the goal line. Northcroft kicked the goal.

Nourse got away for a long run and touchdown. Up to that time Navy was still playing a magnificent game. When the mass of Navy players crawled out from under the pile, the fleet-footed Harvard man had made his good run. Even the best players drove down the field on straight football and in addition to getting close for one try at goal, managed to keep the ball on the crimson side, in the middle of the field.

Northcroft played the best game in the field, although the whole Navy showed itself to be in good shape.

FORWARD MOVE.

WOULD LEASE ASCOT TRACK.

Auto Dealers May Acquire Fast Speedway.

Question of Race Sanctions Would Be Settled.

Course Ideal for Long and Short Grinds.

There is a movement on foot whereby the Automobile Dealers' Association may acquire Ascot Park for racing and practice purposes. The track would be put into shape at once and several thousand dollars would be expended to make the course ideal for speed work. There is a desire on the part of several members of the Dealers' Association to secure a long lease on Ascot.

With the auto men in charge the track would become one of the most frequented places for tryouts of different cars, and would be well patronized by those who desire to speed their machines over a mile course. Much work would be necessary before the track could be put into perfect racing shape.

Leon T. Shettler, formerly secretary of the association and now one of its prominent members, said yesterday that he is in favor of the Dealers' Association securing a five years' lease on Ascot Park. He is in favor of a plan to secure the park for racing purposes.

WANT SPEEDWAY.

"We need a speedway where we can send cars through faster than a mile a minute when we want to try them out," said Shettler. "What we need is a track like Ascot Park. We should secure a lease on it and begin to whip it into shape for fast work. I would favor a plan that would result in securing a lease on the property."

At present Ascot Park is lying idle. The track has been allowed to become soft. Weeds have grown over its surface and gophers and squirrels have delved into its once smooth face. The course has been given over to the ravages of a year or two of non-use and it is in bad shape.

The first work that has been done on it for some time was when the scrapers began to level some of the bumps Friday in preparation for the twenty-four hour automobile race. The track is in better shape today than it was a week ago, but even now it is far from being in condition for fast work.

FOR RACE SANCTION.

At present any one can come here and promote a meet. There is nothing to prevent some unscrupulous person from dropping into Los Angeles, and after securing a certain amount of patronage, begin a campaign for a race that would result in his gathering in all the money himself. With Ascot Park in the dealers' hands such an individual would be obliged to see the leading auto men before trying to pull off a race meet.

With Ascot Park in shape for racing and with the Automobile Dealers' Association in charge of the track, questions of import concerning racing deals which now arise could easily be settled. Every auto race meet held at the track would be sanctioned by the dealers. In this way it would be impossible for an outsider to step in and gather the proceeds.

The majority of the automobile men of Los Angeles would welcome a solution of the present perplexing situation. There is no one person who is willing to assume the responsible position of censor. The dealers could do this work without friction. All are agreed that some responsible body should speedily take hold of the local racing situation.

Apart from racing purposes Ascot Park would make a splendid course for demonstration purposes. Recently a car was sold on condition that it do a mile a minute. There was no course nearer than the Palisades at Santa Monica where such speed was possible, and even there the driver and occupants of the car were in danger of being arrested for speeding. There is a splendid grand stand, and the inclosure will accommodate several thousand persons who could gather at the finish. Everybody could easily be kept off the course.

TEAR DOWN FENCE.

Should the dealers acquire the track the inside fence would be torn down. There would be no need of an inside barrier for automobile racing. The danger of accident to drivers would be less were the inside obstruction torn down.

The Ascot Park track could be put into shape for the fastest racing possible. The ground is of such a character that it can be packed into a solid surface. The turns are wide and safe.

Another advantage is that Ascot is accessible. The run out Central avenue to the entrance, or out Moneta, is only a few minutes drive from the center of the city.

Agricultural Park is one of the fastest automobile courses in the world. Ascot Park is much the same style of course. There is no question but what Agricultural Park will eventually be sliced up into city lots. It will probably be some time to come before buildings and residences encroach on Ascot.

There is no reason why Ascot Park track cannot be made as fast as Agricultural. The course is wide, and could be harrowed and rolled. The track could be made an ideal parkway for cars.

There are many outside of the Dealers' Association who hope such a deal may be consummated. A speedway is almost a necessity, say many who desire to try the qualities of their cars where it will be safe to let them out to the last notch.

NAPLES AUTO ROAD.

Motorists Use New Highway to Sea and Makers Plan Automobile Day for Near Future.

Motor cars have been using the new auto road into Naples for a week, and all who have traveled over the highway report an exceptionally attractive ride, a well-made road, and a delightful place at its terminus to remain a few hours. The road is about two and one-half miles long. It has been graded, graveled, sprinkled and rolled until it resembles a fine asphalt street. Cars can make fifty miles an hour along its way, and there is no speed limit as yet.

Arrangements are under way to oil the sandy surface, after which it will be rolled again.

In a few weeks the Naples company will celebrate the completion of the auto road by holding an automobile day. All members of the auto clubs and others interested in good roads will be invited to pass the day at Naples as the guests of A. M. and A. C. Parsons. Launch and gondola rides, a

VOYAGEURS.

PORTLANDERS ON LONG TOUR.

FOURTEEN-HUNDRED-MILE JOG TO ANGEL CITY.

Lumsden Party Drive Overland from Northern Metropolis in Fifteen Days—Aged Woman Makes Journey Over Country Crossed in Early Days by Wagon.

One of the longest and most difficult tours of the Coast was completed last week by H. U. Lumsden of Portland, Ore., who drove his touring car from Portland to Los Angeles in fifteen days.

The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Lumsden, their son, Treve Lumsden, and Mrs. Lumsden's mother, 72 years of age. In addition to the passengers, baggage weighing about 200 pounds was carried.

They started nearly three weeks ago. There was no attempt made at a speed record. It was a leisurely pleasure tour for the purpose of seeing the country.

Mrs. Lumsden's mother, notwithstanding her advanced years, stood the trip well. She crossed the continent in a "prairie schoner" and was making the trip overland. She was delighted to tour in a car covering the same ground as she did with a freight wagon in the early days.

Lumsden reports the roads in fair condition all the way, except in the vicinity of the source of the Sacramento River, where he says the grades are steep and the turns very short, making it necessary to back up in order to turn the corners.

In a little town called La Moyne, in Northern California, Lumsden says the Board of Public Works has paid no attention to the needs of autoists. There are several rocks on the main street, he says, which cannot be passed by an automobile, only high-wheel wagons being able to pass them without difficulty. Several automobilists have experienced inconvenience at this point.

Lumsden's party discovered the difficulty before attempting to pass and ran the wheels up on the rocks and in that way continued their course. The party experienced no difficulty or trouble whatever on the trip.

Lumsden will make his home in Los Angeles. He desired to make the tour overland in order to get a better knowledge of the country through which he passed.

TAXICABS POPULAR.

Western Motor Car Company Will Add to Service Trim Little Machines to Keep Chugging.

Some months ago the Western Motor Car Company put two taxicabs in service in Los Angeles for the purpose of demonstrating their character. The patronage has been in excess of expectation and the number of taxicabs now in use is not sufficient to take care of the trade.

Primarily, it was intended to demonstrate these cars and sell them to some operating company, who would go into the taxicab business, but the service has been so satisfactory, both from the patronage of the public and the results, that the Western Motor Car Company has decided to operate this service itself.

An order has been placed for several cabs which will be here to take care of the tourist trade, and others will be added as the business may require.

GREEN-RED-BLUE-YELLOW.

Stoddard-Dayton "Forty" Is Done in Any of the Decided Shades and Is Attractive.

Fitted with a baby tonneau which gives the car a racey appearance, the Stoddard-Dayton "Forty," one of the handsome new models of the coming season, is attracting considerable attention. The car is stylish and fast. The motor is the valve-in-the-head type, used on all the Stoddard-Dayton output.

The lines of the car appeal to the observer after only a casual glance. The machine is light, but durable. The tonneau is detachable and the trim machine can be stripped to a roadster model if desired.

The transmission is selective type with sliding gears. There are three speeds forward and reverse. The propeller shaft of chrome nickel. The ignition is by jump spark. There is a four-unit coil on the dash. The car is equipped with a magneto.

No classier car than the "Forty" has been received by the local Stoddard-Dayton agency. The machine appears to be all that the makers claim for it. As a light touring car it is excellent and for fast work the owners claims it will hold its own with any make of machine.

The car is suited for California roads as it has a clearance of ten inches. The wheel base is 120 inches, and the tread fifty-six and one-half inches. The colors in which the car is finished are of the gayest. Greens, blues, grays, reds, maroons and yellows are the predominating shades.

Col. Brainard will have charge of a test of automobiles for military purposes that is to be made during the maneuvers of the regular army at Atascadero, San Luis Obispo county, Cal. The officials of the War Department are much interested in the experiment.

GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW.

Th Stoddard-Dayton Motor Car Company reports the following list of sales to date: E. E. Edmonds, model A touring car; H. D. Wood, model A touring car; Dr. A. F. Schiffman, model 9-K roadster; T. P. Roberts, 9-K roadster; W. R. Johnson, 9-K roadster; W. H. Halliday and Chauncey Clark purchased model K's; W. F. Cronmiller bought a seven-passenger and William H. Carter a five-passenger Stoddard.

A consignment of 1909 Wintons is expected at the Mission garage on West Twenty-third street and Vermont avenue. The cars should arrive this week.

P. A. Renton reports the sale of Great Smith roadsters to George A. Rathbun, manager of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, and Theodore B. Johnson. The latter's car is to be delivered here and Mr. Johnson will take it with him to San Diego.

In the absence of R. J. Leavitt, who has been called to Seattle on a trial which resulted in the killing of a pedestrian by an automobile, Samuel Maconnel is in charge of the Los Angeles Motor Car Company.

H. O. Harrison has secured the Apperson agency for the coming year. He is busy with Oldsmobiles, however, at present, and reports the sale of sixteen Peerless cars to date.

There are a number of bets being wagered on the result of the twenty-four-hour automobile race. The Franklin is the favorite thus far with the Sunset and the Chalmers-Detroit taking second and third place on the betting list.

Postmaster Motley P. Flint has purchased a model F Stoddard-Dayton touring car which was delivered to him the latter part of last week.

Leon T. Shettler expects to branch out into his Arizona territory and shortly will make a trip to Phoenix and vicinity. Agencies for the Reo and Kisselkar are to be established in the larger towns of the Territory.

The A. W. Gump Automobile Agency have already announced retirement from the retail business. Mr. Gump states that his larger field is bringing him increased business.

Carl Fisher of Indianapolis, president of the Pres-to-lite Company, will visit Los Angeles soon. He will pass several months here. He is an enthusiastic autoist.

Norman Church will leave today for a thirty days' visit to the Stoddard-Dayton factory at Dayton, O. He will look over the 1909 output, and, if possible, will hasten the delivery of cars on the Coast.

Reports along Gasoline Row this week indicate increased business and improved conditions. It was stated yesterday by one dealer that this month will prove the banner month of the year.

Dr. H. H. Stone, a visitor from Phoenix, Ariz., purchased a 1909 six-cylinder Winton yesterday from the Winton agency at the Mission garage.

The new line of 1909 Mitchells have arrived. The cars are fast and attractive.

LITTLE SPARKS OF MOTORDOM.

A twenty-four race is being planned by motorists at Nashville, Tenn.

The annual banquet of the Chicago Automobile Club will take place early next month.

The newly organized motor club at Kokomo, Ind. is arranging to open headquarters. It already has over 100 members.

Green county, Wis., has an automobile club with thirty-two charter members. Its headquarters are at Monroe, the county seat.

The Automobile Club of Camden, N. J., is signboarding roads in Camden county, which will greatly assist motor tourists bound for Atlantic City.

A motor hose cart with a capacity of 1000 feet of three-inch hose beside its crew is being built for the Waterbury, Ct., fire department.

The importance of the motorcycle has increased until there are at present more than twenty manufacturers of two-wheelers in this country.

Shipments of 1909 models are now being made regularly by many factories, virtually all of which report trade prospects extremely bright.

Automobile races on an ice-bound lake are to be conducted in conjunction with the Northern Games, at Stockholm, Sweden, in February.

Twenty-six Italian automobiles were received recently in New York, the largest single consignment ever received on one steamer at the port.

The three-day endurance run planned by the Detroit Automobile Dealers' Association for November 6 and 7 promises to be one of the most difficult contests of its kind run in this country. Several valuable trophies have been offered.

A reliability contest, with Minneapolis as the objective point, is being planned by the Milwaukee Automobile Trade Association. The contest will be pulled off late this month or early in November.

Members of the leading automobile clubs of Illinois are making preparations to renew the campaign in favor of good roads throughout the State. A good roads bill is to be introduced providing for convict labor.

Lautenschlager, the winner of the Grand Prix, is a clever and resourceful engineer. He supervised the building of his car and tuned it up carefully for months before the race, so that he knew its maximum powers to the greatest nicety.

Motor hearses will be exclusively used at funerals within three years, according to a prophecy made by a delegate to the annual convention of Wisconsin undertakers recently held at Eau Claire.

Experiments with slag roads are being made by the Department of Agriculture on stretches of road near Chicago and Birmingham, Ala.

Molasses as a road binder is being tested near Newton, Mass. The molasses used is almost a useless byproduct of the great sugar refineries

REUSS MAY RACE RYUS.

Pope-Hartford and White Steamer May Be Pitted Against Each Other on Baldy Course.

The defi of William Reuss for a race to the summit of Baldy has been accepted by H. D. Ryus of the White Garage, who is acting for Fenner. Ryus wants to pull off the race within ten days. Reuss has no car here with which he can race. There is an agreement between Shettler and Fenner that the race will not be run again for a year.

Ruess for a long time has desired to race his Pope-Hartford against the White steam car, and ten days ago posted his forfeit money, $250, with J. J. Jeffries for a race over the course with a side bet of $1000.

Ryus accepted the Ruess challenge, yesterday, agreeing to race within ten days. He posted his forfeit money, $250, it also being part of the $1000 side bet.

In accepting Ruess's challenge Ryus agrees to race Ruess on or before November 3, of this year, Ruess does not want to race so soon.

Fenner contends that a gasoline car will not stand the abuse necessary to drive at top speed over the Baldy course.

Ryus will drive Mercury, the steamer that won the race on September 20, and A. Forbes will be his mechanician. This car is an ordinary stock car stripped, and with extra tank on the rear, for extra weight, to keep her in the road. In all probability Ruess will strip his car.

The race will be run subject to the Baldy rules. The details will be arranged at a meeting between Ruess and Ryus tomorrow morning.

ELMORE'S NEW HOME.

Handsome Quarters on Olive Street Fitted up and Company Removes from Former Location.

The Elmore Motor Car Company removed to their new location yesterday, after nearly three years in their old location at Figueroa and Pico streets they are now occupying handsome quarters at Nos. 742-44-46 South Olive street. The location is one of the best in the city.

One of the features of the new place is the show room, which has been handsomely finished. It is 50x40 feet, with hardwood floors. It has a large sliding door, which opens into the work shop and garage at the rear.

This salesroom is light and attractive. The show windows in front are large, and the doorway is so arranged that the visitor entering the place sees at once the display of motor cars arranged on the floor.

D. B. Rose, manager of the Elmore Company, has spent weeks perfecting the details of the new place. His ideas have been carried out to the letter, and the new home of the Elmore is to the liking of the manager. The offices opening from the salesroom are comfortably furnished.

The entire building space devoted to the Elmore agency is 60x170 feet. In the rear is the machine shop, where $1000 worth of new machinery has just been installed. The shop is able to handle the most repair work of all kinds.

INTERCITY TOUR.

Bay Cityites Enjoy Jog Down Coast to Los Angeles and Return. Make Good Time.

Traveling from San Francisco to Los Angeles in an automobile without a mishap or trouble or any kind except a puncture, is the feat just performed by G. O. G. Miller and party, in his thirty-horse-power White steam car.

Miller left the Bay City a week ago Thursday with a party of seven, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Albert and Marian Miller, M. Bothane and R. Lynch—and arrived here Sunday evening. Miller's home is in San Francisco. He is president of the Pacific Light and Power Company there. His business necessitates his being in Los Angeles much of his time, and feeling the need of an outing he decided to make the trip, in his steam car.

Stops were made at Paso Robles, Del Monte, Santa Barbara and several other points of interest. They maintained an average speed of twenty-two miles an hour.

According to Miller, the roads are in good condition as far south as Paso Robles. This side they are not so good. In one place where the road had been torn up for repairs the car sank to the hubs in the plowed ground. In the Casitas Pass the sand is deep. Miller's White travels on an average of 1000 miles a month, in and about San Francisco.

The party left Thursday for the return trip, the machine not having been repaired in any way since it left San Francisco. While here the autoists took several side trips.

LONG ENDURANCE RUN.

Sixty Chalmers-Detroits Will Enter Non-stop Election Day Test Which Will Be Unique.

The Chalmers-Detroit factory will inaugurate a novel endurance run on election day. Each of its best dealers in sixty of the leading cities is entering a touring car in a 200-mile non-stop race. A control will be established at some point from which a circuit will be made of twenty-five miles, and each car will be checked in and out as it covers the point.

The purpose of this run is to show the reliability of the car and at the same time give many business men who could not well do so at other times an opportunity to examine it.

These sixty cars will cover about 12,000 miles, and it will be interesting to know the result of this test, as the same number of cars have never been entered before in an endurance run.

MOTORCYCLISTS' OUTING.

Bike Men Will Enjoy Spin to Venice Today and Will Bowl, Skate and Bathe.

The Los Angeles Motorcycle Club will enjoy a run to Venice this morning. Entertainment has been provided for the bike men at the beach city. It is expected that at least a hundred will take part in the spin. The cyclists will leave the clubhouse this morning at 9 o'clock, and are scheduled to arrive at Venice about 10:15 o'clock.

After the run to the ocean, dinner will be served at the ship hotel. Later the cyclists will take part in an impromptu bowling match. Sides will be chosen and a bowling contest will be enjoyed until 4 o'clock. The run back to the city will begin at 4:30 o'clock. There will be no speeding.

Tri-City Auto Club.

A movement is under way to organize the motorists of Moline and Rock Island, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa, into an automobile club, to be known as the Tri-City Motor Club. W. H. Van Dervoort, president of the Moline Automobile Company, of East Moline, Ill., is in line for the presidency. There are 2000 automobile owners in the three adjoining cities, and the outlook for a strong organization is promising.

The Locomobile has been winning track races all over the country. Leavitt has the courage to enter the car in any race where there is a shade of a chance to win. He is enthusiastic about the Phoenix race, and wants to win.

When ever Harmon D. Ryus grasps the helm of a steam car in a road race the others must look well to their laurels. When Ryus starts for Phoenix he will go like the wind, and will probably keep going. If he is allowed to take the car at Ehrenberg, as it seems probable, Fenner will have a man up who has heretofore been a sure winner.

Manager Mitchell of the Hollenbeck is in constant communication with members of the Maricopa Automobile Club, and all there are anxious for the race date to arrive. There is a programme of track events at Phoenix after the race.

Cars entered in the Phoenix contest will take part in track stunts at the Territorial capital. The "Reo Bird" has been shipped there for speed work.

AERONAUTICS.

Dr. Alexander Graham Bell is still a believer in the ultimate success of the tetradon style of aëroplanes and is devoting his time almost entirely to experiments in that line.

Wilbur Wright, who has won phenomenal success with his flying machine in France, cannot accustom himself to performing before the public. He says it prevents him from sleeping at night. He also dislikes early morning work.

The cost of propelling an airship has been found to be about one-eighth that of a boat, taking weight for weight.

According to Peter Cooper Hewitt, the well-known inventor, "The airship will prove somewhat cheaper than an automobile. The airship consists merely of canvas and a few bars and bolts and pieces of wire. The cost of roads which must be provided at public expense will be done away with. The cost of propulsion will be less than in the case of boats or automobiles."

The new Italian military dirigible balloon which is being tested is about 197 feet long and has a capacity of 88,275 cubic feet. It has the peculiarity of being two-storied, like aëroplanes, and of being provided with two cars capable of accommodating eight persons. Its envelope is cigar-shaped and of varnished silk.

Lord Northcliffe has arranged to offer, through the Daily Mail of London, a prize of $2500 for the first person who succeeds in crossing the English Channel, in either direction, by means of an aëroplane during the current year.

The village of Dunkirk, N. Y., has a coming aërial inventor. Despite the fact that he has twice fallen and broken his bones, Casimir Pienarski, 14 years old, is determined to perfect an airship. A year ago a balloon of his own manufacture dragged him across a meadow into a barbed-wire fence. Recently he fell from a high roof while testing a home-made parachute. And he says he'll try again as soon as he leaves the hospital.

A series of balloon flights will be made within the next few weeks at Fort Myer, Va., by army officers of the aëronautical squad. The Baldwin dirigible balloon which was sent to the military carnival at St. Joseph, Mo., a few weeks ago, has been returned to the fort and will be used. Speed and endurance tests will be made and night trips may be attempted. Experiments will be conducted to ascertain whether wireless communication can be maintained to and from the airship.

Mme. Therese Petillitier, a young sculptress, has gained the distinction of being the first woman to master the aëroplane. She made her first flight with M. Delagrange, on the military square at Turin, and after having been up with him for several minutes made an ascent alone.

The daughter of Count Von Zeppelin is said to have persuaded her father to permit her to make a trial trip alone when he is convinced that the airship on which he is now working is going to be a success.

Brig.-Gen. Allen, chief of the Signal Service, U.S.A., who witnessed the international balloon race at Berlin, will make a determined effort this winter to obtain a million dollar appropriation from Congress for military aëronautic purposes.

A Montreal inventor has gone to Paris to experiment with an aëroplane of his own design, the principal feature of which is that it can rise directly into the air without having recourse to wheels.

The first Russian aëro club has just been formed at Odessa, with Gen. Baron Kaulbars as president.

NATIONAL RIFLE MATCHES.

Changes Proposed for Classification of Contestants so as to Equalize Chances.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Important changes in the programme for the national rifle matches will probably be made at the next annual meeting of the national board for the promotion of rifle practice. A number of novel suggestions have been advanced, all being intended to relieve the situation incident to the winning of the first four places in the national team match by the teams representing the regular service.

So much distinction in the rifle world accompanies the winning of these prizes that the different branches of the services entered into the contest with great spirit. The army, navy and Marine Corps collected their most expert marksmen from all quarters, and spent months in selecting and training the teams which finally represented them. The National Guard teams feel that they are at a disadvantage under the present rules, as they are necessarily restricted both as to time and ammunition, while the regular service teams are not.

Again, the cavalry and infantry teams which represent the army, are chosen from fifty or sixty men who are regularly instructed in marksmanship, and whose pay is increased in proportion to their skill with the rifle. On the other hand, such teams as those from Oklahoma, Utah, Arizona, Wyoming and other of the States where the National Guard are numerically weak, are selected from a few hundred men whose instruction and opportunity to practice are necessarily limited. In many cases the States do not possess ranges of over six hundred yards, and yet their teams are compelled to shoot against the cracks of the army, navy, Marine Corps and of such States as Massachusetts, New Jersey and Ohio, all of which are equipped with excellent ranges.

The National Guard is, as a whole, willing and anxious to try conclusions with the army and other service teams, but there is a growing desire to see conditions adjusted so that especially the weaker States will have a better chance.

Among the suggestions advanced is that two prizes shall be set aside for the service teams, and that four prizes shall be distributed to the National Guard teams, all to shoot at the same time and place, and under similar conditions. It is understood that this plan is followed in English matches, where the volunteers are not expected to cope with the regulars, or the reserves with either the volunteers or regulars.

Another plan which meets with considerable favor, provides for dividing the contestants into three divisions, the first two to consist of seventeen teams each, and the third of the remainder. At Camp Perry, O., this year, there were fifty teams of twelve men each, entered in the national match, representing forty-five States and Territories, the army, navy and Marine Corps, and the Naval Academy. Under the proposed scheme the first seventeen teams would be entered next summer in the first division, the next seventeen in the second division, and the remaining sixteen, with all new entries, in the third division. Prizes would be offered in each division, and there would be a constant struggle among the teams in each division, and of the teams to get from the third into the second, or the second into the first division.

CLASSY ENTRY LIST.

EIGHT STARTERS FOR NIGHT AND DAY DASH.

THAT there will be at least eight starters in the postponed twenty-four-hour automobile race at Ascot Park Saturday now seems assured. The second delay probably will result in a larger field of starters assembling at the post than could have been gathered yesterday afternoon.

The cars which are almost certain to start are the Franklin, with Ralph Hamlin as driver; the Sunset, with Frank Free; the Chalmers-Detroit "Bluebird," with Bert Dingley; the White steamer, with H. D. Ryus; the Haynes, with George Barnes; the Locomobile; the Tourist, with George Kussman, and the Auburn. Possible starters are the Great Smith, the Reo and the Durocar.

With another week's work on the track the course should be in shape for fast work. Sprinklers were driven over the track yesterday and water was deluged over the surface. The turns were given special attention, and will be far safer than it would have been possible to make them for a race today.

With the meet still a week off it will be harder than ever to pick the winner. Ralph Hamlin held his place as favorite yesterday. In spite of the fact that at least three and possibly four other fast cars will be pitted against his six-cylinder Franklin, Hamlin is doped by the majority to win.

Hamlin has never driven a twenty-four-hour race. He won the fifty and hundred-mile races by heady work. His careful handling of his car no doubt pulled him into first place. However, when speaking of Hamlin, his speedy little roadster must not be overlooked. His Franklin "Six," which he will drive Saturday, is an exact duplicate of the car which won the long races at Agricultural Park. This machine is one of the fastest racing cars in town.

The Sunset is an unknown quantity in a twenty-four-hour race. Like Hamlin, its driver, Frank Free, has never been in a twenty-four-hour race. He has shown his class, however, in shorter dashes, and has won handily when pitted against speedy cars. Recently he cleaned up a Kisselkar driven by Bert Latham at Bakersfield. The Sunset car has shown woderful speed.

Bert Dingley, in the Chalmers-Detroit "Bluebird," will be an important factor in the race. His car will be the heaviest of any machine that will start, and may be hard on tires, but it will be the fastest on the track, and if Dingley can hold the turns he will give Hamlin and Free a desperate race.

An advantage which Dingley will possess over the Franklin and Sunset drivers is his experience. He has driven in almost every style of race. He is cool and careful and has the necessary nerve for just such a race as the night and day affair at Ascot will develop into.

There are a host of White steamer admirers who will wager their money on H. D. Ryus in the speedy car which will arrive from the factory this week. The Baldy race winner has all the nerve that is necessary to make a good track driver. He is one of the best road drivers in the West.

Not a driver in Los Angeles thas had more track experience than George Barnes. The Woodill Auto Company will enter a Haynes and Barnes will drive. At Brighton Beach a year ago Barnes drove third against a field of the fastest cars in America. The twenty-four hour race is to Barnes's liking and he will be a dangerous contestant.

Among the other possible entries George Kussman is possibly the best track driver. If he can get his two-cylinder Tourist into shape that car will start. The Auto Vehicle Company may arrange to start a fast four-cylinder car.

Much will depend on the work that Ike Schlank will do this week to get the track into shape for fast work. It will be necessary to spend several hundred dollars before the course is made safe for auto racing. If Schlank tries to postpone the meet again it will be a fizzle. It must be held Saturday if the management would hope for any measure of success.

Manager Schlank states positively that he will hold the race Saturday. There will not be another postponement, he declared yesterday. If the autoists fail to get their cars into shape Schlank will hold the meet with two starters, and the prizes will be awarded.

Handsome trophies, the first said to be worth $1000, have been hung up for the winner of the 1000-mile run. The prize is worth striving for and will be a souvenir well worth keeping. There are second and third-place trophies.

PROHIBITION AND REVENUE.

No Decrease in Number of Federal Licenses in the Dry Parts of the Country.

Prior to the adoption of prohibition in Georgia there were 110 saloons in the city of Atlanta, which represented that many retail dealers' licenses, says H. B. Taylor, examining agent of the Revenue Department at Washington. Up to date this year, more than 500 licenses have been issued to residents of that city. Mr. Taylor accounts for this by explaining that when saloons are closed in a large community "bootlegging" is commenced, and while this class of booze peddlers do not fear the local authorities so much, they do not like to take a chance with Uncle Sam. The government license is only $25 a year, and rather than take a chance of being picked up by the government authorities, which nearly always means a jail sentence and a fine in case of conviction, the "bootleggers" in most cases take out a license.

"There was a decrease of about $17,000,000 in the internal revenue collections this year," said Mr. Taylor, "which is attributed to the fact that the manufacturers of taxable products have not been turning out the usual amount of new goods, but instead have been disposing of the product on hand. Money has not been as plentiful during the past year as it has been, which, to a great extent, has lessened the demand for goods upon which the government levies a tax. The bulk of the products are more or less of a luxury, and when times get the least bit hard the people get along with fewer of the luxuries of life."

The Success or Our Auto Supply Department is the Topic of Talk

It has been successful. We question if another auto supply store on the coast sells more standard, guaranteed supplies. And there is a reason. Automobile owners are human. They want the best supplies that are to be had—they also want them at fair prices. They come to BULLOCK'S for them.

And the auto supply business keeps growing and growing. The bigger it grows, the broader the stock we can carry. And now it is hard to find the article your auto needs that we cannot supply.

MISERY.

ERRORS MAKE GAME A JOKE.

Champs Get as Many Bungles as They Do Hits.

Koestner Is Rapped Hard All About the Lot.

Two New Busher Players Are Given Try-outs.

San Francisco, 11; Los Angeles, 4.

The Champions didn't play much like it yesterday, and along toward the tail-end of the struggle some of the fans got up guessing contests to ascertain whether some particular player would make one error or two on the same play. It was all guesswork, and it seemed that no matter which way you guessed, the play came that way. When the local players pile up seven errors it can easily be imagined that they are away off their game, and they certainly were yesterday.

Errors are a lot easier to make than good plays, and ball players are no more perfect than other kinds of people, and yet one would think from what the fans said that it was a crime to make a mistake, and that yesterday's game was the kind the locals always put up. They simply played rotten ball, but at that were not half as miserable as thousands of other men are when they get up in the morning after seeing the milk wagons get away from the post.

In addition to the gum boots, the Seals climbed on Koestner for thirteen swats, and these were enough to win any game, for three were bunched in the first and five in the seventh, and these bombardments put the fans to sleep in a hurry. They woke up but twice, and both times the locals scored two runs.

Los Angeles had a new busher in right field in Encoe of the Edison team, and he made the fielding stunt of the day in a fine running catch, and he handles himself as if he might be made into a real ball player. The Seals also tried out a bush catcher named Eagle from the Edison team, but he had no chance to show himself. Probably all these boys need is to get on some good team.

There is no use in trying to write a history of such a game, for it was just a comedy of hits and errors. Koestner had nothing, and if he had, the Seals would probably have hit that. The Champions had their pictures taken yesterday, and they may think this was a hoodoo to them, but the truth was they could neither play nor hit the ball. Browning was in for the Seals, and held them to seven hits, and the score would have been 11 to 2 but for Browning's muff of a ball at first base in an effort to make the third out in the seventh inning.

In the first inning for the Seals, with one out, Curtis hit to Howard, who juggled. Zeider popped up to Wheeler, and then Bodie hit to left. Hogan tried to catch Curtis off second, and threw wildly, Curtis going to third and Bodie to second. Singles by Williams and Beck scored Curtis, Bodie and Williams.

In the fifth, Beck, Berry and McArdle singled, Mohler doubled, Koestner made a wild pitch, and Ellis let a ball get through his legs to the left fence and all this made five runs.

For the locals, a single, double and two sacrifice fly balls, made two runs, and two singles and a bad error .. Browning accounted for the other two. Every one was happy when it ended.

ALL-STARS-GIANTS.

NEGROES GOOD PLAYERS.

The All-Stars and Los Angeles Giants, the colored baseball team, are to meet at Joy Park Sunday afternoon in the first match of a series of three games. The Cuban Blues and Pioneer Stars, colored nines, will play a curtain-raiser, which will begin at 1:30 o'clock.

Buddy Clark is to pitch for the Giants. He has won twenty games for his team, which has only lost one contest in a schedule including thirty-five games. Sam Ferraris will be on the mound for the All-Stars. "Red" Taylor will umpire the game.

TWO GAMES TODAY.

SEALS' LAST APPEARANCE.

To celebrate the final appearance of the Seals here this season, there will be a double-header this afternoon for the price of one admission. The first game will be called at 1:30 o'clock and the second immediately after the first is finished.

TENTH INNING.

OAKLAND GOES TO PIECES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ferdinand Johnson, late of Alameda, pitched good ball for the Commuters for nine innings today, but after a three-bagger to the left-field fence was executed by Bobby Groom in the tenth, Ferdinand quit. His support fell to pieces and a game that was a tie was rapidly turned into game of ball and a tight one. Danzig, with his tripple, a two-bagger and a single, as well as two runs, was the distinguishing feature for Portland.

Danzig pulled down the first run when he hit to center, was sacrificed along to second, took third on an error and finally scored on a stolen base. His second tally came when he opened the sixth with a three-bagger that Van Haltren tried to trap, being scored by Bassey's long sacrifice fly to right. Heitmuller made a beautiful throw-in, but La Longe was not in position to tag his man.

The Commuters had annexed their two in the fourth. With one out, Hogan put the ball through short. Heitmuller retired on a grounder to first, and after Eagan put one to left, Duffey Lewis sent them both home as he shot the ball into right. Eagan had a tight squeeze to score, but Flynn called him safe, although it was a close decision.

The winning tallies came in the tenth, when the Commuters went to pieces. Groom almost put the ball over the left-field fence and did manage to make third. Casey was safe on Truesdale's error, but was forced at second by Cooney. Raftery hit a liner through the infield that scored Groom, and when Johnson attempted to bunt, Miller made a mess of the throw at first and two more runs were scored.

CUSTOMARY.

COAST CHAMPIONSHIP CINCHED BY ANGELS.

THE baseball season for the present year will come to a close next Sunday and the end will find the Los Angeles team as champion of the league, as it was in 1903-5-7. These results are worthy of more than passing notice, for never yet has Los Angeles had any particular encouragement from the league in the way of an official or an umpire, San Francisco, making it a practice to "hog" every position. These conditions make it plain to any fan that the reason Los Angeles has captured the pennant four times is due to the better class of players on the team and better management.

Much of the success of the team has been due to the personal popularity of Manager Henry Barry among the players and fans and the great ability of Frank Dillon, captain of the team. He has been quick to pick out good players, has taught them many of the tricks of baseball, and has treated his men fairly. Petty jealousies are practically unknown in the team and in these circumstances it has been easy to win the pennant this year.

However, as all ball teams become champions through the individual efforts of the players, a brief glance at the baseball history of our Champions will not be out of place in this final week of the season.

MANAGER HENRY BERRY.

Henry Berry, manager of the champions, was born in Mendocino county, Cal., thirty-nine years ago. He engaged in various enterprises in his younger days, and has an idea that he was a real ball player. He lived near Fresno for a number of years in his salad days, and in 1896 went to the Klondike gold country with his brother, Clarence, and there the two men made enough money out of their gold claims to break the backs of a dozen elephants, if they would try to carry it.

Henry came to this city six or seven years ago and bought a billiard-room on Spring street, near Second street, and when the Los Angeles baseball team needed a manager two years ago, Berry was there, and it is said that before he entered the game as an owner he had money enough to stand for even a losing team. He has looked out for the business end of the club, and, with Dillon's assistance, has won the pennant two successive years. He is a prince of sporting men, and will surely make the team win more pennants.

FRANK DILLON.

Of all the great players that Los Angeles has ever seen, the best that ever showed here is Frank Dillon, first baseman and captain of the team, who has guided the fortunes of the club for four or five years. The best evidence of his ability as a captain is the fact that in the six years he looked after the team it never finished lower than second in the league race, except in 1906, when six of its best players left and went East during the early part of the year. This loss of players so broke up the team that it finished third.

Dillon was born at Normal, Ill., in 1873, and began playing professional ball when he was 19 years old, or in 1894, starting as a pitcher for the Peoria team. He pitched there about a month, near the end of the season. In 1896-97 he played the outfield for the Rockford team of the Western Association, and was out of the game in 1898. In 1899 he began the season on first base for the Scranton team, but on July 4, was sold to the Buffalo team. Several months later he was sold to Pittsburgh, and in the spring of the next year, 1900, was sold to Detroit. He remained with that team until the fall of 1902, when he came to Los Angeles, and has remained here ever since as captain of the local team, except in 1904, when he played first base for the Brooklyn team of the National League.

Dillon has played in all kinds of leagues and knows the tricks of all kinds of players. He has made the Los Angeles team what it is, and has certainly produced one team in the league in which there are no rows and no petty jealousies. Besides being a fine captain, he is a great batsman and can play almost any position on the team. While not a hard batter he hits at the right time and plays "heady" baseball all the time. The fans can rest assured that as long as he remains at the head of the team, it will be in the front rank of any Coast League.

Dillon had an offer to go East this season and manage the Washington team of the American League, but turned it down, because he would rather play in California. The other teams in the Coast League are now realizing that one-half of the success of the Los Angeles team is due to Dillon's management, and are howling for managers as good as he is.

BERT DELMAS.

Bert Delmas, who is probably the best shortstop in the league, was born in San Francisco, December 4, 1882. He began playing semi-professional ball with the Healdsburg team in 1900. Two years later he was playing the professional kind with Henry Harris's San Francisco team as a right fielder. He played that position for three months, and then was moved to second base, and in 1903 played second base. In 1904 he played second for the Salt Lake team of the Northwest League, and the next year was at second for the Vancouver team, which was managed by McCloskey, now of the St. Louis Nationals. In 1906 he played third base and shortstop for the Fresno team of the Coast League, and came to the Los Angeles team last year. Talk about "wings!" Delmas has got the right arm for your life, and he has done the best short-that the ladies are overlooking something good here.

NORMAN BRASHEAR.

One of the most valuable men on the team is Norman Cobb Brashear, who is known as "Kittie." He admits that he was born in Mansfield, O., in 1879, and just about looks it. He began to play the semi-professional kind of bush ball around Chicago in 1898 and commenced his real career in 1899 with one month's play as pitcher for the Cedar Rapids team and the same year went to pitch for the Louisville team. In 1900 he was with the Fort Wayne, Ind., team, on first base and in 1901 played first base for Kansas City, which won the Western League pennant that year. In 1902 Brash was with the St. Joe team on first and in 1903 he was on first for Oakland and later was traded for Schwartz, the dicker being with the Seattle team. In 1904 he came to Los Angeles and was used as a utility man that year and the next year he was placed at short. In 1906 he was with the team until after the earthquake in San Francisco, when the then manager Morley released a lot of the players and with others Brashear went to the outlaw Pennsylvania League and played third base for the Altoona team until he returned here during the latter part of the season. For his 154 games in 1906 his batting average was .290. Last year he played second base until Third Baseman Jud Smith was injured and Brash was on third for the final two months. He can play almost any position and is a very valuable man on any team. He is the regular right fielder of the team this year.

JUDSON SMITH.

Jud Smith, the regular third baseman of the Champions, is a native of Brighton, Mich., where he was born in 1872. He began his professional career twenty years later as third baseman for the Butte team of the Montana State League, and since then has been a member of no less than six pennant-winning teams, in Jacksonville, Ill., in 1894; Toronto in 1896; Syracuse in 1897; Providence in 1900; Portland in 1905 and Los Angeles in 1907-1908. He played with Cincinnati in 1893 and with Jacksonville in 1894 and 1895. He played the greater part of 1896 with Toronto and then finished the season with the Pittsburgh team. He started in 1897 with the Syracuse team and finished the season with Washington. In 1899 he was with Toronto; 1900 with Providence and 1901 with Syracuse, playing the last month of the season with Pittsburgh. The next year he went to the Toledo team and came here in 1902 and stayed until 1905. In the latter part of that year he was suspended with Tim Flood for assaulting Umpire "Slats" Davis and was traded to Portland, where he played third base in 1906. Last season he came again to Los Angeles. After coming here in 1903, he studied dentistry and now has a good practice in this city. He is a fine third baseman, being especially good on bunts and his fielding and batting is good enough to keep him on the best team in the league. In the middle of last season he broke his shoulder blade in a game and had to retire for the season. This year he has been in almost every game.

"ICY" HOWARD.

Ivan Chester Howard, second baseman, nicknamed "Icy" on account of his calmness, is 25 years old and was born in Kenney, Ill. He played some amateur ball in his salad days in Kentland, Ind., and in 1905 signed as second baseman with the Omaha team of the Western League. He remained there for two years and last season, went to the Cedar Rapids Club of the Three-I League and played there until September 15 of this year, when he came to Los Angeles. Howard is not a fancy player, but is counted on as a sure one and while not a hard batsman, has led all the hitters several times and will be close to the top at the finish of the season.

ANDY BRISWALTER.

Andrew Briswalter, the young pitcher was born in Whittier nineteen years ago and began his semi-professional career with the Edison team of this city last year. He was signed by Capt. Dillon of the Champions last August and the question as to whether or not he is a pitcher can probably be figured from the fact that of seventeen games pitched against the Coast League teams he has won thirteen. In all probability he has a bright future before him in the heaving line and personally is a pleasant, agreeable little fellow.

ELMER KOESTNER.

Elmer Koestner, pitcher, is 20 years old and a native of Illinois. He is known as the hard-luck pitcher and probably has Oscar Jones beaten on this kind of a proposition. It seems that in about three-fourths of the games he pitches the players behind him boot the ball all around and his showing is naturally a poor one. He can pitch all right and will probably do better next year. He played his first professional ball with the Bloomington team of Iowa last year and was drafted this year by Los Angeles.

GEORGE WHEELER.

George Wheeler, one of the best men in the league, confesses to thirty-nine years on this earth and is a native of Meuthen, Mass. He began semi-professional ball as a pitcher when he was 16 years old and made his bush debut in 1889 with the Manchester team in the New England League. In the same year he went to the Lewiston team in Maine and remained there until 1894, when he went to Bangor for several years. In 1896 he was sold to the Philadelphia National League team and was there four years.

him in 1900-01 and in 1902-03 he came to Los Angeles. In 1904-5-6 he played with the San Francisco team as pitcher and utility man, but did not like the place or the team and when he got a chance to join the Champions last year, he grabbed it quickly. He can fill almost any position on the team and is a hard working, conscientious player who always gives the best there is in him.

CURTIS BERNARD.

One of the stars of the team of stars is Curtis Bernard, who was born in Parkersburg, W. Va., in 1879. His first real appearance was on the college team of the Blackburn University at Carlinville, Ill., in 1895-1896. He began his professional career with the Fall River, Mass., team as a catcher in 1897. In 1898 he played center field for the Albany team, and in 1899 he held the same position for the Buffalo team. In 1900 and 1901 he was with the New York Nationals, and played every position except that of pitcher. He did not play in 1902, but in 1903 joined the Toledo team. He came to the Los Angeles club in 1904, and has been here since. Local fans know his work well. He is fast on his feet; a fair hitter, good at sacrificing, is a fine base runner and can play any position acceptably. The only thing that keeps him out of the big leagues is that he is not thought to be a hard hitter.

This is probably his last year in professional ball, for he has graduated in a school of ostheopathy and will become a regular pratitioner. The fans are sorry to lose him for there was never a more popular ball player on this Coast. He is a gentleman on and off the field.

WALTER NAGLE.

Of all the players the champions have ever had, none has given more satisfaction than Pitcher Walter Nagle, who confesses under pressure that his middle name is Harold. He don't look or act like it for he is not only one of the best pitchers the team has ever had, but can play many positions and bats like a wild man when he is not pitching. He was born in Santa Rosa, in this State, in 1880, and in 1900 began playing semi-professional ball with the Santa Rosa team as third baseman and left fielder. He plays ball because he likes the game, and not because he "has to," for he is a bank clerk by profession, and worked in a bank for several years before going into baseball. In the first part of 1905 he played with the Haywards team, and came here in October of that year to pitch for Los Angeles. He has always been considered by many fans as the best pitcher in the league, and plays almost all positions with equal ability, and is a good batsman and fielder.

WILLIAM DENTON GRAY.

William Denton Gray, the best pitcher of the team, and the best and most reliable in the league, was born in Houghton, Mich., in December, 1878. He played his first semi-professional ball in Arizona in 1896, and appeared in all parts of the Territory for the next five years. He came to the Los Angeles club in 1902, and played here until after ex-Manager Morley "released" the players, following the earthquake in San Francisco last year. Thinking he was free, Gray went to the Pennsylvania outlaw league, and pitched several months for the York and Johnstown teams, and also for the Cumberland team of the P.O.M. League. He returned here the latter part of 1906, and has pitched regularly every week since then.

Gray is a remarkable pitcher, for he and they ran up against Hosp as the pitcher of the Griefer team. He did so well that Berry engaged him and he joined the Champions in May of last year, and is near the top in the average of pitchers for this year. He is a heaver with big class, and the Champions are lucky in being able to keep him another year.

ELMER THORSEN.

Elmer Thorsen, one of the new pitchers, is 22 years of age and was born in Elliott, Ill. He began playing semi-professional ball at Saunemin, Ill., as a pitcher in 1906 and after playing with the Bloomington club for two weeks of that season was farmed to the Grand Forks team of the Northern Copper League in South Dakota. The league broke up in the latter part of July of that year and Thorsen went back to the Bloomington team and finished the season.

He played with Bloomington last year, until drafted last fall by the Los Angeles team. He has not been in condition since coming here and has pitched in very few games, but did remarkably well for one out of practice so long. Like Boomey Overall of the Cubs, he may be "a late one," who will require a season of defeats to make him good.

ENNIS OAKES.

Ennis Oakes, the crack center fielder, is one of the best the local team ever picked up, for he is a fine, graceful fielder, full of life, fast on the bases, good at reaching first and a very fair hitter. He is 24 years of age and a native of Homer, La., and thus comes naturally by the nickname of "Rebel." He started semi-professional ball in Meridian, Miss., in 1904, as a second baseman. He did not play during 1905, except in the last month of the season, and then with the Greenville, Miss., team, which won the pennant that year in the Cotton States League. He worked there as center fielder.

In 1906 he played center field for the Cedar Rapids team, which won the Three I League pennant. He was with that team last year, but it was fourth in the pennant race. Oakes was drafted by the Los Angeles Champions last fell and has certainly made good, both as a citizen and a ball player.

TEDDY EASTERLY.

Theodore Easterly, familiarly known as "Teddy," is 22 years of age and was born in Lincoln, Neb. He has been in this end of the State a number of years and began playing semi-professional ball in 1905 with the Pasadena amateur team and also with other amateur teams in this city and vicinity. Last year he caught for the San Diego team and in the latter part of the season signed with Los Angeles and has played here this year. He is a very promising "busher," being a good catcher and a hard batsman, near the top in the list of average.

Frank Chance of the champion Chicago Cubs wanted to buy Easterly, but Manager Berry asked too much for him for mid-season delivery. During the past month two or three clubs in the big leagues put in drafts for him, and the Cleveland club of the American League secured him. Later on the club turned him back and still later where he will play next year. He may be in Los Angeles.

PAT PHILLIPS.

Lewis Phillips, or "Pat" as he is called, is a St. Vincent's College boy. He was born in Fort Worth, Tex., and was brought here when about one year old and has resided ever since at his home in Downey. While attending St. Vincent's College he joined the baseball team and pitched there in 1906 and 1907, signing with the Champions when the present season opened. He has been sick and out of condition almost all of this season and has pitched but few games, but in these he has shown sufficient class to belong to the Champions.

HARVARD FIVE WINS.

Defeats South Pasadena High School Team in Game Scheduled by County League.

Harvard Military School defeated South Pasadena High School at basketball yesterday morning, on the South Pasadena courts, by a score of 29 to 18.

Some of the players of the High School did excellent work, but the team work of the five was not good. Their best player was Padlock.

Fowler played a good game for the cadets. He was speedy and seemed to have little trouble in evading his guard. Whitman, captain of the visitors, did well at center.

The line-up:

Harvard.		South Pasadena.
H. Mitchell	right forward	Feay (c.)
Fowler	left guard	Padlock
Whitman (c.)	center	Thomas
Levy	left guard	Hunter
E. Mitchell · Beach	right guard	Horton

GIRLS MAY PLAY.

BRADEN IS INTERESTING.

Occidental College girls may play intercollegiate basketball this season, if Physical Director Braden is able to induce the faculty to remove the ban which has been upon the game. Two years ago the faculty decided that the young women could no longer play outside teams, but must confine their basketball to interclass games.

Many of the young women were reluctant to give up the game, and have since requested that they again be permitted to meet the girls of other colleges on the basketball court, but as far as the faculty was concerned, "there was nothing doing." Now Physical Director Braden has arisen as the champion of the young women, and it is probable that he will prevail upon the college management to resume the intercollegiate games. Braden has been getting practically everything he wants in the athletic line at Occidental, and if he thinks the girls should play intercollegiate games, the faculty probably will think so, too.

OCCIDENTAL ELEVEN DEFEATS WHITTIER.

OCCIDENTAL COLLEGE, 25; Whittier College, 6.

Superiority in all departments of the game gave the Presbyterians a one-sided victory over Whittier College in their annual football game yesterday afternoon on the Occidental campus. The Quakers made a gallant fight against their more experienced and better trained opponents, but the heavy line bucks and open formations to which Occidental resorted pushed the Quakers all over the field.

"Big" Renneker, the Quaker halfback, played a great game for Whittier, crashing through the Presbyterian line for heavy gains and making the Quakers' only tally. He intercepted an Occidental quarterback kick on his own 50-yard line and ran the full length of the field for a touchdown. Wells kicked the goal. Renneker was really the whole Quaker team. On defensive work he backed up the line and loomed up big in comparison with his teammates.

Short scored a safety against his team by poor headwork. Thomas failed at a try for a goal from the field, and Short received the ball behind his own goal line. Instead of touching the ball down, he started to run it out onto the field of play, but was downed before he had advanced across the goal line. A long dispute arose as to whether or not the play was a touchback, but the referee finally declared a safety.

More than 1000 spectators were in the stands when the game began. A delegation of students arrived with the Whittier team and the Quakers cheered lustily even after victory had become an impossibility. The match was late in beginning on account of the length of the Polytechnic-Redlands game, which preceded it, and the players did not have to play in the heat which oppressed the Rugby men.

Capt. Wieman of Occidental was forced to leave the game in the second half, after a fierce tackle by N. B. Renneker. The Presbyterian leader entered the game with a weak knee and misplaced rib, and the shock of an unusually hard tackle rendered him unable to finish the game. Wieman greatly outdistanced Short in punting, and played a strong game.

Both teams used forward passes with varying success. When executed they netted large gains, but the penalties inflicted for failures caused many losses. Occidental tried a couple of fake plays without success. Neither side extensively resorted to onside kicks, and in the main the play consisted of tackle line plunges and end runs.

Collins played during three-quarters of the game, although it was not expected that he would be able to get into the contest on account of numerous injuries. Landreth carried the ball well on cross-tackle bucks, and was strong in defensive work. Johnson hit the line hard, and Fred Thomson was a tower of strength in all departments of the game. After Capt. Wieman left the game, Thomson did the punting and made an excellent showing.

Occidental scored a touchdown five minutes after the game began. Whittier won the toss and chose the west goal, with the sun at their backs. Wieman kicked to Wells, who fumbled the ball. Renneker fell on it, and the Quakers were unable to gain. Short kicked to Thomas, who made a pretty run of 30 yards, planting the ball on the Quakers' 20-yard line. A series of line bucks carried the ball within 2 yards of Whittier's line, and Johnson was sent through tackle for a touchdown. Wieman kicked the goal.

The Presbyterians' second touchdown resulted from a 50-yard run by Fred Thomson, who broke through center and bowled over everybody in his path. Wieman missed a difficult goal.

Whittier took a brace toward the latter part of the second half and made first down several times on line bucks by "Big" Renneker, but outside of the touchdown made on a fluke they were never within striking distance of the Presbyterians' goal. The line-up:

INDIANS TOO HEAVY.

WIN FROM U.S.C. LAWYERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Sherman, 40; U.S.C. Law School, 0.

With endurance, speed and superior training in their favor, the Sherman Indian football team defeated the University of Southern California Law School eleven by the decisive score of 40 to 0 this afternoon. The game was played at Evans's Athletic Park before a good-sized crowd.

Victory for the local huskies was assured from the start, and the only thing to be decided seemed to be the size of the score they would be able to pile up against the Los Angeles men. The attorneys outweighed the Indians but lacked speed and training, and throughout the game showed fear of Sherman's strong line.

During the first half there was considerable fumbling by the Indians, due to their overconfidence. Throughout the second half the superior strength of Coach Warner's braves demonstrated itself and the aborigines were able to score almost at will.

Sherman kicked off to the lawyers and three minutes later Calac, one of Warner's stars, rushed over the line for a touchdown. Although it was seen that Sherman would win easily the Indians somewhat disappointed the spectators for a few minutes by fumbling. The other touchdown in the first half was made toward the end, when Willets rushed through center. Both goals were kicked by Ardio.

Five touchdowns were made by the Indians in the second half, by Calac, right end; X. Bullock, quarterback; Campbell, fullback; Twoy and Willets left end. Ardio kicked three goals.

The feature of the work of the lawyers was the playing of Kidder, whose tackling kept the Sherman backs from making many gains. Calac's tackling and end running, and Smith's great running were the features of the Indians' playing. During the second half, Coach Warner put in a number of his second team men.

The officials of the game were Ethelbert Dole, referee; Pierce of Amherst, umpire, and Phillips of University of California and Boles, captain of the Sherman team, linesman.

RUGBY PRACTICE.

A practice Rugby game was played between the High Schools of San Bernardino and Riverside this afternoon, in which neither team was able to score. Both teams were evenly matched, but showed a lack of knowledge of the game. The Citrus Belt League season will begin November 17 and the pennant will be contested for by Riverside at San Bernardino and Redlands and Pomona.

CALIFORNIA WINS.

TWO GAMES AT BERKELEY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERKELEY, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] California field was the scene of two blue and gold victories this afternoon, when the 'varsity defeated the Barbarians, 17 to 6, and the second team won from the Olympics, 10 to 3.

Both games were fiercely fought throughout. The 'varsity showed its first flashes of good rugby this season. Freshmen Elliott, Evans and Watts were played, while several 'varsity backs rested. The Barbarians' tries were both flukes due to 'varsity fumbling.

The 'varsity's first try was made by Johns, who secured a pass from the scrum and ran 45 yards through the Barbs. Butler failed to convert. The Barbs soon started a dribble and the 'varsity fumbled in blocking. Goddell fell on the ball just on the line and tried. Harry Elliott failed at goal. Webster secured on Lloyd's line out and rushed over for the second try; Butler failed to convert. The half ended on the Barbarians' 25-yard line.

The Barbs scored early in the second period by rushing the 'varsity backs and falling on Johns's fumble while he was trying to save. Elliott failed to convert. Play continued in Barbarians' territory, but penalties spoiled several 'varsity chances. Finally the 'varsity scrum screwed over for a try, which was not converted. Solinsky secured from a pass and dodged over for a score. Webster then took a similar pass and plunged through the pack. Elliott converted the last try.

The second team made its first score after passing a rush, when Fairbanks tried and Emmert converted. In the second half Kerrigan ran 35 yards through a close field for the Olympic score. He missed a difficult goal. Markwart made the last try by a buck from the 3-yard line. Emmert converted.

HOT FOOTBALL.

U.S.C. BEATS ARROWHEAD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The football team of the University of Southern California defeated the Arrowhead eleven in a fast game here this afternoon, the score being 28 to 0.

The Arrowheads put up a hard game, but were outpointed by the superior playing of the visiting team. The game was hard fought and several players were knocked out for brief periods. Burr Huyck, Arrowhead's right half, sustaining a broken nose.

Williams kicked off for U.S.C. to McGuiness, who carried the ball back five yards. The Arrowheads could not make the necessary yards, and Scott made a clean punt to the U.S.C., who returned the punt. The ball seesawed back and forth, the teams being evenly matched.

Burek, U.S.C.'s captain, replaced Williams at full and quickly rushed the pigskin over the goal line. Paulin kicked goal, score 6 to 0.

Scott for the Arrowheads kicked off to Burek, who made a star run for 20 yards, McGuinness secured the ball on a fumble, but the Arrowheads again failed to gain and U.S.C. captured the ball on a forward pass. On line bucks, Burek again crossed the goal line, but Paulin failed to kick goal. Score, U.S.C. 11, Arrowhead 0.

In the second half, Scott kicked off for Arrowhead, and Ickes for U.S.C. made a sensational 20-yard run. Haigler tore through tackle for a 25-yard run and a touchdown, giving the visitors 22 points. Burek scored the last touchdown and Paulin kicked goal.

POMONA HIGH WINS.

CASTAWAYS LOSE FIRST GAME.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

POMONA, Oct. 24.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Castaways played an exciting game of Rugby football with Pomona High this afternoon; score: Pomona 9, Castaways 6.

In the first half after excellent passing Weber of Pomona, crossed the line for a try.

Soon after the second half began Brewer received a throw out and crossed the line. Another passing rush followed and Teague made a try. The Castaways scored both tries by dribbling.

Tom Higgins of Castaways was laid out for a short time. The Pomona forwards played an excellent game and the passing of the backs was fine. This is the second game Pomona has played this season and the team shows great improvement since last Saturday. They intend to give Poly a hard game here next week. The Pomonans speak in praise of the square playing of the Castaways. The visitors only had twelve regular players.

NEITHER SCORES.

PRINCETON AND SYRACUSE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PRINCETON (N. J.) Oct. 24.—Princeton and Syracuse played a great tie game today, neither side scoring.

In the first half the Syracuse heavy lines showed a heavy defense to Princeton's attacks. In the first few minutes of play Princeton got the ball on Syracuse's 20-yard line and Cunningham dropped back for a kick.

The pass was high and the attempt failed. This was the only opportunity to score by either team. A heavy downpour of rain made the handling of the ball very difficult.

In second half by constant battering of Princeton's line by masses on tackle, Syracuse kept the Tigers in their own territory for the first ten minutes, threatening to score on several occasions. Syracuse did not get nearer than the 15-yard line, however, when Princeton held for downs. Time was called with the ball in midfield.

Rain completely drenched the large crowd.

Final: Princeton, 0; Syracuse, 0.

CALIFORNIA FIFTEEN.

GREAT FIGHTING MACHINE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Oct. 23.—The hardest sort of training for the 'varsity has been the order with the big game but four weeks away and all appearances in favor of the Cardinal fifteen. For nearly two hours every night from now until November 14, will the men of the Blue and Gold scrum and kick, pass and tackle.

With the exception of minor injuries the whole squad is in good condition, while the number of men trying for the 'varsity has been increased by the addition of eleven men from the victorious freshman team of last Saturday. They are Carpenter of Pomona, Phleger, Hansen and Barnett from among the forwards; Gabriel of Pasadena, Evans of Pomona, Watts, Harris, Lawton and Abbott from the backfield. With the freshmen, the 'varsity squad totals fifty.

Several of the freshmen are considered as having excellent 'varsity chances, chief among them being Gabriel, Evans, Hansen and Bennett. The coaches plan to pick the provisional 'varsity this week and play the men so selected throughout the rest of the season. This will be in accordence with the policy of the coaches as outlined at the first of the season and emphasized by a statement of Capt. Ralph Butler today.

Butler said that up to the present week the team had been playing poor Rugby owing to the fact that the coaches had persisted in the policy of trying the different candidates in the various positions in an endeavor to find fifteen men whom they think capable of defeating Stanford.

Because of this policy there has been no attention to the finer points of team work and this has been in direct contrast to the policy of Lanagan and Presley, who practically picked their team at the beginning of the season and have played the same men together all the time. This has been possible at Stanford because the Cardinal had fifteen men last year capable of winning a victory while California did not. Hence it has been up to Dr. Taylor to find fifteen men who can turn the trick this fall.

According to Capt. Butler it also stands to reason that some of the men who made the 'varsity last season will not make it again this year, because they were not capable of bringing home a victory, and men have been developed to fill their places who seem to have the ability to bring home the bacon at last. At any rate the coaches will make a selection this week and their choice will be watched with eager anxiety by every California undergraduate.

There remain four games before the big match and the schedule now contains the two international matches with Vancouver on October 28 and October 31, and an intercollegiate game with Nevada on November 7. Next Saturday the San Francisco Barbarians will play. A post-season game is scheduled with Nevada at Reno on Thanksgiving Day, while if California is victorious in the big game, the team will go to Vancouver at Christmas.

At the present time owing to the comparative showings of the two teams odds are heavily in favor of Stanford, yet the local rooters who are following every move of the coaches from the bleachers smile grimly and say "Wait," when queried as to their opinion on the outcome of the game. There is no feeling of confident assurance, but simply a feeling that the 1908 California fifteen will be the hardest bunch of fighters that has represented the university for years, and that Stanford is very likely to receive an unexpected surprise.

Ten men were put on the 'varsity training table, which started this evening at Hotel Carlton. For a time but one meal a day will be served, but this will probably be increased to two in the very near future. Breakfast will not be served to the men as the coaches think it better to let the men sleep than get them up for an early breakfast. The men put on the table tonight include Budelman, Barnicott, Freeman, Farmer of Hanford, Sorenson and Swartz from among the forwards, and Capt. Butler, Cerf, Dwiggins and Paul from the backfield candidates. Swartz, who hails from Fresno, and Paul, who is from Hollywood, are the only men in the number who are not veterans of intercollegiate 'varsity games.

ANOTHER TIE GAME.

LONG BEACH HAS KICK.

Hollywood High School and Long Beach High played a tie game of football yesterday afternoon on the Hollywood High campus. Neither side scored.

The game was one of the slowest that has even been played at Hollywood. Taylor, Hollywood's captain, was out of the game, and Lewis and Tuller, neither of whom have played the position before, made many blunders in calling the signals.

This is Long Beach's first year at football, and the team's second game. The Beachcombers are husky fellows, averaging 150 pounds, but have not had much practice, and play a loose game.

Bushnell and Peters, tackles of the foothill school, played the best game for their team. Knowles did well at full. Rees was the best player for the visitors, and Smith and Davis also played a good game.

In the second half, the Long Beach boys threatened to leave the field, because of what they thought to be an unfair decision. In trying the forward pass, Smith passed the ball to Davis, who threw it to Funk. Lewis of Hollywood tackled Funk, and he dropped the ball, which was picked up by another Beach player, who carried it across the line, and the Long Beach men, not knowing that no one except Funk, after catching the ball, could carry it, thought they were entitled to a touchdown.

The Long-Hairs say that they will contest the game, even after the umpire's decision, and after being shown that they were wrong. Capt. Taylor of the Hollywood team, said last night that he would gladly make arrangements for another game if Long Beach is not satisfied.

The following is the line-up:

INDIANS TIE SCORE.

HARD GAME WITH PENN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Today's game with the University of Pennsylvania was the most important contest on the Indians' long schedule, and Carlisle tied it, 6 to 6.

The Pennsylvania eleven went into the game minus its star quarterback, and with Capt. Hollenbach in a battered condition. Otherwise, the team was in excellent physical condition. The weather condition were good. More than 20,000 persons witnessed the game.

Line-up:

THE CRIPPLED LIST.

FOOTBALL ON THE BUM.

Grepe, the regular left guard on the Harvard Military Academy team, has water on the knee, and will be unable to play for several weeks. Coach Boren will take the cadets to San Diego next Friday night to play a return game with Russ High School Saturday afternoon.

Collins, Occidental right halfback, and McDermont, right tackle, are badly battered, and have been unable to practice regularly for a week. They probably will be in good condition for the game next Saturday.

Decius, the High School halfback, is suffering from a "charley horse," sustained in the St. Vincent's game. Louis Cass has a weak knee that bothers him in competition.

What is the Measure of Quality?

IS THE STANDARD of automobile quality controlled by the highly colored advertisements you see in the papers? Is it controlled by the number of cars built, or any of the numerous reasons given these days? There is but one answer to these queries—No.

QUALITY—Webster's definition of the word is, "Nature or character relatively considered." Compare Stoddard-Dayton cars with others—what is its relation to other cars? Stoddard-Dayton cars are built; then the price is determined; not a case of "we will build a car for such a price," and then build the car to come within that price. Not a case of building thousands, buying a piece here and a piece there, and call it manufactured. Stoddard-Dayton cars are built in The Dayton Motor Car Company's plant. Each piece entering into the construction is carefully analyzed and subjected to the most severe tests before being put into the car. Workmanship is of the very highest grade. The attention paid to details, the courteous treatment given Stoddard-Dayton owners by agents and factory is an indisputable asset. A year ago we prepared a comparative advertisement in which we "considered relatively the nature or character" of Stoddard-Dayton cars and seven other leading American built automobiles. This comparison showed that the only difference was in the price, and it proved it to such an extent that hundreds of prospective buyers, of four and five thousand dollar cars, turned to the Stoddard-Dayton and found true the argument we advanced.

The same quality that brought these buyers from the ranks of the high-priced car advocates is embodied in every 1909 Model. In order to supply the demand for a medium priced car, we present Models "A" and "H," $2000 and $1500 respectively, and guarantee the public that, "relatively considered," they are the equal of the larger car, Model 9-F, in everything except size and price.

1909 Cars Ready Now

Locomobile "40" is here and on exhibition in our show rooms, Pico and Hill streets. The "40" Locomobile is the logical choice of those who desire a high-powered car. Produced as a seven-passenger touring car, a stylish roadster and as a closed car with Pullman Limousine or Landaulet body.

1909 Specifications

4-cylinder motor
5-inch bore, 6-inch stroke, giving about 60 horse power.
Artilliery wheels
Front wheels, 36x4
Rear wheels, 36x5.
Wheel base, 123 inches
Capacity, 7 passengers

For the Desert

For the Boulevard

Elegant, Luxurious, Fast and Enduring

The "40" Locomobile is a splendid touring car for seven passengers and is notable for its beauty of line, luxurious appointments and delightfully easy riding qualities. It is a touring car par excellence and will meet any test of endurance to which it can be subjected.

The "40" Runabout is an attractive feature of the 1909 production. The body is very attractive and accommodates four passengers, all seats being very comfortable and easy riding and convenient of access. The individual front seats are fixed; the rear seats may be removed or only one or both can be used, making the car available for two, three or four passengers, as desired. The "40" Runabout can also be supplied with the type of body known as the "toy" or "baby" tonneau, and which enjoys considerable popularity.

The "40" Limousine and the "40" Laudaulet are both beautiful high-powered closed cars. The bodies are roomy, beautiful in design, of the best possible workmanship and finish, and are equipped with extra Pullman chairs.

Mr. J. H. Orr, an expert from the Locomobile factory, will be at our garage on and after the 30th of October, and will be pleased to meet Locomobile owners.

A complete stock of all Locomobile parts will arrive within a few days and will be constantly kept on hand.

went wild when Hendrickson converted, and the players set out to tie the score or win. Redlands made a game fight, but the Poly players were out for blood, and they again irresistibly pressed down the field. With the ball on their 5-yard line, the visitors made a gallant stand, and in several scrums held their own. Neither side was able to secure an advantage, and both sections of the bleachers were frantic with excitement.

SCORES THE TIE.

On the sixth scrum Hannan was passed the ball, and, evading several tacklers and bowling over others, he ran across the goal line, making a try and tying the score. The try was made at the extreme left side of the field, and Hendrickson failed to convert from the hard position. Poly started to make another try, but time was called before the ball could be rushed across the line.

The teams were very equally matched in weight, and in the various departments of the game there was little advantage to either side. The spirit in which the Poly players entered into the second half was responsible for their ability to tie the score. The line-up:

HARVARD IS BEST.

THROOP SCORES PLACE KICK.

Harvard Military School defeated Throop Polytechnic at football yesterday afternoon on the Harvard gridiron, by a score of 12 to 4.

Harvard outplayed Throop, with the exception of the place kick. Throop's points were made by Heard with a pretty place kick from the 20-yard line, on the left side of the field. This play was tried three times by Harvard without success.

Soon after the starting whistle blew Harvard had the ball close to the visitor's goal. They lost the ball near the 25-yard line, and Throop seemed to rally. They carried the ball back to the 35-yard line, where Jones dropped it when being tackled.

Thorpe of Harvard picked up the pigskin and carried it the thirty-five yards to a touchdown. The goal was kicked by Fyfe, making the score 6 to 0.

During the next ten minutes Throop did its best playing. The ball was taken to within a few feet of Harvard's goal, when the ball was fumbled and lost to Harvard. The soldiers then tried the forward pass, but fumbled. They were penalized fifteen yards, which took them back to the 5-yard line. The necessary ten yards was not made in three downs, and the ball was Throop's.

The place kick was then used by Throop with success. This made the score 6 to 4. The teams took things easy during the remainder of the half and neither side scored again.

The second half was slow and monotonous, and both squads played as though they were tired out. Harvard made its second touchdown early in the half. Caruthers carried the ball across the line after a short run through right tackle. Fyfe kicked the goal, and the score was 12 to 4.

The ball was then carried into Throop's territory, but Harvard did not have steam enough to take it over the line. The remainder of the game Harvard kept the ball near the middle of the field by punting.

Thorpe of Harvard and Heard of Throop were the star players. Thorpe is a crack runner, and it was almost impossible to stop him. Heard is also a good runner and a hard punter.

FISHING.

JACK SMELTS THE FEATURE.

Fish Running at All Beaches Along the Coast.

Anglers to Cast Lines Today from the Wharves.

Striped Bass and Mackerel at the Long Wharf.

Jack smelt are to be the feature of the fishing programme for today, and judging from the excellent catches reported during nearly every day of the last ten days the sport with the small fry will afford the Sunday regulars satisfactory returns.

At all of the west coast beaches from the long wharf at Port Los Angeles to Redondo, and even at Long Beach and adjacent piers, the smelt have been running strong all week. Playa del Rey seems to be the pivotal point of the schools at present, and a large number of fishermen will cast their lines from the Del Rey pier today.

J. B. Brown caught six jack smelts, two croakers of three and five pounds, respectively, and one three-pound white fish, Thursday morning. The angler intimated that the fish were biting "to beat the band," and every man on the planks had good catches.

Burt Johnson and Jimmy Yerger also found the smelt sport exceptional at the same resort, the two landing a nice mess of fifteen good-sized jacks in three hours.

Fine sport with yellowtail and bonita is reported at Redondo, where an excellent run of the big fellows has been on all week. Dick Williams landed two large yellowtail and one bonita from wharf No. 3, and H. Brown caught two bonita and one yellowtail from wharf No. 2.

A. C. Crane at Redondo caught a basket of fish including four dozen jack smelt and two sea trout.

H. W. Wallhauser, after catching two nice bonita, cast out for the third try, and set his rod on the planks to cut bait when a big fish grabbed the live bait just thrown in and before the rodster could get to his pole, got away with the entire outfit.

Sam Porter caught a salmon weighing about thirty pounds off wharf No. 2. This is the second fish of this variety taken this season, and is a rare occurrence in local waters.

At San Pedro the run of croaker continues good, with the fish averaging quite a bit larger. "Little Tommy" landed six fine croaker from the East End lumber wharf, and Dr. Scroggs returned with five bass, three yellowfin and two sculpin.

Stripped bass and mackerel are being caught daily at the long wharf, and the jack smelt also are quite plentiful. Big hauls of mackerel have been made during the week by the outside fishermen, and an occasional yellowtail has been caught off the outer end of the pier. Several fishermen had good returns fishing from the stringers under the outer end of the wharf, where the big fellows feed in the shadow water on feed around the piling.

At Long Beach the smelt have been the main attraction. The catches have not been large, but the fish were all a good size and two or three fellows were sufficient to insure a nice mess.

A few bass have been taken at the Pavilion at Balboa, and an occasional surf, about the last of this variety, has also been caught fro mthe beach. On the whole, however, the sport has been mediocre at the southern resorts and nippers of all sorts have been caught.

Mr. McPeak of Long Beach caught four croakers in Anaheim Bay, each weighing four pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gibbs fished on the pier at Naples Tuesday, and Mrs. Gibbs landed an eighteen-pound yellowtail unaided.

C. O. Goldman caught a surf fish Sunday measuring sixteen inches.

Striped bass planted three years ago in the head waters of the San Gabriel are appearing in Alamitos Bay.

SECOND FIFTEEN.

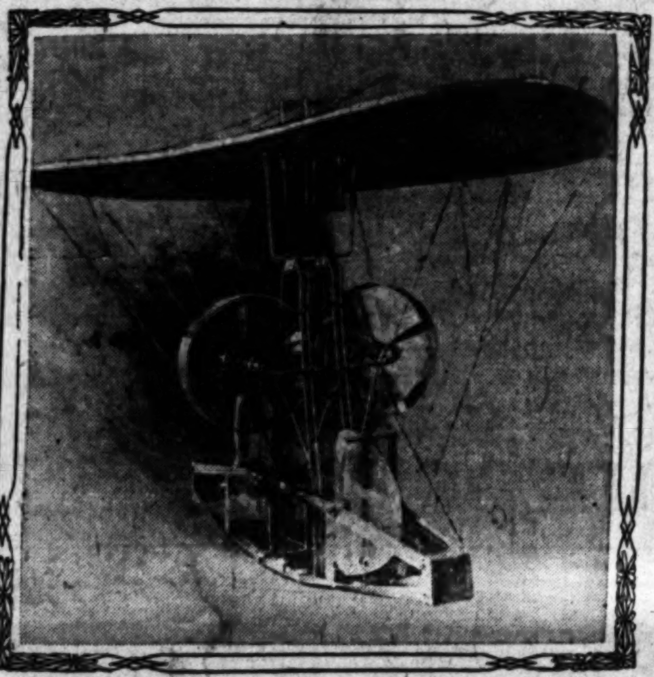
A regular second Rugby fifteen is to be organized at Polytechnic High School tomorrow, and Coach Thompson will arrange a regular schedule for the team. During the last two weeks the number of candidates for the first team has greatly increased, and as it will be impossible to give all the worthy players a place on the first team Thompson will collect the players and give them careful coaching.

Sixty men are out for daily practice at Prager Park, and Thompson is almost swamped in his work. A shake-up has been made in the first team, and Malone, three-quarters, and Pierce, fullback, have exchanged places. McKenzie will be out of the game for some time on account of injuries sustained several weeks ago.

The second team will elect a captain

STILL ANOTHER.

AEROPLANE DEVICE EXPECTED TO SOAR.



New Airship by J. Wood Porter, who claims that his type will solve the problem of aerial flight.

J. WOOD PORTER of No. 377 North Douglas street, this city, has constructed a model of an aëroplane which he believes will fly on account of the unique arrangement of the main plane and because the mechanical apparatus is concentrated in a central position directly on the line of gravity of the craft.

The inventor purposes to cause the machine to rise by means of the great circular main plane, which may be manipulated by the operator up and down on the axis parallel to the width of the craft. The operator, by raising the front end of the plane after the machine has reached a t pace on the ground, will, according to the inventor, cause the craft to rise, and further rises or drops ma be made by moving the plane in the direction in which the operator wishes to go. The wind, in striking the top of the plane when the front is tipped up is expected to cause the craft to rise; when the front is tipped down the wind will strike the top of the plane and a downward movement is expected.

Mr. Porter expects to have the body of the craft principally made of aluminum. The operator's platform will be directly under the center of the main plane, and the propelling and steering machinery will be within his reach. The model has two propellers and two rudders. The machinery is balanced on both sides of the line of gravity, and will be between sixteen and twenty feet below the plane as the inventor believes that the craft will more quickly right itself if the center of gravity is low.

The two rudders will be handled by one crank and when turned will form a large arc around which the aëroplane will tend. The propellers will be rimmed and very large in diameter. The framework of the model is of simple construction, designed especially to concentrate the weight in one place. Gas engines will supply the motive power.

The inventor has been working on his model two years and has been a student of aëronautics for several years. He believes he has invented a machine that will soar readily and he is anxious to construct a full-sized craft.

HUNTING CONDITIONS.

PROTECTION OF GAME IMPROVES THE SPORT.

THE fruits of systematic and intelligent game protection are more apparent this season than at any time since the initial steps were taken for the conservation of game resources, and as a result the outlook in every branch of hunting is vastly more auspicious than five years ago.

It was only a few seasons ago that the quail seemed in danger of extermination, and the local sportsmen predicted that it was only a matter of a year or so before the bird supply would be depleted completely. Duck shooting held up fairly well, but even this condition was attributed largely to the duck clubs, which are accredited as being the greatest protective agent that has ever been exerted in behalf of the birds.

The limit was then in excess of the present legal number, and thousands of birds were shot where hundreds are bagged today. Still the club gunners engaged in their shooting but two days in the week, leaving five days when the birds were undisturbed. Furthermore the clubs encouraged the presence of fowl by creating great fresh-water sloughs and providing natural and artificial food.

Then the market hunters bagged from 300 to 400 birds a day and shipped the game to northern cities, but this avenue of destruction has been practically closed by the gradual invasion of the private club until at present the private preserve covers almost exclusively the entire available duck land in Southern California. This year the flights are exceedingly numerous, and since the last rain, which was really the first general storm of the season, and which brought south the northern migratory fowl, the club members have enjoyed the finest kind of shooting.

The more flagrant violators of the limit law today are operating in the San Joaquin Valley, where there are many hunters who utterly disregard the limit, and who are making shameful inroads on the game supply, not altogether for purposes of private gain, but many for the pure satisfaction of killing a large number of birds.

The only good marsh land where the unattached hunter can get the limit in county, near Santa Margherita, and in the Imperial Valley section. Here, however, the sport is not what it formerly was, and the market shots often find the long journey unproductive of the desired results.

Similar protection for quail by the organization of private clubs for the purpose of the control of preserves is gradually coming to pass. The local sportsmen are beginning to follow the example of the northern hunters, where the birds' conditions are far in advance of the Southern California provisions, although the local sportsmen on the other hand are admittedly better equipped in the protection of ducks.

In many parts of the northern section of the State the sportsmen have leased vast tracts of land in which the birds may roam undisturbed during the closed season under the watchful eye of wardens, and only club members are allowed to shoot on the grounds who rigidly observe the limit.

The brand of quail shooting has thus been elevated until it compares favorably with the eastern sport. The birds remain in reasonably level country, not too densely brushed, and afford a dog a good chance to show his worth, which would be impossible where one is freely ranging the country every day in the week and driving the quail into the inaccessible hills.

A few preserves have been set aside by local sportsmen, and the result is already apparent in the number of birds at hand. The overflow of birds from the liberal breeding made possible on the protected grounds, tends to restock the surrounding country thereby helping the sport for the vast army of unattached hunters.

The most notable example of the possibility of better sport is found in the shooting on the De Lux preserve, a club organized by John Hauerwaas several years and and now membered by Gen. C. F. A. Last, Fred Holbrook, August Wintsel, Jacob Adloff and Aug. Marquis. The preserve is located in the hills near Encinitas, and a comfortable clubhouse gives the members proper housing. The country is rolling and dogs can be used to advantage, thus making a double pleasure out of SOMETHING WRONG.

QUAIL LIMITS PROVE SCARCE.

Veteran Hunters Begin Sport When Novices Quit.

San Fernando Valley Better Hunting Ground.

Few Young Birds Shot in the Encinitas Country.

Quail hunting has not been productive of very satisfactory sport since the first few days of the season, and from all sections heretofore noted for fine shooting in previous seasons, returning gunners report quite a dearth of birds.

About the only sportsmen who have secured the limit during the last week have been the veteran hunters who refrained from competition with the horde of inexperienced sports early in the season during the opening days. These gunners have tramped over the same ground with very fair results, although they report that the birds show the effects of the early hammering and must be worked systematically.

The arrival of colder weather should help the quail shooting considerably. Good sport has been reported from all parts of the San Fernando Valley and other near-by points, places that most of the early season shots declared were shot out before this. Limits are scarce, but a number of bags of from fifteen to twenty-five birds have been made by gunners of average experience where a crack shot could have brought down the limit with comparative ease.

The present scarcity of quail is attributed by some of the old-timers to the rains of last week, which tended to drive the birds to the hills, and almost inaccessible fastnesses of the lower ranges. It seems certain that the shooting should improve instead of wane, for nearly all the conditions necessary for a good stock of quail have been ideal for several years.

The twenty-five-bird limit, better protection in the breeding season, and a series of wet winters and favorable summers has insured a bountiful supply of birds. Of course the quail are not seen in the countless numbers that used to afford a hundred or more birds to a bag during a morning hunt, but enough quail that the average hunter ought to have no difficulty in picking up the limit throughout the season by a careful selection of the field of operations.

All along the wash sections of the San Fernando from Roscoe to Fernando the birds have been heard calling in the early morning and evenings. The cactus is pretty bad, and the brush has flourished, making the going dangerous to the dogs, but the game signs are at hand and a hunter supplied with a good dog should have little trouble picking up the bird scent after the dew of the morning has freshened the foliage.

To remedy the dog troubles some of the gunners have tried the leather boots with varying results. As a rule, however, the canine consorts do not take kindly to the pads, as it hinders their actions and diverts their attentions from raising the birds.

Hardly flattering are the reports from the San Diego locations which have previously furnished excellent shooting to the visiting sportsmen. One party composed of Gen. C. F. A. Last, Fred Holbrook, A. Winstel, Cris Krempel, Peter Lux and Jacob Adloff went into the Encinitas country for a two days' shoot and the sport was hardly up to the returns of last season. The strangest part of the shoot was that out of 200 birds shot, not a single bird was young.

It was found that snakes and other animals had disturbed many of the nests, and young stock was nowhere noticed. The men took a machine to the De Lux preserve, where the birds are protected in the closed season, and where heretofore the game has multiplied sufficiently from season to season to insure continuous limits during the open period. The gunners had a hard tramp getting the quail this time, but had good sport.

Eddie Maier and George Cline, with a party of San Diego friends, enjoyed some limit shooting on the Babcock ranch near San Diego. Cline also shot two cranes.

ROWERS TRAINING HARD.

Hour's Work Every Morning at Naples Is Preparing Crew for Thanksgiving Regatta.

The members of the Los Angeles Athletic Club rowing crew will begin a strenuous period of its training for the big Thanksgiving Day Regatta next week when they begin living at Naples. Coach Treloar is working the men pretty hard, and now wants to get at it early each morning before the boys leave for the day's business, and put in an hour's rowing on the bay.

"This will be much better for ultimate results than the work three training," said Treloar, yesterday. "The latter method is inconvenient for all because most of us cannot get away from business before 4 o'clock, and by the time we get into the shell it is already becoming dark. In living at the beach we shall be in healthful surroundings, will keep strictly to training table diet, and live according to the usual routine for men in hard training.

"The boys are showing up pretty well, and by the end of the training period should be in prime condition. They are not in as good shape as they might be and there are still inconsistencies in their form, but the bunch is full of pluck and determination to make good this year, and I am hopeful they will turn out a winning crew. Previous to beginning training all signed an agreement to keep to the rules of strict training. So far I believe none has broken his promise.

"Of course the loss of the rowing work during the summer months is telling against us. If we could have had the usual season's work in the boats during the vacation time the men would be in better shape. However, now that we have a location on Naples Bay and this fall regatta promises to be a regular annual event, we shall be on hand with a good team each year, and with the constant rowing during the vacation months should manage to retain our present position at the top."

Final arrangements for caring for the visiting crews are being made by A. M. Parsons, of the Naples Company.

The regatta is expected to be one of the most important sporting events of the late fall here in the West. It is seldom that a rowing feature is planned for Thanksgiving Day, which is usually associated with turkey and football. This will be an additional attraction.

TO MEET NORMAL FIVE.

The Los Angeles High School basket- five next Saturday afternoon at Normal School in its first game of the season. Physical Director Beach has not as yet selected the men who will begin the game for High School, as there are about fifteen able candidates for the team, and the competition for places is very keen.

The Normal School has turned out a fast team this year, which had no difficulty in defeating the Polytechnic second team. The five will be unable to compete in the county league matches as the players are above High-School rank.

ANNANDALE GOLF.

E. Eliot Wins First Place Honors in Regular Saturday Sweepstakes Aganst Bogey.

Notwithstanding the many other attractions, seventeen men took a course in golf yesterday at the Annandale course in a handicap sweepstakes. The weather was delightful and the links in good condition, as may be judged from the fact that T. P. Mumford, the scratch man, made his round in 77. E. Eliot, with a handicap of 13, proved to be the winner, with 8 up and four men tied for second place with 4 up. The scores were as follows:

E EMMANUEL MOVEMENT.

series of addresses made in St. Paul's Pro- in this city the past week, Rev. Albert B. an Episcopalian clergyman of Boston, gave be regarded as an authoritative exposition of of so-called "divine healing" practiced at Church, Boston, about which so much has published recently in the press. This system is explained by Elwood Worcester, D.D., LLD., of Emmanuel Church, Boston, where the move- originated, in a series of articles in a popular magazine. To an unprejudiced observer this seems to have in it much more of reason than the modern cults and methods which aim at of the physical ills to which mankind is from these expositions that the method does not ignore or neglect the rational use means in seeking the cure of disease, but "suggestion" with scientific physical treat- which that has been written about the "Em- Movement" has evidently been the product of imaginings" of sensation-loving writers. Dr. says: "It is difficult to see how we could our work on more conservative lines, greater deference we could have shown to scien- authority than we have shown. We have ourselves with able and conservative medical the beginning, and we treat no case until passed upon and diagnosed by good medi- The character of the treatment is always by the examining physician, and the patient by him at frequent intervals."

of fact, the term "divine healing" is to this system. There is no claim is accomplished by miraculous methods. combination of psychotherapy, or "suggestion," with physical treatment. Dr. Worcester and his associates in this movement believe that clergymen, being brought into intimate social and spiritual relations with great numbers of people, are especially qualified by knowledge and experience for dealing with "moral and nervous maladies," the type of diseases to which attention is mainly given. No organic, but only functional diseases are treated. "All physicians who succeed in curing their patients," says Dr. Worcester, "realize the importance of faith and confidence. Many physicians, however—practically all who look no further than the removal of the symptoms, the relief of the pain or the cure of the malady—are satisfied with any form of faith which is sufficient for their purpose. We have no quarrel with them on this ground, but in the work we have undertaken we do look further than this. Our primary interest in the men and women committed to our care is a moral and religious interest. We wish not merely to make them well, but to make them better, to open to them the door of a larger, freer, happier and more useful life, and we believe that the great majority of men and women find in religion the chief motive to such a life."

The day is past when the mental condition is to be ignored in connection with the treatment of a large class of physical ills. The world is learning that the mind has much more influence over the body than has heretofore been supposed. Cures that once would have been considered miraculous are now attributed to natural causes, and are explained as the result of mental influence. Physicians have long recognized the value of cheerful surroundings and hopeful influences about their patients, but they have in the past subordinated these conditions too much to the supposed power of drugs. The fact is rapidly dawning upon them that in many ailments it is quite as necessary to treat the mind as the body.

As an evidence of appreciation by physicians of the value of the work done under the Emmanuel movement it is a fact that Dr. Worcester and his associates are often asked by surgeons to assist them in preparing patients for operations. An instance of assistance of this kind is narrated by Dr. Worcester. A woman came to him telling him she has just called on a physician who had told her she was suffering from cancer, and must be operated on the next day. She was in a state of mind bordering on distraction. Dr. Worcester talked soothingly to her, and went with her to the hospital. Then he impressed upon her the suggestion that she would have no fear of the operation, but would regard it as a means employed by God to restore her to health, and that she would not suffer from nausea in consequence of having taken ether. This suggestion was actually and entirely fulfilled, and the patient made a good recovery.

Dr. Worcester is careful to say that he does not regard the usual training and experience of the clergy, in themselves, as constituting sufficient preparation for the work of the movement. He urges all who contemplate taking up the work to devote themselves first to the study of normal and abnormal psychology, and to study under good neurologists, "and in general to go slowly." "The demand for work of this kind having been proved," he adds, "the supply must come; but it will come through regular and orthodox channels, through endowments and courses and lectureships in our leading universities, medical schools and seminaries." In this connection he mentions the fact that already a number of colleges and universities are giving courses along these lines. Dr. Worcester himself studied psychology for seven years, and then taught it seven years in college.

Moral health is certainly not less important than physical health. The moral, the mental and the physical form a trio which go together to make the man. There can be no perfect health in the highest sense of the term without the perfection of all three of these. The trained spiritual leader who is also a trained mental leader, and who coöperates with the trained physical expert, seems, therefore, to have effected a very strong combination for the welfare of the whole man.

THE SEEKERS.

In a quiet place was my prairie nest—
  A place where a soul could drift and dream;
Where the air was soft and the dew caressed,
  With never a rock in life's calm stream.
But the wind came in from the farthest west,
  From over the mountains far away;
And the words it whispered caused unrest
  And a longing wish for another day.

So the voice of the far-swept wind kept on Till it lured me from my haven home;
And then, when away, its chill crept on,
  And I felt its cold to the marrow bone.
In another zone I lived for years,
  Where I shivered and cringed from the wintry blast;
While I wept, oh, I wept such bitter tears,
  While I longed, oh, I longed for the summers past.

But again I hear the wind from afar—
  For I'm back in the calm of the prairie's breast—
But always the chill is there to mar,
  Always the cold is a thing confessed.
Oft when the whispering winds abound,
  Oft when I feel the dew's caress,
I shiver as though the blast had found
  My haven home in its prairie nest.

THOUGHTS ON RELIGION.

By a Layman.

MORAL EDUCATION.—An event of importance in the educational world is the assembling for the first time, of an international congress to discuss the problems of moral culture in the public schools.

It is reported that seventeen nations are represented in the conference in London, England, and the delegates are nearly all men of prominence and distinction, representing all phases of modern moral culture.

In this spiritually progressive age, it is a wonder that some such moral movement had not been inaugurated before, when it is considered that practical and lasting reform must come through the proper education of the coming generation; but it is never too late to start to reform, and it is certainly an encouraging sign of the times that coöperative action along practical moral educational lines for the young has at last been manifested as a reality.

Reform by legislation is a delusion, a snare, and a failure. Fundamentally all reform movements are good, but the practical application of many have been woefully lacking in wisdom and good common sense, as evidenced by our overcrowded prisons, jails, reformatories, poorhouses, and insane asylums, which are festering eyesores in the light of spiritual progress.

It is to be devoutly hoped that our preachers, professors and teachers will soon awaken from their superstitious stupor, born largely of the legendary traditions of the past, and energetically crawl out of the hidebound dogmas and ancient pedagogical methods, until they can stand upright like men and look religious and all other questions of fact, straight in the face and apply progressive methods, in the sphere of both thought and action, which will lead them to a higher plane of understanding of God's love and wisdom.

It would seem that a large number of our religious and pedagogical teachers represent a backward element of our present-day civilization, and if left entirely to their tender mercies and narrow conceptions of life the world would still be in more than semi-darkness. Fortunately God in His infinite mercy has developed a more enlightened and progressive class, including in it everyday working and business men who have attained to a higher knowledge of the wisdom and purpose of the one Creator of us all.

These energetic men have bravely faced the superstitions of the darkened long ago, and have so harnessed the forces of nature to the chariot wheels of progress, that now the whole world is brought into close relationship and the spiritual light of comprehension, unveiled by the world's activities, is commencing to shine so brightly that clear visions of the omnipresence and the brotherhood of God, and the true brotherhood of man are seen encircling the entire globe. The result is that God has become an eternal reality to many souls, instead of a mythical product of ignorant superstitions, and vain imaginings of men.

These same common-sense workers, through the result of their labor, and inspired by their inner conscious nearness to the Creator of all things, have made it possible for science, the handmaiden of God, to demonstrate, beyond any conceivable and reasonable doubt, that the one supreme God of the universe is a blessed and veritable reality; and when this fact becomes more comprehensively grasped by men they will awaken from their dream worship, and give joyful praise to an ever-living God, who has from the beginning of time been manifesting Himself to man through man. He has, in a natural way, sent messengers to earth, at different stages in man's evolution, to illumine the pathway of life through true spiritual knowledge, but these messengers have been treated with scorn and their lives have been ruthlessly sacrificed to ignorance, and wilful heedlessness. Even in this enlightened day, in many instances, the essence of the spirit of the teachings of that Great Master Teacher, Jesus, is lost in the empty forms of semi-idolatrous worship, which is still practiced in many quarters of the globe.

When the spiritual essence of truth is more truly discerned by the many good people who desire and profess to be sincere loving followers of Christ, they will become conscious of the reality of the fact that God's great shining light of truth is now more than ever before bountifully raditing spiritual knowledge and wisdom to all peoples of the earth, if they will only take heed.

In the light of truth, the development of character becomes the essential feature of our earth life, and when the truth of this fact penetrates through the dense clouds of traditional superstition, and burns away the fogs of ignorance and folly, in which we are engulfed, some of our religious and pedagogical teachers may be induced to also follow in the wake of the common-sense pioneers, and with their technically-trained minds they can mightily help to bring the world to a clearer comprehension of the reality of truth, and its manifold beauties.

When that happy day comes, our present colleges, schools and expensive churches will be transformed into everyday moral institutions for practical spiritual culture, and for more earnest scientific research; and our prisons, jails, reformatories, poorhouses, and insane asylums will be transformed into manual training, and primary grade schools, where the fundamental qualities of character will be wrought out and developed, so that our morally-diseased and weaker brothers wher they emerge from these institutions will be wel equipped morally, mentally and physically to battl with life's problems, and perform their rightful shar in the world's work.

AGRICULTURE.

QUEER FEATURES OF FARMING IN THE LAND OF THE BOERS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PRETORIA.—This letter is to be about the Transvaal. The state has been big in the eyes of the world for the past half-dozen years. It seems small and poor when one travels over it. I entered it from Cape Colony at Fourteen Streams above Kimberley, and came thence by rail through Johannesburg on my way here. The distance is a little farther than from New York to Washington, and it is about an equal distance from Pretoria to the east where the Portuguese territories begin. I am about 300 miles south of the boundaries of Rhodesia.

These figures give you some idea of the area of the country. The Transvaal is about twice as big as Illinois or Iowa. It is high, dry and comparatively barren, and some of it seems almost a desert. On my way here I rode for miles without seeing a house, and all along the way from Kimberley to Johannesburg there are no towns of large size. The whole country has a white population less than that of Los Angeles, and including the blacks, who number three times the whites, it has not as many people as Philadelphia.

The biggest town in the Transvaal is Johannesburg. It has 150,000, and of these less than 90,000 are white. Pretoria has 36,000, and only 22,000 whites. Both towns claim more; but these are the official figures, and they include every one, negroes, English and Boers.

Millions in Mines.

The great importance of the country is in its mines. It leads the world as to gold, and it bids fair to do so as to diamonds. I have already written of the Premier Mine, which produced the Cullinan diamond, the biggest ever discovered. It lies within thirteen miles of this city, and it has turned out $25,000,000 worth of precious stones in the past four years. There are other diamond mines near by, and there are also copper and coal. As to the gold mines of the Rand, which lie within a few miles of Pretoria, their product is greater than that of any other region. They have added more than 900,000,000 gold dollars to the world's supply in the last twenty-odd years, and they are now yielding more than $120,000,000 a year. Of this I shall write more when I visit Johannesburg.

Farming in South Africa.

The chief importance of the Transvaal, outside its mines, is as a stock-raising country. The land is high and healthful and the climate is fitted for white men. The most of the colony lies 4000 or more feet above the sea. It is a vast tableland, composed of great rolling plains, crossed here and there by low ranges of mountains. A great part of the country is covered with scrubby brush, but much of it is semi-barren and so scantily watered that the grass burns up in the summer. The seasons here are just the opposite of ours. The winter is from April to September, and the summer from October to March. The winters are cold, dry and bracing. The summers are hot, with some rainfall to temper the heat.

So far, only a small part of the land has been taken up. There are something like 75,000,000 acres in the Transvaal, and the registered farms number only 12,000. The average size of a farm is 6000 acres, or nearly ten square miles to each farm.

The most of the farmers are Boers, who cultivate only a small part of their land, and either graze the remainder or let it out to the native Kaffirs, who plant it in little patches of from one to five acres. The chief crops raised by the negroes are corn and millet. They farm under the direction of the owner, and as a rule give him half of the harvest. All farming, however, is slovenly done, and that notwithstanding the demand is good. The Transvaal is now importing farm produce of $15,000,000 per annum, and the main supplies for the gold mines come in from abroad. I have the market prices of Pretoria and Johannesburg lying before me. Chickens are bringing 25 cents a pound, butter 60 cents a pound, and eggs are selling from 75 cents to $1.25 a dozen. Milk is worth 18 cents a quart, and tobacco, unmanufactured, 12 cents per pound.

As to grain, it is sold in bags of different capacities. Barley is put up in bags of 100 pounds, and sells at $3 per bag, or almost 3 cents a pound. Rye brings over 2 cents a pound, oats 2 cents and Kaffir corn almost 2½ cents, while Indian corn brings 2 cents per pound. This means that rye and corn each bring $1.12 and that barley and oats bring, respectively, 96 cents and 64 cents per bushel, which is far more than they sell for, even at the highest, in our part of the world.

Some South African Pests.

These prices are largely due to poor labor, lack of transport and insect pests. One of the chief pests is the locust, which sweeps over the country in swarms of great magnitude. I have ridden through miles of such swarms on the cars. At times the locusts are so thick that they almost hide the sun. The air is filled with flying beetles, with sparkling white wings, and one looks on and on, seeing nothing but locusts as far as the eye can reach. Looking down along the sides of the train the ground is covered with these crawling insects, and you can notice them in front fleeing from the engine. The locomotive seems to be sweeping them apart like a snow plow, and this work continues for miles and miles as the train goes on. Sometimes they are so many that the wheels of the cars, going over them, crush them upon the rails, and the rails thereby become greased and the wheels roll around without catching.

At some of the stations I have stepped out of the train and scooped up a handful of locusts. They look just like our grasshoppers, and are probably the same sort of insects as those which almost ruined Kansas and Nebraska some years ago.

When the locusts come they eat almost every green thing. The grass disappears and the sheep and cattle perish for want of food. At present the different governments are paying a certain price for locust destruction. The farmers receive 50 cents per bag of 200 pounds, and in Natal locust eggs are bringing 12 cents a pound. The eggs are laid in cocoons, and it is estimated that it takes 40,000 eggs to make one pound. They will last for years without hatching, so that, although the locusts are killed, a new crop may come forth again and again from the dormant eggs.

The African natives are all fond of locusts. They eat them, and I am told that the Boer farmers frequently use dried locusts for chicken feed, paying as high as $2 per bag for them. Another trouble that the farmers have in many regions is the drought, and there are also cattle fevers and other diseases.

Agriculture Since the War.

Since the Boer war new interest has sprung up in agriculture, and the government is now doing all it can to open up the country and to improve the condition of the farmers. It has already established experimental farms in several places, and it is trying to better the live stock. Many new plants are being introduced, the tobacco industry has been encouraged, and experiments are being made on cotton. A South African agricultural college is now proposed, and Gen. Botha is said to favor it. He says that "agriculture and mining are the two brothers of the Transvaal and that they must work together, hand in hand, for the benefit of the country."

As to live stock, the colony now has more than 500,000 cattle, over 800,000 sheep, and about 160,000 are about 50,000 horses, a large number of few ostriches. The most of the stock is high lands.

As to prices of farm animals, they seem faraway country. Goats are worth about from $10 to $20, and Merino sheep from most any kind of a good horse will sell for mule for the same. Native cows bring from and those imported from the Cape of Good $100 and upward.

No Place for Poor Men.

Notwithstanding these figures I do not cans to come here expecting to make money ing. This is hardly a poor man's country. labor on the farms is made up of Kaffirs, from $10 to $15 a month, including their board ing. White men cannot do the black man's out losing caste, and the farmers would rather white men to do such work. The line between and the black is carefully drawn, and the that his race will lose caste if he employs ple to do the rough labor.

Even the government, anxious as it is to have does not advise men without capital to come Africa. In a little book of information for the of emigrants I see it stated that it is necessary experienced farmer to have from $20,000 to wishes to start into stock rearing in the price of land varies according to the soil, water ness to market. Farms on the high veldt, tain amount of land irrigated, can be $2.50 to $10 per acre. In the lower country, the bush veldt, the prices are Nearer the towns the land is high, and plenty of water the prices are much above mentioned. The government advises that a not be less than 2000 acres in size for stock not less than 3000 where the country is poor. small cultivators who will do mixed farming. Such men should have from each, and they should be prepared to work own hands.

The Capital of the Transvaal.

I am writing this in Pretoria, the Transvaal and the seat of government English state. It was, you know, the the Boer government, the home of Kruger pivot of anti-England during the great Africa.

In going over the country now one sees the recent struggle except some dismantled an occasional monument put up to the square stone blockhouses which were erected the railroad between here and Johannesburg in evidence. But that is all.

The population is everywhere now English and Boers. The crowds on the made up of both nations, and the families and giving in marriage. Within a stone's hotel is the Parliament House, where the Boers sit together, and where the Boers, ing their defeat, are in the majority. It is is the Premier. Gen. Botha, who led the now rules the Transvaal, and he, with a of his own race, directs the policy of the a considerable extent, dictates its laws.

The Parliament of today is held in the buildings which were erected by President early nineties at a cost of about $800,000, of Justice, another magnificent building, by the Boer government before the outbreak although it was not completed until after declared.

Notwithstanding this, the Pretoria of today people are more Dutch than English. There are Dutch signs over the stores, and the bookshops have many Dutch books. One hears the people talking Dutch as he goes along the streets, and the farmers in the country about are almost altogether Boers. It is the Hollanders who still own most of the lands, and their long teams of oxen may be seen going through the city or standing in the market places just as they did when Paul Kruger ruled.

Pretoria was laid out by the Boers and built by them. It is a little over fifty years old, and it is named after President Pretorius, who founded it. It lies in a valley watered by a small tributary of the Crocodile River, and it has grass-grown hills on every side. The streets cross one another at right angles. They are wide and well paved, and in many places shaded with willows, which were set out as fence posts and grew into trees. Most of the houses are of Dutch architecture. Nearly every little home has a garden about it, and the whole city is full of flowers and fruit.

Of late years the business section of the city has grown, and it now compares favorably with any town of its size in the United States. It has good stores, a street railway line, electric lights, a public park and a zölogical garden. It has a museum, a library of 24,000 volumes, social clubs, cricket and football grounds and a theater and an operahouse. It has a half-dozen churches, and among them the Dopper Church, where President Kruger sometimes preached.

In the Footsteps of Kruger.

Almost everything about the city still bears Kruger's stamp. The house in which he lived is here, and his body lies under a plain monument out in the cemetery. I went down the other afternoon and looked at the home of the former Boer President.

It is a plain, one-story building, situated on the principal street, with a garden about it. It is not much better than that of many a clerk in the United States. Kruger was supposed to be rich, and statements have been made concerning the millions which he sent to Europe during the Boer war. These stories are denied by his friends, and the truth seems to be that the Boer President came out of the war comparatively poor as far as money was concerned. His wealth was mainly in lands, which he had divided among his relatives before the war began. While the struggle was raging, he lent something like $250,000 in cash to his government to pay the soldiers in the field, and this was paid for in bonds of that government, which is now worthless. He also lent about $70,000 additional, which, I believe, was in the hands of Gen. Botha at the time the war ended. This was offered to the British, but they refused it, and the money still forms a part of the Kruger estate. It is said here that Kruger was not a money lover or money grubber, and that he cared more for his country than his fortune.

A Word About Gen. Botha.

I understand that the same is true of Gen. Louis Botha, the present ruler of the Transvaal. He is a Boer in the full sense of the word, but he believes in the building up of South Africa, and is doing all he can to promote the interests of the united races. Gen. Botha was noted as a statesman before the war began. He entered politics early and was a member of the first Volksraad and a leader of the progressives of the Boer party at that time. He left this position and went into the army as a private, and by sheer force made his way from rank to rank until he became commander-in-chief. One of his greatest battles was that of Colenso, where he fought Gen. Buller and his 12,000 men with a force of 2000 and defeated them. It was after that that Kruger made him commander-in-chief of the Boer forces, and it was largely due to him that the war held out as long as it did, making one of the greatest campaigns ever known in the annals of war.

The Man Who Knows It All.

You meet him on the housetop, you meet him on the street; along the winding pathway you hear his princely feet; you find him in the cottage, in hovel, hut, and hall; you hear his voice forever—the man who knows it all. And would you talk of music, if that is near your heart? Or would you, as a critic, discourse of ancient art? A voice will interrupt you, and o'er you it will fall—the voice of that wise being—the man who knows it all. Perchance you may have journeyed, many leagues away from home; have seen the sights of Athens, the seven hills of Rome; don't tell your adventures, when neighbors on you call, for there will be among them the man who knows it all. Would you tell a story, as Pommery you quaff? a pointed anecdote, to make your comrade laugh? Then the dark-browed stranger who leans against the wall; he is the sour-souled villain, the man who knows it all. When at the realm that smolders, where fiends in fire, we hand our parquet tickets to into the fire, above the wails of sorrow we'll hear a frantic call, the shriek of that vile sinner, the man who knows it all.—[Atchison Globe.

The Hotel Clerk.

HE SAYS "IT'S A GREAT CAMPAIGN IF YOU LOVE QUIET."

By a Special Contributor.

"WELL, it's been a great campaign," said the Hotel Clerk.

"Great for who?" asked the House Detective of the St. Reckless, scornfully.

"Great for all persons favoring a quiet and peaceful life, free from noise or excitement," said the Hotel Clerk. "I don't think it could have been a quieter, subdueder, civiler-spoken campaign if it had been personally conducted by Edward K. Bok, Prof. Nicholas Murray Butler, Luther Burbank and Mrs. Rohrer, author of 'The North American Egg and One Thousand Ways to Disguise It.'

"If I had any near and dear relatives that were suffering from nervous prostration this fall, I'd never think of shipping them off to some expensive sanitarium. No, sir, I'd save money and at the same time insure the right sort of treatment for those afflicted kinfolk by sending 'em to the national headquarters of one of the great parties—it wouldn't matter greatly which one—where naught disturbed the brooding calm except the low poignant groans of the national treasurer every time he passed the office safe and the fretful exclamation of the national secretary, going over the morning mail in the hope that some malefactor of great wealth had written in a disguised hand, inclosing check.

"It didn't used to be this way, Larry. There have been mellow Octobers when the mere mention of the simple word 'tariff' had the same effect upon the average citizen that Niagara Falls would have on a hydrophobia patient. Then there was Ninety-six, when by simply coupling the figure 16 with its least common divisor in the presence of a bank president you could make him froth at the mouth like a soda fountain. Men in Colorado went home and beat their wives because they had golden fillings in their teeth. You remember Ninety-six, I take it? D'ye recall glorious Bourke Cockran lending his silver tongue to the cause of the silver standard, or perhaps I should say renting? That was the year when every true American stood ready and willing to lay aside whatever he had in hand, unless it happened to be a scantling, or a set of brass knucks, or something that would be equally handy, and engage in an intelligent argument of the issues of the day with any man that he thought he could lick. Boston friends would meet by chance in the barber shop on a Saturday night.

"'Well, what d'ye think about it, now?' one would say to the other, pleasantly, by way of beginning the conversation.

"'I think William Jennings Bryan will carry the State by not less than 100,000 votes,' the second would respond promptly, at the same time laying down his pocket edition of Coin Harvey and slipping a loose chair rung out of its socket.

"'And I think you're an infamous liar, the same as all your family was before you,' the first speaker would respond, as he took a flying leap out of the second chair and reached for one of those large ironstone china cuspidors. And having thus opened the subject, they would take up the vital questions one by one and debate them until the cops came. That was the campaign when a man who wanted to take an active part in politics needed to be there with a good arm and an ear which adhered firmly to its natural moorings.

"You may have noticed how different it is now, Larry. Some people say it's lack of money for the campaigning, and some say it's lack of campaigning for money, although I'm sure from what I can hear that both Mr. Ridder and Mr. Sheldon have done all they could and tried to do a lot more, who wouldn't come across. But be the reason what it will, there's something wrong. Once upon a time, this late in the month, the transparencies would be transpiring and the roorbacks would be roorbacking and every man who really had the interests of his country at heart would deem it his sacred duty to go out and take part in at least one torchlight procession and come home the next morning only a short lap ahead of the milkman, smelling of kerosene except where he smelled of beer. And there'd be monster final rallies by both parties, only the Democrats usually held theirs the night before election, thus leaving the Republicans free to hold their's the night after, when the returns were all in.

"But this year I haven't heard anybody whooping very loud for the candidates except the candidates. There's some talk, of course, on politics, but not much more talk, so far as I can tell, than there is on the subject of those new green alpine lids that are being worn so extensively by persons who are quite sane and normal in other respects. When a bunch of leaders get together for a few earnest words of cheer and uplift, the picture reminds you vividly of a group of root and herb doctors attending an ailing cow.

"There's also been a strange unaccountable silence on the part of the patriot who's able to devote a good deal of time to politics, owing to his wife having all the plain sewing she can do. He used to come into every gathering and announce that after a careful study of the conditions he felt so confident that he'd bet half a million dollars on the general results just as quick as he'd bet five. And he would, too, probably, because he had just as good a chance of getting half a million as he ever had of getting five.

"Here four or five weeks ago it did look as if there'd be a few feverish flutters. Mr. William R. Hearst unfurled some spicy letters which had an added interest aside from their contents by being the only things of value that ever got away from the Standard Oil Company. Former Senator McLaurin of South Carolina was induced thereby to tunnel his way back to the surface and utter a few posthumous remarks over the top of the footstone; and then he went back to his present location and found the premises crowded by Senator Foraker and Gov. Haskell, who'd moved in during his absence. Then the President felt called upon to write a few brief remarks from time to time, thus causing His Own Candidate great joy. And after that Nicholas Longworth gave vent to certain sentiments tending to show that a man can be bald-headed inside and outside at the same time. But they went out and threw a minnow net over Nick, and since then there's been nothing to excite, disturb or harass.

"A man opens his paper of a morning and finds a new poem by Alfred Austin, and skips that, and a cable dispatch stating that there have been a few more of those balks in the Balkans, and skips that, and a special department for women containing a three-line paragraph on the suffrage movement and a column and a half in regards to the new fall sleeve which all competent authorities agree will button all the way up to the shoulder, but should or should not it come down over the hand? which after all is the real question—and he skips that—and then finally he comes to the political intelligence, or anyway that's the common or cant name for it—and most generally he skips that, and if he doesn't he continues, nevertheless and notwithstanding, to remain comparatively calm.

"He strolls along the street and sees a large blue banner with pictures on it of a retired police captain and a club butler labeled 'Taft' and 'Sherman,' and then he strolls further and he sees a large banner with pictures on it of an old-time Shakespearean actor and a half-pay Methodist minister labelled 'Bryan' and 'Kern,' and that's all he does see that's calculated to make him realize that we are all in the throes of the most momentous battle for the cause of human liberty in the history of the civilized world, and trembling on the verge of anarchy and about to be made slaves of by the plutocrats and raising the banner of labor, and rescuing the downtrodden from the clutch of the vampire and engaged in the last final desperate death grapple for the rights of the great common people, but otherwise doing fairly well and able to report that things are going along about as usual, with promises of an open winter.

"Yesterday I went out looking for a little campaign excitement. I said to myself that it wasn't possible for the average man to exhaust all the possibilities of being foolish on April the First and July the Fourth. Surely, I figured, there'll be somebody getting all het-up over the election.

"Well, after awhile I found a crowd on a corner, clustered about an earnest orator and showing signs of deep interest. I pushed my way in to him. He was a stranger to me. I hadn't seen any picture of him printed among the list of speakers, but his mission was soon made plain. He was trying to sell a new kind of self-acting collar button. In the park I observed a group of unemployed, clustered together, and I investigated there. A neat and nobby member of the marine corps was standing guard over a colored picture showing a handsome lad in Peter Thompson clothes shaking hands with a rear-admiral, the apparent object being to induce the younger generation to enlist in the navy so they could hobnob with all the high officials. I headed for what looked like a noonday political meeting, and it was a crowd going into a moving-picture show. A soused party wanted to cheer for Bryan alongside the Alexandria, and a cop told him he'd run him in if he didn't stop annoying the Democrats by yelling that way. Finally on a street car I struck a solid-looking party who was willing to talk over the outlook.

"'Do you think the campaign has hurt business?' I said to him.

"'Well,' says he to me, 'it hasn't done my business any good.'"

"Did he tell you wot his business wuz?" asked the House Detective.

"Yes," answered the Hotel Clerk. He said he was a manufacturer of campaign buttons."

The press of the country has been printing various stories as to the many feats that have been accomplished by automobiles; Marshall, Tex., with about sixteen machines, thinks she has the best one yet.

A veterinary surgeon of Marshall owns an eighteen-horse power Rambler machine which he uses in his business.

A few nights ago the doctor received a telephone call stating that a horse had fallen into a well and to come down and help get him out. The doctor went to his barn, got out a small block and tackle, threw it into his Rambler, cranked up the machine and went to rescue the horse from the well.

Arriving, he looked into the well, cast about as to what to do, and finally decided to erect a scaffold over the well, attach the block and tackle and raise the horse. A rope end was tied around the horse's body, while the other end of the rope was attached to the auto. The machine was cranked and started off slowly. The horse was slowly drawn out of the well and put on his feet practically uninjured with the exception of being a little stiff.—[Kansas City Journal.

Odd Facts About Macedonia.

Of life in Macedonia a traveler writes: "It would appear from the markets of the large towns that the most profitable field of business is in firearms and large knives. But these do not adequately indicate the extent of the trade, for beneath the surface a large importation of modern rifles is carried on from the neighboring countries into what is left of European Turkey. Here is another strange contrast. I have seen in the mountains the villagers collected for hunting bears with ancient flint-lock rifles, while the Turkish gendarme carried a Martini, and this again was vastly inferior to the Mausers or Mannlichers which accompany a rebel band. The best of the thought and effort and wealth of the people is thus turned away from real to false industry.

LOTS OF NEW GAME LAWS IN OPERATION THIS SEASON.

By a Special Contributor.

JUST as fall hunting season opens, here is some news for Nimrod who would a-shooting go, as well as for the retired sportsman or animal lover interested in the protection of our wild fauna from the pot hunter and the game hog:

Since last our trusty shooting irons were taken down for the autumnal hunt sixty new game laws of interest to the American hunter have been added to the statute books. To keep out of durance vile and the clutches of the law's minions Nimrod must needs note these new changes. The Federal Congress has been at work, hammer and tongs, devising new means for protecting our big game, and the President has been setting aside new preserves, within which no hunter may hereafter pull trigger. Every State Legislature sitting this year has considered new game laws, and two-thirds of the Canadian provinces have passed new ones.

New License Laws.

This year's addition of New York, Massachusetts and Louisiana to the list of States requiring dollar licenses of resident hunters brings that coterie up to one-half the States of the Union. Nova Scotia also adopts resident license for the first time, but Massachusetts will not commence to enforce it until next January. These license laws are being pressed on all States by the National Association of Audubon Societies, which is demonstrating to the legislators how the hunter may thus be made to pay for efficient game protection. Last year 180,000 hunters in Illinois paid $1 apiece for licenses, and three-quarters of this amount, or $150,000, was diverted to paying for the warden system. In California $100,000 was raised in the same way for game protection. Hunters going out of their own States to shoot must take warning that Alaska, our greatest game paradise, has a new non-resident license of $100, and that New York, Louisiana and British Columbia have just increased their non-resident licenses. Non-residents cannot now shoot without license in any State except Georgia, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Nevada.

Last season's observations of the United States Biological Survey, the nation's clearinghouse for game data, showed that our deer were increasing practically everywhere, moose were showing an increase, elk were holding their own, a few caribou were in Upper Minnesota, and that mountain sheep were increasing in Wyoming and the Yellowstone, but that antelope had probably decreased. Quail and bobwhites were on the road to recovery, wild turkey were increasing, as were water fowl, markedly, and woodcock showed a gain, but prairie chickens showed a slight and ruffed grouse a considerable decrease. The Biological Survey will not attempt to forecast the conditions for this season, as too much depends upon local conditions.

For example, Wyoming had a severe March last year, which greatly decreased its antelope, while the ruffed grouse regions had a very warm March, followed by an exceedingly cold and wet spring, unfavorable for the breeding of that now scarce game bird. Two exceedingly cold winters in succession also greatly decreased our quail a few seasons back. Our domestic quail of the East have in recent years been reduced by an epidemic similar to the grouse disease which created great havoc in the grouse preserves of England a century ago. This is being investigated by the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, which finds it to be due to a microbe that causes congestion of the lungs, necrosis of the liver and ulceration of the intestines. It has never been known to attack wild quail. In the Carolinas deer have lately been reduced by an epidemic of "black tongue," or anthrax, a well-known malady affecting stock.

Protects Largest Game Mammal.

Our largest surviving game mammal, also our largest carnivorous animal, and many other valuable species of big game are protected in an important act of the last session of Congress. This new law, although practically unnoticed hitherto, is of great interest to the sportsman and naturalist, for it protects the game of our hunters' greatest paradise—Alaska. This big knob on the northwest corner of our continent offers to the hunter what the great unsettled West offered to our pioneers, only more. Perhaps if we had had enthusiastic hunters at the helm of State in generations past, vandals would not have been allowed to well-nigh exterminate the big game of the States proper. At any event, we now have a hunter at the helm, and he has interested himself in saving the big game of Alaska.

The new law protects the giant moose of Southern Alaska. First, Mosquito Inlet and the Tortugas Keys, Fla., August came four more—at Klamath Lake, Fla.; Lake Malheur, Or., and Chase while in September he added three addi Island, Matlacha Pass and Palma Sola, all in Florida. These Florida preserves are the natural breeding grounds of our herons, pelicans, terns, gulls and other sea birds; the two new Oregon reserves are those of thousands of pelicans and grebes, which breed there in the summer, and of countless geese and ducks which stop there in the fall on their way south, and in the spring on their way north. These once famous and popular grounds for market and plume hunters will be henceforth patrolled by wardens, in paying whom the National Association of Audubon Societies is cöoperating with the government. This great society, whose revenue is derived chiefly from its third-of-a-million-dollar endowment from Albert Wilcox of New York, has also recommended the sites of these twenty-three reserves, after making a scientific examination of the breeding-grounds. It has also gone into the thirteen original States, where there are no public lands, and there acquired lands for needed reservations. It is now policing every breeding ground of any importance from Portland, Me., to the mouth of the Chesapeake, and in North Carolina and Louisiana. Thus the most important bird colonies of our coasts are now protected.

Halloween at Cassellrand.

MISS CASSELL'S UNIQUE WAY OF ENTERTAINING HER GUESTS.

By a Special Contributor.

"Night of mirth and night of cheer,
Magic night of all the year,
Is at hand.
Come, my friends, and learn your fate,
While we on the omens wait
In Cassellrand."

Such were the unique invitations issued by Marguerite Cassell, and thirty guests gathered, at her behest, on All Saints' Eve to celebrate this very composite holiday with its classic origin, Druidic beliefs and Christian superstitions. Cassellrand, as the rather imposing Cassell residence was called, presented a peculiarly festive appearance on this occasion. Of course jack-o'-lanterns made from huge pumpkins displayed their good-natured faces from every nook and cranny of the grounds and winked a merry welcome at the approaching guests.

Within the autumn goddesses held court. Ceres, in artistic Greek draperies and banded hair, together with her sister goddess of fruits and grains, Pomona, clad in flowing Roman robes, gave stately greetings to the mortals as they entered, while two solemn-looking Druid priests served as ushers. The illusion of this was quite unaffected by the fact that the goddesses had chosen as their earthly temples the forms of the hostess and her elder sister, Daphne, and the priests, in the mystical process of metempsychosis, had usurped the corporeal structures of the hostess's younger brother, Wilfred, and cousin, Edmond.

Sumptuous indeed was the court established.

Halls and parlors were filled with autumn's bounteous offerings of fruits and sheaves of grain; myriads of richly-tinted leaves formed a sylvan carpet; mistletoe, southern smilax, wild holly, and graceful sprays of the pepper tree completed the woodland picture, and soft, weird strains of music from a concealed orchestra stimulated the imagination. Scotland being the birthplace of modern Halloween observances, her flag was draped about conspicuously and great clusters of Scotch thistle lent their feathery presence to the entrancing scene, while crimson letters in heroic size on the dark backgound of the hall announced:

"There is a world in which we dwell,
And yet a world invisible!
And do not think that naught can be,
Save only what with eyes ye see."

The fun began.

Said Ceres: "Since this is the night when Saman, lord of the Druids, calls all the wandering spirits together for final judgment and is only appeased by charms and offerings, we will begin with the incantation of the mistletoe, which plant is especially sacred to the Druids."

Eagerly the company filed past the improvised altar (an erstwhile fireplace) in which burned red fire sedulously guarded by the Druid priests, and merrily each cast therein the magic leaves of mistletoe, secretly named. Future expectations were quickened, or destroyed by the manner in which these bits of green returned to their original elements. Some snuggled closely in the fire's embrace, giving out a slow, even flare until the end, thus foretelling a long life of connubial bliss; others burned spasmodically and died quickly; still others, scorning the companionship of their fellows, leaped full into the flame and were immediately consumed. Thus did the Halloween sprites and elves reveal themselves.

For fear that these elves might have been tricky in the mistletoe, the old Scottish test of the bowls was next employed. Blindfolded, every member of the company was led up to the table on which stood a bowl of clear water, one of muddy water and one empty, and after being allowed three times to dip their fingers into a bowl (their position each time being changed,) knew of a surety whether a happy marriage to youth or maid, widow or widower, or empty spinsterhood or bachelorhood was their portion.

"The winnowing test must next be made," declared Pomona.

In lieu of a barn, Judge Cassell's garage seemed spooky enough to each dealer in futures as he or she entered its dark depths and "threshed" the air commandingly three times—and in every case the shadowy form of the heart's beloved passed wraithlike by!

"To make assurance doubly sure the girls must now wind the yarn;" so ran the next edict.

At lonely attic windows each was stationed with a ball of yarn which she hurled out into the darkness, holding the end of the string; then repeating her own especial charm, she slowly wound it in again. And, wonder of wonders, her peering eyes were gladdened by the sight of the stalwart form of her swain in the shadows beneath!

After this, all were seated at tete-a-tete tables scattered about the large living-room and various means of prying into the unknown were progressively enjoyed. Melted lead in a small caldron rested over an alcohol burner at one table, and those eager to tear aside the veil of the future poured this liquid through a wedding ring into a dish of water. The shape it assumed clearly foretold whether one would make a grand slam in life's game or always hold a chicane, for did not some drops of lead curl into a horn of plenty, while others took unto themselves the shape of an immense zero! Were there not wedding bells for the lovelorn, grips, suitcases, handbags, trunks for those smitten with the wanderlust, torches betokening fame to the ambitious, various articles of merchandise for the business-inclined, books for the aspiring author, "pieces of eight" for the miserly!

At another table, cut-out letters of the alphabet were scattered into a large basin of water. Of course they collected so as to form the name of the "scatterer's" future helpmeet. At another a wedding ring tied to a silk thread was suspended in a glass of water by the seeker into the future and the alphabet slowly repeated. Each time the ring tinkles against the glass, the seeker patiently began the alphabet again, for thus he or she was spelling out the name of an adored one.

Each passed into the darkened conservatory where peculiar greenish flames burned wierdly (caused by a handful of salt thrown on alcohol burners) and "sowed" a handful of hemp seed over the left shoulder to the magic words:

"Hemp seed, I sow thee;
Hemp seed, I sow thee,
And him (or her) that is to be my true love,
Come after me and pull thee."

Then noted with pleasure the familiar shadow on the wall which this exorcism called forth.

Afterward, a demand arose to "pull the kail," and all rushed pellmell to the garden to discover what of wealth was in store for them as foretold by the amount of dirt clinging to the uprooted stalks. Mrs. Cassell announced next morning that from the appearance of her garden it was evident the Halloween spirits cherished an especial grudge against one so happily married that she had no need to bribe them.

A dainty supper characteristic of the occasion made divination pale into insignificance, but afterward nut-cracking and apple-paring were in order, for surely every girl or boy on Halloween must read the fateful initial formed by the apple peel! To render most effective the charm, the following lines were repeated during the process:

"I pare this pippin 'round and 'round again,
My sweetheart's name to flourish on the plain;
I fling the unbroken paring o'er my head,
My sweetheart's letter on the ground is read."

"Mirth and youthful jollity" having attended this and the mystic hour of midnight coming on apace, a final and very potent charm was invoked. One at a time and all alone the girlish devotees of the Fates walked backward slowly (necessarily!) down a dark and narrow back stairway and out into a darkness pierced only by heaven's lights, repeating all the while as they held a hand mirror before them:

"Round and round, O stars so fair!
Ye travel and search out everywhere;
I pray you, sweet stars, now show to me
This night who my future husband shall be."

Muffled and subdued screams reaching the other guests (minus one!) awaiting their turn in the living-room proved that the incanter, of a truth, had beheld her true love's face in the glass.

As the young folk, happy in the assurance of a promising future, were dispersing, Ceres stated impressively:

"The piece de resistance of Halloween tests, the one which, according to Scottish records, procures most prophetic vision, could not be employed here tonight as it requires the privacy of one's own bedroom to make it efficacious. But would you reap the greatest benefit from the tests made here, and compel the fates most fully to disclose the future, fail not on seeking your couch to place beside you a glass of water containing a sliver of wood. The future will then be as an open book to you in your dreams.

"However, two precautions must be rigidly observed: getting into bed backwards and preserving total silence until sleep claims you. For the fates are very jealous and absolute compliance with their whims is necessary. One syllable spoken aloud will turn them into furies and heap all the maledictions in their category upon the offending head."

Then, with a gracious good-night, she presented each guest with two roses as souvenirs of the joyous evening, and the boys were quite unaware that for the girls these blossoms formed the basis of another solemn test ere Morpheus claimed them. For all alone each girl was to kneel by her bedside and, clasping the roses to her heart—one named for herself, one for her sweetheart—was to make her final appeal in the following:

"Twine, twine and intertwine,
Let my love be wholly mine.
If his heart be kind and true,
Deeper grow his rose's hue."

Did any doubt that a particular richness of color would glow in the emblematic rose? No, for youth is credulous and youth is hopeful, and of a truth it seemed that King Leopold.

SEVENTY-THREE-YEAR-OLD MONARCH RENEWS HIS YOUTH.

From a Special Correspondent.

[The writer of the following article is the author of "King Leopold II., His Rule in Belgium and in the Congo," and is a recognized authority on Belgian affairs, and better able, perhaps, than any other writer, to get intimate first-hand news of the king's doings. One interesting subject, on which for obvious reasons he is unable to touch, is what may be stated here as an absolute fact, however often it may have been printed as a rumor and afterward denied—viz.: That the "household" to which Mr. MacDonnell refers, consists, in addition to the usual officials, of the lady known as Baroness Vaughan, and her children, and that the baroness is undoubtedly the wedded, though morganatic wife of the king.]

BRUSSELS, Oct. 13.—King Leopold has got a new lease of life from his doctors, and he is determined to do all that man can do to retain it. He has set his house in order, and all the world can see that his is the well-regulated life of a tranquil citizen. The King disdains to live in private. At this moment his is the central figure of the crowded pageant of Ostend. Subject and foreigner alike may gape from the digue at the Chalet Royal and see the King seated on its veranda, surrounded by his household, calmly examining dispatches and discharging the business of the state.

Nothing can be more grotesquely false than most of the stories told of King Leopold. His life is neither simple nor flat; nevertheless, it is the life of an abstemious and hardworking man. Every Belgian works hard, but all admit the King is the hardest worker in Belgium. Quick in thought and act, King Leopold gets through more work in one day than an average man could do in three, and he does his work himself. He is not content to sit and direct while others labor. From morning to night he works with hardly a break, and secretaries and aides-de-camp have to strain their wits and stretch their legs to keep pace with him and dispatch the orders he heaps on them.

King Leopold was all his life a mighty pedestrian. Latterly a growing stiffness in his right leg made it difficult for him to walk, and it was the fear of a cripple's life which led him to place himself in the doctor's hands. They have cured the King completely. All disquieting symptoms have disappeared. His health is robust, and the stiffness has gone from his leg. He has flung off years from his age, and is full of the joy of life. The doctors have interfered with his smoking of the strong cigars he loved—and his staff detested—but that is a small matter in his eyes, compared with the fact that he is able to stride out on his daily walks once again, and even to mount on horseback, a thing his stiff knee prevented him from doing for many years.

King Leopold is proud of the life he leads. When I spoke of this wonderful energy which makes the efforts of young men seem futile, he explained that he owed his vigor to his simple life. "I am very old," he said (King Leopold is 73 years of age,) "but I am strong and able to work because I lead a regular life. I get up early. I take a great deal of exercise out of doors—and don't get drunk."

The King laughed as he said these last words; but if anything he understated the truth, for King Leopold is now a water drinker in a land where from infancy men quench their thirst in beer.

Early rising is an old custom of his. He is up every morning at 5 o'clock. By 6 he is dressed, has drunk his morning pint of cold water, and is ready to set out for his morning walk. This walk he takes alone, reading whatever the post has brought him overnight. At 7 he is back in his study, has disposed of the papers he had in his hands, and is ready to receive the chief post of the day. The King's post bag is always heavy and the assistance of his private secretary and his aid-de-camp is necessary to deal with its contents. When the post is disposed of, the King has earned his breakfast.

This is a light meal, such as is customary on the continent, but the King drinks tea at it, instead of the customary coffee. While he is breakfasting, his orders relating to the dispatches he has received are carried to the offices of his secretaries. Each order is written by the King on a small square piece of note paper. Orderlies mounted on horseback or on bicycles carry these orders to Brussels when the King is at Laeken, and, when important matters are on foot, as many as a dozen of these leaves will be showered in on the King's secretary in the course of half an hour.

After breakfast, the King, accompanied by his aid-de-camp, sets out for another walk. Recently, in all the delight of his perfect cure, he purchased four new saddle horses, and while he remained at Ciergnon, in the Ardennes, he took his morning exercise on horseback, alone. At Ostend, the King walks on the long terrace which he has built from his chalet to the race course, above the public walk on the digue.

At Laeken King Leopold's walks on the public road are taken toward some spot where work is being carried out by his direction, or to some place he plans to improve. At Ostend the King is the children's friend. He is the friend of the working class at Laeken. All the workmen he meets he speaks to, and he delights them all by what they call his simple manner. King Leopold detests socialism, however, and has no sympathy for trades unionism.

About 11 o'clock the King returns to his study, drinks another pint of water, and resumes his correspondence. He lunches at midday, and dines early whenever he is alone with his household; always rapidly, and always with a good appetite.

After luncheon King Leopold grants audiences, visits exhibitions, attends popular sports, or, if he has the good fortune to be free, sets off again on one of his interminable promenades. He cares little for music or the theater, and in the evening when he has dined he turns quietly to read the newspapers, home and foreign. Tradition has it that the last paper he reads is the London Times, which induces somnolence.

King Leopold loves his army and emphasizes its importance. He seems most himself in the undress uniform of a general—made comfortable by long wear—which is his ordinary dress in Brussels and at Laeken. It was his influence which led the Belgian Parliament recently to vote a huge sum for the strengthening and extension of the fortifications and defenses of Antwerp, "the loaded pistol pointed at England," and it was he who forced the government to perfect the line of forts which protect Belgium against invasion from France or Germany. Before the end of the present year the King's energies will be exerted to influence the chamber to remodel the Belgian army on the lines of compulsory service. Notwithstanding all this, it is the business of civil life with which King Leopold is preoccupied.

In order to create markets for the manufactures of Belgium he has established connections with every newly-opened country and obtained concessions for the construction of railways, and such like, which are worked by companies formed under his incentive. He founded the Congo in order that that colony should be an outlet for Belgian energy and a marke draws to a close and election day approaches, interest intensifies and the wires are fairly swamped with press dispatches about the respective candidates. Interest of course centers around the Presidential candidates for the White House, and overshadows all else. Columns and columns are written and telegraphed about them. Candidates for Governor in States which have gubernatorial elections at the same time, are next in importance locally, but the election of Congressmen is of greater national importance, having a direct bearing upon the national election. The complexion of the Legislature in the various States, especially in States where the Legislature will elect a United States Senator this winter, is also a matter of paramount importance to the party managers.

During the last two or three days before election day, every correspondent files a brief story of the "firing of the last guns" in the campaign of his respective State or district. On Monday morning a "day before" story is sent, followed by a "night before the battle" story in the evening for the morning papers. The change in the line-up of the opposing parties, if any, the prospects for good weather and a heavy vote and the last claims of the party managers are given. Everything in sight is usually claimed by both parties. Not infrequently the more hopeless the outlook, the more extravagant the claims of the party managers.

A network of telegraph circuits for the following day and night are laid out and tested. The carrying capacity of the wires is as carefully calculated as the loading of a 12-inch gun with a certain charge, to reach a specified distance.

A schedule of the amount of press matter and returns which can be handled on the various circuits, is made out and final instructions are sent to the division headquarters and by them to the district managers and correspondents with the warning that the schedules must not be exceeded except under extraordinary circumstances or unusual developments.

If election day means working under double pressure and the straining of every nerve by correspondents, reporters, editors and press officials, to the telegraph chiefs it is a day of dread. Inwardly they pray for good weather, but loudly they growl and mutter as they watch apprehensively for the weather reports, and are willing to wager all they possess that on the morrow, of all days in the year when every circuit is needed, the wires will be in a hopeless tangle in some division, with the "bug hunters," as the wire chiefs are termed, getting gray hairs trying to find a way out.

Monday night, if the telegraph chief sleeps at all, he dreams of a snowslide in the Rockies carrying a long line of poles and wires with it, a sleetstorm in New York making the wires as brittle as glass and breaking with every swaying movement of the wind, or a cyclone wiping out a few trunk-line circuits in the middle West.

The "last gun" has been fired. Each candidate has for the hundredth and last time told why he should be placed in office. Sensational stories affecting one or the other party or some individual candidate, are often sprung at the last moment so that there can be no reply made. Election day dawns and the battle of the ballots is on for three hours in the New England and eastern States before it opens on the Pacific Coast. All eyes are on New York, which with its seventy-two electoral votes is usually the determining factor in the national election.

A special wire is run to Mr. Taft's home. There is one to the White House. On his Fairview farm, on the plains of Nebraska, Mr. Bryan is watching the ticking of the telegraph instrument in his home with more interest than at any previous election. The sounder is clicking off his fate.

As the day progresses, the wires tell the story of the voting as written by hundreds of correspondents in all parts of the country. The condition of the weather in the States of the Middle West and East, whether fair or stormy, is of paramount importance and enters largely into the calculations of the party managers, as it affects the vote to a considerable extent. So the first thing on the correspondent's schedule is "twenty-five words on weather." By noon all the political centers know from the press dispatches in what States and sections bad weather is causing a lighter vote than had been figured upon.

There are the usual charges of fraud and election disputes; perhaps a shooting in one place and a riot at another locality. All this is a part of the burden of the wires. Perhaps some correspondent has an exaggerated idea of the day's developments in his particular State or section, and takes advantage of the clause "except under extraordinary circumstances" in his schedule and expands unduly. But it gets no further than his district or division headquarters where the trained editors and writers ruthlessly cut it down, rewrite it according to its general news value, eliminate any partisanship that may have crept in and route it according to whether it is of interest to the country in general or only in certain States or sections.

As soon as the polls close, the work of the correspondents, reporters, editors and news gatherers begins in earnest. By 6 o'clock the wires are cleared for the returns, and soon scattering reports, like the first skirmish along the line of battle, begin to come in, which soon develops into a never-ceasing stream of figures and names. In the cities and towns reporters and correspondents are detailed at the registrar's office, principal voting booths and party headquarters. The Associated Press staffs work in coöperation with the staffs of the different newspapers, are given copies of everything received by the local and State and national campaign committees and are afforded every facility for obtaining and handling the returns as expeditiously as possible. Interspersed in the returns are brief bulletins of the situation and contests in the various States where the campaign has been particularly close and bitter.

The district offices of the Associated Press send the returns of the Congressional, State and legislative vote to their respective division headquarters, the latter send them to the general office in New York, where 200 editors, correspondents and accountants are computing and tabulating the national and Congressional returns, which in turn are sent out to all offices for distribution.

About thirty-five expert accountants from the principal banks with a score of adding machines are at work under the direction of the press chiefs in the New York office, computing the figures as rapidly as they come. Half a dozen men, expert at percentages, with the figures of perhaps the last half-dozen national and State elections before them, are figuring out the ratio and quite frequently by 9 or 10 o'clock at night, can announce to a reasonable certainty, the victorious candidate and approximately his majority or plurality. In the Washington, Chicago and San Francisco offices of the Associated Press, similar work is being done by a large force of men.

By 10 o'clock at night everything is in full swing. Editors, reporters, correspondents and operators, wish it was over. In the large central telegraph offices in Chicago, the hub of the vast telegraph system in this country, between 1200 and 1500 telegraph operators are at work ticking of figures, figures, figures. The floor is covered a foot deep with "flimsy," as the thin tissue paper of which an operator must copy twenty copies at one time, is termed. Messenger boys are rushing back and forth collecting and distributing handfuls of "copy" to and from the wires. The noise of a thousand instruments is like the den of a boilershop. To the visitor, if he should be admitted into the operating-room on election night, which is very unlikely, everything seems excitement and confusion, as he hears the clicking of hundreds of typewriters and the clatter of the sounders which are ticking off the dispatches and endless columns of figures to the perspiring operators working under the green-shaded lights. How the telegraphers as they work north, south, east and west, can distinguish one "tick" from another in that roaring din, is a mystery to the visitor.

By 11 o'clock, the excitement in telegraph, press and newspaper and party headquarters is at its height, and the crowds around the bulletin boards the largest. By midnight the national result is pretty well known if it has not already been practically announced some time earlier. Only in States where the vote was particularly close are the Congressional and perhaps legislative results still in doubt. Campaign managers are already figuring out the respective strength of the two parties in the next Congress. Messages of congratulation are already flooding the wires to successful candidates. Other telegrams reading something like "Well, you made a good fight, anyway," are also beginning to appear.

The crowds around the bulletin boards begin to melt away, satisfied that the country has been saved once more. At the headquarters of the State Central Committee of the victorious party, the campaign managers, surrounded by many of the principal candidates and politicians, still sit for an hour or two in a blue fog of smoke lazily ascending from many cigars, discussing the day's events, the night's results, and telling again the story of former battles of the ballots.

There is a constant string of messengers with telegrams from county and local committee chairmen. An unexpected defection in the ranks in some section as revealed by the returns, is greeted with growls and muttered curses. In the camp of the defeated party, the ranks have thinned out long before midnight. The campaign headquarters are deserted early when every dispatch indicates all too plainly that "we are snowed under." It may even be difficult for a reporter or correspondent to find some one to make a "statement" on behalf of the vanquished.

Even successful candidates and their political lieutenants, worn out by the last days of the campaign and the suspense of election day, become weary and go home, but it is nearly morning before the tired editors, correspondents, reporters, press chiefs can write "30" on their copy and give thanks that national elections are far between.

The cost of gathering and distributing the returns of a national election for the public is estimated at $1,000,000, and an army of about 50,000 men and women are employed at least a part of the day on election day in the tremendous amount of work involved.

THE BLACK SILK DRESS

Of frocks Belinda has a score
  In which to drive or call or dine;
Her evening gowns, some ten or twelve,
  Are marvels wrought in texture fine.
Eight tailored suits her wardrobe boasts;
  She vows she cannot do with less.
Alack-a-day! The simple life
  Has vanished with the black silk dress!

With what delight does one recall
  Its rustling widths and surface sleek;
In quality it had no peer
  ('Twas gros-grain or moiré antique.)
From year to year its style endured;
  No fashion, fickle to excess,
Was powerful enough to rout,
  In days of yore, the black silk dress.

How numerous its uses were!
  It served for luncheon, tea or ball,
For opera or for a dance,
  For shopping or to pay a call—
In spite of what Belinda says
  About my taste I must confess
A wish to resurrect again
  The all-sufficing black silk dress.

L'ENVOI.

Ye devotees that oscillate
  'Twixt various modes, from lithe princesse
To empire fashion, all your gowns
  I'd barter for the black silk dress!

Solving Deep Problems.

WONDERFUL WORK BEING DONE BY STUDENTS AT LA JOLLA.

By a Special Contributor.

TO the uninitiated, the display at the San Diego Biological Station at La Jolla, Cal., one of the most beautiful suburbs of Uncle Sam's most southwesterly city, is little or no more than an interesting collection of shells, fish and other forms of marine animal life, and, for a truth, there are hundreds who visit the little building perched upon the bluff, above the broad expanses of the blue Pacific, and think that they have, in seeing the things there assembled, come to a knowledge of the real purposes and mission of the association of science lovers through whose instrumentality the station was built.

It would be hard to imagine anything farther from reality than this very false idea. To be sure, the collection of such things as are mentioned is one of the first phases of work of the student of biology, but it is only a means to an end. Of the two branches of biology—zoölogy and botany—the former is one in which the San Diego station is most interested. Here each summer gathers a class of students from the University of California at Berkeley, and for a period of some six weeks these scientists in embryo, under the direction of that learned authority, William E. Ritter, and other members of the faculty, delve in the sands of the beaches near by, overturn the rocks in the coves, drag their nets along the bottom close in or far out at sea, as the case may be, constantly adding to their store of information under the tutelage of their elders, who are fairly steeped in sea brine, and at the same time increasing their individual collections of specimens for study.

Those who are in a position to know say that there is something intensely fascinating about this branch of scientific research. To be sure, the descent from the phylum, through the class, order, family and genus to the species, makes the pages of scientific works look like those of the note-book of the seeker after blue blood who is endeavoring to trace the direct line of his descent from Adam. Of the various phylums in the broad field of zoölogy, the one to which most attention has been given at the San Diego station is that of Coelenterata, which embraces the jelly fish, the comb jellies, sea anemones and corals, and it is but natural that the display of specimens should be especially rich in these, but they are not the only interesting objects in the cases.

Even to one not an adept, there is something worthy of more than a passing glance in the sea quill, a peculiar marine animal looks like the quill of a large bird. This has a good long scientific name—Pennilata phosphorea. Then there is the sea pin cushion, which looks like a white ball with pinkish protuberances that remind one of hatpins stuck in a cushion, and this manages to get along with the name of Authomestus Ritteri.

The Balticina pacific, or living lavender, looks much like the long stem of the wild flower which gives it its name. It is found at times by dredging in from 200 to 1000 fathoms of water. The specimen on display was brought up by the Albatross, sailing under the direction of the Fish Commission, off the coast of Southern California.

Among the shells are the olividea, or olives, as they are commonly called, the coffee beans, the abalones, the limpets, and many other varieties. In number they are legion, too, for it may be said in passing that there are some 550 different kinds of shells known to exist within a radius of fifty miles of the station.

The chitons, or sea cradles, are always interesting, as their shape readily suggests the name commonly given them. Sea urchins, sea cucumbers, sand dollars, sea rabbits and like names are among those applied to marine animal life because of the similarity, fancied or real, of those objects to the things from which they get their titles, and yet it is hard to see how the sea urchin, for instance bears any resemblance to its namesake—the average lad on dry land—unless it be that its full, round shape, after its spines have been removed, suggests the rotund face of some well-fed youngsters.

One of the very interesting branches of this marine study is that of the starfish, and only recently Prof. H. H. Jennings of the department of zoölogy at Berkeley spent some time at the San Diego station, making a special study of them. As a result of his observations he has issued his "Behavior of the Starfish," and in it tells of how he established habit in these creatures, the lowest form of life in which the power of habit has been developed. He brought this about by turning the starfish on its back and then assisting it to turn back to its normal position, but always in the same direction. This he kept up until the starfish turned back in that way of its own accord.

Another branch of study at the station has been that which Prof. Charles Manning Child of the University of Chicago pursued for some time. This field is known, scientifically, as regeneration, or the capacity to reproduce a portion of the body which has been removed. Starfish and flat worms were used in this branch of research, and as a result of Prof. Child's observation he established the fact that, in order for one of the rays of the starfish to be replaced by another, after the first has been broken off, there must be left the major portion, at least, of the nervous center. The animal, too, must be in a condition of rest, and its environment must be as nearly as possible the same as that to which it is naturally accustomed. The fourth requisite is proper feeding during the process of regeneration.

That great possibilities affecting the future of the human race lie hidden at present from the public eye, is an idea that is becoming firmly fixed in the minds of those scientists who have been making a close study of this matter of regeneration. Why cannot the principles which have been found to control in this field be brought to the assistance of mankind? This is the question which is agitating their minds. If a starfish, under the right conditions as to quiet, feeding, environment and nervous center, can grow a new ray to take the place of one which has been removed by accident or otherwise, why cannot a man whose arm has been severed or whose ear has been smitten off have such member reproduced? These searchers after the truth contend that it is merely a matter of time before it will be made manifest that such recoveries are possible if all the conditions are met. That some of these conditions are at present but partially apprehended is undoubtedly tr search work is just the force which is to light.

Still another of the lines of study which pursues is that of metagenesis, or altera ation. As an illustration, the class of and the corymorpha palma (Torrey,) found tion, is the subject of particular study.

beautiful little medusae will bud and the cells once more, forming the corymorpha, round of alternation continues. For this has been going on, or for how many is so stupendous a problem that it is effort to solve. The fact that such a in size, is the meat in the cocoanut, as it the biologist has brought down by his

A BALLAD OF THE BAL

Again the Balkans bump about,
Again we feel the jar;
Again the fierce Bulgarians
Untie the dogs of war.
The Turks have put their
And intimate quite plain
They'll spoil the face of Bosnia
To save their suzerain.

Across in Austro-Hungary

Baumgardt in Greece.

ENRAPTURED BY THE GLORIES OF ANCIENT HELLAS.

By a Special Contributor.

FOLLOWING is a portion of a personal letter sent from Athens by B. R. Baumgardt of this city:

We left Sicily on a beautiful August morning, [illegible] being visible to the last. For the greater part of the day the shores of Calabria were visible. But finally these, too, faded from sight, and we knew that the next land we beheld would be Greece. At 2 o'clock the next day the barren shores of the peninsula of Pylos loomed up on the horizon. It was one (the most westerly) of the three fingers of the Peloponnesus. A few hours more brought us up to the second finger of Greece terminating in the sea with Cape Matapan, the most southerly mainland point of Europe. Mount Taggetus was plainly visible, and far away a few of the Arcadian hills.

By this time it was well on toward sunset. Still I stayed on deck until I could see land no longer, picturing old Greece. Sparta was but two hours away. So near and yet so far. Could it be possible? [illegible] land and visit the site of the famous Lacedemonian city?

[illegible] set in matchless glory, bringing to my mind the significance of Byron's lines:

"Slow sinks, more lovely ere his race be run,
Along Morea's hills the setting sun;
Not as in northern climes obscurely bright,
But one unclouded blaze of living light."

Next morning, betimes, we were up to see the sun [illegible] the "Isles of Greece." For we had during [illegible] passed into the Aegean Sea. Melos (where the Venus was found) had been passed. Hydra was [illegible] left, and directly ahead was Aegina with its far-[illegible] Temple of Athena. Cape Suvium, the south point [illegible], was on our right, shutting off further vistas [illegible] Cyclades. Close by was Laurium, with the cele[illegible] mines which gave such great wealth to the [illegible] old and which today are operated by a Scotch [illegible]. I was fortunate in having formed the ac[illegible] on board of an Athenian architect. His card [illegible] G. Metaxas, Architect de S. M. le Roi [illegible]." He was a most intelligent and well-[illegible], who had built the new Stadium at Athens [illegible] of marble benches seating 5000 spectators [illegible] site of the old Athenian Stadium. He vol[illegible] to act as my pilot in passing up the famous [illegible] Aegina.

[illegible] the vessel turns to the right slightly, leaving [illegible] house of Ajax) behind, but giving a splendid view of the narrow Bay of Salamis, where the battle was fought. In front of the vessel lies a view which any one with a spark of enthusiasm for the glory that once was Greece's can never forget. Every curving cape (so like our Southern California capes,) every inlet, every island, every hill and mountain bears a name that recalls one's classics and holds us spellbound. The vessel is about to enter the harbor of Piraeus, the port of the old as well as of modern Athens. Phaliron is close by. In the distance is Hymettus, celebrated now as of old for its honey. Further away is Axsis, the peak of Pentelicus, where Phidias obtained the marble with which to beautify Athens. Between us and these mountains we easily recognize Athens by the high hill of Lykabettos. And there, yes, there—just wait a minute till I wipe my glasses carefully, so as not to make a mistake—there, standing closely out against the Grecian sky, are the Parthenon and the Erictheon and the Propylae, all crowning the summit of the Acropolis, just as I have so often pictured them to my mind during the thirty years I have been longing to see them in reality. At last, at last, another boyhood's dream has become a reality.

And now our vessel, the Scutar., has come to anchor in the Piraeus Harbor. A hundred Greek boats are in waiting to bring passengers ashore. Like pirates the boatmen rush on board, and take possession of our baggage. An indescribable confusion follows. We had selected for our stay in Athens the best hotel in the city, the D'Angleterre. We soon found the boat of this hotel and were the first passengers to be off and to put foot on the soil of old Hellas.

But there was no time for classical musings. In less than fifteen minutes we were on board an up-to-date electric car, which, hurrying by the walls built by Themistocles for defense 2300 years ago, brought us up to Athens in another twenty minutes.

We have now been in Athens some time. Our hotel is located on Constitution Square and the intersection of Hermes street, and within fifteen minutes' ride of the Acropolis and the other ruins of antiquity. Modern Athens is a city which for its size will compare favorably with any other capital in Europe. The people seem bright, clean and prosperous. There are no beggars, no drunkards. They claim to be the direct descendants of the old Hellenes, though on this point there are no doubt many outstanding difficulties to explain. Still their language is closely related, I am told, to the old Greek.

I am favorably impressed with their new city in all respects except the water supply. Thanks to its evil influence, and perhaps also to the fact that Aesculapius and Hygeia are locked up in the museum, I have lost several valuable days from my Athenian itinerary.

It is a beautiful Sunday afternoon. Eugene Clark has gone to the Bay of Salamis to take a dip in the blue Mediterranean. I am going to ask you to accompany me to the Hill of the Muses to reflect upon the present and past of this wonderful place. On the summit of the hill is the Astronomical Observatory with its thirteen-inch equatorial. It was at this observatory, but not with that instrument, that Dr. Schmidt, its former director, made his memorable discoveries on some changes taking place on the surface of the moon (if I remember right,) in the region surrounding the crater Linni in the Mare Tranquilitatis. I had a pleasant interview with the present assistant astronomer, Prof. Georgantis. The director was absent in Switzerland. He explained to me the work carried on at the institution. It was all very interesting, but alas! the door of the observatory was open, affording me a view of the Acropolis which was sufficient to take my mind back in time to that other celebrated Greek astronomer, Hipparchus, who on this very spot, without any modern instruments and with the aid simply of a mural circle, made his immortal discovery of the precession of the equinoxes. How easy it is in such a place as Athens to forget the present for the past!

The observatory stands upon a high knoll, on one side of which is a deep ravine. It is the notorious Baratheum, the place of execution in the days of Plato and Aristotle, where dwelt the public slave with his instruments of death and horror.

A far more cheerful sight meets us upon the other side of the observatory. A gradual rise in the hill, then a depression, separates us from the Acropolis. Let us walk over this historic ground, perhaps the most interesting in the world, toward the Acropolis, the ruins of which are now bathed in the rays of the evening sun, reminding us of the old Grecian saying that "the marble used in the construction of the Parthenon had been quarried, not from the bed of the rocky mountain, but from the golden light of the Athenian sunset." Indeed, the old weather-stained marble becomes indescribably beautiful toward sunset.

THE PRINCE PROPOSES.

CINDERELLA'S green table-cloth train swept out majestically behind her. Upon her head lurched a Paris creation donated by the Fairy Godmother, while in her hand swayed a deliriously-decorated fan obtained from the soda-water fountain around the corner. At her side scuffled the Prince, a red bunting sash wound jauntily about his waist, a gold paper crown set at a rakish tilt upon his red hair. The step-sisters, consumed with an envy that approached wonderfully near to realism, followed in their wake.

"Now, Tommy, I'm goin' to drop it and run," whispered Cinderella. Cinderella was barelegged, but a pair of gay Turkish slippers flopped on her feet. A moment later one of these reposed upon the pathway and Cinderella was bounding up the steps of the porch, her train streaming out behind her. The step-sisters sniffed contemptuously as the Prince glared down at the slipper, surprise and well-meant hilarity mingled in his freckled face.

"Pick it up, stupid," prompted a sepulchral voice from the vine-covered piazza.

A few minutes later, two pages, who bore a striking resemblance to the step-sisters of a moment before, tottered up the path carrying between them a fat denim cushion, on which lay the slipper. Behind them stalked the Prince, his wooden sword clacking martially upon the gravel. Cautiously setting down their burden, the pages, with admirable unconcern, proceeded to resume their true characters—that of the jealous step-sisters. Giggling immoderately, they strove in vain to claim the slipper. The Prince was gradually becoming restless. A sheepish look stole over his face and longing glances were cast across his shoulder. He backed stealthily toward the steps. Alarmed at these signs of a craven spirit, Cinderella emerged hastily from among the vines and mincing across the porch, simpered coyly at the Prince, who sulked openly, and backed closer to the steps. Foot outstretched, petrified dignity, Cinderella waited the climax. The step-sisters snickered.

"Tommy," whispered the nearest one, "you old silly, put it on and 'brace her and say: 'Cinderella, wilt thou be mine?' "

"Hurry up, she's gettin' mad."

"Aw, gwan, Tommy, please."

But Tommy, with a gesture horrifying to his feminine audience, had fled down the path, tearing off the insignia of royalty as he went. Cinderella stamped her foot. At the sound the Fairy Godmother appeared in the doorway.

"O Aunty May, isn't Tommy mean? Every single time we play Cinderella, he spoils it all at the end!"

"Spoils it all," echoed the step-sisters.

"I just think he might put it on ONCE," stormed Cinderella. She also tore off her robes of state and flung them from her.

"See if I don't get even on him, horrid old thing!" and away flew the injured maiden, hot in pursuit of the recreant Prince. Amid voluble discussion of the situation, the step-sisters and the Fairy Godmother collected the royal belongings.

"Well, Cinderella, how about it? Did the ball come up to your expectations?"

Cinderella, standing straight and slim in the moonlight, watched the Prince struggle with the latch of the gate, which refused to fasten. She laughed softly.

"Why, Silly, of course. Didn't the step-sisters look magnificent? They quite cast me in the shade. Please, Tommy, come on and never mind that gate. I'm cold."

There was no reply. Cinderella shivered audibly and drew her fluffy wrap more closely about her.

"You are quite as stubborn as ever, sir. I'm going in." She tripped up the gravel pathway and into the house.

A moment later, the Prince slammed the gate with a triumphant click and hurried after her, but at the steps he paused and gave a surprised little whistle. Something black and shiny and small lay upon the middle stair. He thrust his hands deep in his pockets and regarded it for a full minute with thoughtful eyes. Then his lips tightened in sudden resolution.

"By Jove! I'll do it now," he exclaimed to the article before him. Stooping quickly, he caught it up, and walked slowly into the house. On the stairs sat Cinderella, her chin sunk deep in her palm, one foot curled up under her. The warm glow from the hall lamp above fell directly upon her bright hair and upturned face. Her eyes gleamed in mischievous challenge. The Prince moved across the hall, and, leaning against the newel post, looked steadily down at her. Shy panic flew into her eyes. A quick breath stirred the soft lace of her gown. She cast a longing look up the stairway behind her and followed it by an effort to rise. In another moment the slipper had dropped to the floor, the arms of the Prince were about her, and the lips of the Prince were murmuring very close to her ear: "Cinderella, dear, wilt thou be mine?"

The Eagle Chief.

LEGEND OF TUCHI-MATIS AND HIS LIFE AMONG THE EAGLES.

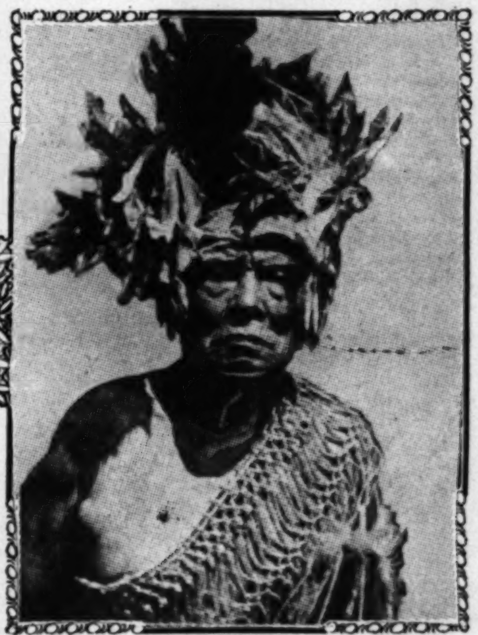
By a Special Contributor.

IT was in the long, long ago, ere the white man's foot had desecrated the soil of the red man, that Tuchi-Matis was born of Chula-hee-wa on the slopes of Mt. Volcan, in what is now San Diego county, Cal. It was long before the coming of the conquering sons of Spain that the eagle boy hunted game on the hot deserts and treeless mountains, and perhaps the beginnings of the legend reach back to the days of mound builder and cliff dweller, or even farther. Be that as it may, it was Mata-Whur, or Cinon Duro, as he was known to the Spanish mission fathers, who, in these last days of a dying race, kept alive the traditions of his people. Cinon Duro became chief of the Mesa Grande Indians when only 17 years old, and when his heart broke a year ago, and he was gathered to his fathers, the sorrowing remnant of his tribe knew that they had laid to rest the body of their last chief.

Cinon Duro himself had known only too well that the years of the Mesa Grande red men were all but numbered, and so, with his great heart hot, he had spent his long life of a century in teaching his people the legends and traditions that they were fast forgetting through contact with the Christian Spaniard.

Not that old Cinon was a pagan, for in the days of his young manhood he had accepted the gift of eternal life proffered by the padres, and when, in 1906, he passed over the "great divide," he did so in the firm belief that his babies and his squaw, long since asleep on the mountainside, were waiting for him in the heaven of the Christian priest. Thus died Mata-Whur, and after they had buried him beside his squaw and little papooses on the scorched slopes of Mt. Volcan, they met—the aged men and women—to dance the eagle dance, as Mata-Whur had taught them, in memory of their dead chieftain, and in honor of the eagle boy Tuchi-Matis, son of Chula-hee-Wa. Of the meaning of this dance, and its ceremonial setting, only Cinon Duro knew, until, in his passionate love for the old tribal legend, he had told the story to his people, and kept alive the symbolic dance by observing it annually at Mesa Grande.

The Tatahuila dancer.



Cinon Mata-Weer, late chief of the Mesa Grande indians.

Once again, this year, on the anniversary of Cinon's death, the aged men gathered on the mesa, clad in their eagle feathers, marked with the totem symbols on their white-painted faces and bodies, to chant the song of the eagle boy amid the incense of tobacco smoke. It is all carried out in a tongue unknown to the Indians themselves, survival of a language having no written history—perhaps the tongue of their forefathers, ere they had migrated from their primitive abode to the Mesa Grande of California. The chant is now weird, now piercing like the eagle's scream. Around the central sacred fire, in the open, the feathered red men dance, now stepping, now wheeling and filing, beating time with hands and feet, now standing, now kneeling, all under the masterful direction of Chrisanthus, brother of the wild cat.

Long before the dance, the bald-headed eagle had been killed and cremated, that its spirit might ascend to the throne of the eagle god, while of its feathers is fashioned the feather dress, symbol of the eagle god's power. Three days and nights the painted votaries of the eagle god thus surround the sacred fire, uttering their rhythmic chants, now in passionate recitative, now in a low minor key, whirling, wheeling, rising, falling, forward, backward, wildly symbolizing the flight of the eagle and the motion of its wings. No white man ever knew the symbolism of this dance until Cinon Duro revealed it one day in the legend of the eagle boy, the first chief of the tribe in the long ago. So listen, paleface, while is told the story of Tuchi-Matis the eagle boy, recorded only in the Spanish-Indian tongue of the red children of the Mesa Grande:

It was already the fifth moon, and the earth was red and hot—so hot that nothing nourishing could grow, and only roots and acorns were at hand to keep alive the fast-increasing tribe. One day old Chula-hee-Wa went out under the burning sun, far up the scorching mountain trail, to gather food for herself and little Tuchi-Matis, her child of six summers—her only child, her son. Miles and miles they trudged until they reached the timber growth of Mt. Volcan, where Chula-hee-Wa gathered a basketful of acorns and some succulent roots to assuage their hunger and to carry home. But Tuchi-Matis was weak and sick from want of deer meat, and because he could not work hard at digging roots and gathering the acorns, old Chula-hee-Wa, his mother, beat him and cursed him, and turning backward down the red-hot mountain trail, she left little Tuchi-Matis all alone. There he sat a long time, till the day was dead and the Great Bear and the Milky Way came out of the black sky to lighten the boy's heart, and the cool mountain air had cooled his fevered head.

"What can Tuchi-Matis do?" cried he, looking up into the big starry vault above him, and then, rising to his feet, he followed blindly the trail up the mountainside, crying as if his heart would break, while the screech owl's call was heard, and the howl of the coyote sent many a shudder through his soul.

On the mountain top the child of Chula-hee-Wa sat him down to rest at midnight, and as he mused on the curses of his mother and looked upward toward the great star of Techaipo, lo! the sky grew blacker and blacker, the Milky Way was suddenly blotted out from sight, and the Great Bear seemed to hie himself into the depth of the great unknown void above him. Then out of space swooped down a great bald-headed eagle, that grasped Tuchi-Matis in its mighty talons and carried him away to its lofty aerie on the neighboring summit.

The boy seemed to fear less the screams of the eagle than he had the bark of the coyote, and he soon found that in this feathered monster he had a fostering mother, for there in the mother eagle's nest Tuchi-Matis found a home, and there he lived among the eagles till twenty summers of his life had come and gone. He learned the habits of the eagle tribe. He soon copied their ways and almost became an eagle boy himself. His cry was piercing, like that of the eagle, and ere long he could look at the burning sun at midday without blinking, could spy out the rabbits miles away with an eagle's eye, could run as swiftly as the eagle could fly, and loved to look as much like an eagle as he could by dressing up in eagle's feathers.

Thus among his feathered friends Tuchi-Matis lived and hunted for years on the mountain summit, but his heart yearned always for tidings of his tribe, and of Chula-hee-Wa, his unnatural mother—the mother who had cursed and banished her only son. So at last he told his tribal longings to the old mother eagle, and, although he had come to be the chief of the eagles, they consented to his departure. With lamentations and woeful cries they bade their adopted eagle chief farewell, and watched him, as only eagles can watch, as he descended the hot mountain trail toward the settlement of his old tribe—along the same trail that his mother took the evening when she cursed both her only son and the day he was born.

Down, down, he sped, clad in eagle's plumes—half-running, half-flying, bow and arrow in hand—hunting the hare and deer on his way, and sending poisoned shafts into the heart of many an unwelcome coyote. Thus, lithe of limb, strong in muscle, eagle-eyed, mighty as a hunter, he reached the camps of his tribe. Welcomed as some mighty chief from afar, he was soon chosen as the tribal chief, and not until he, at last, lay dying, did the eagle chief reveal himself as the long-lost son of Chula-hee-Wa.

Meanwhile he spent his long life in teaching the tribe the wisdom of the eagle, and the making of pottery and beautiful baskets, enriched with all the symbols of rain, and lightning, and mountain, and birds, and stars, while the eagles on the mountain top kept up their lamentations over their departed chief, the eagle boy, Tuchi-Matis. So under the leadership of the returned son of the wicked mother the little tribe grew wise and powerful.

Then one day the eagle chief, ninety summers old, lay dying on his blanket at the doorway of Crow Industrial Fair.

REMARKABLE SUCCESS OF INDIAN AGENT'S PRACTICAL IDEA.

By a Special Contributor.

THE Indian is rapidly ceasing to be a problem—at least as far as the Crow tribe is concerned—and this annual fair is one of the reasons there- [illegible] This is the fourth year of the fair on the Crow [illegible]tion, and it has grown bigger and better each [illegible] and has made the Indians take keen interest in farm work. In five years the Crows have emerged [illegible] a position of absolute dependence on the govern- [illegible] to a self-supporting stage. Five more years like [illegible] just past, and we'll be having Rockefellers and [illegible] in the tribe."

The speaker was Maj. S. G. Reynolds, Crow Indian [illegible]. He was sitting on his saddle pony, in the center [illegible] half-mile race track, around which Indian horse- [illegible] were careering in breakneck races that are so char- [illegible] of red jockeys. Squaws in bright-colored [illegible] and bucks in "store clothes" were seated in a [illegible] stand that faced the home stretch, and their [illegible] as victorious riders came in could be heard on [illegible] heights of Custer battlefield, a mile or two [illegible]. Back of the grand stand were several fair [illegible]—agricultural hall, industrial building, poultry [illegible] etc., and the quacking of ducks, the clucking [illegible] and the neighing of blooded horses down at the [illegible] where prizes were being awarded, added to the [illegible] contrasts of the scene.

The fourth annual fair of Crow Indians was in prog- [illegible] from the schoolgirls who were shrilling their [illegible] at the race track to the silent bucks who [illegible] the big pumpkins and other vegetables in [illegible] hall and muttering an occasional "Heap good," [illegible] was at the top notch of enjoyment. The Indians had been preparing for the fair for months. Not [illegible] prizes offered for the best showing by individual farmers and stock raisers, but there were prizes [illegible] districts that made the best showing. The big [illegible], which is 100 miles long by seventy-five [illegible], is divided into three districts—Black Lodge, [illegible] and Pryor—and a "boss farmer" super- [illegible] the crop raising in each district. It used [illegible] hard for the "boss farmers" to make the [illegible] give sufficient attention to their crops to make [illegible] showing at harvest time, but since the an- [illegible] has become a feature of life on the reserva- [illegible] is different. The Indians do not need to be [illegible] to do their best in planting and cultivation. [illegible] after those prizes at the big "pumpkin show" [illegible] each year at Crow Agency. And not only [illegible] do their best in the matter of raising crops, [illegible] squaws vie with one another in raising chickens, [illegible] sewing and neat housework, for all of which [illegible] cash prizes. Even the school children are [illegible], and their exhibit is always one of the [illegible] of the annual fair.

"The Indian is a good deal like the white man, for [illegible] that he is not going to work very hard unless [illegible] interested in what he is doing," said Maj. Rey- [illegible] you let him tackle work that interests him, [illegible] is nothing to the theory that he is lazy. [illegible] there's no use trying to civilize the Indian [illegible]. One must remember that all their habits [illegible] can't be changed in an instant. It is the [illegible] of the white man's ideas and then the [illegible] of government support that is going to [illegible]. The Crows are self-supporting now, and there [illegible] Indians left in the tribe. I don't sup- [illegible] fifty Crow men who are not farming or [illegible] stock. But even now it doesn't do to for- [illegible] are Indians. While the fair is on I let [illegible] dances on the camp ground, though [illegible] times of the year dancing is discouraged [illegible] that an Indian never knows when to quit, [illegible] started to dance. Let him get the danc- [illegible] his veins, and he will dance for days, while [illegible] to ruin."

Ready for the sack race

War party going to the sham battle.

Maj. Reynolds was appointed Crow Indian [illegible] no experience in Indian affairs. To take a [illegible] hardly over thirty, out of the banking business, and put him in charge of a tribe of nearly 1500 Indians, living in a tribal state and showing few evidences of progress, looked like a daring experiment. But the first thing Maj. Reynolds did was to break up the tribal life, which he recognized as harmful in the extreme. The Indians were made to live on their allotments of land, though they protested vigorously against having their tepee villages destroyed. Next came a division of the big herd of cattle, representing most of the wealth of the tribe. Maj. Reynolds spent six weeks on the round-up, but at its conclusion he had assigned the head of each family his own proportion of cattle and horses, under an individual brand. Then came the difficult work of making the Indians take an interest in their ranches. Slowly, however, civilization began to triumph. Irrigation ditches were built, and Indian farmers began to put up fences for the better care of their stock. Fortunately the reservation is a veritable garden spot, well watered and adapted to the raising of bumper crops, and with plenty of good grazing land in the hills that stretch away from the water courses. When the "boss farmers" began to get practical results in their districts, Maj. Reynolds told the Indians that they should hold a fair every fall—"all same white man."

When the fair was first mentioned the Indians were mystified. They did not know what it meant. But the idea was elaborated on, until a few of the more advanced Crows began to grow enthusiastic. When it was learned that there would be dancing at the fair, everybody was interested. The first fair was held on the ranch of Medicine Tail, one of the most progressive of the Crow Indians. There was no agricultural exhibit worth mentioning, but the Indians all enjoyed the dancing. The next year a much better showing resulted. An Industrial Fair Association was formed, every member being one of the Crow tribe. Out of the lumber from the abandoned military post at Fort Custer, on the Big Horn, a fair ground was built at Crow Agency, almost under the hill where Custer and his men of the Seventh Regiment met their fate. The agricultural exhibit was much larger, the school exhibit was better, and so was the live-stock exhibit. The Indians had caught the idea, and the success of the annual fair was assured.

The fair just held—October 5 to 10—was remarkable in every way. The prize list was a long one, including cash premiums that ranged from $1 to $15. There were prizes for racing, athletics, etc., prizes for the best-kept tepees, for the fattest live stock, the best horses, the finest chickens, the best needle-work, the finest preserves and the best displays of grains and vegetables. There were prizes for the districts that made the best general showing—and Chief Plenty Coos himself worked with might and main to bring up the average of his own district of Pryor.

All the attention was not confined to the race track and the dancing tents. The Indians who made the grand stand a mass of variegated colors cheered when the industrial parade went past, headed by the fine blooded horses from the Belmont stud—thoroughbred stock that is displacing the stocky Indian ponies. The buildings were crowded with Indian farmers who critically inspected the exhibits from each district, and everybody took a look at the prize tepees, five in number, that were set at one side of the fair ground where their canvas sides glowed prettily in an arm of the Little Big Horn.

Not only has the industrial fair interested the Crow, but its fame has spread to other Indian nations. On the camp ground, situated a mile below the fair ground, on the Little Big Horn, were at least 4000 Indians. Nearly half that number were visitors who had trekked hundreds of miles overland to eat, drink and be merry with their prosperous Crow brethren. There were Northern Cheyennes from their reservation about forty miles to the north; Sioux from the Dakotas, headed by the great chief, American Horse; Nez Perces, Blackfeet, Flatheads, and even Indians from the Umatilla Reservation in Washington.

The tents were arranged in a great circle, and the camp ground presented a remarkably picturesque scene. Swarms of children, and the inevitable Indian dogs, played about in front of the tepees. On the day of the big sham battle, in which the Indians pictured the attack and repulse of a party of Sioux, bent on horse stealing, the grounds were filled with warriors in splendid war bonnets and full battle regalia. Among them were some veterans who had served in many a hard campaign against the white soldiers.

Every night there was dancing, either in big dance tents, or out in the open, with great bonfires throwing a ruddy glow on the savagely-attired dancers. All the Indians threw themselves into the dancing with an abandon that showed how thoroughly this form of amusement appeals to the red man. Bucks, squaws and children spent hours in preparing for the ceremonies. Then they would steal from their tepees to the dance tents, or to the dance ground in the center of the camp, and the fun would be on.

Music for the dancers is furnished by two "orchestras." One consists of a bass drum, round which are seated five or six Indian singers, each man armed with a stout switch. The singers lift up their voices in their wild chants, at the same time pounding the drum with their switches. When this group finishes one of the long, and seemingly interminable, Indian dances, the other group of musicians, at the opposite end of the tent, is heard from. This group scorns the bass drum, and is armed with individual drums. Each Indian sings his loudest and pounds his drum to the utmost, in the endeavor to outdo the other musicians. The ease with which the intricate musical passages are followed in unison would indicate that the Indian has remarkable technical skill, if nothing deeper seated, when it comes to music.

In the meantime the dancers are doing their best to distinguish themselves. Sometimes they form a solemn circle in the "owl dance," but generally men, women and children shine forth individually, cutting the most fantastic capers and going through remarkable contortions. Skill in dancing is quickly recognized, though a white man unfamiliar with Indian dances finds it hard to discriminate. Probably the best dancer among the Crows—or at least so most of the Indians admit—is a young, lithe, sinewy Carlisle graduate named Mortimer Dreamer. This Indian is followed by admiring eyes every time he joins in a dance.

Maj. S G Reynolds; Indian Agent who originated the Crow fair

On the closing day of the Crow fair, a farmers' institute is held. The practical farmers of the reservation meet in one of the big dance tents and discuss plans for bettering the tribe's condition, agriculturally. Practical advice is given as to the best methods of securing crops, and the fact that these meetings are always well attended, and that deep interest is taken in the speeches, is one of the most encouraging features of the industrial fair. This year special premiums were offered for the best agricultural exhibits by "squaw men"—that is, white men married to Indians—and some of these reservation dwellers took a prominent part in the fair generally.

The Industrial Fair Association is composed entirely of Indians, and the election of officers is left in the tribe's hands. At present the association consists of the following officials: President, Frank Shane; secretary, R. W. Cummins; treasurer, Holman Ceasley; chief of police, Big Medicine; starter, Curley (Custer's scout;) vice-presidents, Plenty Coos (Crow head chief,) Spotted Rabbit, Looks With His Ears, Hoop on the Forehead, Three Foretops, Bull Don't Fall Down; judges, Medicine Crow, Holds the Enemy, and The Bread.

Commissioner Leupp has given the Crow Industrial Fair project his heartiest approval, and certainly no one can witness the wonderful results accomplished by Maj. Reynolds in carrying out this unique idea without realizing that this Indian agent, at an obscure agency in far-off Montana, has done more than a whole army of theorists has been able to accomplish in solving the problem of making the Indian a self-supporting citizen.

THE STRANGE AND UNCANNY ADVENTURES OF ELINOR.

By a Special Contributor.

FOR one instant a broad white band of light fell across the stone terrace. Then a small figure, which had stood silhouetted against the brilliant withindoors, stepped down from the threshold, and the door swung shut.

In the house a gay party, disguised as warlocks and witches, were keeping the time-honored vigil until the midnight hour—now near at hand—should usher in Hallowmas or All Saints' Day. Out of doors a moonless night was full of strange whisperings and the rustlings of things hidden in the darkness.

For the first moment the girl shrank closely against the massive timbers of the doorway, fearful of the night which she had braved. Then her eyes grew more accustomed to the darkness, and she was able to distinguish first the stone coping of the terrace, then the tracery of an overhanging vine with its ghostly blur of white roses. As the stars in the sky and the twinkling lights of Los Angeles became distinct. Elinor drew a breath of renewed courage and turned toward the pergola which led into the garden.

There was no wind. The air, laden with the scent of roses and heliotrope, was languorous as summer. Heavy-headed carnations nodded against the passing feet and sent up spicy greetings. Sentinel-like callas stood stiffly by the path, and one long frond of a palm startled the girl with a touch on the shoulder just as she was entering the deeper shadows of the vines.

At a light swinging above a little table tucked into an alcove of the pergola, Elinor stopped and took from within her blouse a letter. She knew every word of it by heart, and could have repeated them all from beginning to end. In fact, she had been saying to herself phrases from it all the evening, and her feet in the dance had kept time to them rather than with the orchestra. Still, she read slowly and carefully to the very end, and then went back again to the beginning.

"Elinor," she read, "dear Elinor: You say you do not know if you love me. Then why do you not trust me when I say that you do? You must love me, Elinor, my Elinor. How can you say you will not answer me until you consult with the witches on Hallowmas Eve? What can they know of warm, human love? Why, Elinor, I love you better than the whole, great, round world, and the sun and the moon and the twinkling stars. My love is as deep as the sea and as vast as eternity.

"Elinor, my Elinor, when you go at midnight on Halloween to meet the witches as you have planned to do; when you sit out on the rustic seat where we sat when I first asked you to be my wife, while you wait there for the whispering tree witches to come and tell you if you love me and if I truly love you, remember, sweetheart, that I shall be there with you, too; and when the silver bell rings twelve times, I shall whisper to you: 'Love me, Elinor, my Elinor,' and no matter what the witches have told you, you will obey me, and you will answer: 'I love you, love you, dear.'

"Until our Halloween tryst, then, God be wi' ye.

"Your loving DICK."

Though there appeared to be no breath of breeze, a Maman Cochet swung one of her long-stemmed roses into and out of the circle of light.

Elinor severed the stem of the flower and held it to her cheek, crooning softly the while:

"O, Queen of the Garden, a boon give to me,
A charm for the witches who this night are free."

Still holding the rose against her cheek, where it gave a sense of warmth like the caress of a loving hand, Elinor hurried on to the pepper tree where she had pledged her tryst with the witches.

She sat down on the rustic seat encircling the tree and leaned her head back against the shaggy trunk. Through the ferry branches she could see the glow from the house windows, and beyond, down the sweep of the hill, the lamps of the city. She listened for the answer to her question which she sang softly every few minutes.

"O, Wind in the Pepper Tree, whisper to me
And tell who my true love, my own love can be.

"O Witch of the Pepper Tree, tell unto me, O, tell what the name of my true love shall be."

The sound of music came from the house, and she could also hear some of the far-away noises of the city; the whistle of a train, the roar of a car, or the horn of a motor cab. The near-by noises were whispery ones. There was a cricket somewhere about the rustic seat, and another in the grass a few feet away. In the tree itself, and in the surrounding bushes, Elinor heard the queer little night cry of bird or insect, a cry so much higher than the song of the crickets that the ear could scarcely catch it.

The girl closed her eyes that she might center every other sense into the one of hearing. All the while a soundless voice seemed to be reading aloud the letter which was folded again within her bodice.

The wind was rising. The whispering in the pepper drowned out the sleepy song of a mocking bird in the adjacent eucalyptus windbreak.

Suddenly Elinor noticed—and almost she wondered that she felt no alarm at what, under other circumstances, would have been uncanny—that the whispering was becoming articulate. It seemed amusingly like the early efforts of a small nephew whose conversational ventures had been of great interest to the family. There were no connected sentences—just a word now and then dropped into a lot of mouthings. Then she heard her name called and called again.

Opening her eyes, the girl was startled to find herself confronted by a laughing group of wee folk. Her moment's affright changed to indignation as she discovered that the laugh was directed toward her and that first one and then another would jeeringly repeat a sentence or phrase from Dick's letter.

"'You must love me, Elinor, my Elinor,'" one fellow in a green smock moaned, and then all the others slapped their sides and knees and bent double in mirth.

"'My love is as deep as the blue, blue sea,'" another burlesqued, pirouetting to the other side of the circle.

"'I love you better than the great round world,'" moaned a frowsy-haired witch.

And then the branches of the tree swayed with the burst of their laughter.

At that the girl sprang to her feet, crying angrily: "How dare you!"

The laughing group hushed and drew more closely together, eyeing the girl curiously.

"What do you mean?" Elinor stamped her foot impatiently.

"You called us," sullenly answered the frowsy witch.

"You asked us," put in another.

"You were waiting for us to tell you," began Green Smock.

"If you loved him," tittered another,

"Or he loved you," corrected one on the far side of the group,

"Or if you both loved the other," giggled one who had not spoken before.

"Fools!" cried Elinor. "Do you think YOU could tell me? What do such as you know about it?"

"But you wanted we should," sang a rollicking voice, and the group caught up the words instantly and began swinging rhythmically to the refrain:

"But you wanted we should,
We, the Elves of the Wood,
And you said that we could,
So we understood
That you wanted, you wanted we should."

The motion became a swinging dance, as the song went on, and the last word was like the rush of a tempest. The wind, which was tossing the branches of the pepper tree in a grotesque imitation of the whirling dance of the sprites, suddenly caught Elinor's cloak and wrapped it round and round her until it was impossible for her to move her arms. The long silk scarf which she had worn over her head was bound across her eyes and mouth so tightly that she could neither see nor speak.

Helpless to stay herself, the girl was turned dizzily in the current of the wind. Her mind seemed unusually clear and active, and she wondered at the absence of the fear which she thought she ought to feel, since she knew that she was being borne like a leaf before the tempest. She remembered the little spirals of dust which, in her childhood, she often had seen in the roadway. Her mother had told her they were baby cyclones.

In just such a manner, Elinor told herself, she was moving down the long hill, but in what direction she could not determine.

Even as she was thinking about it, the wind suddenly ceased. So abrupt and so complete was the cessation of the tumult that the girl had a moment of fear lest she might have lost her hearing. Then, out of the dead silence, there came a voice, a singing voice, but the words of the song at first conveyed no meaning to the listening ears.

There was an undertone of laughter in the music, to which Elinor listened with growing indignation. The words, as nearly as she could distinguish them, were the merest doggerel.

"But that doesn't cut any ice, my dear,
It sure doesn't cut any ice;
You'll know without our butting in, don't fear,
You'll know without any advice."

Accompanying the chorus was the sound of feet, beginning with waltz time and ending in a rollicking two-step.

"For love, my dear, is a wonderful thing.
It makes you feel like a bird on the wing.
It aids the digestion;
It clears the complexion,
And makes you so you can just eat anything."

Furious at finding herself furnishing sport for the uncanny folk she had invoked, Elinor made a frantic effort to free her hands. With her first motion, however, the tumult of the wind began again, and high over the roar of the tempest sounded shrieks of derisive laughter and bits of mocking sentences.

Once more the elements were at peace. Breathless from her buffeting, the girl sat where the wind had thrown her. Angered, humiliated, she reviewed her unique experience. The sentences of Dick's letter began to come back to her, and she remembered that he had said that he would be with her when the silver bell rang twelve times.

With this thought she became conscious of the fact that the bell was ringing. Without opening her eyes, she counted the even dozen silver notes. Then she lifted her head and looked again upon the midnight garden, which bore no traces of the tempest through which Elinor had passed. The house lights still glowed through the shrubbery; the two crickets were singing their old duet, and the unrecognized creature pierced the air with the same high note.

The wind had utterly died down. Elinor leaned her head against the tree and tried to think. A sense of another presence came and was gone; a fragrant breeze, too faint to stir the pepper leaves, lifted the hair on the girl's forehead. It was like the breath of one who kissed her. Then she felt, rather than heard, her name and the words: "Love me, love me, dear."

Then silence again, except for the crickets and a sleepy mocking bird.

They were calling her from the house, but as she rose to go, the fragrant breeze again touched her forehead, and this time Elinor whispered:

"I love you, love you, dear."

WHEN SHIPS OF FOUR GREAT NATIONS [illegible] ENSIGNS FOR A TERRIER.

By a Special Contributor.

The coming of Admiral Sperry and his [illegible] Connecticut, into the harbor of Nice, France, [illegible] incident of which I was witness in that harbor, [illegible] ing some things known to but few shore-[illegible] and which are of some considerable interest [illegible] way.

I was at that time attached to the United [illegible] Alliance. Together with us in the harbor [illegible] United States ships Vandalia and Trenton, [illegible] the flagship of Admiral John L. Worden. [illegible] to our three ships, there was the Sultan, [illegible] navy, commanded by His Royal Highness, [illegible] Edinburgh, a couple of big German ironclads [illegible] great battleships of France, one of them [illegible] formerly the U.S.S. Dunderberg.

These foreign vessels all joined in giving [illegible] to Admiral Worden, because of his gallant [illegible] Monitor with the Merrimac during the [illegible] Among other things which they did was to "[illegible] movements of the senior officer present," [illegible] Admiral Worden.

It was a rare honor, and unprecedented [illegible] or naval etiquette, because by it he virtually [illegible] commanding officer of ships which were [illegible] flag, the ships of France, Germany and [illegible] ships present in the harbor.

Among the personal belongings of Admiral [illegible] on board the Trenton was a little black-and-[illegible] dog; one day it died. The carpenter made a [illegible] coffin and the sailmaker upholstered it. [illegible] crew of the admiral asked permission to bury [illegible] in the American cemetery, which was [illegible]

This American cemetery, by the way, [illegible] part of the United States as is Los Angeles [illegible] though it is in France. It was sold to the [illegible] by France, and can be used for cemetery [illegible]

A grave was dug in an obscure spot, and [illegible] afternoon the coffin was lowered into the [illegible] with two boats following, start was made [illegible] to shore. In order to do the thing up [illegible] Bristol fashion, as soon as the boats left [illegible] the flags in the sterns of the boats were [illegible] staff, and one of the boys on deck, slyly [illegible] lowered the ensign of the flagship Trenton [illegible]

The foreign ships present, "following the [illegible] of the senior officer present," immediately [illegible] ensigns to half-mast, and so maintained [illegible] procession boats reached the shore, when [illegible] hauled up to the peak again.

It was a beautiful, fitting and proper tribute [illegible] mains of an American seaman. But when [illegible] as they soon did, that they had lowered [illegible] to a dead American dog their chagrin was [illegible] by their wrath, and but for the ridiculous[illegible] would have made an international protest [illegible]

Admiral Worden took the matter up—in a [illegible] sort of a way—he was a great joker [illegible] never found out who had lowered the [illegible] matter was dropped.

There was a good deal of half-suppressed [illegible] our fleet for quite awhile over the affair, [illegible] that the incident, in its way, evened up some [illegible] to our flag to which we were once obliged [illegible] cause we couldn't help ourselves.

The bugler of the Alliance was a first-class [illegible] and was alway trying new music. While we [illegible] harbor of Nice, Villa Franche sur Mer, [illegible] him a song entitled "Under the Daisies." I [illegible] as an exquisite thing, and the bugler soon [illegible] from the fleet bandmaster, Immanuel Saffa, [illegible] it for his band; he was soon playing it with [illegible] eight musicians.

The 156th Regiment of the line, France, [illegible] racks at the time just at the edge of the [illegible] bandmaster was so delighted with it that [illegible] mission to use it also; and so it was, that [illegible] year had passed when that little song from [illegible] from far-away Illinois had been incorporated [illegible] regimental music of all the armies of France.

Speaking of martial music recalls another [illegible] the same cruise, this time among the Turks [illegible] tantinople. An invitation had been tendered [illegible] of us from the ship had gone to the great [illegible] of the Palace Dolma Bagtsche, or Garden [illegible] Meats, to see a review of some of the troops [illegible] tan.

It was a magnificent military function, [illegible] comes to my memory of that day that [illegible] splendid organizations of the empire was [illegible] full 1200 strong, of mounted Circassians. [illegible] into the square at a furious gallop, and every [illegible] was executed at the same pace. I never [illegible] quite so thrilling.

They had an unusually large band, [illegible] all mounted, and when the evolutions [illegible] took their station at the head of the [illegible] loped out of the review, to the tune of—[illegible] never guess—nothing else but "In the [illegible] Bye." Imagine if you can the prophetic [illegible] for they were going straight to the front, [illegible] a week that glorious body of men, [illegible] lasted less than fifteen minutes, was [illegible] hilated.

The Old Basket Maker.

His Separation from His Cats Results in a Reunion.

By a Special Contributor.

"SAY, now, you Methusalum, settin' there on that table jest as ef you belonged there!"

And the old basket-maker paused in the preparation of his noonday meal to wave a dilapidated frying pan in the air.

[illegible]ly long, lank, black cat sprang lightly to the floor, seating itself in a corner of the small room near a yellow-and-white cat with but one eye, and a [illegible]-looking half-grown Maltese kitten minus two-thirds of its tail and the tip of one ear.

"[illegible] ye would set down 'longside o' Solomon an' [illegible] ye?" continued the old man, watching him. "There's many a thing ye might larn from them. They know enough to set an' wait fer their vit[illegible] not be a-pushing theirselves where they ain't [illegible] Folks say cats haven't any souls, but I do' [illegible] that. 'Pears to me they act jest like hu[illegible] folks, now, sets back an' waits, an' some [illegible] a-pushin' theirselves forward."

[illegible] there had been five cats in the ramshackle [illegible] but one had died a natural death, and an[illegible] made way with by a disgusted neighbor.

[illegible] two or three months the old man was in the [illegible] the baskets he had accumulated to the [illegible] for sale, remaining away till he had suc[illegible] disposing of all, and, with the money gained, [illegible] meager supply of necessities and enough to [illegible] him till his next trip. He generally walked [illegible] distance, but once in a while some kind [illegible] give him a lift.

[illegible] along from farmhouse to farmhouse he [illegible] a watchful eye for stray cats, and upon find[illegible] deemed destitute enough to need assistance, [illegible] known to refuse the sale of the last basket, [illegible] needing the money offered, that he might [illegible] it to carry home.

[illegible] neighbors expostulated with him for pur[illegible] such wretched specimens of the feline [illegible] to say:

"[illegible] fat, fine-lookin' cats don't need help, fer [illegible] their friend. It's jest the old, an' the sick, [illegible] ones—them that haven't any homes [illegible] fer. You see, I feel fer 'em. I'm old, [illegible] sick an' homeless myself, an' ef that good [illegible] Frear, hadn't 'a' give me this comfortable [illegible] I be now?"

[illegible] the dirty little window the old man [illegible] passed, and pushing up the large, old-fash[illegible] goggles fastened across the back of [illegible] a leather shoestring, stared with frightened [illegible] man just stepping from the cutter before [illegible]

"[illegible], it's the selectman. What's he comin' [illegible]" he said aloud.

[illegible], waiving formalities, pushed open the [illegible] entered.

"[illegible] Toby," he cried with forced joviality of [illegible] "how are you?"

"[illegible] Brown; feelin' es fine es a trivet" replied [illegible]-maker, though with anxiety depicted upon [illegible] "Set down, won't ye? No, not there, that [illegible] wobbly on its pins, even if it does look [illegible], this one's all right, ef it ain't got any [illegible] of some folks I've come acrost. Them [illegible] ain't allus the ones to trust."

[illegible], the visitor looked with dubious eyes [illegible] which, instead of making overtures of [illegible] received his entrance with marks of dis[illegible]

"[illegible] your cats, I see," remarked the selectman.

"[illegible] the old basket-maker, "they're all [illegible] I've got."

"[illegible] think you'd get along better without [illegible] too much."

"[illegible] Mr. Brown, they don't cost nothin'. All [illegible] leavin' an' sech like."

"[illegible] you doin'?" asked the visitor.

"[illegible] my dinner, but there ain't no hurry fer [illegible]

"[illegible] appear to be very much to get," re[illegible] other, gazing' round disapprovingly.

"[illegible] I've got a fine boiled potato, an' I was [illegible] warm up some cold turnip Mis' Frear give [illegible] big pile of potatoes I raised myself, an' [illegible] an' other things down cellar. I've got [illegible] Mr. Brown."

"[illegible] your cellar," and the visitor's voice was [illegible] he started down.

"[illegible] now, be careful, or you'll get a fall! Them [illegible]"

"[illegible] house is shaky. 'Tain't fit for a human [illegible]" And the selectman turned back, adding: "[illegible] that roof all fallen in."

"[illegible] hev t' use the back room fer myself; I [illegible] in it winters, so's to hev 'em handy. [illegible] there."

"[illegible] cats! What other animals have you got [illegible] with you?"

"[illegible] at all." And the old basket-maker's [illegible]

[illegible] his throat and said gruffly:

"[illegible], the long an' the short of it is that the [illegible] think you'd be better off down to the [illegible] They're afraid you'll freeze to death some [illegible]

"[illegible] I've got a big pile of wood Mis' Frear let [illegible] her wood lot——" He stopped suddenly [illegible] frightened expression came over his face. "[illegible] Frear send you to tell me?" he fal-

"I thought 'twaren't like her," said the old basket-maker, drawing a breath of relief. "She said as how I might stay here in this house as long as I lived."

"But see here, Toby; you'd be a great deal better off at the poor farm. You'd be warmer, and have more to eat. Then if you ever got sick there'd be some one to take care of you."

"But I kin buy all I want to eat with the basket money; an' I'm warm enough, an' I never git sick nowadays. See, here, Mr. Brown, this is my home. Everybody wants to hev some kind of a home. I had one once—long, long ago, but I lost it. An' when I first see this one, why—why, I remember it jest es well es if 'twas yesterday, en' it was nigh onto ten years ago. I remember as I come along here on a hot summer day, all tired an' sweaty, an' covered with dust like the jimson weeds an' the thistle plants 'longside the road, an' with a big load of baskets on my back, I caught sight of this leetle place. The gate were a-hangin' by one hinge an' the house door stood open, so I jest walked in. Nigh about the first thing I come 'crost was this leetle shoe." He took it down from a shelf and held it out to the other. "I picked it up an' brushed off the mildew an' I've kept it ever since fer company. I thought if this wa'n't nothin' but a two-room log house, it had been somebody's home. Somebody come in when he was all tired workin', an' somebody's baby toddled out to meet him. I've been a wanderer over the face of the earth pretty nigh all my life. I never hed no home to speak of, Mr. Brown, an' I thought ef so be as no one wanted this one, I'd take it; so I asked Mis' Frear fer it."

There was a suspicion of moisture in the listener's eyes as, listening to the trembling old voice, he turned suddenly away. He cleared his throat twice before:

"Well, Toby, I'm sorry, but we had a town meetin' last night and we all thought you'd be better off at the poor farm. If signs count for anything, we're goin' to have a long, cold winter, and we don't like the idea of an old man like you livin' all alone."

"Old, why I ain't old! I'm es spry a'most es ever I be."

The selectman shook his head unbelievingly.

"Why, you're past 70," he said, "an' look at your hands all drawn up with the rheumatiz."

"But they're gettin' better; an' they ain't so bad but what I kin make my baskets," was the old man's hurried reply.

The visitor started for the door, where he paused to say slowly:

"They wanted I should tell you the poormaster was comin' fer you late this afternoon."

The old basket-maker's jaw dropped. He stood staring into space for an instant or two, then stepping forward he began to wring his hands in an aimless sort of way.

"Comin' fer me—to—to take me to the poor farm! Why they ain't goin' t' do that, be they? I don't ask no help; I'm a self-supportin' man, I be."

The selectman, his hand upon the door knob, stood listening. A great wave of pity crept slowly over him and he turned to the cowering, cringing old basket maker.

"I tell you what I'll do for you, Toby," he said, "I'll stop at the houses of the other two selectmen en' see if they'll agree to let you be a spell longer. Mebbe they will," he added hopefully, shutting the door behind him.

Left alone, the old basket-maker stood a moment looking down at the rough, worn floor, then he rubbed a hand dazedly over his bald head.

"Me, comin' t' take ME to the poor farm!" he said aloud.

Suddenly he raised his head, and an altogether different expression lay in his faded blue eyes as he added: "But I ain't a-goin'. I'll hide. The idee of takin' me when I don't ask odds of no one."

After putting his one room in the best order he was able, and feeding his cats, he got together all the food available and a pail of water, and with much difficulty climbed the ladder leading to the tiny loft. Here, wrapped in some old quilts, he cowered down upon the floor behind broken pieces of furniture discarded by the last tenant, and waited the coming of the poormaster.

Carefully hitching his team—for he fully realized the difficulties before him, and knew it would take time to effect a change of mind in the old basket-maker—the poormaster entered the house and looked about in vain for its occupant.

"Well, I swan! I bet the old fellow has cut 'en' run!" he exclaimed.

But soon spying the ladder to the loft he began climbing slowly upward. When his head passed the opening in the loft floor, he paused, and gazed into the semi-darkness. Evidently there was a pile of old bedding in one corner back under the eaves, and he stood watching it. At last, detecting a slight movement, he spoke:

"Come, now, Toby, 'tain't no use hidin', fer you've got t' go. Come, it's too cold to wait any longer."

The disheveled head of the old basket-maker raised itself slowly up from under the quilts. His goggles were pushed up on his forehead, and the sparse fringe of gray whiskers under his chin stood awry.

"I—I ain't a-goin'," he announced firmly.

"Yes you be; an' it'd just as well be peaceable."

"If you take me, you'll hev t' carry me," was Toby's ultimatum.

The poormaster paused and studied the situation, which was not a new one to him.

"I tell you what you do, Toby; you go out there and try it fer a week en' see how you like it. If you don't want t' stay any longer I'll ask the selectmen to let you come back here."

"Will you? Kin I trust ye?" asked the old basket-maker suspiciously.

"Yes, you can trust me—I'll ask 'em all right"

"But will they let me come back?"

"Mebbe so—an' mebbe not," the poormaster added under his breath.

Making a virtue of necessity, old Toby followed the other down the ladder, and began making ready to go. Suddenly he paused in his preparation.

"Who'll feed Methusalum an' Solomon an' David?" he asked.

"Who—feed who?"

"My cats."

"They'll manage to make out," replied the other disgustedly.

"You'll hev t' stop at Mis' Frear's to let me leave my chickens; she'll take care of 'em a week fer me," said the old basket-maker.

"Come, come, hurry up, an' put on your overcoat! It's time we was off," said the impatient poormaster. "What, haven't you got one? Then wrap this old quilt about you, for it's gittin' mighty cold, an' the wind'll pierce your vitals."

It was, indeed, too cold for conversation during that long, dreary ride, so old Toby sat silent, huddling under his quilt and gazing down at the straw in the wagon bottom. When they arrived, the poormaster led the way inside the house, and, pointing to a bench, said:

"There, you set down there, Toby, an' wait till I put up the horses, an' I'll tend to you."

The old man dropped listlessly upon the bench, forgetting to remove his forlorn old hat or the quilt from his shoulders. Clasping his hands, and leaning his elbows upon his knees, he sank his head dejectedly, as he said:

"Well, here I be, here I be at last at the poor farm, an' it wan't none o' my fault either. Well, there ain't nothin' left in this life fer me as I kin see."

He failed to hear the approaching footsteps, and did not raise his head as a wizened little old woman stepped briskly upon the threshold and looked into the room.

"Why, Tobias Card, that ain't reely you—is it?"

The old basket-maker quickly lifted his head and for the second time that afternoon his jaw dropped, as he gazed in the old woman's faded eyes. Rising to his feet, he stepped nearer, and the quilt fell from his shoulders.

"Yes, 'tis me, Marier; 'tis me," an' his voice quavered weakly.

"What you doin' here?" was her next question. And she impatiently threw back her flapping bonnet strings.

"I—I've jest come here to live, Marier. Do you live here, too?"

"I come here last week, but I ain't goin' t' stay. I've jest got word that my brother, Andy, that went to Australy years ago, hes died an' left me $2000. I'm goin' t' buy a little home somewheres, an' live in peace the rest of my days."

"I know jest the very place, Marier; mebbe it needs fixin' up some, but——" he stopped, and looked down at his feet irresolutely, "I suppose ye wouldn't want me along with it, now would ye, Marier?"

"Mebbe I would," she said slowly, "I don't like the idee o' havin' any one belongin' to me livin' at the poor farm. An' at my time o' life mebbe it would be better to have a man about. Settin's cheap as standin', so I guess I'll take this seat 'longside o' you."

When she had seated herself upon one end of the bench he took the other and waited for her to speak. But she merely looked at him and sighed.

"Ye used to think I wa'n't much good fer a husband, Marier, in the old days before I up'n left ye," he began.

"No, an' ye wa'n't, Tobias. But mebbe ye'd be better now, seein' as ye've knocked about the world so long without a home. When folks gits old they can't afford to be so pertic'lar."

The old basket-maker moved along the bench till he could put an arm about the old woman.

"No, they can't, Marier," said he. "I knowed you was livin' with your cousin in this same county all these years, but I thought ye wouldn't want t' see me, after me leavin' you like I did."

"Well, things is changed. My cousin died, and I thought you was dead, too—not hearin' from you."

"Seems as if we might forget 'n' forgive, don't it, Marier?"

"Seems so."

"Well, well, what's all this mean!" exclaimed the poormaster, appearing suddenly before the utterly oblivious pair.

The old couple clasped hands the tighter, and turning, smiled in each other's eyes—the child's smile of perfect trust.

"I've found Marier, Mr. Brown, an' we've decided not to board with you fer a spell. We're thinkin' of settin' up a home of our own."

FLORENCE E. BROOK.

At the Breakfast Table.

The young wife dipped the ladle into the porridge and smiled inquiringly at the overnight guest.

"Will you have some hot Scotch, Mr. Dash?" she asked.

Dash laughed.

"Hot Scotch? Where is it?" said he.

"Why, here, of course," said the young wife, in a perplexed tone. "Didn't you know that oatmeal is called hot Scotch?"

"Er—I——" Dash stammered, and then the young husband caught his eye, and he was silent.

"I didn't know it myself till last year," she explained. "I heard George inviting his cousin over the telephone to meet him at the office and have a hot Scotch. I didn't know what hot Scotch was till you told me, did I, George?"

George, very red, answered huskily:

"No, my dear."

Laughing at her own ignorance, the lady proceeded to serve the thick, pale, hot Scotch.

Sure Sign.

"Where has Mrs. Penheck gone?"

"Why, dear, I didn't know she had gone anywhere.

"Oh, she has, all right—a long trip, too."

"How do you know?"

BUILDING A TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAY IN SOUTH AMERICA.

By a Special Contributor.

THE present year has been marked by two events which are destined to stand as most important milestones in the progress of South American railroad building. The first was the completion of the Chilean Transandine, after years of construction in the face of many difficulties, to a point where, at an altitude of 10,500 feet, nothing intervenes between it and the Argentine-Transandine Railroad but two miles of granite mountain, through two-thirds of which a tunnel is already completed. The other event was the inauguration of construction—300 miles south of the Transandine Company's route—of a line over a pass through the Andes whose highest point is at an elevation of only 714 meters (2375 feet,) and which is so open that a broad-gauge track may be run through from the coast of Chile to Bahia Blanca or Buenos Aires in Argentina without the necessity arising of building a single tunnel. It is practically certain that ultimately the road by this new route (the existence of any pass at all at that point only became known two years ago last July) will take the bulk of the traffic that now goes by the more direct Uspallata road.

The west coast of South America, as far as freight, mail and passenger services are concerned, is as remote from New York and London as Australia, and twice as remote as South Africa. The people of Chile, Peru and Ecuador, when voyaging to Europe, sail down the coast, around Cape Horn and then north again to Buenos Aires or Montevideo, where a direct European connection is made. This is about equivalent, though on a larger scale, to sailing first to Panama in endeavoring to reach New York from New Orleans. The time required is from six to eight weeks, and the expense is almost as much as that of making a direct first-class trip around the world, following the usual northern hemisphere routes. The much shorter Panama route is no less expensive and, owing to the slow and irregular coastal steamer service, usually takes as much time or more than the all-water route by the Horn.

Mail to Peru and Ecuador usually comes by Panama, but the great bulk of the freight to these countries, as well as to Chile, pays the high insurance covering the passage of the Horn rather than meet the expense of the double transshipment at Panama and the delays to freight by that route incident to the overcrowded condition of the Isthmian Railroad. For the people of Chile, and for many Peruvians as well, the completion of the first transcontinental railroad will cut down the expenses of the European voyage 30 per cent., and save in time of transit of both passengers and mail fully 50 per cent.

Chile will obtain favorable freight rates over the broad-gauge line building by the newly-discovered pass of San Martin, which line is now breaking all South American records for rapid construction. Transshipment of goods will be made at Buenos Aires, La Plata, or Bahia Blanca, from where they may be carried to destination without further transfer. The cost of transshipment will be more than met by the saving in insurance. There will be avoided the passage of the tempestuous Horn, and also, for six months of the year, the even greater danger of exposure in the unprotected Chilean harbors to the "northers," storms of great violence which occur on the Southern Pacific coast during the winter months. A second handling at Chilean ports would probably prove too costly to warrant shipping freight to Ecuador and Peru across the continent by rail, and relief for those countries must be deferred until the completion of the Panama Canal.

The historic Uspallata Pass, on the line of the Transandine Railroad, has formed the principal land route of travel between the Pacific and Atlantic coasts of South America ever since the Spanish conquerors of Peru first crossed by it when descending into Chile to found the present cities of Santiago and Valparaiso. The highway discovered and opened up by these early "makers and repairers" of empires was the same over which the Argentine patriot, San Martin, poured the troops which struck the death blow to Spanish power at the battle of Chacabuco. The population center of the southeastern part of the continent is in the vicinity of the River Plate, where the three cities of Buenos Aires, Rosario and Montevideo contain between them over 2,000,000 inhabitants. On the west coast Valparaiso and Santiago are in about the same latitude as the mouth of the Plate, and a line drawn between these two centers cuts the Andes almost exactly at the Uspallata Pass.

Long before a railroad over the mountains was considered a feasible proposition, 700 miles of direct line was built across the Argentine pampas to the rich and prosperous wine-growing province of Mendoza, situated at the foot of the Andes and on the line of the old approach to Uspallata Pass. On the Chilean side the extension of the government road up the fertile valley of the Aconcagua to Los Andes penetrated for some distance the outer ranges of the mountains and approached even nearer than the Argentine road to the summit of the divide. The termini of these two roads were only about sixty miles apart in an air line and, when the Transandine road was proposed, a survey showed that they could be connected with something like 110 miles of rails.

The seventy miles of the Argentine section of this line—from Mendoza to Las Cuevas, where the summit tunnel is now being driven—follows the open valley of the Mendoza for nearly all of its length and involves no difficult construction. It was completed several years ago and has been in operation ever since, doing a good business in the summer months in carrying mail, passengers and light freight. On the Chilean side, however, where only forty miles had to be built, the physical obstacles to be overcome in building a line that would be protected at all exposed points from the snowslides which

Most of the way was entirely clear of snow, that met with having been at the summit of the temporary bridle trail, a thousand feet above the pass proper.

The pass is formed by a chain of lakes, each from twenty to forty miles long. They run nearly east and west and empty successively into each other until their waters ultimately reach the Pacific at Valdivia in the Valdivia River. There are several favorable routes of approach to the pass for a railroad, but that which is being followed is up the Rio Valdivia, and its successive branches, the Calle-Calle and San Pedro. The government road extends to Colleilelfu, where the new line commences. The twenty miles from this point to Lake Rinhue, the first of the four lakes, has just been put in operation.

Through the pass the line will skirt the open stretches along the lakes, heavy cuttings being necessary only at three or four points where the mountains rise sheer from the water. It is a fortunate circumstance that, while each of the lakes lies in a great crack in the mountains, there is always enough open space along at least one side to permit of comparatively inexpensive construction. There are no engineering problems to be solved on this route, and only one piece of construction that is likely to prove costly. This is the ten miles of grading between the lakes Panguipulli and Perihueico, which have a difference of elevation of about a thousand feet. Some heavy rock cutting will be necessary here; also the construction of at least two, and possibly four, very high but short bridges. On the Choshuenco River, which connects these two lakes, there is a 200-foot waterfall of sufficient volume to furnish power to operate the railroad for 150 miles in each direction, as well as supplying abundant power for local use.

Until the completion of the railroad, traffic through the pass is to be handled by small steamers, one of which is already in service on each of the lakes. Navigation will shortly be opened between the two upper lakes, Perhueico and Lacar, by a lock on the connecting river, and the two lower lakes may also be thus united. The traffic at present is principally cattle and foodstuffs going from Argentina to Chile.

Her Son's Wife.

A MEDITATION BY THE WIFE OF ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

From Westminster Gazette.

SOMEWHERE in this teeming world there dwells a little girl who some day will be my son's wife. Perchance, indeed, she is but numbered among the potentialities; in the land of the unborn she may be shyly lingering. For the prospective bridegroom, albeit he fills his mother's heart, exists only in miniature. His joyous run is perilous and uncertain. The little linen suits he wears call forth amazed comment at their maturity. Nathless, two years is no unfitting interval 'twixt spouses. My son's wife may well be a fact accomplished. It is a babe, a new-born babe lying stilly in a cradle, that I picture her.

And what is she like, this little girl, I wonder; this little girl who means so much to him so dear to me? Does she lie there plump or puny, brown or lily-fair, serene or wailful? And the cot she lies in, is it lace-bedecked, beribboned, hung with curtains of fair white dimity? Or stands it bare and rudely fashioned of the twopenny banana box? Where is the home that she has come to? Do her unseeing eyes stare out on white town streets or on the June-green country side? What are the sounds that fill her unused ears? The twittering of baby birds, the bleating of baby lambs, or the roar and clatter of the cabs or omnibuses? Dwells she in this land at all, this dear, interwoven English land? Why, I remind myself, I know not even her nationality.

And of what nature is her residence? As the children say, does she inhabit "palace, mansion, cottage, pigsty, barn?" Surely the jingle has its lapses. It is something smaller than a mansion, larger than a cottage I would wish her. Are they both not somewhat cramping? May my son's wife come from the home that is nobly middle class? But be she pauper or princess, I will not cavil. In memory of that other Babe born in the stable, that other Babe worshiped of princes, I welcome the daughter-in-law of the palace, or the barn.

Yet these things are but trifles. I, too, am the worldly mother. For, princess or pauper, I would have my son's wife well born. I would have her forebears people of honor, of refinement. I would have this, although I know that each new generation brings a new opportunity. Humanity is a compound and not a mixture. The elements fused together yield an issue strange and unaccountable. While there is life there is surely hope! And yet—and yet—O little unknown daughter-in-law, may you have been discreet in your choice of parents! May you, at least, have found a mother who loves you; indeed, it is the common, foolish wont of mothers. May you have found a father who is a gentleman to you, whate'er he be called otherwise!

But the little girl in her cradle has already arranged her past. Blameless or sinful, it is already there. What use is it for me to speculate? What use is it for me to think of her at all? I trow she never thinks of me. She never thinks of her possessions that I guard so carefully; the silver tea service at the bank in its soft tissue wrappings; the family's sole diamond ring. She does not think of such things; she does not care. Yet could I show them to her, she would gurgle joyously. In her baby eyes their shine and sparkle would seem fair.

And perchance when she doth realize her treasures she will no longer prize them. For my son's wife may be an artist, deeming crude valuables distinctive of the loathed Philistine; or a learned lady despising gauds and baubles; or a little Socialist, happily certain that in universal earthenware lies the cure of human ill. Yes; methinks my son's wife will be a Socialist. Daughter-in-law, I will respect your scruples; I will admire your noble discontent. You shall melt the silver tea service; you shall sell the diamond ring. You shall sell it, and print therefrom pamphlets, many pamphlets, to reform the wicked plutocrat.

But although my son's wife may deem silver teapots worthless, although she may consider pearls more fitly cast before the swine, yet there is one possession I am guarding that she will hold very precious, one belonging that awaits her for which she will surely care.

Then, it is of this that I should tell her, this one thing of importance. I prate of silver services when I should describe my son. Tall I see him for his years, his two years, as he plays on the sward before me; tall and exceeding sturdy. His eyes are brown, but his hair curls goldenly. (Little girl, are you not glad with me that his hair curls goldenly?) Strong he is, and merry. When he hurts himself he cries but seldom. Rarely is he vexed. What else is there to tell about him? Ah, see, he runs toward me with his arms outstretched. Very loving to his mother is this little son of mine.

But perchance my unknown daughter-in-law will feel that filial piety concerns her not. Perchance she may resent it. And yet it is a desirable quality. All the things that I have told her are desirable qualities; they should tend to make a happy wife. For two years this son hath brought his mother more happiness than she had ever known. Is it not, then, probable that he will one day bring joy unto his wife? Little daughter-in-law, I pray that my son may give to you as great a peace, as great a comfort as he hath given me. I pray, although in truth the prayer is more for my son's sake than for yours, since you are yet a stranger to me—oh, may my son come unto his wife as unspotted as he came to me. May he be pure in heart when he enters upon his second birth, the birth of the new dual life. May he always, and whate'er befall him, never cease in seeing God!

But my son's wife, for her part, what will she be like? Little girl in your cradle, you must remember your part. You too must grow up brave and straight and strong. Into your keeping I give my son's future. You must grow up worthy to be his wife. Alas! the words are empty, for you do not know him. You do not know your fate. Grow up, then, O little girl, worthy to be yourself. Grow up, for I can ask no more, worthy to be a new woman.

For, amid all the uncertainties, there is one thing that is certain. My son's wife, whoever she may be, will enter into an enlarged heritage. For in the days to come, the days that belong to little girls yet sleeping in their cradles, women will have greater opportunities. In the days to come, women will no longer be a subject race, dwelling in a man-ruled world. No, women will hold in their own hands the moulding of their own destinies. My son's wife shall not suffer from the sex stigma as his mother has been made to suffer. My son's wife shall be a citizen; she shall be a freewoman in an England that is truly free.

And so farewell, little girl. Farewell, for in the surging crowd I cannot find you; I cannot hear your voice; I do not know your face. To all my eager questioning, to all my hopes, my prayers, my fears, there is but one answer—silence. Only silence. The future holds you shrouded. To my son and me you stand like an eastern bride behind the veil. May all go well with you, my daughter-in-law, until that veil be raised! May loving care attend your ways! May your childhood be a laughing one! Farewell, you little girl; farewell, for many, many years! Farewell, until that shadowy far-off day when we shall meet again! Farewell!

Meanwhile, I have my son.

Royal Prince a Common Laborer.

Prince Eitel Friedrich, son of the German Emperor, who for some weeks past has been leading the life of a common laborer, gardening, felling trees, carpentering, and bricklaying, is one of many royalties who have proved themselves adepts in manual labor.

A good many years ago King Edward himself was an enthusiastic fireman, taking his full share in the drilling and drudgery of his fellows, and risking his life more than once amid the flames at London fires. The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught have both proved in recent years that they can ply the shovel of the stoker as well as any other man, the former in the stokehold of the Indomitable, and the latter on H.M.S. Renown, homeward-bound from India.

The Khedive has many a time acted as fireman on a passenger locomotive; the German Emperor is an expert carpenter; and King Victor of Italy excels as chauffeur and mechanic.

Even Queen Alexandra knows what hard manual labor is. Some time ago, when visiting the Thornham Iron Works, Norfolk, after watching the workmen for a time, she exclaimed: "I must have a hand in making this gate," and, seizing a hammer, she plied it for several minutes with considerable vigor and skill.—[Tit-Bits.

The Wanderlust.

GRANDPA PAXTON'S GYPSY ANCESTRY ASSERTS ITSELF.

By a Special Contributor.

"YES," said Amanda Paxton, with a sigh, as she smoothed down her white apron and sat down to entertain her friend Mrs. Bennet from the neighboring village, "Grandpa's got another one of them wandering spells comin' on. Mercy, don't I know the symptoms by this time? When I see him begin to hang over the barnyard gate chewin' a red clover blossom and lookin' way off over yonder toward the hills with that far-off look in his eyes, I always say to Henry: 'Henry, Grandpa's about to take one of his wanderin' spells.'"

She paused for breath, and her sympathetic guest inquired: "Can't you or Henry talk him out of 'em? Seems like he'd listen to reason. I always said old Mr. Paxton was such a nice, reasonable old man."

Amanda smiled in a superior sort of way.

"REASON with him!" she said. "If Henry and I haven't 'most talked ourselves dumb tryin' to keep him from such foolishness, I'll be switched. And not one single mite of good has it ever done or ever will do. It's in his blood, seems like, an' I don't s'pose he can help it himself. I've heard Mother Paxton, years before she died, say he used to have the same kind of spell about once a year when the red clover begun to bloom. She said he didn't go every single year, but when he didn't go he wasn't a bit of good around the place. Sit and dream and look away off toward the hills so wishful that she said she finally stopped opposing him and let him go. He'd always come home happy and satisfied, and be just as steady as anybody for another year."

Amanda Paxton dropped her voice to a mysterious undertone and glanced around to assure herself that they were alone.

"Of course I wouldn't want it ever mentioned," she said, "and I know I can trust you, Mis' Bennet, but the truth is that there's gypsy blood in Grandpa Paxton. 'Way, 'way back somewhere—I don't know HOW many generations back—there was a gypsy woman come into the family, and the gypsy strain skipped all them generations and landed in Grandpa Paxton. Ain't it a strange thing how such a thing will lay quiet for generations and then crop out all of a sudden in some great grandchild or other? Well, that handsome, black-eyed gypsy girl 'way back there is responsible for Grandpa Paxton's wandering spells—so what can we do about it? 'It ain't no use talkin', Mandy,' he said once, 'there's something in me that's stronger than me—somethin' a-pullin' an' drawin' an' leadin' me to go a-wanderin'. I can't explain it,' says he: 'it's SO, an' that's all I know about it.'"

"Well, well," said Mrs. Bennet, looking through the open window at the old man, who stood leaning on the fence with his eyes dreamily fixed upon the distant hills, "it's kind of romantic, ain't it? Wouldn't he be just as well satisfied to go off somewhere on the train for a trip?"

Amanda Paxton laughed. "That ain't the gypsy way," she said, "that wouldn't be a-wanderin'. Henry offered him the horse and buggy two years ago—that was the last time he went away—an' do you suppose he'd take 'em? Mercy, no! Something wild an' sort of gypsy-like laughed right out of his eyes, and I tell you I couldn't help feelin' a little bit creepy. I declare, I could have believed that gypsy woman's spirit was in him that very minute.

"Last year he didn't go. Just when the red clover begun to bloom he run a nail in his foot and was so lame for weeks that he couldn't walk down to the corner. Of course he couldn't go then, but he'd set an' dream and look wishful and not talk much. I knew his heart was wanderin' if his body wasn't."

All at once, as though stirred by some hidden force, the old man came quickly into the house and went up the back stairs. An energy like that of youth was in his step.

The two women looked at each other with wide eyes of wonder.

"I believe he's going now," said Amanda in a whisper, "and Henry ain't here! Well, there's no use trying to stop him. I'll see that he has some money in his pocket and a few pocket handkerchiefs. He'll wrap some things up in a blanket and sling it over his shoulder—some bread an' bacon an' coffee, an' a little frying pan, an' a few other things, and off he'll go—he and Shep. Shep always goes with him, an' Henry and I feel easier on that account. But I'm afraid something will happen to him one of these times. He's 73 years old, an' he ain't so spry as he used to be. He's a little hard of hearing, too, and I'm afraid he'll be run over by a train or an automobile or something."

She rose and began to collect some necessary articles for the old man's pack. Then she took the old leather wallet from its hiding-place behind the clock and sat down to wait.

"I'll just step into the parlor," said her guest; "mebby he's kind of sensitive about it." She went into the darkened parlor and sat down stiffly on the horsehair sofa. In the dim green light from the vine-shaded window her face looked pale and scared. To her there was something weird and supernatural in this strange manifestation of a long-forgotten life.

The old man had come downstairs. An eager light was in his eyes, and there was a curious tremulous look about his mouth as though something too wonderful for human speech demanded utterance.

"Mandy," he said, "I'm goin'. I've been fightin' it back for days, for I realize I'm gettin' old. But it's a-pullin' and a-drawin' me, and I can't stand it no longer. I'll be gone mebby a week, mebby a month. Tell Henry good-by, an' don't you worry a mite about me."

Amanda slipped the clean handkerchiefs into his coat pocket. She counted out a few dollars and gave them to him. He accepted these attentions absently, as though already his spirit was leaping on ahead, as indeed it was.

As he went down the path and struck out upon the country road, the sweet drowsy smell of the red clover came to him in little puffs from near-by fields. He caught up a handful from the roadside and held them close to his face. Then he laughed aloud joyously—a laugh of freedom and delight. That strange something within him seemed to leap like a wild thing, and the old man quickened his pace.

"It's good!" he cried aloud, "it's good!" and every line of his old face seemed to relax into something almost like the smoothness of youth.

The dog was at his heels—he had bounded up and followed as soon as he saw the bundle across the old man's shoulder. One might have believed there was a gypsy strain in the dog, too, so eagerly did he follow as the old man struck off down the long road.

For years the collie had shared the wandering spells, sleeping at night close to the old man as he lay in some fragrant haystack, and sharing the meals cooked by the roadside or eaten at some farmhouse door.

The wise creature looked up at his companion with soft eyes full of silent understanding. The little terrier might stay behind and bark intruders away at night, but as for Shep—he and the old man were away, away on their unknown journey! For they never knew where the road might lead them. Some trifling circumstance might change the old man's route. Where his feet would lead him he knew not, and neither cared. All he wanted was the thrill of outdoor life—the spirit of adventure—the wild, sweet freedom of these summer days when the red clover was in bloom.

The old man paused at sunset and kindled a little fire beside the road. He cooked his simple meal, while the dog sat looking on with interested eyes.

"I guess we're both a little crazy," the old man said to the dog, "but crazy or not, it's what we want, and we've got it. Hey, Shep? And now you eat this piece of bread and bacon, and say it's the best you ever saw. And it's a pity dogs don't like coffee, for this is the best I ever drank."

His voice rambled on and on, as he and the dog ate together, and then they crossed the dewy fields and camped for the night in a little sheltered nook in the edge of the woods.

And thus they wandered on—they two together—the man and the dog—and did not tire. Long, quiet nights of restful sleep in the open or at some country tavern along the way, meals cooked by the roadside—oh, the keen joyous appetite with which the old man ate! And daily his body grew stronger—younger—filled and thrilled with the mysterious electric forces that Mother Earth holds in store for her children.

In quiet places far from any farmhouse he let his voice ring out in song—sometimes a church hymn—sometimes a fugitive strain of some old half-barbaric song he never knew where or how he had learned. Perhaps this too had come down to him with the gypsy blood which he could feel pulsing strongly in his veins.

Those were glorious days! Days of dusty wandering along country roads, into little unknown villages where people stared curiously at him and dogs barked inhospitably at the collie. Days of sweet idleness under the green trees, lying stretched out on the grass, dreaming with half-closed eyes and thinking sweet, wild thoughts. Nights when the full moon bathed dog and man in a silver glow and countless stars looked down upon them.

On the morning of the ninth day the old man turned homeward. Something of the elation of spirit was gone from him, and a quieter feeling took its place. His body, too, began to feel a little weary, and he no longer refused the friendly offers of rides along the way. He was glad to rest at night at some hospitable farmhouse where his genial manners and kind face made him a welcome guest.

The joy of life was still strong in him, but his muscles were beginning to feel the strain.

"I guess I must be a-gettin' old," he said to the dog. "I pay for these good times—yes, I pay for 'em, but they're worth it. It's worth a year of a man's life to wander and see the world, like we do, Shep, and the folks that always stay to home don't know what they miss. But we get a little mite tired now and again, don't we? Feel like restin' a little oftener, and kind o' dread gettin' up an' goin' on after settin' down a spell. We're gettin' along in years, Shep, you an' me."

The old man clasped his hands around his knees and looked off in the direction of home. Now that the gypsy fever was cooling in his blood, he found himself longing for home. It seemed to him he could smell again the sweet fragrance of the clover blooms under the window of his little whitewashed room upstairs, and hear the familiar chorus of the frogs in the swamp over in the woods. The dog, too, felt the call of home, and pricked his ears eagerly forward as though listening to familiar sounds.

The last of the homeward journey was as speedy as the old man could make it. He pressed on and on, eager for the sight of the gray old house and the big red barn he had known so many years.

He thankfully accepted a ride whenever one was offered, and the collie trotted eagerly along with eyes alight and ears alert. All the mysterious inherited longing for the wild life had sunk once more into sleep, and only the thought of home filled and thrilled the old man's heart. Always it had been thus. After a week or two of wandering, the gypsy craving had been satisfied and the little commonplace duties and humdrum routine of the day's work had been enough. The midsummer madness which had possessed him was gone

"Finally, I must tell you," he concluded, "that the library window—which is a French window—was wide open—which showed how the scoundrels had gained admittance to the house, and how they had escaped."

"But when did you discover that the money had been stolen?" said Sexton Blake.

"Not for several minutes," said Mr. Flower. "In fact, after examining the room, I had come to the conclusion that I had surprised the burglars before they had time to steal anything, when it occurred to me to look in my desk. Then I found that it had been forced open, and closed again. The lock, in fact, had been smashed; and when I raised the rolltop I saw at a glance that the bag had disappeared.

"On hearing my announcement that the bag had been stolen, my daughter fainted. After I had satisfied myself that nothing else had been stolen, I dressed, drove to the village, informed the constable of what had occurred, and then drove to the Towers, and informed Lord Borrowby. It was at his suggestion that I decided to ask you to investigate the case. And now"—he heaved a sigh of relief—"I think I've told you everything."

A few minutes later they reached Ugthorpe Lodge.

II.

In accordance with Mr. Flower's instructions, nothing had been disturbed in the library. Sexton Blake made a rapid examination of the room; then he turned to Mr. Flower.

"You spoke of burglars in the plural number," he said, pointing to the table. "As you see, however, only one of them must have been hungry. There is only one plate, one glass, and one knife and fork."

"Humph!" growled Mr. Flower. "I hadn't noticed that before. It is, however, as you say. Only one of the scoundrels was regaling himself at my expense when I disturbed them."

The detective next examined the rolltop desk. The lock was of the most primitive description, and had been smashed open by main force.

"Amateurish—very amateurish!" he murmured. "This is not the work of a professional!"

He examined the window. As already stated, it was a French window, and was secured on the inside by a couple of bolts at the top, and another pair at the bottom. Clearly, therefore, nobody outside the window could have unfastened these bolts without first making a breach in the panes, yet both the panes were intact.

"You didn't think, I suppose," he said, "of examining the other windows of the house?"

"Oh, yes, I did!" said Mr. Flower. "I carefully examined every door and window in the house, and all of them were securely fastened."

Sexton Blake made no remark on this statement; but, in his own mind, he registered it as a fact beyond all doubt that the burglars—or one of them, at any rate—had been admitted into the library by somebody inside the house.

He examined the ground outside the window. To the untrained eye, there was nothing to be seen; but, to Sexton Blake, a double track of footprints, one leading to the window and the other away from it, was as clear as the noonday sun. But the footprints were all alike; they were the footprints of one man, not two.

This, of course, confirmed Sexton Blake's theory. Somebody had walked up to the outside of the window; a second person, inside the house, had opened the window and admitted him; and, after Mr. Flower had been stunned, the first man had stepped through the window and escaped, leaving the second person in the house.

Who was the second person? Clearly, it could only have been one of three people—Miss Flower or one of the two female servants.

While Sexton Blake was pondering over this discovery, he happened to glance at the silver candlestick, which was still standing on the table by the side of the remains of the burglar's supper.

He picked up the candlestick, and closely examined it. A black stain which he had observed was apparently of recent origin, and was due to a deposit of sulphide of silver.

To what was this deposit due? There was only one possible explanation. The silver—of which the candlestick was composed—had been brought in contact with sulphur in some form. But how?

Again there was only one explanation. Sexton Blake, who had a medical training, was well aware that persons who are taking medicine containing sulphur exude small quantities of the drug in their perspiration, with the result that any silver articles they handle, or any silver articles in their pockets—such as a silver watch, or silver coins—are tarnished and blackened by the sulphur, which combines with the silver to form silver sulphide.

The explanation of the dark stain on the candlestick was, therefore, perfectly clear. Somebody who was taking sulphur medicine had recently handled the candlestick. In a flash the detective remembered the conversation he had overheard in the chemist's shop the day before.

"The sulphur medicine," Miss Flower had said. "The same that I've been taking for the last fortnight."

There was still a loophole of escape from the terrible conclusion to which Sexton Blake was being forced. He turned to Mr. Flower.

"Can you find out when this candlestick was last cleaned?" he asked.

Mr. Flower rang the bell for the housemaid.

"I cleaned it yesterday evening," she said, in reply to the detective's question.

That settled the matter. It was Miss Flower who had admitted the burglar; who had carried the candlestick to the larder in search of food for him; who had escaped from the library—and had doubtless returned to her bedroom—when the burglar, after flinging the rug over her father's head, had whispered: "Run—run!"

It was a horrible solution of the mystery; but suddenly another thought occurred to Blake. He went to the door, and caught the housemaid at the head of the stairs. To her he put a rapid question, and he breathed a quick sigh of relief at her reply.

His musings ended in a sudden start. Through the open window he saw a girlish figure stealing down the drive, and ever and anon glancing furtively behind her, as if she feared to be seen. He recognized her at a glance. It was the girl he had seen in the chemist's shop the day before.

The detective turned to Mr. Flower.

"Will you fetch me another bottle of claret, the same as this?" he asked.

Completely mystified, Mr. Flower left the room; and the moment he had disappeared the detective stepped through the open window, and darted after Miss Flower.

"Good-morning, Miss Flower!" he said, overtaking her. "Hadn't you better let me do it?"

She gazed at him with frightened eyes.

"Do—do what?" she faltered.

"Go to your brother," said Sexton Blake, "and beg him to return the money which, unknown to you, he stole from his father's desk."

With a piteous moan, the poor girl reeled, and would have fallen if he had not caught her.

His rapid question to the housemaid had provided him with the key to the mystery. He had noted Mr. Flower's hesitation when he described the members of his family, and the girl had told him that one had been left unmentioned—a scapegrace son, who had disappeared two years before.

The matchless brain of the detective brought him to the conclusion that, unknown to his father, the son had returned. Miss Flower had admitted him to give him food, and perhaps money. While she was in the larder the scamp had abstracted the money. Miss Flower had no idea of this; that was why she had fainted when the robbery was made manifest.

"Now tell me all about it," he said gently.

And she told him—told him everything. Her brother had returned to the village, penniless and starving. He had sent her a note, begging her to grant him an interview; and after that everything had happened as the detective surmised.

"He must have yielded to a sudden temptation, and broken open the desk while I was in the larder," she sobbed. "He isn't really bad, Mr. Blake, only a bit wild; and by this time, I know, he has bitterly repented of his mad act. If only I could have seen him, before his guilt was discovered, he would have given me the bag, and all might have been well. And now it is too late—too late!"

"Not yet," said Sexton Blake softly. "I have told nobody but you of my discoveries; and if your brother is truly repentant, all may still be well. Tell me where he is staying; then go back to the house, and leave the rest to me."

. . . .

Two hours later the detective stepped back into the library, through the open window, with a small, black-leather handbag in his hand.

Mr. Flower was standing there, looking abjectly miserable.

Suddenly he saw the bag.

"You—you don't mean to say you've found it?" he gasped.

Sexton Blake smiled, and handed him the bag.

"You'll find all the money there," he said, "except my fee of twenty guineas, which I've taken the liberty of extracting. No; don't ask any questions. Rest content to have recovered your property, and accept my thanks for giving me the opportunity of tackling a very interesting problem."

Before the astounded agent could question him further, he was trudging down the drive. At the gates he met Miss Flower.

"The bag is now in your father's possession," he said. "It was, as you guessed, a case of a sudden temptation on your brother's part, followed by swift remorse. So satisfied was I, in fact, of his repentance that, in order to enable him to make a fresh start in life, I gave him——"

He smiled and raised his hat.

"Some very good advice. Good-by!"

And it was not until long afterward that Miss Flower learned from her brother, who was then in Canada, that Sexton Blake, in addition to giving him "some very good advice," had also given him 20 guineas.

Young Lady Wins Prize.

Miss Gertrude Holland Wren was presented yesterday with one of the most distinguished prizes of the pharmaceutical world. It was the much-coveted Pereira medal.

During the forty-seven years the medal has been annually awarded, the honor has fallen to many notable pharmacists, but Miss Wren is the first lady to have secured it, and this explained the unstinted and enthusiastic applause which greeted her achievement.

Twenty-two years of age, the medallist studied at the Pharmaceutical College since she was 18, and in proof of her industry it was commonly known that when she left the college at 6 o'clock she continued her studies privately for many hours every evening. She commenced her education at the Girls' High School in Camden Town. It is understood that Miss Wren will turn her rich professional knowledge into practical use, so that, in addition to lady doctors, we shall see lady chemists.

It was announced at yesterday's ceremony that the name of the Pereira medallist had also been inscribed on the roll of the "first prizemen in the school of pharmacy," and that she had secured the Redwood scholarship.

The much-sought medal she has gained was founded in honor of John Pereira, first professor of materia medica at the college. Miss Wren's examination covered the range of materia medica, pharmacy, and chemistry. She had seven competitors.—[London Chronicle.

"Isn't dress reform needed—at least, for all of us except the very slender? I heard a young man, a rather lazy young man, tell a pretty girl the other day that he envied woman her idleness, that he would like to have been born a woman.

"The girl, tossing her head and snorting, answered:

"'You'd like to be a woman! Oh, yes! Just try it for a day. Fasten a blanket and a counterpane round your legs; buckle a strap round your waist so tight you can't draw a full breath or eat a hearty meal; have your hair all loose and fluffy, so that it keeps tickling your ears and getting into your eyes; wear high-heeled shoes and gloves a size too small for you; cover your face with a veil full of spots that make you squint; fix a huge hat on with pins, so that every time the wind blows it pulls your hair out by the roots; and then, without any pockets, and with a three-inch square of lace to blow your nose with, go for a walk and enjoy yourself. WHEN Harold was 4 years old, he went uptown to spend a nickel that had been given to him. At the toy store he found "just a dandy horn," but unfortunately for him, it cost 10 cents.

The Rev. Father O'C——, who was standing near, noticed the little fellow's disappointment, and said: "I will tell you how to earn the other nickel, Harold. If you will tell me what I am (thinking to see if the child knew the word "priest") I will pay you a nickel." Harold was a very shy child, but the thought of the dandy horn that would be his very own finally overcame his timidity, and he stammered: "Well—well—you're an Irishman."

He got the nickel.

The little girl, who was older and larger than Carol, stared and was dumb.

The child fidgeted and grinned, but remained silent with her finger in her mouth.

The Stop.

J. HAMPTON MOORE, the brilliant young Philadelphia member of the Waterways and Forestry Preservation Commission, was describing, on his return from Europe, a wretched railroad in Britany.

"I never imagined such slow trains existed," said Mr. Moore. "They are certainly tedious to ride on. They bore you dreadfully. All sorts of stories—very likely ones, too—are told about the Breton trains. Thus it is said that one day, when an express pulled up in the middle of a dreary field of gray rocks, a passenger put his head out of the window and shouted angrily to the conductor:

"'Well, what have you stopped this time for?'

"'Engineer's dropped his cigarette, sir,' was the reply."

The Sleeping Beauty.

FREDERICK W. LEHMAN, the new president of the American Bar Association, was discussing, at a dinner in St. Louis, a case where some of the evidence had not been above suspicion.

"Well," he said, "there were certainly flaws in this evidence—terminological inexactitudes, so to speak. It reminded me of the girl in the hammock.

"A pretty girl, in a hammock slung in an apple orchard, awoke suddenly and frowned at the young man who stood before her.

"'You stole a kiss while I was asleep!' she exclaimed.

"'Well,' stammered the young man, 'you were sleeping so soundly—you looked so pretty, so tempting, I—yes, I admit I did take one little one.'

"The girl smiled scornfully.

"'One!' said she. 'Humph! I counted seven before I woke up.'"

So It Goes.

SOMETHING told the twenty passengers of us in the green-line trolley car that the man sitting close to the front door was a mean-spirited and selfish man, and we had scarcely come to the decision when he furnished proofs of it himself. He rose up, pushed his back against the front door, and, raising his hand for silence, said:

"Ladies and gentlemen: We have a Presidential campaign on. Things are growing red-hot. Everybody, from the youngest child to the oldest grandmother, is interested. It is only right that they should be."

This prelude was all right, but we felt that it had something behind it. So it had.

"The political intelligence of the American people is something to be proud of," continued the man. "For instance, every one in this car can tell me who was the Vice-President with Washington."

We looked at each other and gnashed our teeth. Not one of us could have told if he had offered a million dollars.

"Too modest, eh?" sneered the man. "Well, we'll come farther down the line. Who was it with Lincoln?"

No answer. We simply thirsted for his blood.

"Well, with Grant?"

No answer. How we ached to murder him.

"Then with Garfield?"

No answer.

"Then with Harrison?"

We felt for our guns and bowie knives.

"Come now," laughed the wretch, "who is running with Taft? Give me the name in chorus."

One weak-voiced little man cried out: "Fairweather!" but the rest of us were mum. We couldn't remember. We sat there like fools, and the man laughed in our faces and said:

"I get off here. Hate to leave such a highly intellectual crowd, but I've been to the store after beeswax to polish my wife's flat irons, and she'll be waiting for me. Good-day, all!"—[Kansas City Journal.

Always Exciting.

"I VISITED E. R. Thomas and found him doing well after his motor accident," said a member of the Automobile Club of America. "Thomas, as usual, railed against our bad roads.

"He said that a friend who lived in the country had been in to see him. 'The country is all right in the summer,' Thomas admitted; 'but in the fall and winter don't you find it dull?'

"'Dull?' said the other. 'No, indeed. Why, out our way some motor car or other gets stuck in the mud every night.'"

The House Beautiful—Its Flower Garden and Grounds.

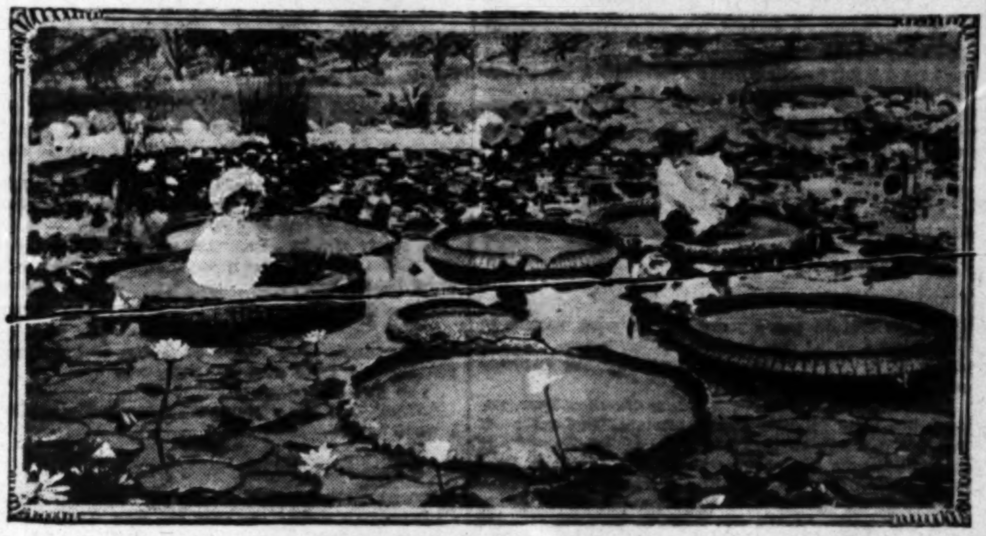
THE VICTORIAN LILIES.

TWO VERY INTERESTING NATIVES OF SOUTH AMERICA.

By Ernest Braunton.

THE most interesting and popular aquatic plant with the general public is the Victoria, which has both the largest leaf and the largest blossom of all cultivated water plants. There are two species of Victorias and the better-known one, V. regia, named in honor of Queen Victoria of Great Britain, is the older one in cultivation, and comes from the most tropical part of South America, along the Amazon River and its tributaries. The other species, V. Cruziana, hails from Uruguay and Paraguay, and as its habitat is much farther south, it is consequently hardier and is the species generally grown here, and the one heretofore pictured in this department.

The leaves of this giant water plant sometimes measure more than six feet across, and are capable of floating, with perfect leaves, under a weight of above 200 pounds each. Such tests, however, are only possible when a leaf has no holes through the disk and the upturned rim is intact. Beneath, the leaves have an extensive and powerful venation system and the main ribs are often more than two inches wide, which, with the cross veins, form almost innumerable cells. It is these latter, together with the immense surface of water covered that permits of buoyancy under most unusual weight. The texture of the epidermis or skin of the leaf is very delicate and easily broken, so that a platform of thin boards has to be placed on the leaf before one may stand or sit upon it. A little child may, without any unusual effort, push its finger down through this membrane.



THREE CHILDREN AFLOAT ON VICTORIA LEAVES.

The flowers of Victoria are sometimes more than a foot across, pure white in color, and bloom only in the night. The plant is an annual, and grows each season from a seed no longer than a common garden pea. About every eight days during average seasons about Los Angeles the plant will put forth a leaf and a blossom. When the bud first appears it is beneath the water, the smooth sepals tightly sealed above the extremely spiny stem and receptacle. Each day it becomes larger and longer-stemmed until it finally pokes its nose above the water. When the whole bud is well above the surface and the calyx lobes that cover the petals look as though they might be loose the "water-lily man" phones his friends that "the Victoria will flower tonight (or tomorrow night if not unsealed) for sure." About 7 o'clock in the evening it begins to open, and so fast does it unfold that one may see the process, and often hear it, too. From the moment it begins to expand until the coming of morning light the air all about is pervaded with a strong but delicious fragrance not unlike that of a fully-ripe pineapple. But alas! for all this magnificence of snow-white and pleasant odor, the flower is of but a night. As the sun rises the following morn, the petals seem to be drawn down into a compact mass once more, the calyx lobes close over them and the fragrance is gone, never to return. The next evening the flower again expands, but the petals droop helplessly and limp, with none of the freshness and vigor of the previous night. They are, too, stained with blotches and suffusians of pink, as though the very life blood of the flower had soaked through the fold of a snowy shroud. Its glory has flown!

Making New Plants.

Until late years the making of new plants was in the hands of a few specialists; today even the amateur gardener is constantly adding to our already lengthy annual list of novelties. We have been rather slow in recognizing that plant life in all its phases is wonderfully subject to control even by the amateur. Results of great value and importance are each year becoming more and more common in every State in the Union and every country in the world.

We are generally too well aware of the fact or too much impressed with the statement that "like begets like." With this the masses have been lulled to sleep, whereas we should have been up and doing. It must be admitted that the more familiar one is with plant life the better the chances of success in hybridization and plant breeding in general, but one need not be a "wizard" or anything uncanny or unnatural to work intelligently and with some success on any plant that grows. Plant breeding today is proving an alluring field for all of an experimental or inquiring turn of mind, and every progressive young gardener and farmer should spare a little time for intelligent experimentation, more especially in Southern California, where such work may be carried on throughout the year.

Cut Worms.

One of the most pestiferous creatures with which the California gardener has to deal is cutworms, which are more or less common in our clime throughout the year. Even at present, their most quiescent period, the writer finds them wherever garden litter has lain for a day or two. They are at their best, and "our best" also, in the spring about the same season of their greatest activity in the States having cold winters. There are a number of species that bother us, but all are of like habits, doing all the damage at night and during the day sleeping in shallow burrows in the soil or under anything that provides suitable shelter.

In the late spring these worms are fully matured and burrow in the earth, forming about themselves silk-lined cocoons and transform themselves into the pupal state. In about twenty days the night-flying moths are hatched out, and at once begin laying eggs for a new brood. These eggs are laid above ground and are stuck on all kinds of vegetation, for the food of the young worms is very varied, though like humans, they prefer it tender and juicy. For some time the young worms feed, and upon the advent of cold weather they go beneath the soil and hibernate or sleep until the warm days of spring when they emerge with an appetite like the proverbial "hungry bear" who affects the same habits.

The best measures are preventive. Gardens that are kept well cultivated and free from weeds are not much troubled with worms from within. It is only when hordes come in from the outside during the period when we call them "army worms" that they are much of a menace to the careful gardener. After succulent plants are growing they are not easy to poison, but if the ground is full when it is prepared for a crop of seeds or plants a poisoned corn-meal mash is a good protection. With ten pounds of corn meal mix one-fourth pound of good Paris green or white arsenic moistened with just enough water to make a stiff mash, and sweeten by thoroughly mixing in a pint of molasses. Drop this about in little heaps in the evening, and in two or three days all the worms will have perished. While this dose does not prove so alluring when vegetation is plentiful, it still catches many worms, especially when they become "epidemic." Care should be taken that domestic fowls do not also feast upon this mash, and if possible it should be rendered difficult to reach by our wild birds. When in "army worm" numbers one of the best remedies is to turn either chickens or ducks, preferably the latter, into the garden for all domestic fowls prefer worms to other food.

Two Hardy Palms.

Trachycarpus excelsus, or as it is more commonly but erroneously called, Chamaerops excelsa, is supposed to be the hardiest palm we grow. It has, so far as the writer knows, never been injured by the cold in this State, even in mountainous districts having a considerable snowfall. Other strong points about this palm are its extreme toughness, rendering it more immune to damage from wind and other sources than any other species grown in this State; it responds nobly to water and fertilizer, yet is very drought-resistant; it can also be depended upon for a certain, steady, typical growth, never assuming abnormal forms, etc.; none ever blow over or are damaged in any way.

Closely allied to the foregoing is Chamaerops humilis, the dwarf fan palm and the only species native to Europe; also found in Africa. Fully

If many come with like complaints it will not be long before the billboards will have at least one advertiser less. Advertising depends for its value upon its power to win the favor of the masses; if it be found that it has a contrary effect, it will soon be discontinued. Thus is it possible for the people, without legal process to successfully control the use of the billboards by local business houses. Especially is such suppression an easy matter in villages and towns. In like manner also may any people prevent local merchants from scattering posters over town to be later blown about the streets. A little study of the question will show how concerted effort by a few may effectually control all objectionable local advertising.

Value of Organization.

The greatest good in civic improvement is only possible where there is a strong organization, energetic and enthusiastic, with its full force bent on the accomplishment of a certain task or tasks. Much improvement work lags for want of a fitting inspiration to a single leader or a number of willing workers. It is much like the writer sitting down to pen the matter for his two departments in this section of The Times—there is plenty of force both in brain and elbow (so ye editor thinks,) but proper subjects are sometimes wanting which are sufficiently inspiring to start the flow of thought. When improvement workers have hit upon the work which is of paramount importance it should prove an easy matter to carry it to completion.

NATURAL GROVE OF NATIVE FAN PALMS.

Public Fountains.

In a country of rainless summers public fountains are much more pleasing than in the average temperate climes and should be more in evidence than they are with us. Los Angeles could well afford, both from an economic as well as esthetic point of view, to build a few really beautiful fountains of considerable size. We should have ample grounds for a new City Hall, and then provision should be made for all who thirst, whether man or beast or the fowls of the air. The county should also have provided for one in the Courthouse grounds in place of the little circular beds and other gimcracks now existent. The writer even deeply regrets that those in charge could not have secured magnificent commemorative fountains instead of the monument now being erected. There are many who do not like statues in any place who would welcome memorials in any other form, and in a comparatively waterless country we should encourage the erection of ornate fountains. Human lives, as well as those of bird and beast have been saved by the existence of public fountains.

The Effective "Town Beautiful."

Some large towns, realizing that all of their voters were not in a position to obtain information concerning the business of the towns, have adopted the expedient of an advisory committee. This committee is composed of some twenty to forty representative men, whose duty it is to make a thorough examination of the business of the town and the needs for the coming year, and report to the entire voting body its findings and recommendations. In that way the voters have laid before them in print an explanation of the public business, a lucid statement of the purposes for which money must be provided, and recommendations concerning changes or improvements.

Therein is a hunt for civic bodies in places where the town has not such a committee. No better work can be done than the work of investigation and publication. The great majority of voters in this country are in the dark as to what is going on in public business, and do not know how to vote, except as they are told by the politicians. If they could have authoritative information, from time to time, they would take interest, and there would be an improvement in municipal business. Then the civic club can extend its operations to the beautifying of the place, to the improvement of its transportation facilities, to its sanitation, to the elimination of grade crossings, to the abatement of the smoke nuisance, and a multitude of other good things for its town, all of which will profit the place in hard dollars. The club may even devote a part of its time and strength to the selection of good men for office, and the attempt to elect them.

Encourage Tree Planting.

We need more trees in Southern California both in public and private places. We sadly need many thousands in Los Angeles. While it is advisable to plant them under any circumstances it is regrettable that our city does not make better provision for their planting and care. We shall never have ideal conditions until the parkway is taken from the control of the property owner and placed under the care of the city and ordinances so framed and financial support secured as to insure uniform work of a high standard in the alignment of our streets with trees. All Southern California, with the exception of Riverside and a few like examples, needs several times the street trees now planted, and even private grounds should smack more of the wildwood.

Preserving Natural Beauty.

It is really a serious question in our national life that so much attention should have to be concentrated on measures to prevent spoliation of the country by the commercialism which appears to undertake to dominate both the mind and matter of the nation. From the billboard nuisance to the destruction of the Falls of Niagara involves a wide sweep of effort, covering so many issues of importance, and yet the battle must be fought continuously to victory in order to reëstablish a normal and healthy condition of progressive civilization.

We have at last begun to realize how nearly we have lost that wonderful natural phenomenon, the Falls of Niagara. The development of electricity and the advantages of cheap power to produce it once more brought water power into great demand and the vast energy stored in Niagara, together with its proximity to large cities, invited the control of the Falls for commercial purposes. Commercialism gives no heed to anything but the almighty dollar, or no thought of injury to the world-renowned cataract could possibly have been considered. The practical destruction of the Falls is no absolute necessity; it happens to offer a vast amount of stored power, and to be convenient and central. But the American people are protesting vigorously, as they should, for it is a national matter.

Don't judge by appearances. The man who wears a diamond pin may sometimes be really wealthy.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

JOHN RUPERT'S PLANT.

AN EASTERN VIEW OF POULTRY CULTURE IN CALIFORNIA.

THE September issue of Poultry, a widely-read magazine published in Illinois, contains the following article on poultry culture in California:

"We have taken occasion to give our opinion of the possibilities of poultry-keeping in California on previous occasions and have dealt with the subject in a general manner, referring to details lightly, because it is not often that one can get details with sufficient clearness to make them forcible. We have long been convinced that poultry-keeping on the west coast was profitable because of the peculiar mildness of the climate, the cheapness of feed and the high price which poultry products always bring. In California, Oregon and Washington, the climate is perfectly adapted to the keeping of poultry and in all the States immediately east of these the poultry business promises large returns to those who engage in it.

"In California particularly the poultry-keeper needs only the cheapest of houses at any time in the year, as the temperature never falls low enough to produce suffering as long as the rains of winter are kept off the birds during their hours of sleep. Wheat, barley and vegetables are as cheap as in the East, and green feed can be grown the year through, making the feed question the simplest one to be encountered.

"The California Cultivator, one of the most authoritative of the Pacific Coast publications, tells a story in which interesting details are given. We republish this below to show what may be done on a small place by good management. It concerns the poultry business of Mr. John Rupert of Eureka, and is as follows:

"Mr. Rupert was a locomotive engineer for twenty-eight years up until four years ago when he left the railroad to take up his present work.

"He has a nice home upon a two-acre tract. His house and back yard take up about one-fourth of an acre and balance of two acres is devoted to garden for raising green feed for chickens, chicken runs, brooder-houses and incubator-house; also houses for the laying hens. His brooder-house is 12x30 feet and other houses are nearly the same size. All houses consolidated would make a house 12x300 feet. He has twelve incubators, incubator-house and sixteen brooders in the brooder-houses. He keeps from 800 to 1000 eggs in his incubators all the time and raises to maturity from 65 to 70 per cent. of the chickens that are hatched.

"In the months of February, March and April he runs 1000 eggs per month and the months from May 1 to October 1 he will run 800 eggs per month. He had 1500 birds up until January last when he sold off enough to reduce his stock to 450 hens. He keeps no hen older than two years. From the 450 hens he is getting enough eggs to have 800 to 1000 for hatching and supply the stores with many dozen each month besides. From the hatching of 800 eggs a month he raises at least 200 chickens for four-month-old fryers and enough chickens besides to raise his number of hens from 450 to 1500 by January 1, 1909. At the present time, he has 1800 birds of various ages, part for fryers, part raising for increase of stock and then the 450 hens.

"Mr. Rupert grows kale in the rear of each chicken yard, making the rows fourteen inches wide and planting the kale fourteen inches apart. His runs are 50x100 feet, and he keeps 100 birds to the run. He plants enough kale so that there are two plants for each chicken. He claims that two plants of kale will give a chicken all the green food it needs through the year and that it saves 40 per cent. upon the food bill of the chickens. The kale grows the year through in Eureka. He plants a new crop each year and fences chickens off from it while it is growing the first week or two; after that chickens cannot kill it out. A chicken has to be six weeks old before he lets it eat kale.

"In Eureka lumber is cheaper than in most places. Mr. Rupert paid $7 per thousand feet; it cost him 50 cents' worth of nails for each thousand feet of lumber and $1 for hauling each thousand feet; counting labor it cost him $800 to build his houses; $1500 would cover the total cost of chicken wire and posts of fences, houses, brooders and twelve Jubilee incubators and whatever else was in his chicken plant.

"His food bill per chicken one year for grain, corn meal and grit was 96 cents for the year of 1908. On a test of 150 hens last year he received a few hundred over 21,000 eggs, which sold on the average of 30 cents per dozen, which brought him in an income of $3.60 per hen. Each hen was twelve months old when it started in. He sells 200 fryers per month at 50 cents average per piece, which cost him about 25 cents each to raise. So far this year he has sold 7000 eggs for setting at 50 and 75 cents per setting, and 500 incubator chicks at 10 cents apiece.

"He cleans all houses each day and goes over them once a week with coal oil. In this way he has no vermin, and chickens are always healthy. He does nothing but devote his whole time to his chickens; he is with them from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.; between those hours he has time to spend with his gardens and do some other work he might wish to do about the house.

"His chickens are White Leghorns and he finds that they will do as well through the summer months as they do in the winter months, which he claims is due to the cool, even temperature of Eureka.

"Ground outside of that taken up by chicken runs and houses, he has devoted to vegetable gardens from which he raises enough vegetables to supply his table wants and much besides for his chickens.

"In Eureka irrigation is not known; the fogs and rains keep the ground always moist.

"From Mr. Rupert's results others might gain an idea what they could do in raising chicks in Eureka. Mr. Rupert believes this country to be the natural home of chickens on account of its evenness of climate."

Standard Form and Products.

In more than a thousand egg-laying contests recorded in the past six years, there has never been one in which any kind of a fowl other than some one of the standard-bred varieties gained the ascendancy. In few instances have any fowls other than the Mediterranean and the American varieties won the honors; in one or two instances Langshans and Orpingtons produced the greatest number of eggs in a given time. This shows that the standard-makers have improved the quality of the fowls, the greatest attention being given to the egg production and the table qualities.

The question is often asked what influence standard requirements have on the utility value of the fowl. Some prominent writers declare that they are detrimental to useful qualities. If these persons would stop to consider the show-room demands, they would realize their mistake. Head points they say, are given undue consideration in the scale. Did you ever notice how carefully the housewife scans the head of the fowl she would purchase? No matter how presentable the carcass may be, if the head is unsatisfactory she selects another bird.

A CALIFORNIA COCKEREL.

If the breast is narrow, sunken, contracted, it is detrimental to market and show-room quality alike. The same is true of body, back, shanks and legs. Whenever they lack in plumpness, in round, presentable formation, they are discounted in the showroom, and on the market stall as well. Full breast development makes possible the handling of the greatest quantity of food material and its consumption for the upbuilding of body and egg production. The full, well-balanced abdominal proportions serve the double purpose of giving ascendency in the show pen and providing the machinery for the assimilation of food, its conversion into the largest number of eggs. No hen was ever a good egg producer that did not have the well-developed showroom requirements in her general make-up. No fowl was ever good for the highest quality of market poultry or for producing the greatest amount of desirable meat that did not come close to the standard demands for shape.

The Brahma, the progenitor of all American breeds, has long been highly considered as the best for producing eggs having the dark shells and of heavy-weight poultry, soft roasters and capons. The Mediterranean, which comprises the Leghorn, Minorca, Andalusian and Ancona varieties, was the second product, built from the crude originals as they came from Spain and Italy. These fowls were the original non-sitting varieties, and were cultivated into the great egg producers. It is a mistake to imagine that either can be valuable as egg producers or as market poultry if they fail in the general contour demanded by the standard.

It is the highest development of the Leghorn type and character that makes the most valuable egg-producing fowls of the Mediterranean family. The small, poorly-developed, narrow-breasted, short-bodied, light-weight Leghorns do not come anywhere near the standard demand, nor do they ever produce sufficient eggs to make their keeping profitable. The profitable egg-producing Leghorns are those which come the nearest to the standard demands.

The good qualities of Brahma and Leghorn have been combined in the general-purpose fowls, the American breeds of Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes. The greatest difference between the two lies in the fact that the Wyandotte is rather short and compact in body formation, while the Plymouth Rocks are a little longer, somewhat heavier or larger in size, and they naturally produce eggs that weigh a few more ounces [illegible] than those of the Wyandotte. These [illegible] exist with the Orpington, the great general-[illegible] of England, the Houdan of France and the [illegible] of England. Each of these has been [illegible] eggs of a greater weight than had been [illegible] fowl that preceded them.—[Country Gentleman.

The Poultry Business Still Grows.

We have been examining the market [illegible] and west, north and south, as far as they [illegible] poultry business, and from every point [illegible] these reports make for cheerfulness [illegible] breeder. Notwithstanding the late depression [illegible] ness, the price of everything the poultryman [illegible] is high, as compared with other farm [illegible] and pork have been selling at record prices [illegible] has naturally carried up the price of poultry [illegible]

About the most unreasonable state of mind [illegible] man can get into is to feel that the [illegible] affected his business unfavorably. At no time [illegible] fall could one look at the market reports [illegible] that anything had happened to interfere with [illegible] perity of the poultry business. It has been [illegible] lines of industry which has not been at all [illegible] Prices have not gone down, the demand has [illegible] whole supply, and the man who produces [illegible] eggs for the market has been able to command [illegible] prices during the year as he did before Wall [illegible] scared and frenzied financiers began to [illegible] water out of stocks and shake out the [illegible] in order to be able to buy at low prices and [illegible] by the old process so well known in speculation [illegible]

The poultry business has ceased to be a [illegible] business. It is based on the firmest possible [illegible] —an increasing demand—and its future is [illegible] the procession of the seasons. The man [illegible] poultry need not think about the future, [illegible] feeling that his prosperity is assured and his [illegible] destined to still greater proportions. With [illegible] ued increase in the demand for the [illegible] poultry yard will come a great demand [illegible] poultry, and those who have high-class [illegible] able to find a ready market if they seek [illegible] channels through which to make their sales [illegible] ing is the foundation of the pure-bred poultry [illegible] No one can build up a great business [illegible] without the help of the press and those who [illegible] advertise judiciously, persistently and [illegible] never make a very great mark as breeders of [illegible] poultry. The coming season promises to be a [illegible] Those who advertise will catch the benefits [illegible] from a reawakening of demand along this line [illegible] greater benefits than ever before. It is the [illegible] constant advertiser who secures the large [illegible] who begin now and keep on are as certain [illegible] money as the sun is to rise and set.—[Poultry.

The cavalry is undoubtedly the least good branch of the service, but has during the last few years been greatly improved. The men ride well, and are mounted on horses of the mountain-cob class. They take particular care of their animals while in camp.

If the annual military budget of £1,150,000, which is nearly one-quarter of the national expenditure, is a very large one, nobody can blame Bulgaria for the arrangements which she is making to render herself ready for war should this disaster ever overtake her.

Europe's War Cloud.

ALL BECAUSE ONE MAN WAS NOT INVITED TO DINNER.

By a Special Contributor.

ALL because one man failed to get an invitation to dinner, Europe is trembling on the brink of a war whose consequences none can foretell.

The treaty of Berlin, which has been the instrument of Europe's peace for three decades, is now openly defied. Bulgaria has declared its complete independence of Turkey, and will fight to establish it. Austria has announced its intention to take two valuable provinces that have heretofore been attached to the throne of the Sultan.

Half a dozen powers are grumbling at the prospect that their rights will not be safeguarded in the struggle that impends, and in case the powers do not reach an agreement, the dismemberment of Turkey and the possible absorption of other minor kingdoms are a logical expectation.

And all this because one man failed to get an invitation to dinner.

Other wars have been kindled by slight pretexts. It took only the famous Ens telegram to send Germany and France at each other's throats. Napoleon fought many a nation merely from the desire to feed his vanity. But the present spark in the tinder box of Europe, the dinner invitation that M. Gueshoff did not get, will probably go down in history as the slightest factor that ever caused a history-making conflagration.

There is no possible excuse for attributing the present difficulty to other causes, for the record of state papers ascribes responsibility to the dinner incident alone. The official deliverance on part of the Foreign Minister of Bulgaria specifically names the dinner incident as being the grievance of his people.

It will be recalled that according to the treaty of Berlin, that remarkable paper designed to preserve the delicate balance of Europe, and prevent constant bickering over the rights of the great powers in the affairs of the little, made Bulgaria a principality, subject to the control of Turkey.

But Turkey has never dared press its rights very heavily.

The able and patriotic ruler of Bulgaria, Prince Ferdinand, made valuable friendships, whose existence served ever to keep the Sultan reasonably considerate, and save only that he was called "Prince" instead of "King." Ferdinand occupied the position of a fully-empowered monarch.

He yearned for more than that, and steadily pushed his powers, until he acquired the right to have a diplomatic representative to every power.

Turkey was naturally included, and at Constantinople Bulgaria made it ever a point to maintain one of its ablest statesmen.

Turkey, perhaps thinking it wise to encourage the friendship of Bulgaria, welcomed this representative, and until recently he was a guest at all official dinners, together with other members of the diplomatic corps in Turkey.

On the 12th of last September the Sultan celebrated his birthday. A great dinner to the diplomatic corps was the climax of the celebration.

The representative of Bulgaria waited for his invitation, and he continued to wait. In fact, it never did arrive, nor was any excuse given why he should not have been bidden.

Just as soon as M. Gueshoff became convinced that the slight had been intentional, he placed himself in communication with his government, and Bulgaria promptly asked an explanation of the incident.

The reply is the brand that has started the entire flame.

Turkey replied that as Bulgaria was a vassal state of Turkey, it could not naturally expect to have its representative present at a gathering of the nations which ranked on an equality with Turkey.

This precipitated a diplomatic correspondence. Bulgaria contended that Turkey was not paying deference to the rights of Prince Ferdinand's realm and that, being unable to obtain justice, Bulgaria had decided to throw off all allegiance to the Sultan, and set up an independent liberal monarchy, with Prince Ferdinand as Czar of the Bulgars.

But as often happens in such cases, the quarrel between Turkey and Bulgaria, serious as that was, only marked the beginning of the trouble.

The venerable Emperor of Austria, Francis Joseph, quickly saw his opportunity.

Turkey, in a condition of turmoil, was about to be forced into war, whose indications looked ill for the land of the Sultan. When the smash came, Francis Joseph had interests he wished to serve. Therefore he sent an identical note to all the powers, acquainting them with his determination to take possession of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina, giving as his reason the unsettled condition of affairs in the Balkans.

Inevitably there are other powers with whose wishes this promise by no means fell in line.

The provinces named for seizure, although forming an appendage to the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, are nominally included in the Turkish empire. The rights and desires of Italy are sharply crossed in the absorption of these two provinces, and the ancient hatreds existing between Austria and Italy, hatreds which in the memory of many who are living today led to a furious war, have brought about uncomfortable complications.

But the greatest fear of all is the battering down of the Berlin treaty. The most radical of diplomats might well regard with fear such an outcome. No matter how extreme the desires of the many-tempered statesmen of Europe who have in the last generation controlled affairs of the nations, the boldest have hesitated to unsettle that paper which took the hands of the powers from each other's throats, and made possible a period of commercial development.

The dinner that M. Gueshoff missed, no matter how elaborate, could hardly have cost more than $50. The cost of a war with any of the great powers involved would run into the millions so swiftly that it would take easily another generation to pay off the bills.

Bulgaria has been independent in all but name for years. She has been absolutely self-governing, and made all her treaties with other nations, entirely according to the wishes of the ruler and his Cabinet. Prince Ferdinand has everywhere been accorded the welcome of a titular sovereign, as for instance, is shown in the official reception accorded him in Budapest by the Emperor of Austria.

Without any such radical insult as was put upon him by the dropping of his representative from the banquet list, Prince Ferdinand would probably have been content to continue his reign along present lines.

But his spirit could not brook such an insult, hence the present terrible condition of affairs.

The quarrel catches Turkey in an unfortunate period of transition. A peaceful revolution has just been accomplished there, and a new party of young Turks have been endeavoring to inaugurate a government along more liberal lines.

Perhaps in a decade they would sufficiently have accomplished their purpose to have an effective organization that would be able to cope with the enemy. But now they are to a large extent unprepared, and the change of authority has been too recent to have the soldiery and the citizenship yet thoroughly accustomed to it.

This gives Bulgaria the opportunity of years. Prince Ferdinand has at his command a powerful, if not large army of well-equipped soldiers, who are devoted to him personally and to the ideal of a free Bulgaria. They will fight hard and intelligently.

Russia and Italy are against Austria in the matter of taking the two provinces, and also oppose the ambition of Prince Ferdinand. Germany is expected to be on the side of Austria, eventually, while England and France have not yet taken sides, but are said to be throwing all their influence in favor of peace.

With such an alignment, and with all the chances of trouble involved in such a quarrel, the dinner M. Gueshoff didn't get could easily produce the greatest conflict in modern times.

TRANSMUTATION OF METALS.

SIR WILLIAM RAMSAY THINKS THE CHANGE POSSIBLE AND IS WORKING TO THAT END.

[Paris Correspondence London Standard:] A contributor to the Matin reproduces in that journal the points of a remarkable conversation he recently had with Sir William Ramsay at Clermont-Ferrand, whither the British savant had gone to receive the gold medal of the French Association for the Advancement of Science, and at the same time to read a paper on his researches in the field of radio activity. After describing at length Sir William's well-known discoveries of argon, helium, neon, crypton, and xenon, the five gases which are found in our atmosphere, the writer gives a fascinating account of the experiments on which the great investigator is at present engaged.

"You know that last year," said Sir William Ramsay, "I showed that the emanation of radium changed into helium or neon, according to circumstances. In presence of a solution of copper the emanation degrades the copper and yields another metal of the same series, but of an inferior atomic gravity, lithium, then potassium and sodium. The emanation itself is transformed into neon and argon. We have thus realized the transmutation of several soft metals or alkalies. Since the beginning of the nineteenth century we have been accustomed to regard atoms as eternal and immutable. You see that is not the case."

Asked whether the contrary process could not be accomplished, that is to say, raising a metal in the scale instead of degrading it, and so realize the dream, hitherto considered absurd, of transmuting silver into gold, Sir William said: "I do not think that the emanation of radium can only degrade metals. The emanation only acts by its tremendous energy. It may just as well construct as disintegrate, and I have reasons for believing that it will not be impossible to obtain gold from silver. My present experiments are in that direction."

Proceeding to explain the various changes produced by the action of radium on silver, Sir William Ramsay pointed out that, according to Mendeleff's formula, in which all the simple bodies are ranged in the order of their atomic gravity, between silver and gold two elements have their places, one known, the other unknown. The one which is known is coesium; the unknown element has been named in advance argentaurum. Silver, when submitted to the emanation, may therefore be transmuted into coesium, argentaurum, or gold. "It would not be a lucrative or remunerative way of making gold," Sir William smilingly added, "but it would be a great victory for science."

FIELD NOTES.

Ever-blooming Oranges.

I HAVE a letter from a San Gabriel Valley grower asking what makes some of his orange trees bloom out of season every year. I do not know. A place will cheerfully be given here for some one who will tell us why. It does little explaining to state that off-blooming is caused by irregularity in the growth of the tree. That is absolutely true, but not at all illuminating, although it might stimulate the grower to try to make his trees go about their business with more regularity, and that would "help some." But there are fundamental principles in tree and fruit development the brief examination of which might explain the off-blooming fault, for a "second crop" of oranges is not desirable.

The bloom buds of an orange tree may now be developing, or the twig cells to produce them, even six months before the normal blooming season. Suppose a brush pile is burned too near a large limb of the tree, it would have a tendency to destroy the leaf functions, check the sap and cause abnormal development of the embryo bloom buds. Suppose the tree runs too dry late in the summer and some branch not feeding naturally anyway would receive the same check caused by overheating, with the same bloom-stimulating effect. Or it might be from bark constriction, on the affected branch caused by the soil binding of a corresponding root—anything that would stop the wood cell growth at the expense of the normal development of the fruit buds. The effect would probably be the same in every case, just as gopher girdling will develop every latent fruit bud and retard every wood-producing bud in a tree. Sometimes a dry summer followed by winter rains will produce these abnormal conditions, namely, the unbalancing of the functions that should produce both wood and fruit growth at the same time and bring the latter to blooming in proper season. Perhaps the navel orange tree, a "sport" itself, may have a sensitive disposition toward any of the above influences, and perhaps I really do not know very much about the causes of off-blooming and should "leave go" trying to explain it, and again ask some one who knows, to enlighten the readers of The Times.

Pedigreed Stock.

IN looking over thirty-one reports from as many prominent nursery firms in the middle and eastern States I find only one recognizing the value of high-bred nursery trees. Is it possible that we are never to have a cult of propagators that will produce only trees upon whole roots, with buds or scions taken from bearing trees of pedigreed origin? Is there no demand for anything better than the average nurseryman offers? Are we never to know surcease from the mediocre to worthless stock quoted at competitive prices? Are we never to have orchards built up from seed and scion upon scientific and yet common-sense principles? I knew a nurseryman to sell 750,000 apple trees of his own growing in one season. He must have cut his scions by the cord. He did not put as much individuality into a hundred trees as he should have put into one. I am trying to get a nurseryman to write a scientific treatise upon pedigreed nursery stock to be read at the next State Fruit Growers' Convention.

A Famous Apple.

I HAVE received a few fine specimens of the Rome Beauty apple, grown in the Yucaipe Valley, near Redlands. This apple is famous for quality only when grown under favorable conditions, and to say that the Rome Beauty of the San Bernardino mountains is of very superior quality is enough praise for its environment. My specimens were colored equally with a tree-seller's plate, which is a condition not always found in this luscious apple. But why should it not color 4000 feet above the haze of the plains? Sunlight clear and serene does it, as it purples over a Royal apricot one-fourth grown, in the Antelope Valley, gradually merging into gold and red at maturity. It makes the plant breeder a little envious of nature which produced the first Rome Beauty ninety-two years ago in Rome township, Ohio. This chance seedling could not be improved upon by the most elaborate system of plant selection. The Yucaipe apple and one from the original tree would look and taste as near alike as two peas.

Mother of Organization a Necessity.

A GRAPE GROWER of the Sacramento Valley called to see me a few days ago, to discuss principally the question of overproduction of fruits. Verily prosperity has its drawbacks as well as adversity, for this man had been making money until the vicissitudes of this season came upon him. So he holds that the records of the past few years in fruit growing and land hungriness of the people are responsible for the enormous increase of the area of orchards and vineyards. This man argued that we do not want to be instructed in methods of producing more fruits, and that further planting should be discouraged. I asked him how many points of distribution in the East had the Tokay grape men at Lodi. He said, about fifteen. Is it any wonder there is stagnation and slow markets with but fifteen distributing points to supply 80,000 people who might want Tokays? I suggested organization.

A few months ago I called upon myself the ridicule of a few hasty newspapers by making a similar suggestion to the melon growers of the Imperial Valley. I took the ground that the melon men should prepare for a better and larger distribution of their cantaloupes; that it would be easier to provide fuller marketing facilities than to curtail the acreage or abandon a good business. It was with considerable pleasure, then, that I found the following in the Fruit Grower of October 17:

"Melon growers of Imperial Valley are organizing a central body, to be composed of representatives of all the local cantaloupe associations, and known as the Imperial Valley Producers' Exchange. It is to be incorporated under the laws of California, with a capital stock of $25,000, and principal place of business at Brawley. Five local associations have already entered the union, and at a meeting to be held here next Saturday it is expected that all other melon organizations will join this central body."

Here is the way they do it without organization. Five hundred tons of Sultana and Thompson's Seedless raisins in one little community in Yolo county, and without a hint of a demand. Of course they want this fruit somewhere among the four-score millions of people, and possibly at a fair price. But the growers don't know where, and have no means of finding where the grapes would sell. So twenty-five growers meet a broker and agree to let him sell the raisins for 7½ per cent. commission. Moreover, some of the growers are in need of money, and agree to an advance of $20 per ton, contracting also to take a minimum selling price in order to protect the advance of 1 cent a pound for seedless raisins. The account of this transaction, sarcastically says: "As an evidence of good faith in which the proposition (the 7½-per-cent. proposition) is made the broker offers to advance $20 per ton on the above terms." It is a long time since the orange growers of the State have had the chance to allow their fruit to be sold on such favorable terms. The millionaire orange broker is as extinct as the Behemoth or the Great Auk.

A State Plague.

DR. HOWARD, chief of the Bureau of Entomology, has just returned to his office at Washington, and has taken time to write me of his impressions upon the ravages of the pear thrips in California, as he learned of them while here in September. His visit is of great value in riveting the attention of the Department of Agriculture to this great peril. The visitation of this minute creature has already alarmed the whole State, and Dr. Howard shares in the fear that this pest is rapidly increasing. He promises to give this troublesome invader renewed attention, and steps have been taken by the San Francisco Board of Trade to secure an appropriation from the next Congress to provide him the means of thoroughly examining the thrips question, including a broad series of experiments toward the control of the pest. Two men are now in the field, and more will be employed if the funds are provided by the next session of Congress.

The Thirty-fifth Convention.

THE programme for the Thirty-fifth State Fruit Growers' Convention is being completed. Acceptances for a dozen papers are already in hand, covering the following topics: The San Francisco local fruit markets, a burning issue for both grower and consumer; Tokay grape industry, packing, marketing, and points of general interest to table-grape men; noxious weeds, an issue of paramount importance to the central portion of the State; sprays, the latest in formulae, material and appliances; fumigation, the last word from Whittier; soils, the thrips, new pests, walnuts in the north and others. The coming convention will be attended by men entitled to speak with authority and by men who have practiced experience in the subjects now engaging the attention of the fruit growers of the State. Plan to visit the Capital City the first week in December.

A Demonstration Train.

A FEW days ago Presidents Jordan and Wheeler of the universities, Dean Wickson and Prof. Clarke, of the Agricultural College at Berkeley, and the State Commissioner of Horticulture held a conference with the officials of the Southern Pacific to consider the feasibility of running a special train through the agricultural districts of the State. The meeting was opened by an offer from the railroad company to provide a train of four cars to be used for meeting the farmers and fruit growers along the lines. The University authorities and the State Commissioner of Horticulture decided to accept the offer, and an itinerary is now being formed for the first trip, to begin on the 9th day of November.

This train will consist of a car, fitted up with seats, for holding meetings along the way; a car to be filled with trees, plants, beneficial insect cases, cereals, dairy appliances, specimens of fruit tree diseases and everything that may be of service in demonstrating to the ranchers and fruit growers the causes and remedies they have to consider in the prosecution of their industries; an exhibit car for collecting and caring for specimens encountered, storage and other purposes; a special car fitted with dining and sleeping accommodations for eight people. One of the official's special car will be used for this purpose, the railroad company offering to furnish the living free to all who give their time to this service. This generous provision will be appreciated, because it is the intention to make stops especially at small places not usually reached with the work the party is expected to do. The railroad men will also send an advance agent to advertise the coming of the train and get the farmers out to meet it.

The University will furnish three or four men and the State commissioner two or three, and the intention is to include only men with practical

Cranberries in Oregon.

CONSIDERABLE interest is being taken in our State in cranberry culture, and it is well that this industry should receive some of the attention that is being given to the various horticultural pursuits. Probably no line of horticulture pays better profits than cranberry growing, and in localities where the yield is good it is practically impossible to buy the well-prepared bogs for $1000 an acre.

There are two reasons for the high price of cranberry bogs. The first is that the yields on good bogs pay very good interest on the investment; and second, cranberry land is very scarce when compared with other agricultural lands. The cranberry is very exacting in its requirements. Nevertheless, there seems to be considerable land along the Oregon coast that is naturally adapted to this industry. True it is that most of the bogs are wild and only a few have had any artificial preparation, and in many cases these were not properly prepared.

What promises to be a very valuable bog for the Pacific Northwest is one recently acquired by the Tillamook Cranberry Company, near Oreton. This seems to have the necessary requirements, such as soil, drainage, a good water supply and comparative ease with which a bed can be prepared. The company has determined to spare no pains in establishing the bog properly.—[Oregon Agriculturist.

Evergreens.

EVERGREENS are of peculiar value in all climes both for shelter and ornament. At all times they furnish a barrier to wind and cold, and the remarkably picturesque forms assumed by the adult specimens of many species add much to the attractiveness of a country home. In winter, when other trees are destitute of foliage, these majestic trees lend to the scene an air of animation which mitigates in a large measure the severity and desolation of the season; an effect much more noticeable east of the Rockies than anywhere on the Pacific Coast. If tastefully intermingled with other trees and shrubs about the home they give a warmth of verdure and variety of outline unattainable without their use. That many of the evergreens can be successfully grown upon thin sandy soils is an additional argument in their favor.

At the base of evergreens an occasional touch of color, such as are afforded by beds of petunia, canna, salvia or other bedding plants, are highly effective and satisfactory. Owing to the vigor of growth and ease of culture clumps of many of the perennial plants are exceedingly valuable adjuncts used in this way, and, if left undisturbed, they will increase in size and beauty from year to year. Foxglove, platycodon, hardy phlox, larkspur and a host of others, from which selection may be made according to the planter's fancy, are available for the purpose. In fact, evergreens form a most excellent background for a great variety of charming hues in flower, fruit and foliage. During the entire cycle of the seasons they may be made to accentuate and brighten an infinite variety of colors in plants.—[Rural Californian.

The Strawberry Raspberry.

WHEN the fruit growers are not imposed upon by the people who have blight cures or dandelion exterminators to sell there is sure to be the agent who has a horticultural novelty. These novelties are of divers kinds, but invariably the glowing descriptions would lead one to expect that their introduction would revolutionize the industry. Last spring the strawberry raspberrry was offered in several sections of Colorado, and a number of sales were made. This berry was represented as being one of Luther Burbank's creations, a production of great merit, price $80 for enough plants to plant an acre of land.

But the facts in the case are that the strawberry raspberry is not one of Burbank's productions; it is not new; it is not valuable for its fruit; and instead of being a cross between the strawberry and the raspberry, it is a distinct species. This species has been grown in America in a limited way for a great many years, and was reintroduced from Japan, where it is native, about twenty years ago. It was quite widely disseminated a few years later, but it has never developed any commercial importance.

The plants are attractive in an ornamental way, as they make a dense mass of foliage, and flowers are produced through a long period. The berries are large, red in color, and quite apt to crumble, and they are dry, seedy and insipid.

The plants are unusually unproductive, their fruit-bearing habit resembling the wild thimble berry of the foothills, and as a commercial sort they have been no more profitable.—[American Cultivator.

Flower Worth £500.

A fruit and flower show was opened recently at the Franco-British Exhibition.

One of the most interesting exhibits was the display of orchids by Sir Jeremiah Colman, of Gatton Park, among which was a specimen of the Bulbophyllum lemnoscatoides carefully protected by a glass bell.

It is barely an inch in circumference, but it is said to be worth £500. The flower is like a tiny bunch of black grapes which have been split open and show under the microscope a delicate tongue.—[London Express.

Saving a Masterpiece.

Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, "The Last Supper," which for the past three months has been invisible to art lovers, is to be newly unveiled to the public tomorrow, after the most thorough of modern attempts to arrest its decay.

Even in Leonardo's own lifetime the Cardinal of Aragon, in passing through Milan, noted that the world-famed painting, on which the artist worked between 1495 and 1497, showed signs of perishing; and in its 411 years of existence "The Last Supper" has been touched up almost every forty years. Its worst crisis was in 1796, when, despite Napoleon's express orders that the place should be deemed sacred, the invading French troops were barracked in the monastic refectory of Santa Maria delle Grazie, on the wall of which the work of genius appears.

The success of an experiment in partial restoration undertaken five years ago induced the Italian government recently to confide the completion to Prof. Luigi Cavenaghi. The method followed, said to be the only possible one in the existing circumstances, consists in consolidating the color crust of the picture by means of glues dissolved in special substances.

At a private view today, experts eulogized the results obtained. An important innovation just decided upon by the Royal Commission of Fine Arts is that of covering the entire painting with crystal glass, to be fixed a little distance from the refectory wall. The hope is still entertained that some firm of foreign glassmakers will come forward with an offer to attempt to cast a single plate, eight meters high by nine broad, adapted for the purpose, failing which several lesser plates must needs be employed and secured in place with iron bars. This can scarcely be accomplished without obstructing the view.—[Milan Correspondence London Chronicle.

The Pink Flowered Cherokee Rose

This very charming rose has laurel-like, evergreen, mildew-proof foliage and salmon-pink blossoms which are very large, free-blooming and deliciously fragrant. It is a sister of white Cherokee, more beautiful and of really tropical luxuriance. Magnificently effective for pergolas, for fences and to cover banks. Unsurpassed as a cut flower.

Offered solely by us. Price each by express, prepaid, $1.50. Smaller size, by mail, $1.00.

"The Times" Cook Book.

THE TIMES COOK BOOK, No. 3, is out. It is a book of 240 pages, neatly bound in cloth. Besides a vast number of receipes for Spanish dishes, soups, salads, bread and rolls, cakes, cookies, pies, puddings, fowl and game, fish, meats and stews, vegetables, jams and marmalades and desserts, it contains this year an assortment of meatless dishes, with an introduction to this chapter written by the editor of the Care of the Body, as follows:

"From a strictly hygienic point of view all cooking of food is more or less spoiling food. It is a recognition of this fact that has led to the recent popularity of the raw-food diet.

"It has been said that cooks kill more than cannons. However this may be, there is no doubt that a great majority of the human race will continue to demand and to obtain cooked food for many years to come. Therefore, the next question is, as to how food may be best cooked so as to well nourish and least injure the human body.

"The most important thing in cooking is to retain the necessary organic salts, which are the essence of the food, imparting to it its delicate flavor. To do this, it is necessary to cook in closed receptacles. This is the main secret of the celebrated French cooking.

"These salts are largely removed in bolting flour, so that white flour is, to a great extent, a starvation food, also in the discarding of the water in which vegetables have been boiled. To do this is just about as reasonable as it would be to boil tea and then throw away the liquid, retaining the tea leaves, as some old ladies are said to have done when tea was first introduced into England.

"Steaming is much better in every way than boiling. Baking is the most hygienic form of cooking. Frying should be avoided altogether, as in heating fat, acids are liberated which are most irritating to the lining of the stomach.

"Table salt (chloride of sodium,) is a slow poison. If used at all, it should be partaken of very sparingly, and the sooner you abandon its use altogether the better. Chloride of sodium is craved because people change or destroy in cooking the chlorine and sodium, which are found in natural foods.

"Another substance which works incalculable harm to the people of this country, where it is consumed in such enormous quantities, is concentrated refined cane sugar. For this may be substituted sweet fruits, or if you will, a little pure honey or maple sugar.

"The recipes in the following chapter are by no means all strictly hygienic. If only such had been accepted in response to the request for hygienic cooking recipes, there would have been scarcely more than enough to fill a page of this book. Some of those rejected were so absolutely contrary to the dictates of the laws of health as to be amusing. The amount of salt given in some of the recipes received was sufficient to drive a man to a beer hall. In one respect the dishes printed all agree. They are all meatless dishes. It should be remembered, however, that the mere dropping of meat from the dietary may, from a hygienic point of view, be a step backward rather than forward.

"In conclusion, the following simple suggestions are put forth as representing in a nutshell the laws of right living:

"(1.) Eat only when you are hungry, and only sufficient to satisfy your hunger.

"(2.) Eat few things at a meal.

"(3.) Eat dry. This means not only no water, wine, beer, tea or coffee, but also no soup or slops of any kind at meals.

"(4.) Chew all food thoroughly, to a pulp.

"(5.) Never eat when you are exhausted, worried, overheated or angry."

The cost of the book is 25 cents, postage 5 cents extra. It is cheap at the price. Do not write to the Care of the Body about this, but send orders to The Times-Mirror Company.

Medical "Ethics."

AS recently stated here, the State Medical Board endeavored to belittle and cover up the scandal about favoritism and corruption in the recent State medical examination. The effort was not successful, however, and an investigation was set for October 24, in the tate Normal School in Los Angeles.

Some of the Republican leaders are said to have pledged themselves to have this scandal explored by a special commission of the State Senate, unless the State board probes itself with energy.

The following recently appeared in the local columns of The Times:

"The charge is made that a physician who occupied one of the chairs in pathology in Rush Medical College came to California to live and had to stand an examination by the board.

"He failed to pass in pathology.

"One of the obstetrical staff of Bellevue is also claimed to have 'failed' in obstetrics. Numerous cases are claimed to exist where old 'family physicians' of many years' experience have come here to make their homes and have found themselves thrown out of their profession by technical 'catch' examinations."

In San Francisco there is a warm fight on between a physician named F. P. Carnac Marquis and Dr. Dudley Tait, the Big Mogul of the State Medical Board. Dr. Marquis is accused of having performed an abortion, a crime for which "regulars" are rarely punished. Marquis declares that the charge is the outcome of a long-standing controversy that has embittered his relations with Dr. Tait, who is chairman of the board before whom he would have to plead his case. He declares that Tait is down on him because years ago he defeated the latter for chief surgeon of the San Francisco French hospital. From that day, Marquis says, Tait has never ceased to persecute him.

Dr. Tait appears to occupy in the medical profession of the State about the same position as that of the traditional bull in a china shop.

In Pasadena there is complaint that physicians draw a commission from druggists, by making their prescriptions read so that only a favored druggist can fill them. Nothing new about that. The practice is as old as the hills.

In the same city complaint is made that doctors pass their wealthy patients around from one to another, when they see they are beginning to get discouraged. That also is a time-honored practice.

Following is an extract from an address delivered by Dr. John C. Munro, of Boston, before the Canadian Medical Association:

"That surgeons divide fees with the family doctor bringing them surgical cases is a well-recognized evil. Fortunately it exists to a much smaller extent in the East than in the West. That it is fundamentally wrong and pernicious goes without saying. It is based on commercialism alone. As soon as the public realizes that it is deliberately sold by its family doctor—in whom it has full confidence—to the surgeon that allows the largest graft, and that it is not sent to the surgeon best equipped for taking charge of the case, the public itself will stop the practice at once and emphatically. It seems inconsistent with American character that a patient should be bartered voluntarily."

An Optimistic Organization.

OPTIMISTIC clubs and societies of various kinds have become popular during the past few years. One of the latest was organized by a few choice spirits at Albuquerque, N. M., during the recent session of the National Irrigation Congress.

The three brave men who declared themselves free from the manacles of Father Time—just as those three noble patriots met, several centuries ago, on the shores of Lake Lucerne, and declared their country free from the Austrian yoke—were Gov. Joseph H. Kibbey of Arizona, who is the dean of the club; George H. Maxwell, the "Father of Natural Irrigation"—himself a walking (and talking) specimen of eternal youth and unquenchable energy—and Hon. B. A. Fowler, secretary of the National Irrigation Congress, and president of the Salt River Water Users Association.

The name of the club is the "Younger Every Day Club." The only condition of membership is the possession (or assumption) of the cheerful heart that conduceth to longevity. The only dues required are a faithful discharge of the member's obligations due to his fellow-creatures. There is no constitution, because it is clear that every member must depend on his own. No person is eligible to membership who feels older than he looks or looks older than he feels. Women may become members. The age limit is from the beginning of ability to smile until mortification sets in.

The crest of the club is a Smile-That-Won't-Come-Off, rampant, on an azure background; the motto: "Smile; durn you!"

A Girl's Untimely Death.

THE recent untimely death of a bright girl of Monrovia, Los Angeles county, following on vaccination, which she submitted to because it is compulsory at Stanford University, where she wished to study, will doubtless tend to stimulate the strong sentiment against compulsory vaccination that prevails in Southern California. Before her death, as described in The Times, Miss Burr lost her sight and hearing, and then paralysis affected her spinal cord.

A resident of San Pedro is bringing a mandamus suit against the school trustees of that place, to compel them to allow his son to attend school, without being vaccinated.

The Superior Court of Illinois recently decided that a compulsory vaccination law is unconstitutional.

A Gentleman from Indiana.

THE following story of "human interest" from Petersburg, Ind., appeared in the telegraph columns of The Times a few days ago. It is a refreshing change from those tales of the execution of the "unwritten law" that have become nauseatingly common of late, indicating the growth of conditions that if persevered in must necessarily relegate society to a state of primitive savagery:

"Sherman Kime, a wealthy farmer who left for Arkansas two weeks ago with the avowed intention of killing a man who had robbed him of his wife, returned today and will sue for divorce, so Mrs. Kime may marry the man she really loves.

"Kime located his faithless wife at Pinkney, Ark., was introduced about twenty-seven August Bier, formerly of Bonn, now to the treatment at the National and Correction, at Richmond, Dr. Walter Lindley of Los Angeles achieved seem almost miraculous, becomes universally known it reduction in the number of cripples.

To this it should be added that the system cannot, of course, be expected to work where there is ankylosis, or growing together of the bone, of long standing.

This system was recently introduced in the California Hospital, Los Angeles, by Jean Strong, from Chicago, who, up to date, has treated over a hundred cases here with much success, having started an establishment of his own. From thirty to forty yards of Turkish toweling are wound around the patient. One would suppose that such extreme heat must necessarily be dangerous and damaging to the body, but Mr. Strong declares that he never had a death during the seven years he has practiced this system, nor has he even had any one faint. Half the highest temperatures mentioned would mean certain death in a Turkish bath. The patient breathes the cool air of the apartment, the ovens being airtight. The patient remains in this dry heat from thirty to forty minutes, with iced towels on the head and cold water to drink. The treatment is specially recommended for rheumatism, neuralgia and poor circulation.

After baking, the patient is thoroughly massaged to aid in working out the inflammation, olive oil being used in the operation. Following this is an alcohol rub.

It should be remembered that this, or any other similar treatment of rheumatism, or of any other disease, can only be palliative. That is to say, it removes the effects, but does not touch the cause of the disease, namely, in rheumatism, the accumulation of uric acid in the body due to wrong eating, either through the ingestion of large amounts of flesh foods, coffee, beans, etc., or the formation of an extra amount of uric acid within the body by overeating of nitrogenous foods. Consequently, if the erroneous course of life that produced the rheumatism is persisted in after a cure has been effected, it will, of course, return.

To be constantly getting "cured" and then getting sick again is as repulsive to the normal mind as the disgusting habit of the ancient Romans during the degeneracy, when after eating to repletion they would induce vomiting so that they could gorge some more. After you get cured adopt a right method of living—especially of eating—and so stay cured.

Bovine and Human Tuberculosis.

MEDICAL experiments are said to have proved that, contrary to the opinion of Dr. Koch, bovine tuberculosis may be communicated from animals to human beings. When we remember how large a percentage of cows are affected with tuberculosis and that almost every one consumes milk, while many have bovine matter injected into the blood, may we not look to this as one of the leading causes of the spread of the "great white plague?"

Premature Burial Not Uncommon.

FOLLOWING is a recent dispatch from London, published in a contemporary:

"'Cases of premature burial are by no means so rare as is commonly supposed.'

"Such is the sober warning of Dr. Brindley James, L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., in his booklet entitled 'Death and Its Verification.'

"Dr. James gives thirteen tests for establishing the fact that death has taken place, and even then he recommends one other test—the beginning of actual decomposition—even should the other thirteen show that life is extinct.

"These thirteen tests include electricity, hot sealing wax to form a blister, the injection of ammonia, the injection of fluorescin (which turns the skin a deep yellow and the eyes a vivid emerald green if life be still present,) and X-raying the heart which gives a clearly-defined shadow only when it is motionless.

"The cessation of breathing and the stoppage of the heart, Dr. James says, are not to be entirely relied upon. He mentions several cases in support of this contention, especially in connection with drowning cases."

This agrees with what the editor of the Care of the Body has frequently said, namely, that no sure test of death is known to medical "science" other than the setting in of mortification. Consequently, the greatest care should be taken in disposing of the dead, so as to save them from the awful fate of premature burial.

Fifty Years Ago.

CLEANLINESS is a good thing, but even that may be overdone. For instance, some eminent physicians are willing to admit—among themselves, or in medical journals—that antisepsis in surgery has of late years been carried to an absurd extreme. Here is an extract from a letter in the Medical World for October, from William B. York, M.D., of Chestnut Bluff, Tenn.:

"Antiseptics were unknown in that day. Women gave birth to children in the dirtiest of hovels and with the filthiest surroundings, and were comparatively free from puerperal fever or any other untoward symptoms that usually follow our obstetric practice today."

Dr. York might have added that in those days people had more vital resistance, not having debilitated their systems by foul air, furnace heat, much tea and coffee, and starvation, "predigested" or concentrated foods.

when it comes to selecting the material out of which heart, brain, blood, bone, flesh, cartilage and muscle are made—when it comes to selecting the material that shapes to such a large degree their sympathies, emotions and morals—all that is of real value in human beings, they exercise absolutely no choice—manifest no interest. All this is left to an ignorant chef, a negro or Chinese cook—it is of no importance."

"Divine Hearing."

THE subject of mental healing, in its various phases, continues to rouse increasing interest, both in this coutnry and in Europe. Especially is this true of the medical and the clerical professions, members of which are taking up the new-old idea in great numbers.

The rector of one of the leading Episcopal churches of Los Angeles recently announced that he would start a movement to "heal the sick," in accordance with the command of the Founder of the Christian church.

The churches as well as the doctors have been practically driven to take up this subject, by the remarkable inroad made upon both their lines of business by Mrs. Eddy's followers. This, again, is undoubtedly due to a natural reaction from the Gospel of Gloom introduced by the Puritans, which has made the lives of millions miserable. Again, "Christian Science" is a stepping stone from the church to free thought. Thousands who have been taught Bible truths at their mother's knee, but have outgrown much of this teaching, were glad to find refuge in something that bore the name of Christianity, and yet was "different."

There are already several schools of "Divine Healing." One of the first to be established was that of Bishop Fallows of Chicago. Then there is what is known as the "Emmanuel Movement" in Boston. The rector of the Los Angeles church announces that his system will be somewhat different from both of these. We may soon look for as many different schools of mental healing as there are today of religion.

The Los Angeles rector expresses the belief that "every thoughtful doctor will commend such an effort." This is somewhat dubious. People do not usually look cheerful when they have their pockets picked. On the other hand, these "Divine Healing" movements aim to work to some extent in conjunction with the medical fraternity. This is surely an anachronism, and a confession of weakness. We do not read that Jesus sent His patients to a regular practitioner of medicine. If this healing is "divine," then, of course, there should be no need whatever for the services of a medical man. If God is able to mend a broken heart, He is also able to mend a broken leg, or replace a lost lung.

The men who start these movements undoubtedly possess sufficient intelligence to realize that all such work as this, by whatever name it may be called, is simply the exercising of the natural law of the influence of the mind over the body—of mental suggestion. The cure lies in the mind of the patient himself. This is true of all forms of mental healing, whether it may be called "Divine Healing," or "Christian Science" or "Mental Suggestion," or "Suggestive Therapeutics," or fervent prayer, or whether it takes the form of visits to the shrine of a saint, or the carrying of relics on the person, or even the nailing of a horseshoe on the door, which itself is a revival of ancient phallic worship, when the Arabs fastened the sexual organs of a cow over their tents, as a sign of good luck. When these were hard to obtain, a rude drawing was made, and that has degenerated into the horseshoe.

No intelligent person will deny that cures are effected by mental suggestion in all its various forms. Some people who are of a religious turn of mind must take theirs in the shape of "Christian Science" or "Divine Healing," while others, who are inclined to materialism, would be repulsed by such addition and take their suggestion "straight." At pilgrimage resorts like the grotto at Lourdes, and the church in Montreal, you may see thousands on crutches, bottles of patent medicine, and other things that have been left by grateful sufferers that have been cured by the blessed water of a holy virgin, or by a fragment of a finger bone of a departed female saint.

It is true that in most cases the diseases successfully treated in this manner are more mental than physical, yet not always so, for so great is the power of the mind over the body that it may actually effect changes of physical tissue.

Under some conditions suggestive treatment—especially when combined with hypnotism—may prove decidedly dangerous, as we shall see later on.

The idea held by some healers that "all is mind," or "all is good," is of course absurd. There is good, and there is evil. There is body, and there is mind. Nature knows nothing of good or evil. She executes impartially her inexorable laws. The bolt of lightning strikes a church and spares a den of vice. In a train wreck a philanthropist dies a horrible death, and a train robber comes out unscathed. If you touch fire you will be burned, however fervently you may affirm that "all is mind."

In McClure's Magazine for August, Richard C. Cabot, M.D., had an article in which he analyzes 100 Christian Science cures, recorded in recent volumes of the Christian Science Journal. He writes:

"No one can study the printed records of Christian Science cures without noting a remarkable similarity running through many hundreds of them, a similarity in style, in phraseology, and in the general structure of the letters.

"For example, Mrs. Eddy's name was mentioned within five lines of the end in fifty-six out of seventy-five letters which I have recently examined. I have excluded here all cases in which Mrs. Eddy's name was mentioned earlier in the letter. It seems hardly likely that all these writers would spontaneously bring in the name of their leader precisely in this position in the letter.

"In twelve out of seventy-five letters the rather unusual phrase materia medica occurs.

"The price of treatment under Christian Science and under the previous medical care is mentioned in a large proportion of these letters.

"Not one of these letters mentions the name of any doctor connected at any time with the case. From personal experience with similar stories heard from my own patients and from the lips of Christian Scientists, I know that doctor's names are usually mentioned. It seems unlikely that in 100 consecutive testimonies the physicians' names should have been spontaneously omitted.

"For these reasons one cannot help believing either that these letters have been liberally edited, or that their writers have been much influenced by reading or hearing of similar cases. This does not necessarily imply any charge of intentional deception, but weakens very considerably their value as evidence."

Continuing, Dr. Cabot says:

"It is impossible to study the evidence for and against the so-called Christian Science cures without crossing the track of many an incapable doctor. Indeed, there can be no candid criticism of Christian Science methods that does not involve also an arraignment of existing medical methods. It is not difficult to perceive, as one studies the testimonies recorded in the Christian Science Journal, that many patients have been driven into Christian Science by a multitude of shifting and mistaken diagnoses, by the gross abuse of drugs, especially of morphine, and by the total neglect of rational psychotherapy on the part of many physicians. No doubt these causes account only for a certain fraction of the desertions to Christian Science. There are many patients who have so little patience and so much credulity that they desert their doctors for no good reason whatever; but I believe that these cases are in the minority, and that the success of the Christian Science movement is due largely to the ignorance and narrow-mindedness of a certain proportion of the medical profession."

In the American Magazine for October there was an article on "How the Mind Can Heal the Body," a record of personal experience and observations by Frederick Van Eden, M.D. Dr. Van Eden tells of wonderful cures that he witnessed while in France. Later on, in conjunction with another physician, he opened a school for mental healing in Amsterdam, Holland, which is still running.

The author chides the medical profession for their slowness in studying this subject. He also criticises some of the French methods. On this subject he says:

"The way in which I saw some French experimentators treat their patients seemed to me really revolting. The poor hospital patients were used as fit matter for demonstration before students and visitors who wanted to see the power of suggestion. By constant training they became so utterly servile that they followed the slightest hint of the doctor, their master, with the quick docility of animals in a circus. They would see all sorts of visions, take on any change of personality, and play any role that was indicated to them by a single word."

This confirms what the editor of the Care of the Body has frequently claimed, namely, that hypnotism is a very dangerous thing to "monkey" with, because the longer a person is hypnotized, the more he becomes in the power of the operator. This has been strenuously denied by some practitioners of hypnotism, but Dr. Van Eden's statement confirms what the editor of the Care of the Body has said.

Here is a wonderful case of suggestion told by Dr. Van Eden:

"In order to give an idea of the wonderful and mysterious complication of suggestive phenomena, I will tell here of another experiment, performed by Dr. Debove and afterward repeated by Bernheim. He touched the normal eye of an uncultivated woman, saying: 'Now you are blind in this eye.' But the woman opened her eyes widely, looked round and said: 'No! No! I see perfectly well.' But when her eyesight was tested by a simple apparatus, well known in ophthalmology, to investigate simulated blindness in one eye, it was shown that she had grown indeed perfectly blind in that eye without being conscious of it.

"Now, nobody can suppose that an uncultivated woman, by a voluntary effort of the imagination, could eliminate the sight of one eye. And yet, on nearer investigation, Bernheim proved that the suggested blindness was entirely imaginary. The vision was really intact. And yet this woman, in unconscious obedience to the command of suggestion, knew how to act the part of one-sided blindness, so that the scientific investigator, used to detect simulation, could be completely deceived by it. To explain this incredible fact we are compelled to accept a division of personality. One is the ordinary woman, unconscious that anything has changed in her power of vision; the other is her subconscious self, which accepts the suggestion obediently and tries to become blind in one eye, and does this so effectively that the vision of one eye is practically out of function. The woman becomes what is technically called 'soul blind' in one eye. To perform this feat by voluntary effort is entirely out of the question. The cleverest student could not do it, and surely not an uncultivated woman taken unawares."

Here is an instance from an exchange, of the power of mental suggestion:

"A long and most remarkable series of cases of healing by suggestion is described by Dr. Nacke of Berlin. A friend asked him fifteen years ago for some simple remedy with which to dress an insignificant wound. Dr. Nacke gave him a bottle containing about ten fluid ounces of a solution of corrosive sublimate (the bichloride of mercury) of no greater strength than 1 to 3000, an antiseptic and healing wash which could produce no

So there you are. Not only 'as a man thinketh,' but 'as a man eateth' so is he. A sound mind in a sound body should be our ideal. To be well we must not only think health, but also live health. As Dr. Daniel S. Sager writes, in 'The Art of Living in Good Health:'

"'If the physical powers be cultivated exclusively, the result will be an athlete or a savage; the moral only, and we will have an enthusiast or a maniac; the intellectual only, and we have an eccentricity in individualism amounting almost, it may be, to an abnormality or freak. It is only by wisely training in all three of these principles together—the physical, moral, and intellectual—that the complete man can be formed.'

"Men and brethren, let us try to be at least half-sane. (Nobody, you know, is entirely sane.) Let us, while gazing at the stars, try to keep at least one foot on Mother Earth."

A "Naturopath" Vindicated.

ON appeal, Judge Wilbur reversed the decision of the Police Court by which Dr. Carl Shultz was sentenced to pay $100 or spend sixty days in jail on March 19 for practicing medicine without a license. Mrs. Emma Sperling testified that her husband received baths and treatments from Shultz for which fees were paid. In his appeal, Shultz attacked the constitutionality of the State medical law, but the court reversed the lower court not on this ground, but because the acts proved did not constitute an offense within the meaning of the law, construed with due reference to constitutional powers of the Legislature.

The complaining witness had visited Dr. Schultz last October about her husband, who had been unable to walk for several years. She wanted Dr. Schultz to go and examine him, and when he hesitated she cried and begged him to do so, which he did. He found they were living on charity, so he did not charge them anything. The next morning Mrs. Loucke, secretary of the Pasadena Emergency League, called Dr. Schultz up over the 'phone and asked him to take Mr. Sperling into the sanatorium, and said that she would raise money in her church to pay for his treatment. A few days later she reported that Dr. Mattison, of the State Board of Health, a member of her church, had threatened to make her trouble if she attempted to raise money for the treatment of this man in the sanatorium.

Mrs. Sperling came again and Dr. Schultz took them in for a month for $25 for both, she to stay and act as nurse for him. At the end of the month the man walked to Sixth and Main streets, with the aid of a cane.

On the stand the woman testified that her husband had been treated with baths and massage. On cross-examination she stated that Dr. Mattison's brother and Grant B. Bennett, attorney for the State Board, had visited her twice, to ask her to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Dr. Schultz. The prosecution also paraded the husband in court before the jury, with a trained nurse. The judge ordered him removed from court, saying that if the man had not walked for years, the baths and treatments had evidently done him good.

This is a sample case of medical persecution of worthy men who are doing good, conscientious work, often for little or no reward. There is likely to be a change in such conditions in California before long, for the people are rapidly discovering that the Doctors' Union, like the Plumbers' Union and the Barbers' Union, is not organized for the protection of the dear public, but for the advancement of the selfish interests of the medical fraternity.

The Midwinter Number.

THE editor of the Care of the Body is now once more at work on that great big job, the Midwinter Number of The Times, of which he has had charge for twenty-two years. Consequently, until after New Year's, he will have little time to think about the care of the body, the mind or the soul—not even his own. Wherefore, correspondents must not expect to receive much attention during that period, and should make their communications as brief as possible.

Going on All Fours.

AN exchange says:

"A distinguished medical man holds that the real secret of perfect health is to be found in walking on hands and knees. He says that this is how we were intended to walk, and that the erect attitude of man is a mistaken and comparatively modern innovation. According to his view, a good, steady walk of four miles in and four miles out on hands and knees every day would bring every muscle in the body into full play."

This looks absurd, doesn't it? The exaggerated suggestion is, however, based upon the physiological fact that man is the only animal going continually erect; that he did not always go erect, but much on all fours, like his progenitors, the apes, and that even after hundreds of thousands of years man has not become thoroughly accustomed to the erect position, which renders him liable to many ailments from which other animals are exempt.

Shocking!

BROTHER BOK is getting quite gay. As witness the following, from the Ladies' Home Journal:

"Two capricious young ladies planned to have some fun when a certain young man called to spend the evening. They thought it would be great sport to imitate everything he did. When the young man entered the parlor he blew his nose, which each of the girls promptly imitated. Thinking it a peculiar incident, the young man proceeded to stroke his hair. Both girls followed. Then he straightened his collar. They did the same, and a few dimples and smiles began to appear in spite of them. Now it was the young man's turn. He was positive of his ground, and calmly stooped down and turned up his trousers!"

Carnivorous Horses.

HERE is another indication that the appetite for flesh food among human beings is purely artificial. It is from "Good Health:"

"Horses have even been trained to express a great fondness for meat. A gentleman who has spent much time hunting among the mountains of Mexico told the writer a few years ago that he trained his hunting horse to like venison, and that the animal became so fond of it he would approach the fire and stamp and neigh vigorously when an antelope was roasting, in expression of his keen relish for venison steak."

Unwelcome Advice.

FOLLOWING is from the Calgary Herald:

Andy McTavish was "no feelin' juist weel," so he went to the doctor and stated his complaints.

"What do you drink?" demanded the medico.

"Whusky."

"How much?"

"Maybe a bottle a day."

"Do you smoke?"

"Yes."

"How much?"

"Two ounces a day."

"Well, you give up whisky and tobacco altogether."

Andy took his cap and in three steps reached the door.

"Andy," called the doctor, "you have not paid for my advice!"

"Ahm no' takkin' it," snapped Andy as he shut the door behind him.

Forget it!

IT is a noticeable—and regrettable—fact that most food reformers overeat. It is not at all surprising, because, as a rule, they are always thinking too much about their stomachs, and wondering how the food is going to "work."

As frequently stated here, the How Much in diet is vastly more important than the What. Make up your mind in a general way on the subject of food and drink. Then select the best—or the least bad—from what is set before you; eat slowly and moderately, and as to your stomach: "Forget it."

The New Transfer Patterns

(PATENTS PENDING)

DIRECTIONS

Lay the design you wish to transfer face downward, on any flat surface, and dampen the back with water until the outlines of the design show clearly through the paper. A wet cloth will serve the purpose of dampening, but a small sponge is better. Spread the material on which you wish to transfer the design on the table or on any smooth, hard surface; lay the dampened design, still face downward, on the material, cover it with a dry sheet of thick paper or several folds of a newspaper, and rub with a slight pressure, using a handkerchief or dry cloth, until the design is entirely transferred. During the rubbing you may readily see whether enough pressure is being applied by lifting a corner or end of the design and noting how it is taking.

The whole process is very simple and, after a trial or two, you should be able to make a perfect transfer to any kind of goods. Do not wet the transfer sheet too much. Do not wet the material, and do not rub the face of the design with wet or damp fingers.

Several transfers may be made from the same design, it being only necessary to redampen the back of the design sheet for each additional transfer. The design may be readily removed from the material by washing the material in warm water and a little soap. The ink with which the transfers are printed is absolutely harmless, and will not injure the finest fabric.

Cover or cut out letters in making the transfers to goods.

COLLAR, BOW AND BELT SET

For the woman or girl who has little time, the set consisting of collar, tie and belt will appeal. It gives a severely plain costume just the needed dressy touch. The design is to be worked solid with dots eyelets, either in white or colored cottons. The solid work should be underlaid with a soft filling cotton. Collar (A), Back of Belt (B), Front of Belt (C), Tie End (D).

COLLAR AND TIE SET

(Page 3.)

Very little time or knowledge of embroidery is required to make this collar and bow, and the result is a stylish bit of neckwear. The design is to be worked solid with circles worked as eyelets or padded dots. White or colored cottons may be used as desired. The embroidered bow may be edged with a narrow frill of lace or a bow of sheer lawn placed beneath. A firm quality of linen should be used for the collar.

DESIGN FOR BOW AND JABOT

(Page 3.)

Handkerchief linen or Persian lawn would make up most prettily for the bow and jabot. The design is to be padded with soft cotton and worked solid, with circles worked as eyelets or padded dots and edge buttonholed. White or colored cottons may be used. Place a bow of sheer linen or lawn under the embroidered bow, gather both through the center, and fasten together with a crosswise fold of same material. Gather the jabot along top edge.

With Needle and Thread

Any Woman Has the Means to Make Her Clothes and Household Doubly Attractive.

The Secret Lies in the Little, But Important, Accessories to Dress That Women Make for Themselves

The attractive woman is the woman who makes use of the little accessories to the toilette that add charm to dress and appearance. No matter how simple and inexpensive one's attire may be, a little attention to small details will give an appearance of elegance that can be procured in no other way. Fortunately, the means are simple and at every woman's hand. With an embroidery needle and a bit of floss, one can adorn all manner of small dress accessories with attractive designs. Any woman can add the finishing touches to her dress and household goods and secure the desired impression of refinement, costliness and style.

Hand embroidery is always desirable and always possible, for even children quickly learn to accomplish it. There is a distinction about it which always makes itself felt. Never has embroidery had such a vogue as now, and, among all forms of needlework, nothing is at once so practical, so beautiful and so easily achieved.

THE SIMPLE MEANS AT HAND

Happily for the woman who cannot afford expensive dress accessories, those things which are most important in the completion of a gown are most easily and quickly made. The amusement of leisure hours spent in embroidering supplies the wardrobe with its prettiest garnitures. One scarcely realizes a collar set begun before it is ready for wear, and what is so attractive as a collar, belt and tie worked with a corresponding design and proclaiming its handmade, and, therefore, elegant origin at a glance? In some sets cuffs are included, adding further to the charm of the dainty articles.

Simple and somewhat small figures are the mode for present day embroidery designs, and, where scallops are possible upon collars and the ends of ties, they are not only particularly pretty, but exceptionally smart. The custom of edging belts with scallops serves a double purpose of beautifying the belt and making it cling more closely and symmetrically to the lines of the figure. A belt finished with a strong, straight line is apt to wrinkle lengthwise, something which never happens in the case of a belt with scalloped edges.

In working belt scallops it is well to use more filling and stronger outline threads than are necessary or desirable when working scallops on the edges of collars and ends of ties. Run a strong outline thread along the edge of the belt scallops to be worked, and add a soft, strong filling thread of linen or cotton floss. Work the belt with closely laid even embroidery stitches, taking care to place each stitch exactly over the edge of the outline thread so that the work may be perfectly even. Some persons buttonhole belt scallops for greater strength, but this is not necessary if outline threads are run strongly and smoothly in the design before it is worked.

SELECTING THE MATERIAL

The thickness of the embroidery cotton or linen thread should depend upon the quality of the material to be worked. Always state the texture of the article to be worked when purchasing threads.

Linen collars, cuffs and belts require a coarser cotton or linen thread than do lawns and mulls, which are best worked with number 25 and 35 cotton, in French, mercerized qualities. Very sheer mulls and handkerchief linens take an even finer thread. In any case, it is well to use as fine a needle as will work easily with the thread used, because the finer the needle the more closely may stitches be laid, and close stitches are the charm of well made embroidery.

It is a pretty fancy to work one's favorite flower into the design employed upon dress accessory sets. In the butterfly bow or dainty tie, for example, which finishes an embroidered

It is the fashion to make such designs

A beautiful turban of white fox is trimmed with a sort of plucked ostrich plume, that badge of the rich. It seems, this year, that mere feathers are not good enough for milady of fashion, so she must needs have a handsome plume picked to pieces that she may get the desired effect of destroyed magnificence. Anyway, the hat of white is extraordinarily pretty.

A "bonnet" of chinchilla, with piled-up plumes of nattier blue, is particularly new and beautiful. The crown of the hat is of pewter gray velvet.

The favorite white rabbit skin is used to form a toque of tailored style, simply trimmed with a knot of black moire ribbon and an osprey plume. It might be worn with dignity by a woman nearing an uncertain age, and it is extremely pretty.

Quite a novel hat is that on which the crown is soft brown velvet, the brim of Hudson bay sable and the trimming big and luscious-looking peaches. It is simple, yet it certainly bears the mark of originality and distinction.

A hat of beaver on the English walking style is uniquely trimmed with two wildly arranged black plumes and a silver buckle. It is just such a hat that will make a strong appeal to the woman of middle age who is this year launching her daughter upon the waves of society.

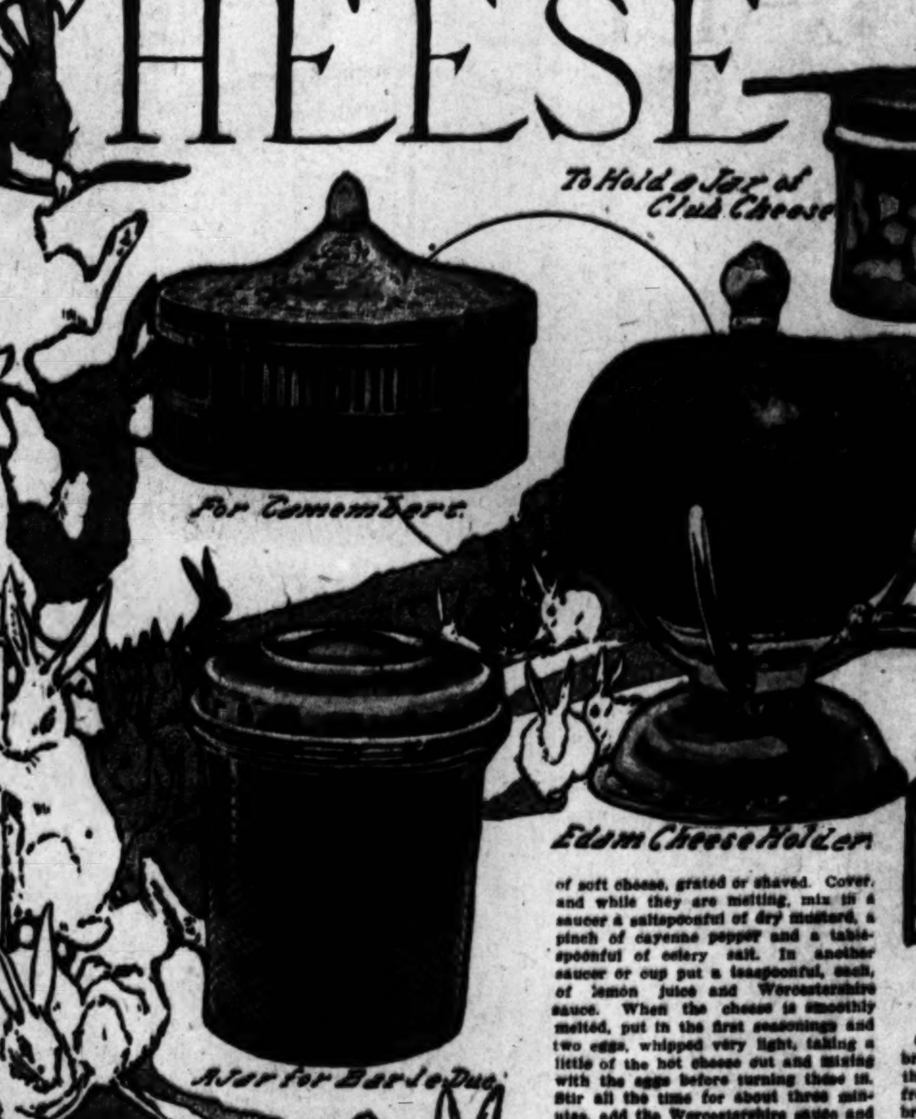
CHEESE

"The best rarebit I ever ate."



"And stuffed into celery sta

"Half a pound of soft cheese grated."

THE day has gone by when cheese was simply an American or English dairy product known to most persons in, at most, half a dozen forms. In those earlier times the ordinary everyday "rat-trap" cheese had its place on most tables as an accompaniment to pie or doughnuts. Stilton and Cheddar cheeses were occasionally served by bon vivants as especial delicacies. A little later the round or pineapple-shaped Edam cheese made its way into the country and was hailed by a few, and about that time Parmesan cheese won itself a place. Roquefort, Camembert, Brie, Gorgonzola, Port Salut, Crême Gervais and others came straggling in, and now the epicure can get almost any of the stock foreign cheeses in a large city.

Some of them have not yet won their places on the ordinary American table. The Philadelphia cream cheese, soft and delicate, and the American Neufchatel are tolerably well known, perhaps because of their cheapness, and Camembert and Roquefort are winning their way. The Gruyere, better known as Swiss cheese, has its devotees among Germans and Americans as well. The more unusual cheeses still remain "caviare to the general." We have not yet adopted the foreign custom of a cheese course at our lunches and dinners, except upon rare and ceremonious occasions. The nearest approach to it is the appearance of cream cheese, with bar-le-duc conserves, at occasional lunches and dinners.

After some observation I am forced to the conclusion that, as a general thing, a taste for cheese is born and not made. Given a fondness for any variety, and a taste for the others may be cultivated, but unless there is a natural fondness for it it is difficult trying to cultivate a liking for it. When I speak thus I refer to the foreign cheeses, with their decided flavor, which are so unpleasant to many, even among those who are accustomed to good living and formal service.

Yet it seems a pity to abandon all the joys of cheese-eating without a struggle. I would advise those who have never acquired this taste to make an attempt to gain it, beginning with Philadelphia cream, Neufchatel and Swiss cheese, working up by gentle degrees through mild Camembert to Roquefort and its congeners.

Still, for those who turn from highly flavored cheeses there are milder forms in which they can take this article of diet. Philadelphia cream cheese with bar-le-duc or other jam I have already referred to. If Roquefort alone is not pleasing to the palate, it may be served softened with butter and cream and stuffed into celery stalks for a conclusion to a dinner. Toasted crackers of various sorts upon which Parmesan has been spread before the biscuits were put into the oven are a delightful relish with afternoon tea, or at luncheon, and there are divers other ways of serving the rarer cheeses in savory fashion.

The housekeeper who fails to appreciate the merits of ordinary American dairy cheese as an article of diet in her household has something to learn. Perhaps she has turned from it because of the prejudice that cheese is unwholesome and trying to the digestion. If so, it is because it is eaten in the wrong way and at the wrong time. The fact should be held in mind that cheese not only contains a large amount of nitrogenous nourishment, but also that it is highly concentrated in its nutritive qualities. It is averred that one pound of cheese is equal in nourishment to three of meat. When a goodly portion of it in the form of a Welsh rarebit is put into the stomach at a late hour of the day, when the proprietor of the stomach aforesaid is already weary with labor and unable to take the amount of exercise required to assist the digestive powers in the work of assimilation, the effect is better imagined than experienced.

Cheese, if properly cooked and eaten by those who are in good physical condition and who lead active lives, taking plenty of brisk exercise, is an article which should not prove unwholesome. When mingled with starches, as in a cheese fondu, or when served on toast or crackers, as in a Welsh rarebit, it is more readily disposed of by the gastric juices. Cheese fondus, cheese puddings, cheese omelets and other dishes of the sort, and a Welsh rarebit, when eaten at luncheon or even at supper served at a reasonable hour, should not interfere with the peace of stomach of the eater. Such dishes as these, some of which are given below, deserve to be better known as valuable aids to the housewife in varying her dietary at small expense.

Welsh Rarebit, No. 1.

Put into the double boiler of a chafing dish or on the stove a tablespoonful of butter, a gill of ale, and a half a pound of soft cheese, grated or shaved. Cover, and while they are melting, mix in a saucer a saltspoonful of dry mustard, a pinch of cayenne pepper and a tablespoonful of celery salt. In another saucer or cup put a teaspoonful, each, of lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. When the cheese is smoothly melted, put in the first seasonings and two eggs, whipped very light, taking a little of the hot cheese out and mixing with the eggs before turning these in. Stir all the time for about three minutes, add the Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice and served at once on toast. The best rarebit I ever ate, and one which does not grow stringy, even when cool.

Welsh Rarebit, No. 2.

Heat half a pint of good ale in chafing dish blazer and put with it half a pound of shaved soft cheese. As it melts, add a saltspoonful of dry mustard and one of salt, a pinch of cayenne and a tablespoonful of cream. Stir until all is hot through and smooth and serve on buttered toast. If you have no cream, substitute butter.

Cheese Pudding.

Heat in a double boiler a pint of milk to which you have added a tiny pinch of soda, and as soon as warm put in a cupful of breadcrumbs and soak them for ten minutes. Add to this two eggs beaten light, a tablespoonful of butter and a cupful of grated cheese. Season to taste with salt, add a pinch of red pepper and bake in a pudding dish in a quick oven, covered, for fifteen minutes, uncover and brown. Serve at once.

Cheese Fondu

Put into a double boiler a tablespoonful of butter, a cupful of milk, a scant cupful of fresh soft breadcrumbs and two cupfuls of cheese, grated. Cover and cook until all ingredients are blended and creamy. Add two eggs, whipped light, and stir until the mixture thickens, put in a pinch of cayenne and a teaspoonful of salt and serve on toast or crackers.

Cheese Omelet.

Beat six eggs light without separating yolks and whites and stir into them half a cup of milk, a full teaspoonful of salt and a pinch of pepper, then two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese. Have your omelet pan ready with melted butter, turn in the mixture and cook as you would any other omelet.

Baked Cheese Omelet.

Prepare as for other omelet by recipe just given, but turn into a well-greased bakedish or custard cups, half filling these, and then set in a pan of hot water and bake, covered, until firm.

Cheese Ramakins.

Beat light two eggs and add to them a tablespoonful of melted butter, three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, a saltspoonful of salt and a dash of cayenne. Work to a smooth paste, add a tablespoonful of cream with which has been mixed a teaspoonful of flour. Beat all together, spread upon rounds of buttered toast and brown these in the oven.

Cheese Cups.

Cut into rounds thick slices of stale bread, cut a smaller circle half way through the slice and dig out the crumb from this round. Butter these and brown them slightly in the oven. Mix together a large tablespoonful of butter, four tablespoonfuls of cheese, a tablespoonful of cream, a little salt and cayenne and fill with this the hollows in the rounds. Put in the oven for five minutes.

HOW TO BUILD A FIRE

BEFORE attempting to use a range (or stove) one should know something about its construction and the appliances that are afforded for its regulation. An ordinary cooking range is supplied with dampers, draughts and checks to regulate the direction and intensity of the heat.

When the range is clean and cold examine it carefully. A lever will be found (often directly above the oven door), which, when pulled out or pushed in (or turned to right or left), will allow the heat and the smoke to go directly into the chimney flue, or through the range and around the oven indirectly into the chimney flue. Well down below the firebox is a draught (a door), which, when open, allows the outside (cold) air to rush in and force the fire to burn more rapidly. Above the firebox, near the top of the stove, are the checks (a door with slides) that allow the outside (cold) air to come in above the burning fuel and depress its combustion. It is readily seen when the smoke-damper and the draught are open, with the checks closed, that the greatest intensity of heat and the most rapid combustion are obtained. In this way the top part of the stove, directly over the firebox, may be heated quickly and intensely. When an emergency arises this is the quickest way to boil the water in the kettle or to cook immediately on the top of the stove. However, the tax on fuel is excessive and wasteful when the damper and draught both are open. When damper and draughts are closed and the check open, the fire burns most slowly, and the heat radiated is least intense.

A Wood Fire.

When ready to lay the fuel and build the fire in a cold stove, be sure that the firebox and ashpits are clean and free from ashes and clinkers. Then open the dampers and the draughts and close the checks. The fuel should always be put in from the top after removing the lids over the firebox. THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

SPACE and attention will be devoted in this issue to a symposium upon the letter of a "Tired Mother" and my comment thereupon.

I beg leave to preface the several communications drawn out by the paper by a recapitulation of my personal views upon the management of children.

As order is heaven's first law, so, in my judgment, obedience should outrank all others in the nursery. If our children's impulses were invariably good there would be little occasion for the discipline which wise and loving mothers consider their offspring require as surely as we, the Father's grown-up children, need His chastenings to bring our highest good to pass. Unfortunately, what the ignorant child thinks is best for him is ofttimes the worst thing that could befall him. The mother's will, not his, should rule the household. This is why the popular talk of "allowing a child to develop along natural lines and thus maintain his individuality," sounds to me like arrant nonsense.

Admitting that the traits I deprecate are hereditary, I have seen enough of the evil consequences of the exercise of these in myself to put me on my guard against the mistake of allowing them to gain footing in new soil. I recognize the tares as soon as they appear above ground. It is my bounden duty to root them out. By what means this should be done is a matter to be decided by the individual parent.

I grant freely that some children may be trained in the obedience to lawful authority that teaches them self-control in years to come without corporal punishment. I have known such cases. I believe them to be more rare than my correspondents who have the floor think. I have yet to see the girl or boy who was trained into healthful maturity of mind and character without the exercise of some kind of chastisement.

In my own nursery, and in those of the homes that had their roots in mine, there are as many diversities of discipline as there are children. One end has been gained in all. Respectful and unquestioning obedience to parental authority, implicit faith in the justice of parental decisions, confidence in the love that underlies the control that may seem for the present grievous, and love that approximates reverence.

Experience and observation confirm me in the opinion that it is not the spoiled child who has been suffered to "develop his individuality independent of the parents' wishes" who grows up into the devoted son or daughter, holding father and mother in honor, and loving him or her with passionate loyalty.

One word before I make way for my correspondents — who are, likewise, my friendly critics. One of them speaks of chastising a child in "anger or spite." The man or woman who lifts a hand upon a child when angry is unworthy of the honor and happiness of parenthood. If I had ever touched a child in "spite," I would write myself down a fiend.

It was my misfortune, when a girl, to live next door to the worst set of ungovernable and obstreperous youngsters that ever cursed a neighborhood. From morning until night, the child-ridden mother was begging them to "be good," and telling them how dearly she loved them.

One day she told my gentle mother, who was the best disciplinarian I ever knew—that "she had no comfort in her children except when they were asleep in bed."

"But that is dreadful!" cried the listener. "You miss more than half the joy of living."

"I know it. My friends say I ought to control them better. But I whipped my first child once, when he was 4 years old. He died a year later, and I was consumed by remorse for having struck him."

In relating the incident at home, my loving and judicious parent remarked quietly: "I should be more remorseful if I had failed to correct him when I knew he needed it."

There is a higher law than sentimentality which should govern the nursery and home.

No. 1.

I pity the woman who cannot govern her own children without a switch. Think of a woman with ordinary sense whipping a baby 8 months old until it will stifle its cries from fear of her! My mother never struck one of her children, yet we never thought of disobeying her.

I taught kindergarten for nine years, receiving children from all sorts of homes. I had many compliments upon my discipline, yet I never struck a child. How could they respect me if I had?

The woman who governs by fear may think her children love her, but were she my mother I should hate her.

She says: "When I knew they were comfortable and well." Would she be willing for some one else to judge when she is comfortable and well?

I hope no young mother will be tempted unto trying such barbarous treatment on her own helpless babes!

MAUD F. (Jackson, Mich.).

No. 2.

You have given considerable space to a remarkable document from the pen of "Maria M. C., Pensacola, Fla." Why you allowed that letter to be published will remain, for me at least, and perhaps for a few other "tired mothers," a mystery. It is the opinion and advice of a truly selfish and complacent woman—one who exults in her utter absence of finer feeling. Her ideas anent the whipping of a 6-month-old infant might pass unchallenged were it not for the effect it may have upon foolish young mothers who will, perhaps, be so misguided as to try the experiment upon their helpless offspring.

Few of us are sufficiently patient with the souls and bodies of the "little ones" committed to our care. We do not need to be encouraged in the pursuit of our own comfort to such an extent as "Maria" has evidently considered hers. How could she know that her child was "perfectly well and comfortable"? My own child, when much older than hers, and apparently in perfect health, has often been cross and peevish and whimpering, and within twenty-four hours has developed some indisposition—generally of the digestion. And to guide a little child by fear! Oh, the cruelty of it! That Susanna Wesley did it only proves that she was well-nigh inhuman. And how many of her nineteen children lived to manhood and to womanhood? Indeed, "Maria" might inform us if the six she has raised were not, after all, the survival of the fittest. How many weaker ones went to the wall under this treatment? And it is being continued with her grandchildren! God pity the man or woman who has to submit to her treatment as mother-in-law!

After all, the treatment of her children is much like that of our colored brethren in this part of the world. They, too, have not patience to bear with their children, and begin the use of the rod at a very tender age.

There is a happy mean between ruling a child by fear and not ruling him at all. There is such a thing—and I am trying to prove it—as ruling our little ones by love, by tenderness, by firmness and by that very patience which our Florida correspondent so scorns.

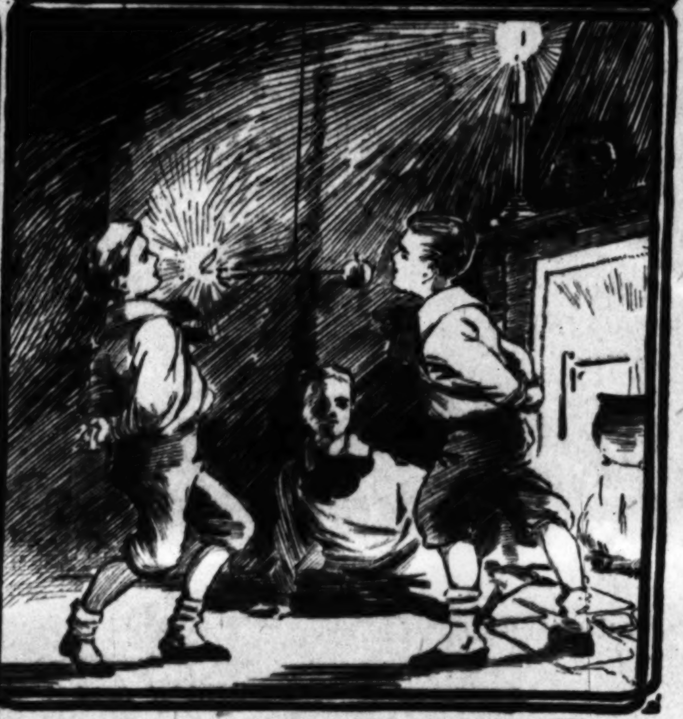
A festival they always gave, at harvest time each year,
Inviting goblin, witch and elf to share in the good cheer;
And to this time, though spirits now all hidden are from sight,
A night we give to Shadow Folk, as surely 'tis but right.
In masks grotesque and costumes weird, we dance the hours away,
Or practice quaint old customs, with a laugh and manner gay;
The mystic circle round the earth does bind us all together—
A superstitious girdle covering each clime, each weather.
Among the Scots, the lads and lassies Halloween do spend
A-cracking nuts—'tis "Nut-crack night" from twilight to the end
Of day; and many nuts are burned together, side by side,
While if they rest thus peacefully a girl will be a bride,
But if a nut will leap away, just so the lad will go;
Then, too, a lass, blindfolded and with step of measure slow,
Her way does make to a cabbage-patch, where she pulls up a stalk,
And thereupon in flushed excitement quickly home she'll walk
To look upon her treasure; for the root, the shape, the size
All tell about a husband in a manner omen-wise.
Mirrors are handy for the lass who'd look back o'er her shoulder—
Perhaps walk backward out of doors, if she's a trifle bolder,
With candle and with mirror held, while muttering a rhyme,
Out to the barn Scotch lads would go, not long before this time,
Pretending there to winnow corn; three swings they'd make before
They'd see the face they wished to see—or else they'd try once more.
And English boys and girls disport themselves in merry style;
They apples pare and roses twine, 'thout disbelief or guile;
At midnight, 'round the walnut tree three times they slowly pace.
And then, up in the branches, seek they for the loved one's face.
In Irish farmhouse skewers swing, suspended from the ceiling;
But 'tis the apple, not the candle, that boys go a-stealing;
Full wondrous are the tales they tell of women dressed in white
'Bout warriors in armor black and terrifying quite;
While those belated travelers once used to whistle shrill,
Or sing a song right lustily to keep the goblins still;
Nor must we e'er forget the cake—"dumb-cake," I think, 'tis known—
Which colleens of the Emerald Isle make carefully alone,
So that at night they'll dream of "him"—and then the wedding bell.
And on and on I might keep talking, but I could not tell
You half about All Halloween, its customs and its signs,
Its magic most uncanny—all within these few short lines.

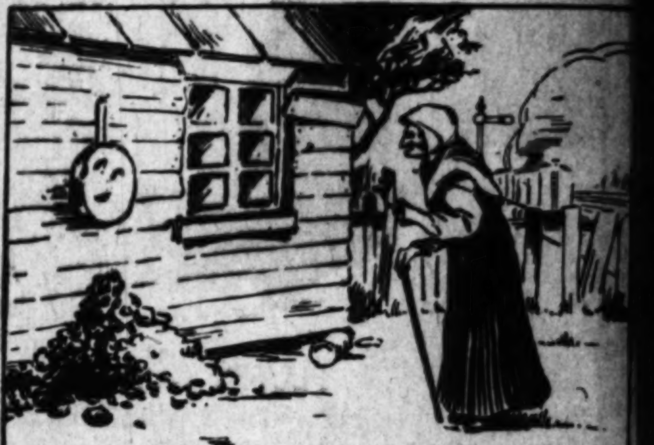


The Witches Gi

BILLY'S heels drummed vigorously upon the low box on which he sat, the while staring thoughtfully at Ike Jones. Ike was too busy shelling corn to observe his friend's intent look, but, as though in answer to Billy's unspoken question, he finally said:

"I really don't know what us 'Bloody Robbers' 'll do tomorrow in the way of Holloweve stunts. Seems to me we've tackled 'bout everything, and we ought to do something that'd surprise people—something entirely new."

"The best way to surprise people would be to leave out our tricks," replied Billy. "Why, it's a fact that old Mother Jones is so afraid of our cutting up a racket 'round her place that she's gone out o' town on a visit."



WHEN THE OLD WOMAN CAME HOM

Ike laughed. "We'll miss her lots, too," said he. "'Member how she came out and scolded us last year when we threw corn at her winders? But I say, it's really a shame to treat the old woman like we do. She's as poor as a mouse, you know, an' has an awful hard time to get along; and I guess that's what makes her so cross and crabby."

"Why can't we do something to help the old soul?" was Billy's query.

They were rapt in thought for several moments. Suddenly Billy leaped to his feet, and, followed by Ike, dashed from the corncrib, shouting:

"I've got it! I know of a dandy thing to do!"

Mother Jones' home was a tumbledown cottage which stood not far from a railroad siding, where there was a great deal of shifting of freight and coal cars. To this place Billy and his chum repaired. When he satisfied himself that the old woman had gone he nailed an old rusty saucepan to the side of the cottage. Then he and Ike climbed up the bank to the railroad tracks, where they picked up pieces of coal and proceeded to use the saucepan as a target.

Soon other "fellers" came along. They also indulged in the sport, deeming it great fun to try their marksmanship. Laborers and men employed [illegible] railroad were tempted, too.

Billy and Ike were gratified [illegible] late in the afternoon of the [illegible] day, that a great heap of coal now [illegible] underneath the saucepan. Truly, [illegible] target had drawn many shots.

"Look, mamma, the old gobbler has had his fan up for half an hour, and his face looks just as red as ever!"

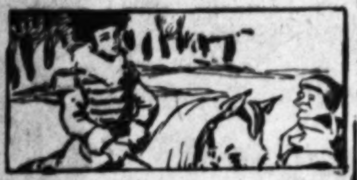
Thrilling Adventures of a Boy Soldier



STAGGERING into the presence of the marshal, the dust-begrimed courtier gasped:

"I am bidden to inform you, sir, that the allies are storming Aury, and that the city can hold out very little longer. Already the food supplies are exhausted, so that starvation threatens as well as the enemy. I spent some time getting through the besiegers' lines; therefore, not a moment must be lost if the city is to be saved."

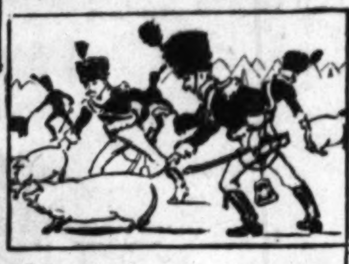
"You have done well," replied the marshal. Then, turning to an orderly, he commanded:

"Tell Colonel Rebaut I wish to see him at once."

A few minutes later the boy officer, Colonel Francois Rebaut, appeared and saluted the marshal.

"Rebaut," said the marshal, "you have proved yourself so resourceful in the past that I am going to intrust you with a very important mission. Take Colonel Mercier's regiment and advance immediately to the support of Aury. I cannot spare you a larger force. With these men you must rescue the city. Carry a large quantity of provisions, for Aury is in dire need of them."

That night Francois mustered his relief party and started for the city of Aury. By forced marches he arrived within a short distance of the allies' outposts late in the afternoon of the following day.



Meantime he was cudgeling his brains for some plan whereby he could effect a rescue. With the small force at his command it was clearly impossible to make a direct attack, and since the enemy were already aware of his approach, there was little hope of surprising them. Mounting his horse and accompanied only by an orderly, he rode about the camp. As he neared the line he heard a sentry challenge a peasant. Drawing closer, he observed the countryman ask permission to sell a fat porker which he had with him. All at once an idea came to Francois. Putting the spurs to his horse, he galloped to where the man stood.

"Do you think you can provide us with 500 pigs immediately? I will pay you well for them."

The peasant stared, and then promised to do his best for the officer.

Not more than a few hours had passed before droves of pigs began to pour into the camp. Francois rubbed his hands together gleefully.

"Tonight is Halloween—just the right time to give the enemy a scare."

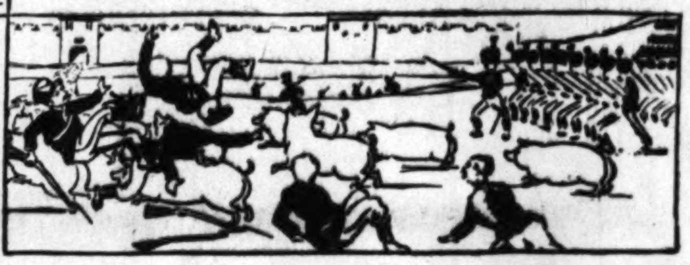
When nightfall had long since descended upon the camp, Francois ordered that each of five soldiers should pull the ears of a sturdy hog. The poor animals squealed and grunted piteously. And the other pigs, having been freed of their bonds, no sooner heard these agonized yells than they rushed frantically from the camp, guided by the French soldiers in the direction Francois wished the animals to go.

Right into the camp of the English and their allies rushed the frightened porkers, throwing down tents, scattering small arms and creating the wildest disorder.

"Witches have changed the pigs of Frenchmen into real hogs!" cried the English in dismay.

Taking advantage of the confusion, immediately after the pigs followed Francois and his soldiers, hewing a way directly through the camp of the enemy. Relentlessly they pushed on, up to the very gates of Aury, where they and the pigs were welcomed with greatest joy.

Francois had saved Aury with a drove of hogs.



A Colony's Halloween Prank

"GENTLEMEN," said Sir Edmond Andros, haughtily, "it is by the king's command that I ask your charter."

In vain the colonists argued for their rights. Andros could not be moved from his demands. The faces of the men about him grew set and tense in expression, and their eyes gleamed sternly. Significant glances passed from one to another.

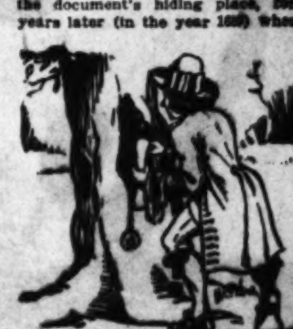
Suddenly the lights, which had been flickering unsteadily, blew out. Only a moment were the occupants of the room in darkness, for quickly the candles were relighted, but in that single moment the attitude of the colonists had changed. Now they looked triumphantly, scornfully into the face of the man whom Charles II had appointed Governor of New England, as he demanded abruptly:

"I must have the charter."

"Very well," calmly replied the colonists.

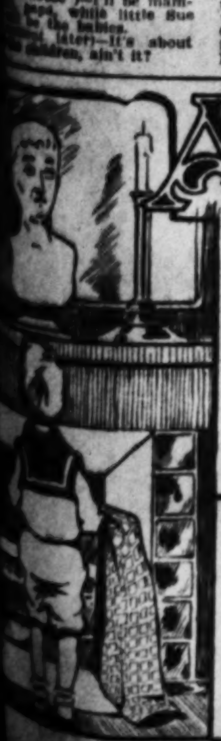
But the precious Connecticut charter was not to be found! Surely some elf must have spirited it away upon this eerie Halloween.

The elf, however, must have been well known to the colonists, as well as the document's hiding place, for two years later (in the year 1689) when Andros was seized at Boston and sent back to England, the charter was taken from a hollow oak tree in which it had lain concealed. And the charter so accommodatingly saved by the self-same elf remained in force until 1818.



HID THE CHARTER

Astonishing Kindness of a Very Little Hobgoblin



AND tonight would be Halloween, when spirits would walk and witches and elves and goblins would disport themselves in mischievous fashion. Gordie wondered if goblins ever did kindly things. There were so many nice deeds they could do, you know, if they only would. For instance, there was the poor plaster bust on the mantel which lacked arms and a body and didn't have one single bit of clothes. Then the portrait of his uncle showed a hand missing and the poor fellow hadn't a hair on his head; while Fido, the dachshund, certainly ought to have longer legs—there was no doubt about it.

The more Geordie thought of these little kindnesses the goblins could do the more he became convinced that they wouldn't do them; for hadn't Nursie told him goblins were good for nothing but foolish pranks? Now if he were only some sort of a hobgoblin, he'd be only too glad to do everything he could for people without a moment's hesitation.

Perhaps he could do something right now. He decided to try, anyway. So upstairs Geordie tramped. Presently he returned with his father's silk hat, a pair of trousers and slippers, together with his mother's long gloves. The hat he placed jauntily upon the head of the poor bust. Then he stuffed the trousers and attached them to the bottom of the bust, while he fastened the bottoms of the trousers in the slippers. After this he hung the long gloves to the poor figure. Arranging the clothing very carefully he stepped back to note the effect. Certainly the bust looked much more comfortable and pleased with himself.

Now for Fido. Two pairs of stout boots were at hand. These the kind-hearted boy tied to doggie's feet, so that Fido was raised to the height nature really should have made him. But Fido was so puzzled that he couldn't imagine what it was all about. He stood quite patiently while Geordie fastened a cord to his collar and placed the end in the hand of Mr. Bust.

Wasn't there something else he could do? Ah, yes! Uncle Frederick should have a new head of hair and a hand as well. To the bald scalp he pasted long black wisps taken from a brush he found in the closet; and black paint enabled him to make the hair nice and thick. Afterward it was an easy matter to tack a glove to the canvas in the place where the hand should have been.

Thoroughly satisfied with himself and his work, Geordie now summoned the rest of the family, bidding them come and see what the Halloween goblins had done.

The family came. And truly they were astonished at the kindness of the goblins. Indeed, they were more astonished than pleased. Father was very angry—so angry that one little hobgoblin we know of received a sound spanking. This is probably the only goblin that ever received a spanking, though I s'pose lots of them deserve it. But Geordie really didn't believe he deserved it.

FLUFFY RUFFLES.
SHE VISITS KILLARNEY.

1.—"Killarney's lakes are beautiful. We'll really have to go,"
Said Fluffy to her aunt one day. They went. And there was Joe.
That morning Fluffy's loving aunt was feeling far from well;
And when Joe said he'd take them both to visit some fair dell
She said she'd have to stay behind. "But you two go, I pray,
'Twould be a shame to miss the chance, it's such a lovely day.
Just tell me where you mean to lunch, and if I need you here
I'll telegraph." "And I will fly to my own aunty dear."

2.—In Traddles' motor car they went to Dunloe's famous gap.
They full enjoyed the charming ride and suffered no mishap.
But when, lunch over, happy Joe was calling for the bill
This telegram was handed them, "Come back. Am very ill."
At once Joe Traddles called his car, although he'd meant to ask
If in dear Fluffy's radiance forever he might bask.
Speed laws forgot, they forged ahead—for Fluffy feared the worst—
When on a level stretch of road the forward tire burst.

3.—By great good fortune neither one was injured in the lea
Just then a wagon passed their way, drawn by a sorry b
And driven by an Irishman of most good natured face.
"Egorry, miss, 'twas coortin' death to go at such a pace."
"But I must get to Meara's Inn. My aunt is very sick."
"There's room for wan. Just joomp in here. I'll take ye' to
"Don't stop for me," said Traddles then. "I'll catch up if I can."
So Fluffy, smiling, waved her hand and sat beside the man.

4.—The horse, though old, had ginger yet and galloped like the
"It's just my luck," said Traddles, "to be left so far behind."
The horse, though old, had ginger, but his pace was far too
And when he tumbled in his tracks—"I knew he couldn't Declared the honest Irishman; "I'll l'ave him here to rest,
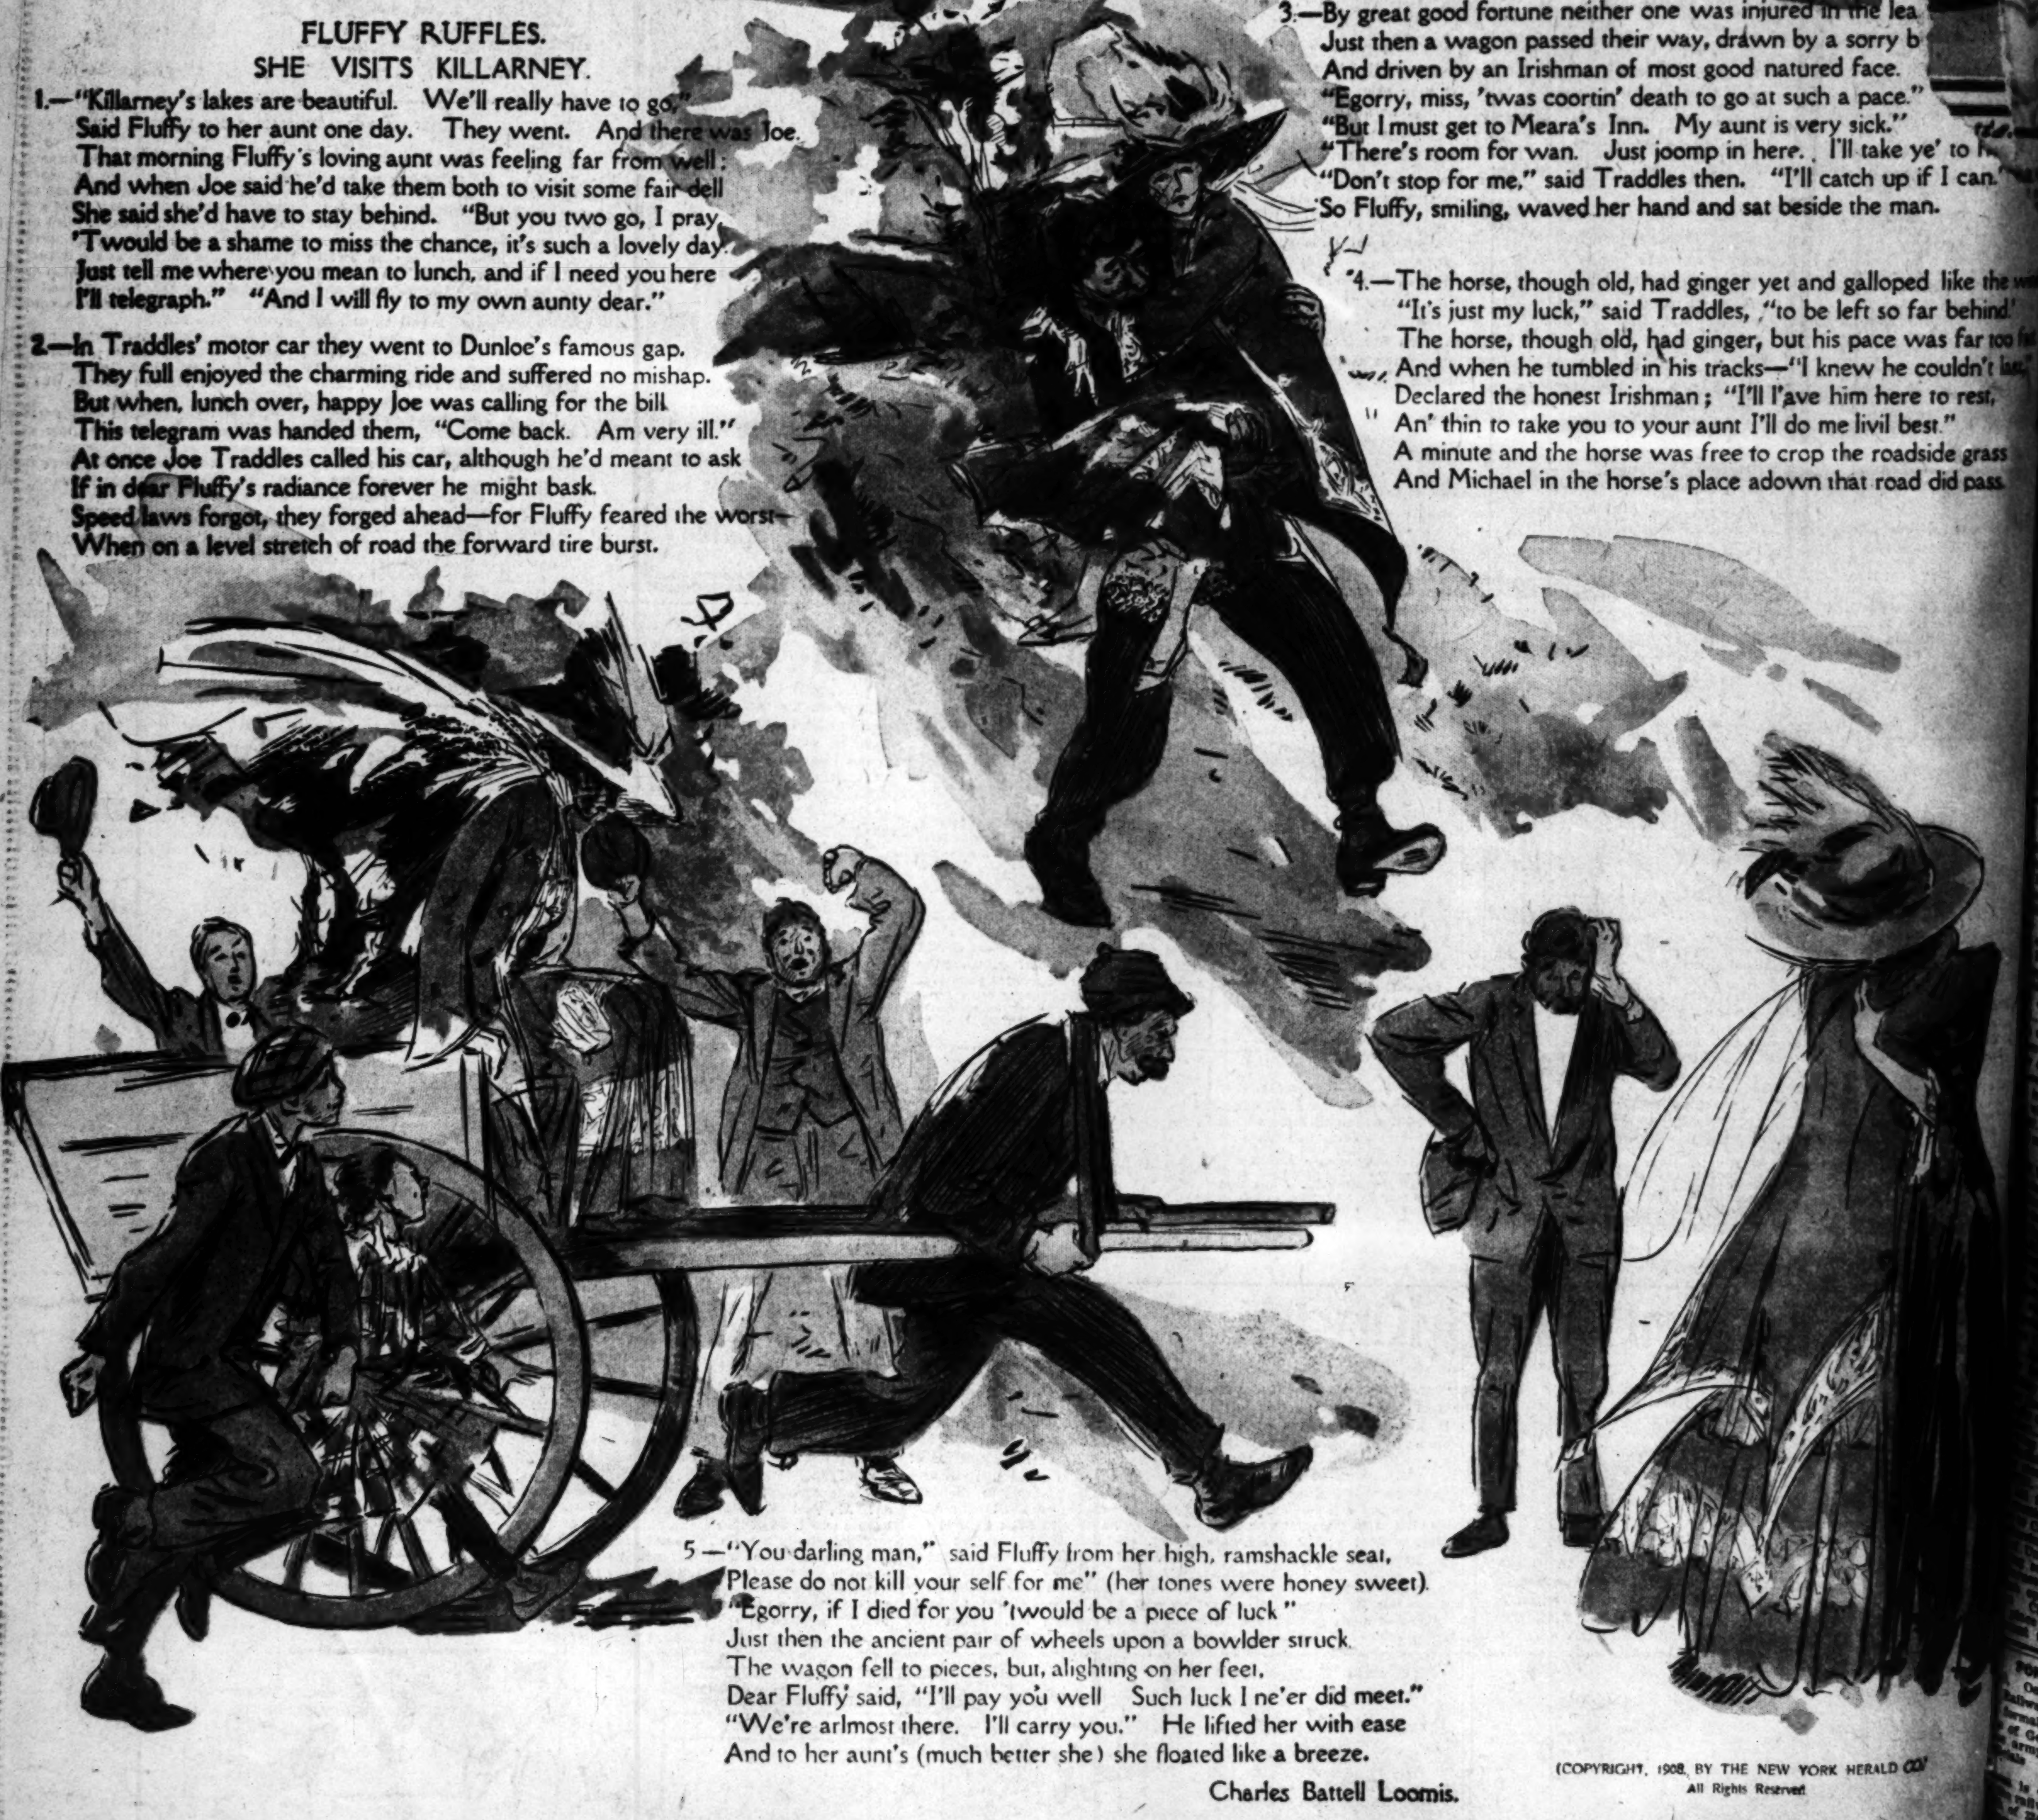
An' thin to take you to your aunt I'll do me livil best."
A minute and the horse was free to crop the roadside grass
And Michael in the horse's place adown that road did pass.



5.—"You darling man," said Fluffy from her high, ramshackle seat,
Please do not kill your self for me" (her tones were honey sweet).
"Egorry, if I died for you 'twould be a piece of luck."
Just then the ancient pair of wheels upon a bowlder struck.
The wagon fell to pieces, but, alighting on her feet,
Dear Fluffy said, "I'll pay you well Such luck I ne'er did meet."
"We're arlmost there. I'll carry you." He lifted her with ease
And to her aunt's (much better she) she floated like a breeze.
